SERVIAN BORDER HAS THE APPEARANCE OF WAR

Special to the Review

London, Oct., 7.—Wm. Maxwell the Daily Mail's correspondent just arrived at Sofia, tells his paper that from the Servian border to Sofia, everything appears like a country already at war. Martial law has been proclaimed throughout the land and nothing short of a miracle can prevent war. The powers awakened to the gravity of the situation too late.

REDMONDS AND KIER HARDIE TO GET LEGACY

Special to the Review

Edinburg, Scotland, Oct. 7—In the will of Jane Keppan aged eighty two, legacies are left for the Irish Leaders John and William Redmond and Kier Hardie the Socialist leader who benefit equally in an estate of thirty eight thousand dollars.

PROFESSOR OF PHILOLOGY DIED TO-DAY

Special to the Review

London, Oct. 7.—The death occured to-day of Prof. Rev. Walter William Skeat, of Cambridge University; one of the most widely known professors of Philology. He was 76 years of age and was born in London.

Auto Trip Ends In Death.

Schenectady, N.Y., Oct. 7.—George Baguley, a merchant of Toronto, Ont., was killed about five miles west of this city Saturday afternoon while en route in his automobile from New York to his home in Toronto. Mr. Baguley, who was driving, accompanied by his chauffeur, S. Hogg, had turned out to pass another automobile, when he ran into a rut at the side of the road. He lost control of his car, which went down the 15-foot embankment, struck a pile of stone and turned turtle, throwing the chauffeur clear of the car, but pinning Mr. Baguley underneath. When passing motorists had assisted the chauffeur to lift the car off the body of Mr. Baguley, it was found that the top supporting arm of the side of the seat had penetrated his back causing instant death.

The chauffeur claims that the car was traveling at a speed of only 25 miles at the time of the accident. He was not even scratched.

Dover, Eng., Oct. 7.—Divers to-day found the wreck of the British Submarine "B 2" which was run down and sunk by tne Liner Amerika last Friday.

Boy's Fatal Prank.

Berlin, Ont., Oct. 7.—A fatal accident occurred here yesterday afternoon in the west ward. Seven boy chums were playing near the new rubber tire factory when one of them suggested, on picking up a loose piece of wire about six feet long, that they go up a tree and get shock from off the Hydro-electric wire which passes at this point.

Walzec Kolitzki, aged 10, and Leo Kiyniak, aged 9, climbed up a tree and the former put a hook on the one end of the wire and, standing in the crotch of the tree, reached out and received through his body 13,000 volts, killing him instantly.

His companion was knocked unconscious and is now in the general hospital, but will probably recover.

Boy Crushed Under Wagon.

Galt, Oct. 7.—A number of lads jumped on a wagon on Central School Hill and one, Gladstone Stuart of Rich avenue, fell off and the wheels passed over his body. Several ribs were broken, head cut and his finger smashed, besides other injuries, which render his condition critical.

WILLING TO GRANT GREATER AUTONOMY TO STATES

Rumelia and Macedonia Are Conceded More Self-Government in a Proposal to be Decided Upon by the Representatives of the Powers

London, Oct. 7.—What may prove to be an important development in the Balkan problem came from Constantinople last night in the form of a statement that the Porte has announced its willingness to put into execution article 23 of the Berlin Treaty relating to a greater measure of self-government for Rumelia and Macedonia. It is stipulated by the Porte that the details are to be settled by consultation with the European Rumelian commission, which comprises representatives of Great Britain, France, Germany, Austria Italy and Russia.

Should this statement prove to be accurate there will be a good chance that the medation of the powers resulting from the Paris pourparlers may prove effectual in preventing war. The Balkan states demand that Christian governors shall be appointed in Macedonia by the great powers. Article 23 contains no provision of this kind, but it is believed that if the powers could give some sort of guarentee that Turkey would carry out the terms of this article the matter might be accommodated.

Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, has returned to London. He is expected to consult with the Cabinet to-day in order to prepare Great Britain's reply to M. Poincare's note. It is believed that the British Government disapproves of the strong coercion which is proposed and which has been forced, according to the British view, by the statesmen at Paris, to compel Turkey to accept the Balkan demands. [illegible]

Various frontier [illegible] to figure in the reports, but apparently nothing serious enough to precipitate a war has yet happened.

In Britain's Hands.

Paris, Oct. 7.—War or peace between Turkey and the Balkan states is in the balance. If anything it might be said that the scales swung slightly against peace in the sense that every hour's delay in the powers' intervention increases the danger of hostilities.

The word now rests with Great Britain. All the powers save Great Britain have accepted, with some modifications, the French Premier's plan for intervention, but it is understood here that Great Britain hesitates in going so far as to assume with the other powers responsibility for securing from Turkey broad reforms in Macedonia.

Great Britain's procrastination is causing some uneasiness and some criticism in Paris. Such papers as Temps assert that they cannot understand Great Britain's lack of sympathy in the needed Turkish reforms, when in 1876 that country rose up in a body against the so-called Bulgarian atrocities of that year. Even with England's support, and this is expected to come to-day, the crisis is not removed. The great question remains as to whether the powers can obtain extensive enough reforms from Turkey to satisfy the militant Balkan states.

Austria has given adhesion to the plan formulated by the French and Russian Foreign Ministers to deal with the Balkan situation. Austria, however suggested a slight change in the wording of the proposals, which met with the immediate approval of both M. Poincare and M. Sazonoff. The only effect of the amendment is to more sharply define the intentions of the powers and present a more precise statement of these. It is understood that the proposals do not demand autonomy for Macedonia, but urged the adaptation of the provisions of article 23 of the treaty of Berlin providing for a larger measure of home rule. It is believed here that the proposals as now outlined will remove any lurking suspicion in England that the continental powers possibly were contempating a settlement wholly at the expense of Turkey.

Germany and Italy have approved their ally's modifications, so that, with full adhesion of the British Government, which is confidently expected to-day, the powers will be in a position to say to the Balkan coalition that the Balkan states will no longer [illegible] on the promises of [illegible] Europe.

More Clashes Reported.

Constantinople, Oct. 7.—An engagement has occurred at Berana, near the Montenegrin frontier, between the Turks and the Montenegrins. The latter were repulsed, according to advices received here. The Turkish Government, it is understood, views this affray as practically the beginning of hostilities.

Assim Bey, ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs, has gone to Roumania to seek the support of that state in the Balkan difficulty.

Collisions are reported to have occurred Friday and Saturday between Turkish and Greek frontier guards in the regions of Metsovó and Elassone.

Several Moslems, implicated in the Kotschana massacre, have been sentenced by court-martial, one to death, another to life imprisonment and the others to minor terms.

"BIG JACK" ZELIG IS KILLED BY A BOSTON PICKPOCKET

One of the State's Witnesses in the Rosenthal Murder Case is Shot on a Street Car in New York.

New York, Oct. 7.—"Big Jack" Zelig was shot and killed Saturday night. The east side gang leader, who was said to have supplied the gunmen for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, was on a Second avenue open car when Philip Davidson, who says he is a fruit dealer, jumped on the running-board and fired the fatal shot. Davidson is said by denizens of the underworld to be "Red Phil," a Boston pickpocket.

Davidson jumped from the car and ran away, but was captured, pistol in hand. He admitted the shooting. According to the prisoner Zelig had held him up early in the day in an east side hallway and robbed him of $400.

Zelig was rushed to Bellevue Hospital, but before the ambulance reached that institution he was dead. On his body, the police say, only $2.34 was found, although a well-dressed woman, whose identity was not learned, visited the Bellevue morgue not long after Zelig's death and asked the authorties to turn over to her $500 which she said Zelig had in his possession when he was shot.

Davidson explained to detectives at police headquarters that after he had been robbed he went to Jersey City, bought a revolver and after making several ineffectual efforts to get his money back, chased Zelig about the car and shot him.

District Attorney Whitman, as soon as he was notified of the murder, requested that the questioning of the prisoner be deferred until he arrived at headquarters.

On Zelig's body several letters were found, including missives from "Whitey" Lewis, "Gyp the Blood," "Lefty Louie" and "Dago" Frank, who are in the Tombs for the Rosenthal murder.

Zelig had figured in numerous shooting affrays growing out of east side gang fights, and had more than once felt the sting of hot lead. At the time of his arraignment on the gun carrying charge he was shot, but not seriously wounded, as he was on his way to the criminal courts building.

It was expected that Zelig would be a state's witness in the trial of Lieut. Becker, although he had denied furnishing the Rosenthal slayers.

Hon. Joseph Young Better.

Galt, Oct. 7.—The health of Hon. Joseph Young has been causing his relatives and friends grave anxiety. For several weeks he has been confined to his bed in a critical state. To-day however, his medical attendant stated that the patient had taken a decided turn for the better, and though still weak, he will probably continue to improve.

Mr. Young, who is in his 78th year, retains his mental powers unimpaired and is a worker daily at his desk when in normal health. Literary labors and a mass of correspondence keeps him a busy man five hours a day. He has carefully preserved all his important correspondence and its possession renders his political historical works uncommonly accurate and exceptionally detailed and interesting.

DYNAMITERS HAD ANOTHER JOB

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 7.—Five days after the blowing up of The Los Angeles Times' building when twenty-one people were killed, a plot was considered by the McNamaras to cause a similar explosion on the Atlantic coast.

U. S. District Attorney Miller, who is conducting the prosecution of the accused "dynamite plotters" for Federal Judge A. B. Anderson, so asserted in delivering the Government's outline on the case before the jury on Saturday. Mr. Miller said Ortie E. McManigal had been selected to do the job and was sent east from Indianapolis to Massachusetts.

Mr. Miller said McManigal traveled about the east with explosives in a suitcase, finally blowing up a railroad bridge at Worcester, Mass., on Oct. 10.

Mr. Miller quoted from books which he said were taken from the union headquarters to show that $11,000 was appropriated at a meeting of the executive board held in Indianapolis, Dec. 8, 1909, and was paid out at the rate of $1,000 to John J. McNamara, with the specific understanding that McNamara was to use it to defray the expenses of dynamiting.

The McNamaras drew on the fund regularly up to and after The Times disaster, his checks being endorsed by Frank M. Ryan, president of the union; John T. Butler, Buffalo, first vice-president; Herbert S. Hockin, acting secretary-treasurer; Frank C. Webb, New York, and Phillip A. Cooley, New Orleans, member of the executive board, all of whom are on trial.

CALGARY TRAGEDY

Real Estate Dealer Shot His Wife and Then Himself

Special to the Review.

Calgary, October 7— Crazed with jealousy and his inability to effect a reconciliation with his wife, John C. Davis, a well known realty operator, fired three bullets into her body, killing the woman instantly.

The two were in the apartments of Miss Mable Dixon, a private detective, who was also wounded to such an extent that she may die.

Davis then turned the revolver on himself and ended his life.

Sank With Leaky Boat.

Ottawa, Oct. 7.—Roy M. Chutron, a seven-year-old boy, was drowned late Saturday in the Rideau River when a leaky boat in which he was playing with three other boys, became detached from its moorings and floated down the river. The other three boys managed to jump out, but young Chutron, who was paddling, did not notice the condition of the boat. The body was recovered late at night.

It takes more than an eye-opener to make the toper see the error of his ways.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS IN BRIEF

Mrs. Esther Levi, aged 44, committed suicide yesterday at her home, Lippincott street, Toronto, by inhaling illuminating gas.

Joseph Turkington of Guelph, who had been drinking heavily of late, and was missing for several days, was found dead in a stable yesterday.

The writ is out for a federal election in the County of Richelieu, Que. The nomination will take place on Oct. 17 and polling a week later.

George Craig, tailor, of Three Rivers, Que., aged 50, was struck by the C.P.R. train near the St. Maurice bridge yesterday, and instantly killed.

Premier Asquith declared yesterday that he had not lost all hope that the unspeakable calamity of war might be averted by the great powers working together in careful and loyal co-operation for the preservation of peace.

The best way to tell an American political boss to-day is by the way he pretends he isn't one.

TRIES TO KILL SIR DONALD

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 7.—It was reported in the corridor of the Hotel Vancouver that an attempt had been made by some crank to assassinate Sir Donald Mann. It was related that a man fired a shot from a revolver at Sir Donald but owing to the activity of the latter's valet in attacking the man, Sir Donald escaped injury. That some unpleasant incident occurred was quite evident but exact details were not obtainable and no arrest was made. It was learned that when the would-be assassin was led away he [illegible] to kill not only Mann but a [illegible] other prominent Canadians.

Liberals Endorse Sutherland.

London, Ont., Oct. 7.—The East Middlesex Liberals on Saturday endorsed the candidacy of William Sutherland, a Conservative, who is running as an independent in the bye-election for the Legislature against George W. Neeley. Mr. Sutherland declined to state his attitude on the Rowell "abolish the bar" platform.

Child Burned to Death.

Toronto, Oct. 7.—Her entire body terribly burned, Mildred Rath aged 5 years, of 51 Sussex avenue, died at two o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Hospital for Sick Children. Playing with matches is attributed as the cause of her death. Dr. Trebilcock was called and sent her to the hospital where she died two hours later.

DESPERATE FIGHT OCCURS PACIFIC COAST PRISON

Convicts Kill Guard and Two Other Warders Wounded by Two Long Term Burglars, Named Wilson and Smith, in New Westminster Prison

Vancouver, Oct. 7.—Prison Guard E. Joynson was killed and two other guards injured on Saturday afternoon while attempting to frustrate a desperate attempt of H. Wilson and Joseph Smith to escape from the New Westminster penitentiary. Wilson and Smith were in a stone-breaking gang and as Edward Craig turned at the end of his parade Smith struck him on the head with a hammer, knocking him down. He jumped up and grappled with Smith, getting him down, but Wilson rushed in and together they overpowered him and took his pistol. They then ran towards the vestibule with Craig after them, but they secured a good start.

Guard Round, in charge of the vestibule, was standing in such a position that they were able to get right behind him before he noticed them, and when he turned the stolen revolver was in his face. They took his pistol, marched him through the tunnel leading from the vestibule under the wall to the brickyard, and with two pistols at his back compelled him to cross the brickyard as if they were being taken to some place to work. In that manner they succeeded in approaching Guard Morrison and they were close up to him before he noticed there was anything wrong. This guard was in charge of an excavating gang. Using the captured guard as a shield, they forced Morrison at the point of their revolvers to hand his over. The convicts walked both guards along the back fence to the brickyard, where Guard Elson was stationed on a long stand running along a wall at an elevation of twelve feet above the ground. Again sheltering themselves behind the two guards, they covered Elson with their revolvers and demanded that he throw down his rifle and keys. He threw down his rifle.

At this point Joynson, who was engaged in another part of the yard and had put his men under the charge of another officer, approached and opened fire with his pistol. His shots were without effect. One of the desperadoes, Wilson, picked up Elson's rifle and fired at Joynson. It is believed that Smith also fired at him with his pistol. Then Joynson fell. He died within a few minutes.

Wilson jumped for the keys thrown down by Elson, the guard who obeyed the command to throw down his rifle, but he was also armed with a pistol, and as Wilson tried to get the keys he fired at him with that weapon.

"I am wounded, Smith," called out Wilson, and Guard Round, who had been held up in the vestibule and marched along, took advantage of the momentary inattention of Smith as he turned to his fellow-convict, and struggled with him for the two pistols Smith was then carrying. Other guards came rushing up and Smith and Wilson surrendered.

Wilson and Smith are both long-term burglars.

REID NAMED IN WATERLOO

Waterloo, Oct. 7.—Conservatives of North Waterloo assembled Saturday afternoon to choose a candidate to contest the bye-election. The convention was unanimous in the selection of Richard Reid of Berlin, who in reply told those present that he appreciated the honor, but said he could not give them a definite answer, but would ask for a week to consider. In view of this, the convention was adjourned for a week. Fred. Walters, license inspector, was nominated, but only received three votes from the convention.

ITALY WILL KEEP TRIPOLI

Lausanne, Switzerland, Oct. 7.—The Turco-Italian treaty of peace now awaiting ratification provides for Turkish recognition of Italian sovereignty in Tripoli, according to The Lausanne Gazette.

The Italian Government, it is stated, is to pay an indemnity to Turkey, and is also to recognize the religious authority of the khalif over the Mussulmans of Tripoli.

A despatch from Ouchy to The Journal de Geneve purports to give the terms of the treaty as follows:

First—Absolute sovereignty of Italy in Lybia, without, however, formal recognition there of Italy by Turkey.

Second—Free exercise of free religious authority by the Khalif, as in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Third—Turkey to withdraw her regular troops from Lybia.

Fourth—Italy to pay an indemnity equivalent to Lybia's contribution to the Ottoman treasury.

Fifth—Restitution of the captured islands by Turkey with safeguards for the Christian population.

Sixth—No indemnity payable by either side towards the cost of the war.

Seventh—The re-establishment of former diplomatic and commercial relations between the two nations.

Vancouver's Building Boom.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 7.—Vancouver building permits for nine months total in value $12,700,000, including 1,797 dwellings and 186 apartment and rooming houses. The dwellings placed side by side would reach ten and one-fifth miles.

No Railway Strike In Spain.

Madrid, Oct. 7.—The proposed railroad strike throughout Spain has been called off by the leaders of the men.

G.T.P. AND C.N.R. WILL DEFEND THE PRESENT SCHEDULE

Ottawa, Oct. 7.—The line of defence which the railways operating in Western Canada will take before the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners when the western rates case is resumed to-day, is revealed in statements from the railways filed with the board on Saturday. The C.P.R., C.N.R. and G.T.P. will submit practically the same reasons why they believe that the prima facie case established before the railway board by the representatives of the Dominion, Saskatchewan and Alberta Governments should not be allowed to stand. The enquiry is based upon the general assumption that the rates charged west of Port Arthur are so much higher than those charged in the east, that they constitute an unjust discrimination.

The contention is advanced that eastern and western rates were established under entirely dissimilar circumstances which fact warrants the difference existing between them. It is pointed out by the railways that higher rates are charged in the American west than in the southern states.

The C.N.R. and G.T.P., judging from documents submitted, propose to make much of the argument that a reduction in rates would be to the disadvantage of these two companies, because they are not so well established in the west as the C.P.R. A reduction of rates, it is claimed, will only have the result of increasing the competitive strength of the older roads to the detriment of the newer lines. Still another argument advanced by the C.N.R. and G.T.P. is that it is the duty of the board to view the whole situation and not the exceptional financial position of one road—presumably the C.P.R.

Frank Brennan Dead.

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 7.—Frank J. Brennan, city editor of The Daily Standard, died Saturday afternoon of Bright's disease at the age of 31 years. He had been ailing for over two years, and retired from active duty two months ago.

He was the eldest son of Crown Attorney Brennan, was a prominent member of the Knights of Columbus and Catholic Order of Foresters, and active in all the Catholic societies in the city and district. A widow and ten months old child survive.

EIGHT DIES IN AUTO CRASH

Philadelphia, Oct. 6.—A collision on a bridge in which three automobiles were involved resulted in the death of eight men late Saturday night at Thirty-third and Thompson streets in this city.

One of the machines containing nine men came on the bridge at terrific speed. Its rapid approach was seen by John I. Spade, a Philadelphia contractor, who was going over the bridge in the opposite director in a motor. He tried to avoid the car, but he was too late in steering out of its way and a collision occurred.

Heavy Movement of Grain.

Lethbridge, Alta., Oct. 7.—New grain is moving out of southern Alberta at the rate of a hundred thousands bushels a day. More grain has already moved than by the end of October in some former seasons.

"Marvelous Recovery"

Montreal Man So Ill With Dyspepsia Thought He Would Die.

No more convincing evidence was ever put on paper than the following letter from one of Montreal's well-known citizens, Mr. D. R. Larose, of 338 Joliette street.

"Permit me to write you a few words concerning Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for five years. I suffered so much that I could hardly attend to my work. I was weak and lost all courage. I enjoyed no rest until I decided to follow your treatment after having read your advertisement in the paper. To my great surprise I immediately began to feel better. I am now using the second box and I feel so well that I want to tell you that I owe this great change to your famous pills. I recommend them to every person who is suffering from dyspepsia. Your grateful servant, D. R. Larose, 338 Joliette st., Montreal, P.Q."

IN A NEW ROLE

The Brockville Times, in a recent issue trounces the Hon. Geo. P. Graham for his statements made at the Laurier meeting at Peterborough We reprint the article in its entirety—

"at the overflow meeting in the Peterboro Opera House last night, Hon George P. Graham, in the most vigorous fashion that he has employed on the present tour, enlarged upon the "whisper" campaign that was conducted against the Liberal party at the last election. Speaking as a Protestant and an Ontario representative to the Protestants in an Ontario audience, he startled the whole house to its feet.

"As an Ontario Protestant," he began, "I desire to speak to my fellow-citizens and fellow-Protestants of Ontario upon matters that Sir Wilfrid may not refer to, but which, in justice to him and to the Liberal party, I consider should be fully threshed out in public by an Ontario Protestant representative. At the last election in Peterboro, as well as in my own constituency of Brockville, and other ridings, Sir Wilfrid and his government were villified for things they have done and for things they never did. While the trade issue was discussed on the public platforms, on the streets and in the homes, the Ne Temere decree was whispered in the ears of the men, and what was worse, in the ears of thousands of the good women and girls of Ontario who were led to believe in some mysterious way that Sir Wilfrid was responsible for the decree and the effects it would produce. In Brockville it was Laurier and Graham who had enacted the decree. In Peterboro you were told it was Laurier and Stratton. Isn't it so?"

"No, it isn't so; and the Hon. G. P. Graham posing as the "Protestant representative," is an impudent joke inasmuch as he and his newspaper, the Brockville Recorder, have for years catered to and courted Roman Catholic support most assiduously. Let the Recorder give a list of the federal appointments made by Mr. Graham, or at his instance, specifying how many have been Protestant and how many have been Roman Catholic. At the time he went out of office he had also several supporters of the Roman Catholic faith slated for Government positions. Mr. Graham is wise in going away from his home town when he makes his shameful efforts to stir up religious prejudice."

EDITORIAL NOTES

A beautiful French heiress has escaped from a lunatic asylum. That's 'bout the only place where they would let a beautiful heiress get away.

A whole lot of attention is being paid to the call of the West for men, and already there are more men than women in the West. A call for women would appear to be in order also.

The question of jail reform is worth looking into, but the inmates would prefer viewing it from an outside standpoint.

The light vote polled by the women in the Ohio election is attributed to the fact that the election was held on ironing day.

A drug clerk in Toronto complains that many people are in the habit of trying to coax him to sell cigars and candies on Sundays, despite his protests that it is against the law. Seemingly the regulations for the observance of the Sabbath in the Ontario capital are stricter than some of its citizens. The same condition has been noticed in other places.

The Lackawanna Railroad has issued a notice to the effect that any employee caught drinking intoxicating liquors either on or off duty will be dismissed. This is in line with the action taken by several other railways of late. The day when a man could get intoxicated and still hold his position and chance of promotion has passed. Industry is working to make a sober world.

Moose Jaw will do more than kill the fatted calf when the duke visits that city. Three well nourished oxen and a hundred suckling pigs will be the city's burnt offering on the altar of loyalty. The roasting process will be conducted by expert barbecue chefs and the banquet served in the open.

Letters stolen from the offices of business men are figuring largely in the United States press in connection with some phases of the election campaign. Letters stolen from the offices of business men once figured largely in an election campaign in Canada; but they brought little profit either to the thieves or those who received the stolen goods. Even where people do not set a high moral standard for the politicians who aspire to rule them there are generally enough men of wholesome ideas in a community to make sneak thieving unprofitable.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL MEETING

Peterborough, Sept. 28, 1912.

The members of the council were all present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Morrow, that Mr. May be authorized to cut down the old pine tree near the school house, on account of the danger of game blowing down into the school yards.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Morrow, seconded by Mr. Forster, that Mr. John McIntosh, tax collector for the township, be given an increase of $5 more than last year, or $65. Mr. McIntosh was present and asked the council to give him an increase in salary.

The following accounts were presented for payment:

The Times Printing Co., voters' lists, $32; The Peterborough Hardware Co., nails for bridges, $1.92; James C. Morrow, re Edward Page, Springville, ditch, $23.55; Estate A. McDonald, timber for culvert, Div. No. 4, $11.02. Total, $68.49.

Moved by Mr. Morrow, seconded by Mr. Hobson, that the above accounts be passed and paid.

Requisitions were received for county rates and school rates as follows—

County rate, $2222.10; House of Refuge rate, $342.80; school equivalent rate, $84.68. Total, $2,649.58.

School section, No. 1, $700; school section No. 2, $1250; school section No. 3, $325; school section, No. 4, $220; separate school in Peterborough, $305. Total $2,800.

The Council then prepared estimates of the current receipts and expenditures for the township for the year 1912 as follows—

RECEIPTS

Commutation statue labor, $1322 25; dog tax, $142; County rate, $2,649.58; school rate (trustees and general, $2800; sidewalk debenture tax $116.47; township rate $1083. Total, $8,113.30.

EXPENDITURES

County rate $2222.10; House of Refuge rate, $342.80; school equivalent rate, $84.68; school (trustees), $1568; schools (general), $1282; election expenses, $20; law costs, $20; interest on loan, $50; charity, $25; printing, $10; salaries, $501; miscellaneous $50; commutation statute labor, $1322.25; roads and bridges, $500; sidewalk debentures, $116.17. Total $8,113.30.

The total assessment of the township for the year 1912 being $739,000, it would therefore be necessary to levy the rate of 3 7-10 mills on the dollar to raise the county requisition of $2,649.58, and the rate of 1 4-5 mills on the dollar to cover the township rate of $1,083, and $116.47 of sidewalk debenture taxes.

Moved by Mr. Morrow, seconded by Mr. Forster, re Mr. Carton's plan, that the reeve and clerk be authorized to sign the plan when the same is completed to the satisfaction of the township solicitor.

A communication was received from Mr. T. Hurley, asking the Council to pay Mr. F. Moncrief's bill for $8.40 for grading Ford Ave. This the Council refused to do, it not being a public highway.

The Council then adjourned until the call of the reeve.

Nature's Monument to Washington.

Among the many monuments to Washington is the one which every visitor to the Cape Verde islands will remember as one of the most colossal and marvelous freaks of natural sculpture in existence. Along the farther side of the harbor of San Vicente, the principal town, rises a bold ridge of dark gray volcanic rocks, the crest of which forms an exact likeness of our immortal George, seemingly lying face upward, as if in a peaceful sleep. The hero's large, bold features, the backward wave of the hair, his massive shoulders and even the frill of the shirt front are all reproduced on a gigantic scale with wonderful exactness. The strange monument, sharply outlined against the deep blue of the tropical sky, is one of the first objects that meet one's eye in approaching the island. Its gigantic proportions, with the boundless ocean for a background, form a portrait wonderfully true to nature and overpowering in its magnificence.

Daytime Jewelry of Amber.

Amber is at present a very highly favored item of daytime jewelry. It is seen as the hatpin head, globular in shape and of a medium size, and is the ornament of combs and prongs.

Magical properties were believed to be ascribable to amber in former times, and there were wearers of the beads who vowed they were saved by them from that tedious and troublesome complaint, hay fever. The new delight found in amber is traceable not to any occult connection, but to the fashion for every shade of gold, through all the gradations from the most pallid to the most radiant tint.—London Mail.

The Letter of the Law.

Mr. F. E. Smith, British M.P., tells a story of a county court case he was once engaged in, in which the plaintiff's son, a lad of eight years, was to appear as a witness.

When the youngster entered the box he wore boots several sizes too large, a hat that almost hid his face, long trousers rolled up so that the baggy knees were at his ankles, and, to complete the picture, a swallow-tail coat that had to be held to keep it from sweeping the floor. This ludicrous picture was too much for the court; but the judge, between his spasms of laughter, managed to ask the boy his reason for appearing in such garb.

With wondering look the lad fished in an inner pocket and hauled the summons from it, pointing out a sentence with solemn mien as he did so. "To appear in his father's suit," it read.

Gold Beaters' Skin.

A cheap substitute is much desired for goldbeaters' skin, which is prepared from the outside membrane of the large intestine of the ox. It is said that goldbeaters first tried paper for inclosing the metal, and mulberry fiber paper is still used in China and Japan, but animal parchment has been mostly employed for two or three centuries at least. While a thinner leaf can be beaten out between paper parchment sheets, it is damaged by adhesion. A special German paper is coated with isinglass or albumen, and paper parchment of some kind is much used in the first stages, but goldbeaters finish their product between goldbeaters' skins, still pounding an ounce of gold into 200 square inches of leaf.—New York Tribune.

An Odd Bequest.

The following is one of the oddest bequests ever recorded in a last testament. It appeared in the will of a Bristol mariner proved in 1795. The old gentleman ordered his executors to "pay out of the first moneys collected, to my beloved wife, if living, one shilling, which I have given as a token of my love, that she may buy hazelnuts, as I know that she is better pleased with cracking them than she is with mending the holes in her stockings."

"'Twenty,' says I for my bid. 'Twenty-five,' says the little girl. 'Thirty,' says I. 'Forty,' says she. 'Fifty,' says I. 'Fifty-five,' says she. And there I was stuck. 'Hold on,' says I; 'wait till I see my owners.' 'No, you don't,' says she. 'It's customary,' says I. 'Not anywhere in the world,' says she. 'Then it's courtesy in the Solomons,' says I. And then she smiles at Burnett as well—you know, one of those fetching smiles, and damme if Burnett doesn't begin singing out, 'Goin', goin', goin'—last bid—goin', goin' for 55 sovereigns—goin', goin', gone—to you, Miss—er—what name, please?'

"'Joan Lackland,' says she with a smile to me, and that's how she bought the Martha."

Sheldon experienced a sudden thrill. The Martha, a finer schooner than the Malakula and, for that matter, the finest in the Solomons—she was just the thing for recruits, and she was right on the spot. Then he realized that for such a craft to sell at auction for £55 meant that there was small chance for saving her.

"But how did it happen?" he asked. "Weren't they rather quick in selling the Martha?"

"Had to. You know the reef at Poonga-Poonga. She's not worth tuppence on it if any kind of a sea kicks up, and it's ripe for a nor'wester any moment now. The crowd abandoned her completely. You know Malaita, and you know Poonga-Poonga. That's where they cut off the Scottish Chiefs and killed all hands. There was nothing to do but take to the boats. The Martha missed stays going in, and inside five minutes she was on the reef and in possession. The niggers swarmed over her, and they just threw the crew into the boats. I talked with some of the men. They swear there were 200 canoes around her inside half an hour and 5,000 bushmen on the beach. Said you couldn't see Malaita for the smoke of the signal fires. Anyway, they cleared out for Tulagi."

"But why didn't they fight?" Sheldon asked.

"It was funny they didn't, but they got separated. You see, two-thirds of them were in the boats, without weapons, running anchors and never dreaming the natives would attack. They found out their mistake too late."

"But what is Miss Lackland intending to do."

Captain Auckland grinned.

"She's going to try to get the Martha off, I should say, or else why did she pay 55 quid for her? And if she fails she'll try to get her money back by saving the gear spars, you know, and patent steering gear and winches, such things. At least that's what I'd do if I was in her place. When I sailed the little girl had chartered the Emily. 'I'm going recruiting,' says Munster. He's the skipper and owner now. 'And how much will you net on the cruise?' asks she. 'Oh, 50 quid,' says he. 'Good,' says she. 'You bring your Emily along with me and you'll get 75.' You know that big ship's anchor and chain piled up behind the coal sheds? She was just buying that when I left. She's certainly a hustler, that little girl of yours."

"She is my partner," Sheldon corrected.

"Well, she's a good one, that's all, and a cool one. My word! A white woman on Malaita and at Poonga-Poonga of all places! Oh, I forgot to tell you. She palavered Burnett into lending her eight rifles for her men and three cases of dynamite. You'd laugh to see the way she makes that Guvutu gang stand around. And to see them being polite and trying to give advice! Lord, Lord, man, that little girl's a wonder, a marvel, a-a-a catastrophe. That's what she is—a catastrophe. She's gone through Guvutu and Tulagi like a hurricane. Every last swine of them in love with her, except Raff. He's sore over the auction, and he sprang his recruiting contract with Munster on her. And what does she do but thank him and read it over and point out that, while Munster was pledged to deliver all recruits to Morgan and Raff, there was no clause in the document forbidding him from chartering the Emily.

"'There's your contract,' says she, passing it back. 'And a very good contract it is. The next time you draw one up insert a clause that will fit emergencies like the present one.' And Lord, Lord, she had him too!

"But there's the breeze, and I'm off. Goodby, old man. Hope the little girl succeeds. The Martha's whacking fine boat, and she'd take the place of the Jessie."

The next morning Sheldon came in from the plantation to breakfast to find the mission ketch Apostle at anchor, her crew swimming two mares and a filly ashore.

"Miss Lackland sent them," said Welshmere, the missionary doctor, stepping ashore and shaking hands with him. "There's also a box of saddles on board. And this letter from her. And the skipper of the Flibberty Gibbet."

The next moment and before he could greet him Oleson stepped from the boat and began.

"She's stolen the Flibberty, Mr. Sheldon. Run clean away with her. She's a wild one. She gave me the fever. Brought it on by shock. And got me drunk as well."

Dr. Welshmere laughed heartily.

"Nevertheless she is not an unmitigated evil, your Miss Lackland. She's sworn three men off their drink or, to the same purpose, shut off their whisky. You know them—Brahms, Curtis and Fowler. She shipped them on the Flibberty Gibbet along with her."

"She's the skipper of the [illegible] now," Oleson broke in. "And she'll wreck her as sure as God didn't make the Solomons."

Dr. Welshmere tried to look shocked, but laughed again.

"She has quite a way with her," he said. "I tried to back out of bringing the horses over. Said I couldn't charge freight, that the Apostle was under a yacht license, that I was going around by Savo and the upper end of Guadalcanar. But it was no use. 'Bother the charge,' said she. 'You take the horses like a good man, and when I float the Martha I'll return the service some day.'"

"And 'bother your orders,' said she to me," Oleson cried. "'I'm your boss now,' said she, 'and you take your orders from me.' 'Look at the load of ivory nuts,' I said. 'Bother them,' said she. 'I'm playin' for something bigger than ivory nuts. We'll dump them overside as soon as we get under way.' What I want to know is she your partner or ain't she? That's what I want to know."

"She is," Sheldon assured him.

"Well, who'd have believed it! I've seen a few unlikely things in these Solomons—rats two feet long, butterflies the commissioner hunts with a shotgun, ear ornaments that would shame the devil and head hunting devils that make the devil look like an angel. I've seen them and got used to them, but this young woman of yours"—

"Miss Lackland is my partner and part owner of Berande," Sheldon interrupted.

"So she said," the irate skipper dashed on. "But she had no papers to show for it. How was I to know? And then she's hired them drunken loafers, three of the worst scoundrels that ever disgraced the Solomons—15 quid a month each—what d'ye think of that? And sailed away with them too! Phew! You might give me a drink. The missionary won't mind. I've been on his teetotal hooker four days now, and I'm perishing."

Dr. Welshmere nodded in reply to Sheldon's look of inquiry, and Viaburi was dispatched for the whisky and siphons.

"It is evident, Captain Oleson," Sheldon remarked to that refreshed mariner, "that Miss Lackland has run away with your boat. Now please give a plain statement of what occurred."

"Right O. Here goes. I'd just come in on the Flibberty. She was on board before I dropped the hook—in that whaleboat of hers with her gang of Tahiti heathens, that big Adamu Adam and the rest. 'Don't drop the anchor, Captain Oleson,' she sang out. 'I want you to get under way for Poonga-Poonga.' I says, 'Excuse me, Miss Lackland,' and yells for'ard 'Let go!'

"And then we had it out. I didn't believe her. I didn't think you'd take her on as a partner, and I told her as much and wanted proof. She got high and mighty, and I told her I was old enough to be her grandfather and that I wouldn't take gammon from a chit like her. And then I ordered her off the Flibberty. 'Captain Oleson,' she says, sweet as you please, 'I've a few minutes to spare on you, and I've got some good whisky over on the Emily. Come on along. Besides, I want your advice about this wrecking business. Everybody says you're a crackerjack sailorman'—that's what she said—'crackerjack.' And I went in her whaleboat, Adamu Adam steering and looking as solemn as a funeral.

"On the way she told me about the Martha and how she'd bought her and was going to float her. She said she'd chartered the Emily and was sailing as soon as I could get the Flibberty under way. I was to sail direct for Poonga-Poonga and if I couldn't take her word that she was your partner she'd get along without me and the Flibberty. And right there's where she fooled me.

"Down in the Emily's cabin was them three soaks—you know them—Fowler and Curtis and that Brahms chap. 'Have a drink,' says she. I thought they looked surprised when she unlocked the whisky locker and sent a nigger for the glasses and water monkey. But she must have tipped them off unbeknownst to me, and they knew just what to do. 'Excuse me,' she says; 'I'm going on deck a minute.' Now, that minute was half an hour. I hadn't had a drink in ten days.

"Well, anyway, at the end of the half hour down she came again and took a good squint at me. 'That'll do nicely,' I remembered her saying, and with that she took the whisky bottles and hove them overside through the companionway. 'That's the last,' she said to the three soaks, 'till the Martha floats and you're back in Guvutu. It'll be a long time between drinks.' And then she laughed.

THE BEST WAY

In Which a Few Helpful Things May Be Done.

To get the best results in canning fruit use good, ripe fruit. It is a mistake to think by waiting till fruit is poor and cheap one can get from it just as good results in canning.

To clean an enameled bathtub wipe it dry and then rub it with a cloth dipped in turpentine and salt. Afterward wash it with clean warm water, then wipe it dry, and it will look like a new tub.

To turn a cake easily out of a tin set the tin on a wet cloth for a few seconds immediately after removing it from the oven and then turn it out.

To remove ink from carpets without injuring the carpet make a paste of buttermilk and starch and cover the ink with it.

For Early Fall.

That the tight skirt will hold over until the early fall days is evidenced in the model for autumn which has recently been sent over from Paris. The material is eponge or sponge cloth in a lovely shade of russet brown. The buttons are of dull metal in ball shape.

Demijohn Lamps.

A couple of old wicker covered demijohns are doing duty this summer in a neat seashore bungalow as the bases of lamps. One of them received only a thorough cleaning before being pressed into service; the other was treated to a coat of brown enamel paint. On the light one has been fitted a spreading wicker shade and on the brown one a Japanese openwork shade lined with yellow flowered chintz. The latter [illegible] room, which is done in brown and buff, and the former illumines the veranda from a wicker table at the window, to which the electric light cord can be extended. Both demijohns, of course, are weighted so that they cannot topple over easily.

Lace Hand Bags.

Hand bags made of lace are a pretty summer possession that will take the fancy of the lover of dainty dress accessories. They are swung from the lingerie frock, which is receiving a crescendo of patronage this summer. Irish and venise, both real and imitation, compose them, as well as black and white chantilly and filet combined with embroidery.

LAURIER AT WOODSTOCK.

Liberal Leader Blames Marriage Question for Defeat.

Woodstock, Oct. 5.—Woodstock was en fete yesterday, the occasion being the visit of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and party to this city. Sir Wilfrid, accompanied by Hon. George P. Graham, Hon. Charles Murphy, Hon. Mr. Fisher and Hon. Mackenzie King, arrived at noon and was greeted by a large number of his followers.

After speaking to the students of Woodstock College, he addressed two large meetings in the afternoon, and again last evening he spoke to six thousand people in the opera house and skating rink.

At all the meetings the ex-Premier spoke briefly.

Sir Wilfrid referred particularly to the marriage question as one of the influences to turn him out of power, and stated that if an election was to take place to-day, thousands of Liberals who voted against him on Sept 21, 1911, would vote for him now.

His reference to the question of reciprocity were short.

Once again he stated that in his opinion the home market must always be the best market for Canadians, but he believed that for the products of Canadian farms other markets must be found.

Regarding the navy question, Sir Wilfrid declared once more that the Liberal policy stood.

"Let Mr. Borden prepare his scheme and it will be judged by us upon its merits," he said.

Hon. G. P. Graham dealt chiefly with his famous "campaign of whispering," which he says was conducted by the Conservatives during the last election.

U. S. Catholics In West.

So great has been the migration of United States farmers to western Canada during the past few years, that the Roman Catholic Church in the United States, finding that the movement included many of its members and communicants, has formed an association for the purpose of aiding and directing the settlers to a section where they could be in touch with communities of their own faith.

Negotiations were entered into with a land company, and the association acquired a large acreage, which is now known as St. Peter's colony, in the Quill Plains district of Saskatchewan. A monastery was established, and there is now a considerable Catholic population.

Belgium.

Belgium is one of the smallest countries in regard to area, containing only 11,373 square miles, but it stands today the fifth of all nations of the world in regard to commerce and industries and is the most densely settled in Europe, containing 7,817,561 inhabitants. It is is also one of the richest countries per capita and second to none in enterprise.

Robert Scott, aged about 45, crawled from his bed in Grace Hospital, Toronto, last night, and before he was missed, climbed over the balcony railing, falling a distance of 70 feet to the ground. He died a few hours later.

The village of Ayr took initial steps yesterday in the matter of municipal ownership of public utilities. A by-law to purchase the electric light and power plant was carried by a majority of 26. The next step will be for a municipal waterworks.

BANKING

When you take out a life insurance policy you make the biggest bank deposit you ever made in your life at one time. Did you ever put one thousand—five thousand dollars—through the receiving teller's wicket and say "put that to the credit of my account"? No! Well, the minute you sign the insurance application for this amount and pay the first instalment on your new bank account, you have actually provided that whole sum—ready waiting, for service against one big call that is coming to you sometime—the one on which you will never get any extension of time. That's banking in a new sense and banking with common sense and foresight.

The sun Life of Canada has no peer in the security and liberal results which they give.

FIRST SERVICE IN THE FIRST CHURCH OF THE SOUTH PETERBORO ANGLICAN MISSION

To the congregation numbering between 60 and 70 persons, the first church service of the South Peterborough Anglican Mission as held last night, was one of great interest, and in the years to come, when the parish work will have expanded, necessitating a new church, the service as held last night will be recalled by many.

The church now situated on Braidwood Ave., is that formerly known as Riverdale church, which rested on the west bank of the Otonabee, at the foot of Park street.

This building was purchased and removed to its present location. When the parish was organized by the Rev. James Price some few months ago, the handful of members met for worship at the home of Mr. J. D. Manley, corner of Lock street and Braidwood Avenue, and also at the Exhibit building in the Fair grounds.

The hymns sung last night were "We Love Thy Place, O God"; "Safe in the Arms of Jesus"; "O God Our Help in Ages Past," and "The Church's One Foundation." The sermon was based on the 16th verse of St. John's Gospel, chapter 3: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

There was no surpliced choir; the lighting was through the use of ordinary lanterns and house coal oil lamps. The pews were rows of chairs and a few benches. Mr. A. L. Dickinson presided at the organ. Rev. Mr. Price remarked that he was sure all would be glad that they were finally in their church. There had been disappointments and drawbacks but, said he "You remember the old saying 'better late than never.'" He gave an invitation to those who could and would sing to join the choir, and announced that the Bishop would officiate at the morning service four weeks hence. Another announcement was that the Building Committee would meet on Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.

Not a few children were present for the service and two youngsters mischievously inclined were asked to take positions beneath the pulpit under the eye of the preacher and thereafter not a disturbing sound was heard.

The congregation of the South Peterborough Mission will have the sympathy of the members of the other parishes in the city and also that of sister churches in these their initial steps for the spiritual upbuilding of Peterborough. They are working in that portion of the city at present making great material growth and their efforts should not be in vain.

WEDDING BELLS

DAWSON—SIMMONS.

A very quiet wedding took place on Thursday evening, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert H. Adams, 65 Cowan avenue, Toronto when their sister, Pauline Maud Simmons, was united in marriage to Mr. Vernon R. Dawson, of Peterborough.

Canon Williams officiated. The bride, who was given away by her brother-in-law, wore a navy blue suit with hat to match, and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. She was attended by her little niece, Pauline Adams, who wore a dainty white frock and carried a basket of carnations.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Dawson left for a short trip to Detroit. On their return they will reside at North Gladstone avenue, Toronto.

THEATRICAL

The Light Eternal

The most beautiful play ever given before the footlights of the Grand Opera House, describes to some degree, the presentation of the Light Eternal, the company of which concluded an engagement on Saturday night.

In describing this play as beautiful, the word is not applied to the scenery or the costumes alone, but particularly to the story and the high moral atmosphere with which the audience is brought in touch.

Were there more plays of this character, the stage would be elevated to a higher plane and the world would not face the moral and social problems that confronts us to-day.

MR. BAILEY'S DOG IS DEAD

His Owner is of the Opinion That the Animal Was Poisoned

A dreadful catastrophe has been perpetrated in the south end of the city. "Bill" Bailey's handsome black and tan collie dog is dead presumably from poison. Who the mean party is responsible for the trick is a mystery, but Mr. Bailey is righteously angry and aggrieved. The valuable canine was brought from England by its owner who prized it highly. Mr. Bailey has written to Police Magistrate Dumble about the occurrence.

Mr Bailey said this morning that the dog had been sick and very likely poisoned.

"They would poison us all if they could," asserted Mr. Bailey.

LAD DID NOT ATTEND SCHOOL

Whooping Cough in the House Was Excuse of Mother

James Jordan of Chambers street, was asked by Magistrate Dumble this morning the reason why one of his children had only attended St. Peter's school for three days since the beginning of the autumn term. He explained that he "thought the mother was looking after them." Mrs Jordan was therefore called and stated that owing to four of the other children having the whooping cough the doctor had ordered the truan being kept away for a week or two.

It appears that the boy plays "hooky" after leaving home in the morning but comes home to dinner saying that he has been to school.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Jordan were given some sound advice by the magistrate on the correct way of bringing up children in the course of which his worship remarked that the best legacy that parents in their circumstances could leave their children was a good education.

Both promised to see that the lad attended school regularly.

IMPORTANT CHANGE OF TIME GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

ON MONDAY, SEPT 30th, the Winter schedule of trains will take effect. Important changes are as follows:—

The morning train for Lakefield, now leaving at 8 35 a.m will leave at 7.00 a.m., returning will arrive in Peterboro at 8.15 a.m.

Particular attention is called to the afternoon train for Belleville now leaving at 1.40 p.m., which will be changed to leave Peterboro at 1.30 p.m. This is an important change and should be carefully noted as this train is made up here and always leaves ON TIME. 9d

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

A meeting of the Women's Art Association will be held this evening at 7.45 in the Public Library studio. All friends of the Art Association will be welcome.

All persons interested are reminded of the Elementary Grades Union, on Tuesday evening, in the Sunday school room, (up stairs) of St. Paul's church, at 7.45 o'clock. This is an important meeting.

The 57th [illegible] tice in the band rooms at 8 o'clock to-night, in order to prepare for the Friday night concert in the Armories. A full attendance is requested.

Rally Day was observed at the Sunday school of St. Andrew's church yesterday, and a harvest service held in the evening, when the choir was heard in special music.

Rev. J. B. Grimshaw of Toronto, delivered two strong sermons at Murray street church yesterday. The pastor was preaching at Parkdale Presbyterian church, Toronto.

His Honor Judge Huycke delivered an address to the Sunday school of Mark street church yesterday afternoon. In the evening, the pastor dealt with the subject, "The Duty to the Young."

Mr. R. Tivey, of East City, should specialize in the growing of potatoes. He has unearthed one large tuber to which is attached five other potatoes of average size, all of which weigh 2 3-4 pounds.

REGINA BRANCH OF BARRIE'S LTD., VISITED BY BURGLARS

One Man Was Caught, But His Pal Made Clean Getaway.

The Regina branch of Barrie's Limited, which seems destined to so much prominence, has received its latest sensation in the way of an attempted robbery. Mr. Thomas Barrie to-day, received a copy of the Regina Standard in which is given a full account of the burglary.

A policeman, while on his beat, at about 1 o'clock last Thursday morning, noticed a broken pane in the rear of Barrie's store. At the same time a man pointed a revolver in his face and demanded "Hands Up" upon which the "cop" flashed a lantern in his face. Such publicity was a little too much for the hold-up gentleman, who promptly made tracks but was soon captured by the long arm of the law. His accomplice who was in the store, dropped the swag and disappeared. The paper states that they were about to get away with goods valued between $5000 and $6000.

At police court, the case was adjourned for one week.

GORED BY BULL CAVAN FARMER

FUNERAL HELD TO-DAY

SUCCUMBED TO HIS INJURIF

From injuries received when he was gored by an infuriated bull, over one week ago, Daniel Nill a farmer residing on the 10th line of Cavan, passed away on Friday night, and his funeral took place this morning.

At the time of the accident Mr. Nill sustained severe internal injuries, one lung being pierced by a rib in addition to several ribs being broken. Eye witnesses state that the maddened animal, after knocking his victim down, knelt on his body, and before he was beaten off had succeeded in tossing his victim into a near-by fence. The animal's attention being drawn elsewhere, Mr. Nill had sufficient life left within to enable him to drag himself over the fence, where he remained in a semi-conscious condition, until removed to the house by those who effected his rescue.

The Nill family have been singularly unfortunate of late, two other members of the household having figured in two distinct accidents. Mr. Wm. Nill sustained a broken leg and his mother, Mrs. Daniel Nill received a broken ankle as a result of the horse, which her husband was driving, becoming frightened at an automobile.

Both Mrs. Nill and her son are still compelled to use crutches.

FACTORY BY-LAW TO BE CONSIDERED

Meeting of City Council is Called for To-night

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held to-night in the Council Chamber. Routine business will be transacted, and the by-law to be submitted to the ratepayers on the De Laval Separator Company will also be taken up with a view to placing it before the voters as as early a date as can be settled upon.

Brock Centenary

A patriotic program will be supplied by the 57th Regiment band at the centenary celebration of General Brock on Friday night next in the Armories. The affair will be under the auspices of the Daughters of the Empire.

W. A. Meeting

The Women's Auxiliary of St. John's will hold their regular monthly meeting to-morrow afternoon at 3.30.

POLICE COURT

Magistrate Dumble is Lenient With Disturber of the Peace

John Sadler limped badly and appeared stiff and sore when arraigned before the Magistrate this morning. When outside the court however he straightened up and walked quite briskly. The reason was that John was a participant in a fracas at the Chinese Cafe, in which he got the rough end of a physical argument and he endeavored to work upon the sympathy of the Magistrate. He was intoxicated during the scrap, after being a short time off the list. He is a good worker when sober.

He was discharged after pledging himself to remain sober in future.

FINES OF $20 AND COSTS

Four Men Celebrated at Bobcaygeon on Fair Day

Four men, Wm. Patterson, Wm. McGregor, J. Cameron and D. Tetreau, charged with having been intoxicated in Bobcaygeon, were each fined $20 and costs last week.

The men were charged with being under the influence of liquor on Fair day. Tetreau said he went to Lindsay that morning and brought home his jag internally; McGregor went to Lindsay that morning and brought back a case of whiskey for his own use. Patterson and Cameron had it at home in the cellar for a month, and took a horn or two that day.

The West Calls for Help Twenty Thousand Harvesters Wanted

The crops in Western Canada have been so heavy this year that it has been necessary for the farmers of the West to make another appeal for help. The demand for help is now more urgent than ever, and it will require at least twenty thousand additional men to complete the harvesting.

In order to relieve the situation, the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run a Harvesters' Excursion, Monday, Oct. 14th. $10.00 to Winnipeg, return fare from Winnipeg, $18.00.

DIED AT AN ADVANCED AGE

The Late John Wilson Had See 91 Years

Mr. John Wilson, for eight years a resident of Peterborough, and the father of Mr. Robert Wilson, caretaker of the City Buildings, passed away last evening, about six o'clock, at the advanced age of 91 years.

Mr. Wilson had always enjoyed the best of health, but last Monday the beginning of the end came, for although he rallied and was able to be about on Wednesday, he took another turn for the worse and gradually sank.

He resided with his son, Mr. Robert Wilson at 584 Charlotte street. For 65 years he had been a member of the Orange Association.

Another son, is Mr. Hugh Wilson, of Janetville Station, and Mrs. Samuel Coulter, of Saskatoon, is a daughter.

A service will be held at the late residence, to-night at eight o'clock, and to-morrow morning the remains are to be sent to Janetville for interment. The funeral is private.

WOODMEN UNVEIL MONUMENT IN MEMORY OF MILES D. LAKE

The Woodmen of the World, nearly 200 strong, marched to the Little Lake cemetery yesterday afternoon, to unveil a monument erected by the Camp to the memory of the late Miles D. Lake, who departed this life April 15, 1912.

Dr. Harrison, High Council Commander, of Toronto, came to the city for the ceremony, and he gave the dress at the cemetery, where a large number of friends gathered. The service was opened with the singing of "Nearer, My God to Thee," while the closing hymn was "Rock of Ages."

Sovereign C. Sucee was captain of the axe team, R. Jones was director of ceremonies and W. J. Waterman, marshall.

The inscription on the monument reads:

In memory of MILES D. LAKE.
Died April 15, 1912, aged 34 years
"I know that my Redeemer liveth, and he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth."

CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION IN WORKINGMEN'S INTERESTS

Committee is Appointed to Secure Information and Report Same to a General Meeting—Can a Workingman Live on a Wage of $1.50, With the Present High Prices?

The Workmen's Co-operative Association is the latest organization to be formed in Peterborough.

Workingmen met in the S. O. E. Hall Saturday night, when the organization was effected. This Society is for the purpose of co-operation, the work to be taken up being in the interests of the workingman, on the question of securing the necessities of life.

Can a working man live in Peterborough with a daily wage of $1.50, with prices as they are to-day?

This being a debatable question, a committee was appointed to secure information on the subject, and report to the Society, the date of the meeting to be decided by the Secretary. The committee is Messrs. J. Begley, chairman; B. Cuffe, P. McArthur, A. Manning, T. Duncan, W. Common, T. H. Hawe and W. S. Robinson, Secretary.

The idea is taken from the co-operative scheme carried out in larger cities, where retail stores are conducted, with a view to giving the workingman foodstuffs and other articles, at a lower rate.

When the general meeting is held, in the near future, plans will be made and the scheme launched.

The Rector Prevents a Suicide. A Thrilling Scene from "The Blindness of Virtue" to be presented here by the original London Little Theatre Co., next Thursday, Oct. 10th. Seats on Sale To-morrow

COSMO HAMILTON S SENSATIONAL PLAY, THE "BLINDNESS OF VIRTUE"

Will be the Attraction at the Grand on Thursday Next, Oct. 10.

This drama based on a subject which is of utmost importance to every civilized home will be presented by William Morris's English players and is said to be the same cast which appeared in the play at the Little Theatre in London. The company has recently arrived in this country.

According to newspaper reports the "Blindness of Virtue" created a dramatic sensation on the other side of the water. So much so that the London play censor forbade its presentation until pressure was brought to bear upon him by prominent people and he was finally induced to permit it being shown.

Veiled it is said, by brilliant comedy and gripping dramatic situations the play casts a light upon conditions of the modern home. The relation of mother to daughter, and father to son and presents, it is declared, a tremendous indictment against the condition of permitting children to grow up in ignorance of certain impulses.

The "Blindness of Virtue" tells the story of a daughter of a rector of a small parish near London. A young man who has been sent down from Eton and Oxford and regarded with despair by his father is sent to study with the vicar as a final resort. The youth and the daughter of the rector fall in love with each other. The girl not understanding certain inward impulses throws herself into a compromising situation with the student. The rector appears and at once falsely accuses the young man. When the daughter innocently demands to know the meaning of the accusation the father sees what have been the results through his daughter's ignorance and begins to understand that the blame of the whole affair rests on himself and his wife.

Cosmo Hamilton has written into the play a number of brilliant comedy scenes as well as dramatic startling situations and it is enacted by the original company among whom are A. Holmes-Gore, Bassil Hallam, A. Hamilton-Gibbs, Lena Halliday, Madge Murray, Pollie Emery and Doris Lytton. This will be the only opportunity to see the "Blindness of Virtue" as the company is in America for but a short tour.

Blind as a Bat

But Finally He Got His Eyes Wide Open.

By MARTHA M'C. WILLIAMS.

Eastbrook opened its eyes very wide and caught its breath over the Taunton girl when she swept through it riding cross saddle. It had come to be a sort of proverb among the plantation folk that the hardest and most reckless riders were town girl visitors. Very few of them had any mercy upon the beasts luckless enough to carry them—this not because they were hard hearted, but from sheer ignorance and from the pure animal delight of finding themselves unfettered for a time. They fretted not a little, these town bred riders, when the country folk checked speed at hills or insisted that a horse should have a chance to blow a bit after a hard gallop.

Possibly envy, the least touch, gave edge to their disapproval of Edith Taunton. Edith had a fortune and three fine saddle horses. As if that were not enough, Billy Drayton fell into a way of sharing her early gallops.

Until she came back to the old homestead Billy had not seen a sunrise once a year. It was provokingly significant, this change in him. He had been the despair of the town matchmakers. He was a governor's grandson, rich, good looking, good humored. Further, he was a squire of dames so nobly impartial nobody ever yet had been able to establish a claim to him. The people he regarded most and was readiest to serve were meek old ladies who had known his mother and very little girls.

Edith was, he insisted, only a big little girl, very lone and lorn in her big empty house. What he did not say was that he thought her coming back to it something so fine and brave he was bent on helping her fight down the loneliness and make her own social place.

This in the beginning—until the town gossips took to craning the neck, shaking the head and drawing aside the least bit when the girl came among them. Billy saw the head shaking, the drawing back, a long time before she did. She was open and unsuspicious as daylight and had no thought of treading on the corns of town propriety in anything she did. But, being also full of quick intuitions, after awhile she understood.

And then? Then only she really did set out to horrify the good gentlewomen. She drove tandem through the middle of the square, sitting up very straight, looking neither to right nor left, but pulling up at the corner by the bank to pick up Billy and take him away with her. Next week it was a card party—wholly masculine in composition, except for Edith herself and the colorless cousin who served as her companion. There were cigars and a supper afterward—a very late supper.

The town thrilled with the horror of it, but not as it did a little later, when everybody knew that thereafter, upon Sunday evenings, Edith meant to be at home to her friends.

If Billy had known in time that never would have come to pass. But he had gone away for a fortnight right after the night at cards, first making Edith promise to have no more such assemblies until he was there to give her countenance and protection.

When he came back and found the mischief done he was in a sad taking.

"I see just one way out of it—you have got to marry me, else you won't have a rag of reputation left," he said, pretending to shake her hard.

Edith made a mutinous mouth at him. "Suppose we try some other sacrificial lamb. Aren't you most too old and tough?" she asked, her eyes dancing wickedly.

Billy grinned cheerfully. "You can have carloads of 'em for the taking, nice white baa lambs, but I don't believe they'd be the least effectual," he said. "You see, what you need really is not a sacrifice, but a scapegoat. I'm strong enough to have your sins confessed over my head and thenceforth imputed to me."

"But scapegoats have to be sent away out into the wilderness. I learned that much at Sunday school, and I can't have you go away," Edith protested. "Besides, I am not doing anything horrid. I shall go to church mornings just the same. As for the evenings, you know yourself other girls go to church then, mainly to have somebody see them home and stay all hours afterward making love to them. I really feel like a missionary. The boys can came here and rest or talk or do anything they please. As it is now, they have no choice at all. They must either mope at home or go out and court somebody, and that must be dreadfully wearing."

"It is," Billy said fervently, his eyes reminiscent; "but, my dear girl, you had better give it up. Get a telegram calling you away. I'll send it if your conscience is against fibbing"—

"My conscience is not against anything necessary, and you know fibs are necessary," Edith interrupted. "But I have much more conscience against backing out of anything just because I'm afraid of some old tabby cats and young ones."

"Tabby cats have claws," Billy said oracularly.

Edith looked at him doubtfully a minute. "I know. They try even to scratch you," she said, and then quickly, her eyes flaming, "They actually came here, three of them, to tell me about your past"—

"They did?" Billy's voice was deadly quiet. "And you?"

"I said it did not interest me to know about it; all I was concerned with was your future," Edith answered, her voice trembling a little, although her eyes were brave.

Billy got up and stretched himself.

"That settles it," he said. "Name the day right off so I can go order wedding cards."

* * * * * * *

Edith did name the day, but not until she had stood out against him a week. She might not have given in even then but for the ordeal at church. Not only was she cut right and left—the minister preached at her—not by name, of course, but in a fashion more than unmistakable.

Billy was there, across the aisle, glum and furious. After service he half led her out and walked away with her, his head high. But even that did not hurt like the furtive yet swaggering airs of the three men who called in the evening. There was further something of patronage about them.

Altogether they made Edith hate them, but not as she hated herself. She was full of quick kindness and had not meant hurt or affront to anybody—at least not in the beginning. Dully she wondered why her townsfolk would not understand she had come back to them because her interest lay among them and had been eager to help in all good works if only she had been permitted.

But she held up her head and laughed and jested till the latest of her callers took himself away. Then silently she held out her hand to Billy. He understood and announced an early wedding day.

It was a church wedding, with the house jammed to the last inch. After it the newly married settled back into their old ways, going a pace that kept them the talk of the town.

They were very gay and desperately unhappy. Edith could not get away from a sense that Billy had married her wholly out of chivalry. Billy? Billy was old enough to know better, but he was proving the adage that love, which may make a fool a wise man, may likewise make a wise man a fool. He tormented himself with the thought that he had taken advantage of Edith's extremity. She must know he had loved her from their very first meeting, but she was shy and proud and high with him notwithstanding she was his dutiful wife.

He left her much to herself and took pains to make her know that she was as free as ever. Edith resented the freedom. Billy ought to understand that she wanted to obey him—make him at least that poor recompense for his sacrifice.

Thus they ate out their hearts in cross purposes, cross miscomprehensions, until Ashbel Clare came to visit them. Ashbel was reputed a dangerous person—tall and slight and handsome, with deep seeing eyes. A glamour of romance hung about him. After the first day Billy wondered, with catching breath, if he had been quite wise to fling a man like Ashbel across Edith's path.

She was clearly fascinated by him. They were forever walking about the big, scrubby garden or along the strip of lawn in full sight of passersby and all the while absorbed in talk. Edith was brighter, too—quite her old, winsome self. Ashbel seemed equally captivated. He roused himself as Billy had not seen him since they were lads together.

So the days went by, mounting into weeks, at last into a month, and Billy was in torment. He had made a grim and mannerly third for the most part of the time. Still, he was sure the two had some secret understanding. He had made up his mind to endure to the end. There was no danger of dishonor. Dishonor and Edith could not come together in his mind. But when he was quite sure—if he were quite sure—he would find a way out of it. His father had died of heart disease. There were ways of ending oneself without making a scandal. He would make an end of himself gladly if only that way lay Edith's happiness.

The first thing was to make his will. Ashbel Clare surprised him at it. Billy was glad. He wanted Ashbel to know, to understand how entirely he had trusted his wife and his friends. So he thrust the paper into Clare's hand, saying gruffly:

"Read that. You see I've some decent instincts if I am half a savage."

"I see. Everything, great or small, to your wife," Ashbel said, then, with a whimsical, half dreamy smile, "Do you know that she's the most fascinating creature alive?"

"Just what she says of you!" Billy growled, signing his name with a blurred flourish.

Ashbel bent over him, laughing softly.

"The perception does credit to her mind," he said. "As for her heart, Billy, you brute, that knows no better than to belong to you wholly, and you won't see it, you blind, blind bat!"

A soft, stifled sob, the patter of swift, light feet, sounded at the door. Billy followed them, caught his wife in his arms and said, with his lips on her forehead: "Darling! Darling! If you really do love me"—

"Hush!" Edith said, with her hand over his lips. "You were a blind bat. Even jealousy could not make you see."

A Trousers Crease That Stays.

The permanent crease in trousers as made by many of our city tailors is somewhat favored just now. This idea is probably well known, but as it may not be familiar to all I give a description of it here: The trousers are first pressed dead flat, and then the extreme edge of the crease is stitched down so that it is impossible for them ever to be without a perfectly straight line down the front. It is claimed that this prevents to a great extent the objectionable creasing at the knees that is so often experienced.—London Cor. Men's Wear.

Four Marines Killed.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Four marines were killed and six were wounded Friday when the American forces took the town of Coyotepe from the Nicaraguan rebels, according to a cablegram received early yesterday by Minister Castrillo from Chamorro, Minister of Foreign Affairs at Nicaragua.

The cablegram to the Minister, dated Mangua, Oct. 4, was as follows:

"Masaya taken to-day by assault. We had 100 dead, two hundred wounded. Americans early took Coyotepe with four dead and six wounded. Correa simultaneously took Barranca. Zelendon fled with followers and was captured eight leagues from Masaya wounded and died later. To-day I visited the American legation to express deepest sympathy for marines' deaths. Granada municipality requested marines bodies for burial at that city. I beg you to express to department of state my deep sympathy."

Zelendon, spoken of in the cablegram, was a rebel general, a Honduran, in the employ of Mena, the fallen dictator, recently captured and taken to Panama for exile.

Death Rather Than Prison.

London, Ont., Oct. 7.—"If anything should happen me remember I am innocent of stealing, not knowing the horses to be stolen, and I do not believe the judge thought me guilty. He sentenced me because he is hardened to such proceedings. Life is not worth living to live five years in hell. So good-bye. God have mercy on the souls of those who swore my life away. Good-bye all."

Thus wrote Alexander Hammer, alias Arthur Johnston, alias Arthur Henry, a man of 30 years, who was Friday afternoon sentenced by County Judge Elliott to serve five years in Kingston Penitentiary for the theft of a team of horses and a buggy.

Saturday morning Turnkey Marsh discovered his body cold and rigid, suspended lifeless by his sheet, which had been attached to the bars of his cell door about seven feet above the floor.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

ONE reason why women ought to vote is that it will add another gala day to their calendar, and goodness knows there is room.

The man who thinks he's the whole show is likely to be something of a clown himself.

When we owe ourselves something we are always delighted with the idea of prompt payment.

Catching on may be difficult and strenuous, but sometimes letting go has it beaten a mile in that direction.

What our neighbors think of us is the thing they never tell us.

Many a man would attain to success if he didn't have to begin by getting up early in the morning with a desire to work.

However much he may feel the need of it and profit by it, no man ever loves a private mentor.

One reason why being an angel is so discouraging a proposition to a woman is that all the cases on record are masculine.

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

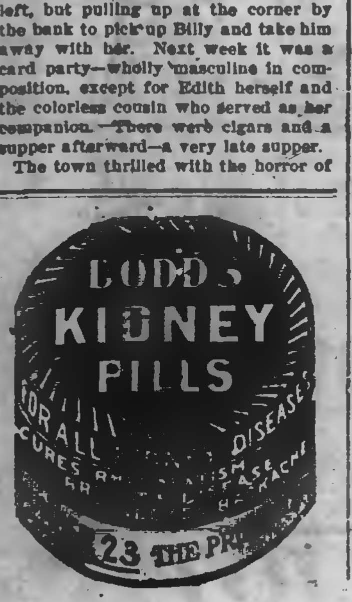
DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS



CRAVATH WINS

A SERIES OF TEN STORIES BY JOHN T McINTYRE

COPYRIGHT 1912 BY THE NORTH AMERICAN CO.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS STORIES

CRAVATH is an athletic young fellow in search of $1000. His quest for the coin leads him to a gilded cafe, where he can most readily get rid of his sole remaining cash. Luck favors, however, and he meets his Boswell, the narrator of his subsequent adventures, in the person of a good-natured promoter of athletic sports named Scanlon. It so happens that the latter is in the dumps. His "white hope," a mammoth specimen of stonemason that he had matched to fight the "Gravedigger" at the Pelican Athletic Club, has decided not to risk having his beauty spoiled in the ring. The purse is $1000, and as that is just the amount Cravath needs, he agrees to be a "ringer." It seems that the thousand is the price of a certain dueling pistol belonging to a Miss Betterton, then in Europe, with whom Cravath is in love. When he recovers it, he gets the girl. She wants the pistol because it is her sole and only claim to aristocratic lineage. One of her ancestors used it when he seconded a gentleman in a duel, so it is proof positive that the ancestor was a gentleman.

When Cravath enters the ring, he goes after the thousand as rapidly as possible—in the first place, because he needs the money, and in the second, because he is not in trim to stand a long fight. The "Gravedigger" goes down, and the "white hope's" substitute walks away with the coin.

Next day the papers are full of the sensation—an aristocratic amateur has entered the professional ranks and pounded the other fellow for what there is in it. Most scandalized of all are "Old Blaylow" and his son, who are intent upon taking Miss Betterton and her money into their family. Blaylow calls upon Cravath at his suburban home, to induce him to give up his claims to the young woman, but without avail. In the afternoon, however, Cravath is obliged to call up Scanlon and impart the information that the thousand has been stolen. Suspicion, of course, attaches to Blaylow. In the night the two repair to Blaylow's house, where the money is supposed to be hidden in a Flemish cabinet. Unfortunately, another has taken up the quest before them, and he gets away with the money. Not to be outdone, they pursue the thief and rob him, regaining the missing money.

Still determined, "Old Blaylow" induces a racing man, who is the worse for wear, to borrow Cravath's thousand to bet on one of his superannuated thoroughbreds. But Scanlon gets on to the game in time, and substitutes a live horse, so that the money is not lost.

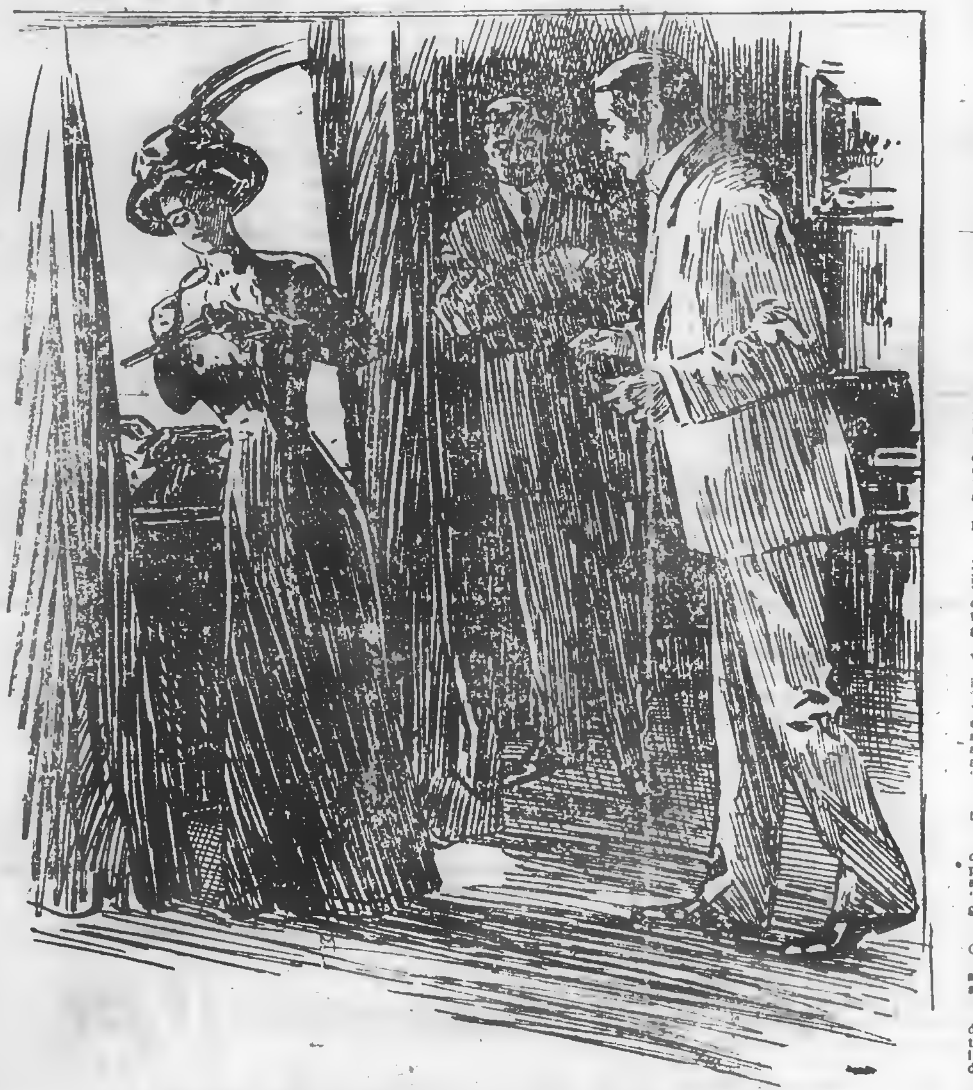
IV.—The Adventure of the Beautiful Lady

ON THE morning of the fourth day, Cravath called on me at my hotel. He looked very fresh and cheerful and big, and his voice, when he spoke, had that ring which tells of much content.

"Suppose you pull up anchor and get under way," said he. "I'm on my way to buy the dueling pistol about which there has been so much how-d'y-do, and fancied that you'd like to witness the transaction."

I threw away a cigar to which I had clung to the bitter end.

"You are very considerate," I acknowledged. "As a matter of fact, there is no piece of barter anywhere which I would prefer more to oversee." Then, as we left the hotel and made our way down the street, I continued, "The name of the holder of the weapon has escaped me."



"Long and earnestly she examined the parts of the Betterton pistol."

"Davidyan," said Cravath.

"Ah, yes; a Greek. Well, many centuries ago, some old sport who had contrived to get under the skin of things said, 'Beware of Greeks bearing gifts.' And to this I add, 'Beware of Greeks selling pistols.'"

Cravath laughed and said:

"The price is set, so there can hardly be any trickery."

"It is evident," said I, "that you have not touched elbows with the strangers within our gates. If you had, you'd know better. Now, I have fraternised with ice cream men, chestnut sellers, rug dealers and peddlers of phoney jewelry, and I have found that the entire Ionic bunch work with aces in their sleeves. So be advised; Look to Mr. Davidyan with care; otherwise, he will get to you."

The establishment of Davidyan was on a side street; it had a small window, crowded with dusty curiosities and questionable antiques; and as we opened the door, a gong sounded, bringing forth a gentleman with a brigandish mustache, slim, eloquent hands and [illegible] with black.

"Well, gentlemen," smiled he, "what can I do for you this morning?"

"My name is Cravath," said that personage.

The long brows of the Greek arched themselves.

"Cravath?" said he. Then, pulling open a drawer, he took out a telegram and threw it upon the counter. "What do you mean by that?" he inquired.

Looking over my companion's shoulder, I read:

"Meet me at Adams House, Boston, today. Urgent.
"CRAVATH."

"This was sent you?" asked Cravath.

"It was. And I went to Boston—spent two days there for nothing. It is too bad of you to treat me like that," complained Davidyan.

Cravath turned to me.

"That explains why we failed to find him in on our previous visit."

"Blaylow, father or son, sent it," I accused.

"They seem to mean business, sure enough," spoke Cravath. "But," smiling, "this is the end of their endeavors, I think." To the Greek curiosity dealer he said, "The message is a false one; it was sent to get you away so that I could not close my deal with you."

A slight crease appeared at the side of the Greek's mouth.

"Ah," said he, pleasantly, "some one else wants the pistol?"

Cravath nodded.

The supple fingers of the man, armed with their black-tipped nails, pattered upon a dusty showcase, keeping time with a tune which he whistled between his teeth.

"In these times," he confided to us, pausing abruptly in the tune, "men seem to have no conscience. They think only of their own desires—their own profit—"

"You want $1000 for the Betterton pistol," said Cravath, interrupting him.

"And it's a low price," spoke the Greek, hastily. "A very low price. I learned that you were in search of it, and so kept an eye out. When I located it, I telephoned your house; they told me you were in Europe, and so then I cabled."

"Let us see the weapon," suggested Cravath.

Davidyan took a key from his pocket and blew the dust out of it.

"The profit that I make on the transaction is small," said he. "The man who had the pistol must have known that it was being sought, for he put a high price on it. At $1000 I make very little."

He led the way through a second room; by the window sat a lady, plainly dressed, but bewilderingly beautiful. As Davidyan passed her she touched his sleeve somewhat fearfully with her fingertips and murmured a low, pleading something which made him shake his head. She arose.

"For the last time," she said.

"No," said the Greek. "I know my business."

He led us into still another room, and as I entered it I could not resist the temptation to have yet another look at the beautiful lady. I turned; she stood in the center of the floor, her hands clasped, her eyes fixed upon me with a look of half-frightened entreaty. It were as though she would, if she dared, run to and warn me, much like the girl in melodramas. But she didn't; instead she turned and, with a gesture, left.

Now, this little scene sort of prepared me for the very best article of guile the Greek had to offer. I planted myself squarely and with deliberation at Cravath's side, saying nothing and missing nothing; if he put anything across on my friend, I felt that I alone would be to blame.

From an ancient sea chest, bound with iron and fastened with a mighty lock, Davidyan took a polished case, which he opened and set before Cravath.

"There it is," said he, with the manner of a dime museum lecturer; "a fine specimen and in splendid condition."

The pistol was a flintlock, with a long, slim barrel and a tremendously thick butt. It was heavily silver mounted and inlaid; upon a plate was engraved some words in still, old-fashioned script. Cravath took up the weapon and read:

"'To Samuel Betterton, a courteous and splendid gentleman, as an appreciation of his skill, courage and loyalty. From his friend, Fairfax.'"

Then he took a paper from his pocket and opened it.

"This," said he, "is a minute description of the Betterton pistol. Miss Betterton supplied me with it quite a long time ago."

"Good enough," said I. "Just go over the specifications with deliberation, and I'll check them off upon the gun."

He did as directed; with each item he halted, and I examined a corresponding one in the old flintlock. Not a mark, not a peculiarity of make, not a curl of a single letter escaped me.

"It looks like the article described," said I, grudgingly, when he had finished. "But to make sure, let us go over it again."

This time I took the paper and Cravath took the pistol. But the result was the same.

"He gets $1000," spoke Cravath. "It's old Samuel Betterton's pistol without a doubt."

I nodded in agreement with this. I did not like doing it very well, for I had made my mind up to a "plant"; but as things stood I could do no less.

Davidyan took the money and counted it carefully; Cravath put the pistol in the case and put the case under his arm.

"In cases like this," said the Greek, "one cannot be too careful. When I purchased the item you may be sure, gentlemen, that I put it under a most rigorous examination. Forty years have I studied old arms, and you may be certain that I am not easily misled."

We left the place and took a car to Cravath's home. Here he locked the pistol in a small safe of trustworthy, modern type. Then, as we stood before the fireplace, Cravath said:

"You must have luncheon with me, old chap. I'm all alone, except for the servants, and [illegible] to allow such a time of victory as this to pass unmarked by feasting and smoking and some other things."

"It is a pity," said I, "that it is not night in the wintry time of year. I should like to drink your health in fine old wine, under the yellow candlelight, while a storm beats against the house and the rain pelts on the roof."

"The thought does credit to your stage management," said Cravath. "But through darkness and storm and candlelight are denied us, still, we have the fine old wine and the Scotch and soda and cigars and pipes; and to those things add home cookery by Delia, who is even now awaiting orders in the kitchen."

The orders were given, and the luncheon when served proved to be of most remarkable goodness. And, afterward, the Scotch and the pipes and the big, comfortable chairs helped us to even warmer states of mind than previously. Cravath's victories as a college man were run, jumped and wrestled again. My experience in various fields of effort were given, you may be sure, more than a passing glance. And then, in the midst of it, the maid announced a lady.

"Who is she?" inquired Cravath.

"She would not give her name," said the girl. "But she is a very beautiful lady, sir."

This must have appealed to Cravath; at any rate, he said:

"Let her come in."

There entered a few moments later the vision I had particularly noted at Davidyan's. She was dressed in the same unobtrusive way, but, if anything, was more beautiful than before. Looking from one to the other of us, she hesitated.

"I would like to speak to Mr. Cravath, if you please," she said.

"Will you sit down?" Cravath gave her a chair, which she took with a timid look of thanks. "And now," he went on, "how can I be of service to you?"

"Mr. Cravath," she said, in a low voice, "I have come here upon an unusual errand. My name is Davidyan; perhaps you noticed me at my father's place of business a few hours ago."

Cravath nodded.

"At first," she proceeded, "I could not bring myself to speak to you. I was afraid. Then I made up my mind that I must bring what I know to your attention. I was on my way here when the thought as to what the result might be came to me, and I turned back." The white hands were clasped in her lap, the deep, dark eyes were fringed by heavy lashes as she bent her head. "But, then," she said, and her voice was still lower, "I knew, after a little thought, that I must come to you now or later, so I finally made up my mind that it would be now."

"Why," said Cravath, gently, for the girl's beauty and evident trouble touched him, "is the matter, then, so very grave?"

"Sir," she said, and she leaned a trifle toward him, "to you it may be a thing that will merely excite your anger or cause you annoyance. But to me it is one that wrings the very heart. And yet," her tone changing, "there may be no occasion for my fears. I may be wrong—wrong in everything. Oh, I hope so," fervently; "I trust and pray so with all my heart."

"But," mentioned Cravath, "you have not as yet informed me as to what it all means."

"I beg your pardon," she said, with a sweet humbleness. "I thought to prepare you for what I had to say." She paused a moment, as though calling together all her reserve of purpose. "It is about the Betterton pistol," she said.

I saw Cravath's face pale a little at this; but his voice when he spoke was firm.

"Well, what of it?" he asked, rather abruptly.

"It seems," she replied, "that where there is much temptation there is the greater degree of weakness. In the business by which my father gets his living the opportunities for dishonesty are many. Credulous people are always placing their purse at the mercy of antique dealers, and to resist the temptation to defraud requires, sometimes, more than usual strength of character. I have known even my own father to—" Here she broke off, her voice dying away as though it had failed her; trembling, she arose to her feet. "Please," she said, her hands now outstretched, "let me see the pistol which he sold you this morning."

Cravath also arose.

"You do not think—" he began; but she interrupted him.

"Do not compel me to say anything more, I beg of you," she said. "It will do no good. Let me see the pistol. I am skilled in such things, and I can tell you in a moment if you have received what you paid for."

Cravath stood regarding her. Never did I see a more lovely woman than she looked at that moment, for a crimson stain had crept into the round cheeks; the eyes were brilliant with excitement. Cravath was as much impressed by her beauty as I was, for he seemed unable to take his eyes from her. Apparently she misread his silence, for she took a step toward him, saying:

"Oh, please! please! I cannot tell you what I think. It is too hard a thing for a daughter to say. Let me but see the pistol, and if any wrong has been done you—"

Cravath gestured that she need go no further.

"I will get it," he said.

He was gone but a moment; when he returned with the pistol case she was standing with bent head, her fingers twining nervously together. But upon hearing his step she roused herself; almost snatching the polished wooden box, she threw open the lid. A look of delight instantly came into her face.

"Oh, yes; yes! It is of Dublin make! Here is the name, 'Harding & Co.,' on the back. The ramrod has the opal set in the end." She lifted the case closer to her eyes, peering at some of the minor characteristics of the ancient weapon. "It will require the glass and more light," she said, glancing at Cravath.

He was about to switch on the electrolier, but she stopped him.

"No, not that; daylight is best." She turned to a window at the far side of the room and drew aside the heavy hangings; then she began fumbling about in her handbag, from which she finally produced a small lens. Long and earnestly she examined the parts of the Betterton pistol. Then, with a great sigh of relief, she put the weapon in the case and looked at us over her shoulder.

"There is no mistake, no deception," she said, happily. "It is as represented. You may trust to my knowledge," with a little smile, "for my study of antique arms has been broad and deep. The Betterton pistol is famous as the finest known example of the craftsmanship of the Irish gunmakers, Harding & Co., and so its details, the details which the expert collector looks for, are known only to the collector." She handed the case to Cravath. "I am delighted, more delighted than words can tell, that all is right."

Cravath glanced at the pistol, then shut the lid and placed the case upon the table.

"I, too, am glad," he said, gravely.

"I am going now," she said, "and I thank you for your kindness. But," and she held out her hands in that pleading gesture which I thought became her so well, "I beg of you not to think me silly and given to acting on impulse. I had reasons for coming here as I have"; then, sadly, "what that reason was I suppose you have guessed."

Then she said goodby very prettily to us both and was gone.

"What an extraordinarily beautiful girl," said Cravath, lighting a cigar.

"The women of ancient Greece were lovely," said I, "and their daughters have in no way fallen from the established standard." I was standing at a window as I spoke, and saw her go down the walk with a quick, eager step and turn into the street. A young man cantering along on horseback bowed to her. "Hello," I continued, "she is not unacquainted hereabouts."

Cravath glanced out.

"It's Billy Norton," he said. "He's sure to know all the good-looking ones."

I, too, lit a cigar.

"To think of her," said I, "having all that knowledge on such an obscure subject as antique arms! The dueling pistol is scarcely a thing which one would consider as appealing to a lady." I took up the case and opened it. "How quickly she recognized the make of the Dublin gunmaker."

Cravath smiled.

"Don't forget," said he, "that the name, 'Harding & Co.,' Dublin, is engraved on the barrel."

"That's so," and I must have looked blank when I said it. "I remember now that—" But there I paused and remained staring at the flintlock in my hand.

"What's the matter?" asked Cravath.

"I, too," said I, and I felt as though I were in a dream, "thought that I saw the Dublin firm's name on the barrel. But we must have been wrong, for here it says as plain as day, 'James Edmunds,' Providence, R. I.'"

Cravath grabbed the extended weapon. He gave it one glance and then stared at me as though unable to believe his eyes. Throwing the pistol into a corner, he burst into a gale of laughter, during which he dropped helpless into a chair.

Unable to formulate a question, I stood agape. Finally he was able to resume, gaspingly.

"We've been done once more. The beautiful lady played us perfectly."

"What!" I cried. "Do you mean to say—"

"She is gone, and the Betterton pistol is gone with her," spoke Cravath. "Beauty she has," admiringly, "but of talent she has more. The most capable actress and the most accomplished confidence operator could sit at her feet and profit thereby."

I was so startled that I could not grasp what had happened.

"I don't understand," I told him, bewilderedly. "I fail to see how it was done."

"There is only one way in which it could be done," said Cravath, "and that is by substitution. She provided herself with a second pistol—"

Then my brain began to work like lightning; in a flash things became clear to me which he had not even thought of.

"The second pistol was in her handbag," I interrupted. "It was a very large bag, and I recall making a mental comment on it. When she required daylight by which to examine the finer features of the pistol, it was that she might have an opportunity to turn her back upon us. The window hangings helped her plan. While fumbling with them she removed the pistol from the case; when she opened her bag to get the lens, she took out the substitute. A quick shift, and the work was done."

"That," said Cravath, "is about how it happened. The fact that she handed the case back to me opened was a particularly daring and intelligent thing to do. If she had closed it, I might have suspected something; so, to avoid that, she risked my noting the differences in the weapons."

"Well," said I, "I suppose there is no use in rushing into the street to look for her. She's far enough away by this time."

Cravath telephoned for a taxi.

"We'll locate her," he said, as he hung up the receiver. "Her father, more than likely, is mixed up in this little affair, so our first step is to put him under pressure."

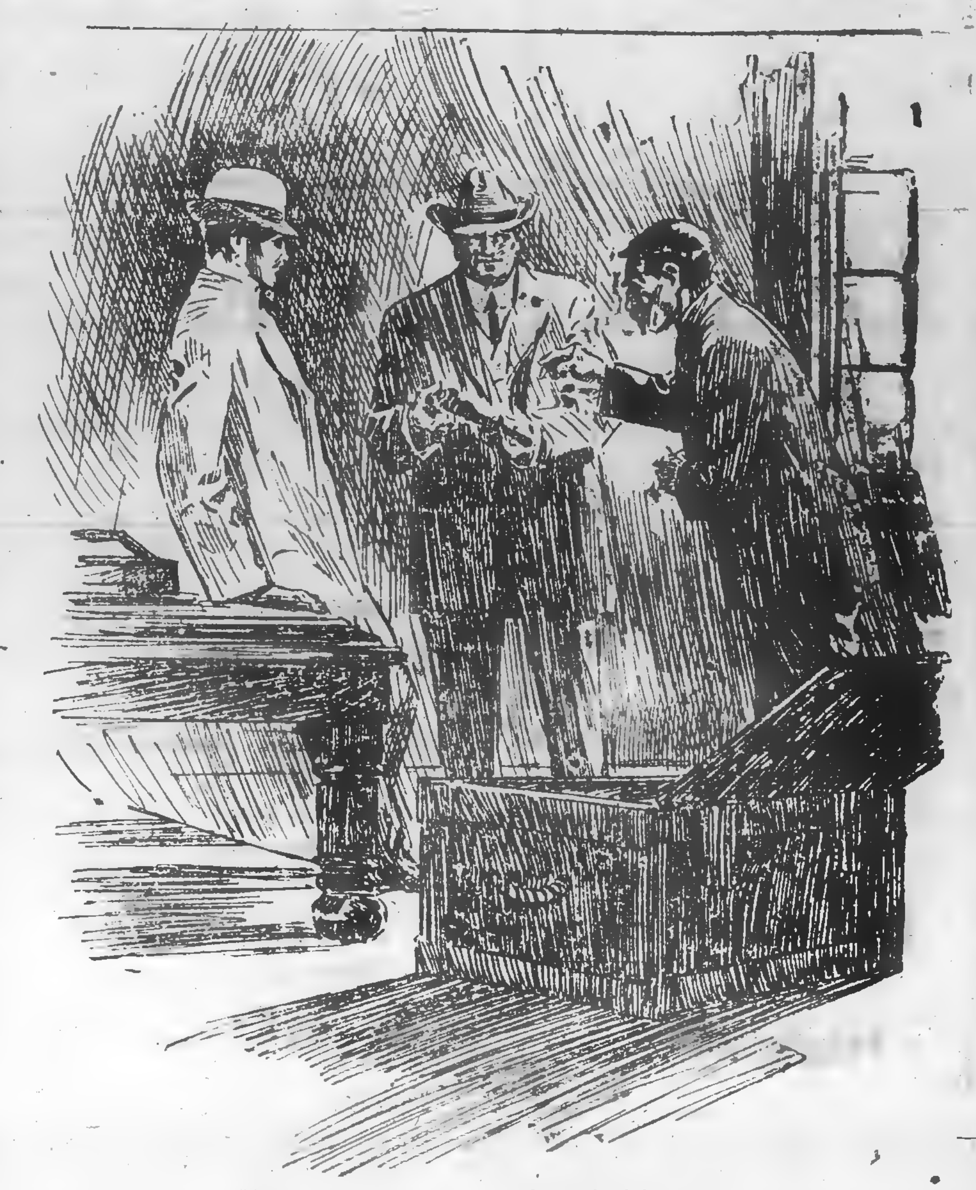
The taxi brought us to within a half block of Davidyan's door. That it did not go the full distance was because Cravath signaled the chauffeur to stop.

"I think," said he, "it would be best to make a few inquiries before breaking in on the Greek. The other day, when I went there just after he left in answer to the false telegram, I talked to a neighbor of his who deals in dogs and bears him no good will. Well, it occurs to me that the said dog dealer might provide us with a little information."

"Very good," praised I. "Let's try him."

The dog dealer was a small, pale-looking man. He came from the rear of a close-smelling room and talked freely about his neighbor.

"He's a crook," maintained the dog man. "He fakes up old furniture and other things and trims his customers. A regular crook! And, would you believe me, he's got the nerve to go around telling people that I manufacture pedigrees for my dogs? Why, I don't have to go in that game. I've got the best stock of—"



"'There it is, a fine specimen and in splendid condition.'"

But Cravath stopped him.

"How's Davidyan's daughter regarded?" he asked.

"His—what?" asked the dog fancier.

"His daughter."

"He ain't got no daughter," said the other.

The corners of Cravath's mouth twitched as he turned to exchange a glance with me.

"Well," said I to the dog man, "she may not be his daughter. The girl that lives there."

"There ain't no girl lives there. He's there all by himself."

I grasped at the last straw.

"But," stated I, "there is some one—a very beautiful girl." I went on to describe her. "You do not forget her?"

He shook his head.

"No, I got her all right. I saw her go in there this morning. But," most positively, "I never saw her before."

All this put a new face upon the matter, and when we reached the sidewalk we looked it over with much care.

"We might know," said I, "that she was not related to Davidyan. If she had been, she would not have been so ready to speak of the matter." However, this suggested something else, and I continued: "But, though she may be in no way related to the Greek, still, he probably knows much more about her than we."

I had started for the antique dealer's place, when Cravath grasped my arm.

"Wait!" said he. "I still have a suspicion that Mr Davidyan knows something of this affair; and, that being the case, I think it best to allow him to fancy us as not yet having discovered the substitution. We can learn something of the girl in another way."

I regarded him questioningly.

"You forget Billy Norton, the man who bowed to her as she was leaving the house."

"Fine!" I exclaimed. "We will now communicate with Mr. Norton."

The taxi took us to a telephone station, and in a few moments Cravath and his friend were talking away about nothing in particular.

"Oh, by the way," said the former after a few moments, "I saw you speak to a lady as she was leaving my house today."

I could hear Norton laugh, and his reply was almost as plain.

"Your mother thinks better of the Blaylows than you, I see," spoke he.

"How do you mean?" asked Cravath.

"Why, seeing that she is intimate enough with Miss Blaylow to have her call."

"Oh, it was Miss Blaylow, then?" Cravath's tone was as careless as you please. "I saw her leave, but did not inquire as to who she was."

There was a little more passed, chiefly banter, and then they said goodby. Cravath stood in the door of the booth and stroked his chin.

"I do not wonder that the Blaylows are very wealthy," he said. "There is a great deal of energetic blood in the family."

"And it's the sort of energy that the very wealthy usually have," said I. "They don't lose a trick, and would as lief take it from a blind man as from one with the full complement of gifts. The only question this type asks is, 'Has he got it?'"

"It may be," said he, "that I am considered a blind one. Anyhow, they have very little difficulty in reaching me."

"But," and I slapped him upon the back, "it does seem to trouble them a great deal to hold you safe after they come in possession. They've cornered you on several occasions, but each time you've gone at them with both hands swinging."

"It would be rather awkward to use such energetic measures in the case of Miss Blaylow," smiled Cravath. "To beat her, the bludgeon must not be used. She is much too beautiful, for one thing; another is that she, apparently, is a thinker of some depth."

And as he fell into a silence, I came out victor in a problem with which I had been struggling for some time.

"I could not imagine the meaning of the business between her [illegible]. But I think I see it now. She had gone there to buy the pistol, perhaps offering him more money. She was pleading with him to shake us down somehow, and turn the trick in her favor before it was too late. But he refused."

There was a dreamy, faraway look in Cravath's eyes as he looked at me, and when he spoke his voice held a brooding note.

"I wonder why?" he said.

The question seemed to bring a subconscious something to a point where I was able to grasp it.

"At the back of my mind there has been a mild sort of amazement," said I. "And now I know what it's about. I, too, wonder why."

"You warned me against Greeks," said Cravath. "But I did not take the warning to heart, as I do not treat generalities with much seriousness. However, this particular Greek did not impress me any too favorably. And if he had an offer of more money, I do not understand why he did not accept it. As a rule, a fellow like that will—"

He stopped there, and stood looking vaguely away; then a slow smile crept over his face, and, turning his eyes upon me, still full of dreamy introspection, he said:

"Perhaps it would profit us if we paid a visit to Mr. Davidyan at this stage of the proceedings. A fancy has come to me—one which would, perhaps, not appeal to your eminently practical mind, and therefore I will say nothing as to its nature until I open it to him."

In a few minutes we were in the curiosity shop. The Greek came forward, stroking his brigandish mustache with the supple, black-tipped fingers; there was a wan smile upon his face and his eyes were opened a trifle wider than I thought natural.

"Well, gentlemen," said he, nodding in a manner which was intended to be pleasant, "how can I serve you this time?"

Cravath stepped very close to him, and when he spoke his voice was low.

"This time," said he, "you can serve us by handing over the Betterton pistol."

The Greek was a yellowish white and his wan smile now seemed ghastly.

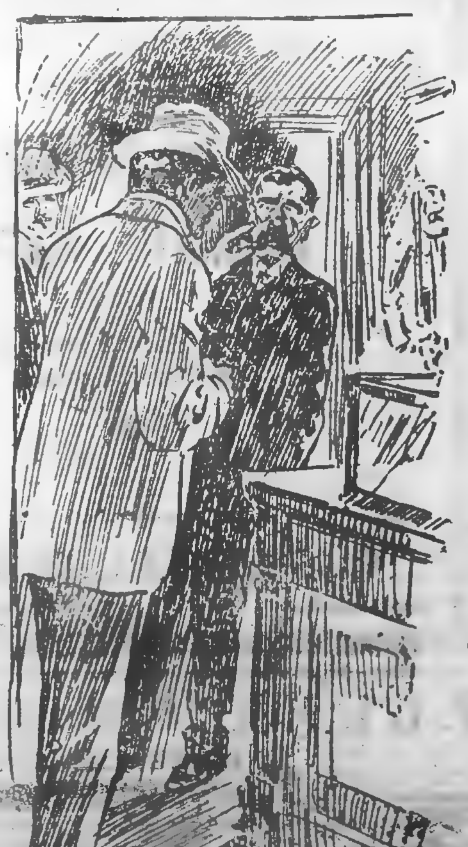
"Why, I have already—" he began. But Cravath stopped him.

"We are not here to listen to you talk," spoke he, gently. "We want the Betterton pistol, and we want it now."

The menace in the soft voice and steady eye was fearsome, and, while he awaited an answer, Cravath occupied himself in drawing off his gloves. If he had told the Greek in so many words that he meant to take him by the throat if he failed to do as he was bidden, the fellow could not have more readily understood. As I watched him, I saw the smile disappear, the hands gesture protestingly and his Adam's apple move up and down as he dryly strove to swallow. Then he turned and, followed by us, made his way to the rear room, and from the iron-bound sea chest he took a second pistol case.

"Sir," said he, "the other was a copy, made as a test to convince a friend that I could—"

Cravath waved his hand contemptuously, then opened the case and looked closely at the long flintlock within. Then he slapped it shut and turned to go.



"'This time you can serve us by handing over the Betterton pistol.'"

"One moment," begged the Greek. "There is a question I would like to ask." And, as we paused, he added: "You have touched my vanity as an artist. How did you detect the 'copy'?"

"The woman whom we saw here—"

"She could not have told you," interrupted Davidyan. "She did not know."

"She stole the 'copy,' thinking it this," and the speaker tapped the case under his arm.

"And you guessed the rest? You are clever." The man grinned widely. "And so she is now cherishing the counterfeit? Ah, well; it serves her right for meddling." He held the door open for us to pass out. "If she had not been so hasty, who knows but what she would have had a chance later to bid for the original?"

CLUBS ADMITTED THEY WENT OVER SALARY LIMIT

No Cut in the Number of Clubs for Canadian League

Regarding the meeting of the Canadian Baseball League, at Hamilton, the Spectator says—

A special meeting of the Canadian [illegible] held at the Royal Hotel [illegible] day afternoon, when the question of reducing the league to six clubs was thoroughly discussed, a decision to stick to the eight clubs at present forming the league membership being arrived at after a rather lengthy discussion.

For some time past there has been a movement in certain quarters to have Berlin and Guelph eliminated from the league, the claim being that these two towns were not self sustaining. However, the representatives of these two clubs stoutly refused to get out and presented such faith in their cities that no other course was open than to stand pat with the present clubs, although President Fitzgerald was given authority to confer with the owners of the Guelph club and make a transfer to some other city, if such a move was deemed advisable.

The salary limit came in for a great deal of discussion, during which seven of the clubs practically admitted running over the mark this year, Brantford being the only club to stick around the limit. It was agreed that this was detrimental to the best interests of the league and special arrangements are being made by which every effort will be made to keep the clubs within the limit next year.

President Fitzgerald found fault with one or two of the clubs for using optional agreement players, and in this connection M. T. Brice, the Ottawa representative, explained that McManus was the only player on the club who was under agreement to any other club, and that this fact was not discovered until long after the season had been under way.

Those present were; M. T. Price Ottawa; W. H. Denham, Peterboro; John Burns, George Lee, Hamilton; Fred Westbrook, Richard Eacrett, Brantford; E. C. Killingsworth, F. Chantell, St. Thomas; F. C. Buzzell, Sam Steveley, London; W. A. Mahoney, W. J. Sheridan, J. Hilliard Guelph; President Fitzgerald and Secretary Robinson.

THANKSGIVING DAY RACES

Y.M.C.A. Arranging for Junior and Senior Road Events

Arrangements are being made for holding two road races on Thanksgiving Day, one for seniors being five miles and the other for juniors, a distance of three miles. The starting and finishing points will be at the Y.M.C.A. the races being held under the auspices of this institution. Mr. J. J. Thompson has the matter in hand, and would like to hear from runners who would enter the races.

Geo. Pidgeon, aged 94, a British army veteran, was killed by a street car at Hamilton last night.

It's better to have run and lost than never to have made a start.

MOTOR CYCLE SPEED STARS TO PERFORM IN PETERBOROUGH

H. Cole the Kid Speed Demonstrator of Toronto and Other Riders to be Seen in Action Next Saturday at the Exhibition Grounds Track

Saturday next will be a day never to be forgotten by the lovers of good sport in Peterborough. The star riders of the Toronto Motor Cycle Club are coming here with their speedy racing machines, capable of over seventy miles per hour. Motor cycle racing is acknowledged as the most spectacular sport of the present day. To see the riders go into the turns with the throttles wide open the back wheel skids and the crowd will come to their feet with a gasp expecting to see a spill; but no the nervy riders will slide up the tank and skid the front wheel to right the machine. Performers that drew crowds of 20,000 in Toronto will be seen here. First and foremost comes Harold Cole the idol of the Toronto public. Harold rides a "Theo IV." and has easily trounced the flower of the American riders. The afternoon would be well spent if there were no other riders but Cole. He will provide enough thrills to take the breath out of most of the spectators.

Bob Barton from Brooklands, England, holder of many English records, will also be here. Barton is out to win every time and will fall rather than cut off the power.

Bob Scott will be on the job to see that the Indian is not far behind at the finish. Bob has seventeen firsts and one second to his credit this season.

Harold Pratt, Max Amoss and many more will be here, and it is to be hoped that citizens will take advantage of this opportunity to see the best afternoon's sport ever put on in Peterborough. There is some talk of automobile races as well but the promoters wish to give the public their money's worth, and although it will probably not be believed till seen, automobile races are like watching flies crawl round a plate after the motor cycles. A motor cycle can pass an automobile as if it was tied to the fence, and then the motor cycles make very little dust, whereas in an auto race all that is to be seen is a cloud of dust. A motor cycle will jump from a standing start to sixty miles an hour in fifty yards, while a powerful racing automobile takes a mile on the straightaway to attain full speed.

KETCHECUM CLUB MEMBERS GO FISHING

A large number of the Ketchecum Lake Hunt Club left this morning for two weeks' fishing. The party included Messrs. Robert Gibbs, H. Nesbitt, Harry Wasob, J. J. Lundy, E. A. Peck, W. H. Dunsford, Vincent Eastwood, and the Rev. T. J. Sawers. Some of the party left by automobiles, while the others travelled with horses.

SERVICES AT CITY CHURCHES

Rev. Canon Davidson, at the evening service, in St. John's Church, yesterday, in speaking of the death of Mr. Wm. Frundette, referred to his connection with St. John's, many years ago, and to the fact of his having officiated as superintendent of the Sunday school.

The funeral of the late Mr. Frundrette was held yesterday afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

Another Barn Burned.

Wyoming, Ont., Oct. 7.—Fire Friday night destroyed the barn of Wallace Williams, a farmer living just outside this place. The barn contained the season's crop, and the loss is about $2,000. The barn and contents are insured for $1,200. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Crushed Under Barrow.

Smith's Falls, Oct. 7.—Herbert Hopkins, a young Englishman, met instant death at the works of Frost & Wood, Ltd., Saturday. He was in the act of picking up some castings when the cover of the rumbling barrow fell on his neck, crushing his body into an unrecognizable shape.

Two Steamers Sunk.

Hamburg, Germany, Oct. 7.—Two of the Hamburg-American Co.'s steamers sank Saturday in the Lower Elbe.

The Vandalia, of 2,607 tons, while starting on her voyage to America, collided with a floating dock being towed down the Elbe and sank immediately in mid-channel.

Shortly afterwards the Graecia, of 1,760 tons, passing out on her way to the West Indies, collided with the wreck and also sank.

The crews of both the vessels and twenty passengers who were on board the Graecia were brought back to Hamburg.

It was later reported that the cook and his assistant of the Vandalia were missing and were believed to have been drowned.

For a Rainy Evening.

Misquoted quotations is a game which will cause amusement and at the same time is something of a tax on the player's knowledge of poetry. In this each visitor is handed a slip of paper with all kinds of muddled up quotations as "Some are born great, but to be or not to be a rose by any other name is the question." To straighten out a great many such quotations and [illegible] correctly, is a good test of [illegible] of poetry. Sometimes [illegible] are made.

For the Children

Young New Yorker Taking a Drink at the Fountain.

July 1 the children of New York city were afforded great joy by the opening of vacation playgrounds in various parks. These grounds are placed in the most populous sections of the city and are a source of continual pleasure to both boys and girls. Baseball is the most popular game with the boys.

Another game which is very popular is basketball. Rope quoits and handball are also liked, and some of the playgrounds have a shuffleboard. Relay races and other athletic sports vary the proceedings. Many of the playgrounds are arranged for girls exclusively, and they run potato races, do gymnastic exercises and have as good a time as the boys. Many of the playgrounds have shower baths and a few maintain swimming pools. The picture shows a young athlete in summer costume refreshing himself at a fountain in one of the parks.

How the Catcher Was Caught.

How can you catch two fish on one single hook at the same time? A man down in Texas did it the other day, though he had not had any expectation or intention of doing it. The man had gone fishing by setting a line over night. That is, he put a live frog on the hook and put the frog in the water and tied the other end of the line to a tree on the shore of the river. The next morning he came back and found that there was a fish on the line. He looked closely and saw that it was an enormous catfish. The line it was hooked on was small and would ordinarily have been broken by such a big fish, but it was still entire. The man investigated. He pulled the fish up on shore, and then he found that inside it was a smaller catfish that had swallowed the frog before the big fellow had come along. The little fish was in the big fish's stomach, and the struggles of the latter against the line had pierced the stomach with one of the little fish's sharp fins.

The Soldier Laddie.

He was a soldier laddie,
And he stood erect and grand,
With toes turned out and cap a-tilt
And musket in his hand.
Oh, the way he held his musket
Was indeed beyond compare,
Such firmness, such precision,
Such a military air!

Was his musket a real Mauser?
Was his coat of khaki made?
Was the frown upon his forehead
One to make a foe afraid?
No. His jacket and his musket
And the cap upon his head—
In fact, this soldier laddie
Was all made of gingerbread.

Despatch From Cettinge Says Heavy Fighting Followed Declaration of War, But Foreign Legation or the British Foreign Office Have not Been Notified.

Special to the Review.

Cettinje, Montenegro, Oct. 8—Montenegro declared war on Turkey this morning. The declaration of war was delivered to Porte by Montenrgrin Charge D'affaires early to-day. Heavy fighting is already in progress along the frontier.

London, Eng., Oct. 8—The Cettinje despatch re, the outbreak of war received here, is not yet confirmed by dispatches to the foreign legislations, British Foreign Office or newspaper correspondents now in the Balkans. Belgrade reports reached here this morning, that Montenegrin troops had crossed the Turkish frontier. The Servian Government has voted eight million nine hundred thousand dollars for military purposes.

Sofia, Oct. 8—Russian and Austrian ministers made joint representations to the Bulgarian Government on behalf of the Powers, at noon, to-day, expressing the Powers' disapproval of the war like attitude of the Balkan States and urging prompt cessation of military concentration. They advised leaving to the cabinets of the Great Powers, the task of assuring Macedonian reforms.

Cettinge, Oct. 8—The Montenegrin Charge D'affaires at Constantinople has been ordered to leave there to-day, and the Turkish Charge D'affaires here, has been handed passports by the Montenegro Government.

London, Oct. 8—According to a news agency despatch from Constantinople, it is officially announced that diplomatic relations between Turkey and Montenegro are broken off.

DROVE CAR INTO FREIGHT TRAIN AND WAS KILLED

Midnight Ride of Wealthy Oil Operator Ends in Fatality. His Companion Escapes With Dislocated Shoulder

Special To The Review

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 8.—Charles L. Bisnett, a wealthy oil operator, who has been residing at a local hotel for some time past, about midnight last night drove an auto at terrific speed into a freight train on the level crossing. He was thrown out against a freight car and instantly killed his head striking the side of the car with such force that a board was broken. Charles L. Herod, who was riding with Bisnett, had a marvellous escape, he merely dislocating his shoulder.

James E. Parnell Ill.

St. Catharines, Oct. 8.—The serious illness of James E. Parnell, the Ontario Government's special fruit commissioner at Winnipeg, has been reported, and his wife has left their home at St. Catharines to attend her husband, who is subject to heart trouble.

Mr. Parnell, who is himself a large fruit grower in the Niagara Peninsula, assumed the new role last spring, and his reports of market conditions, etc., throughout the west, have proven to be of considerable value to Ontario fruit growers.

He has also been the means of enlarging the western market for home grown fruit.

While Arthur Johnson aged 16 was drawing a charge from his gun near Uxbridge, it exploded and Chas. Cooper, aged 19, was killed.

Firemen Saved Two Lives.

Kingston, Oct. 8.—Firemen broke into the home of Mrs. Kelso and saved her life and that of her son William. Both were under the influence of liquor and had started the fire. In default of payment of a fine of $5 and costs, the son was sent to jail for a month, and his aged mother was sent to the House of Industry.

Kingston, Oct. 8.—During the night some person unknown left a month old baby on the steps of the Infants' Home. It was wrapped in a black cloth and comfortably clothed. The police are investigating.

P. J. Carey, chief fruit inspector for western Ontario, has been appointed packing and orchard demonstrator for the fruit division, Ottawa.

STILL HOPE FOR PEACE

Balkan Situation Still Remains in Menacing State.

Both Turkey and the Allies Are Arming and Mobilizing Troops — The Pope May Intervene for Peace—French Foreign Office Believes That the Tension Is Not So Great as Hitherto—Ultimatum Now a Note.

London, Oct. 8.—Another day has passed without an outbreak of hostilities between Turkey and the Balkan states. But preparations for war continue on all sides.

The next move lies with the great powers, and it is reported that the Pope also intends to intervene in favor of peace. Opinion in the Balkan capitals and Constantinople, however, is rather skeptical on the success of the powers in preventing war.

The Russian Foreign Minister, Sergius Sasonoff, on leaving Paris yesterday, remarked:

"I am a little more hopeful than I was. I can hardly put more optimism into my words."

Less Tension.

Paris, Oct. 8.—The tension in the Balkan situation, it is thought at the Foreign Office and among diplomats, shows a slight slackening. It is a hard fact, however, that danger from martial enthusiasm remains, and it is realised that the crisis will persist as long as a million troops, spoiling for a fight continue under arms.

Over optimism, therefore, is discouraged, but it has been pointed out that Russia and Austria, when really united, can go far in the Balkan states. There appears to be solid ground for the belief that the Governments, both of Turkey and the Balkan coalition—though not necessarily their peoples—are still amenable to pressure from the European powers.

The combined ultimatum demanding reforms which the Balkan states were to have despatched to Turkey has now, under the guidance of diplomacy taken the form of a note, which will be sent simultaneously to all the great powers and Turkey. And the Ottoman Government which protested that it would not listen to proposals touching on its internal affairs from any source, has itself opened the door to receive the demands the powers intend to make by voluntarily granting the Christian vilayets a wholesale measure of reforms.

Concession to Ulster?

London, Oct. 8.—The Daily Telegraph, referring to persistent rumors in political circles that the Government is negotiating with John Redmond in the hope of finding a way out of the Ulster impasse, says that a suggested basis of compromise made has been to give Ulster the right of exemption from some of the provisions of the home rule bill under certain conditions.

It is said that some agreement has been reached.

PEACE TERMS SATISFACTORY

Rome, Oct. 8.—A majority of the Italian people seem to be well satisfied with the conditions under which peace between Italy and Turkey has been arranged. A minority protest against the peace settlement, arguing, first, that the present terms in no wise differ from those offered by Italy a year ago, and they maintain that Turkey deserves to be punished for the delay which entailed further losses in men and money. They oppose the settlement, secondly, because of the return to Turkey of the Aegean Islands, which they contend should be retained by Italy or turned over to Greece. Finally, they point out that Turkey's object in concluding peace at the present time is to clear the way for the Balkan difficulty.

The opponents of the peace settlement are believed to be aiming at the Cabinet with the hope of disrupting it, but Premier Giolitti appears to have a strong grip on affairs.

Hamlin Garland's Narrow Escape.

West Salem, Wis., Oct. 8.—The home of Hamlin Garland was burned yesterday and the author had a narrow escape from death. He was awakened by the flames and was obliged to leap from a second storey window. A servant girl received burns which are serious. The fire was caused by an explosion of gasoline.

Valuable curios gathered by Mr. Garland in all parts of the world, besides the house and other furniture, were destroyed.

BECKER IS NOW ON TRIAL

New York, Oct. 8.—Charles Becker, the police lieutenant, who was in command of the "strong arm squad" of police gambling raiders, was placed on trial yesterday for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler who was alleged to have betrayed "the system." Out of fourteen examined from the special panel of 25 talesmen called for jury duty, only one juror had been chosen when the day's session closed last night. He was Harold B. Skinner, an electrical engineer, son of Charles B. Skinner, an electrical engineer of New York.

Of the other thirteen talesmen called, three were peremptorily challenged by the state, and four by the defence, Becker himself instructing his counsel, John F. McIntyre, to make the challenge in each case. The others were disqualified by the court for bias or in sustaining challenges for cause by counsel.

The examination proceeded so slowly that Justice Goff, in adjourning the case, threatened to hold night sessions if the jury was not picked by five o'clock to-day.

One of the peremptory challenges of the prosecution was exercised on the first talesman called after he had said that he was a former member of the police force. In nearly every instance the talesmen acknowledged that he had formed an opinion on the case from reading the newspapers, and those who were disqualified declared that the opinion would influence their verdict.

That Becker had lost weight as the result of his two months' confinement in the Tombs was apparent to those who knew him when he entered the court room. That he was mentally alert, however, became apparent from the manner in which he studied each talesman as he took the stand. Frequently he would signal his counsel for a conference while the latter was in the midst of volleying questions.

No spectators were allowed in the courtroom with the solitary exception of the accused officer's wife, a frail little woman, who sat far back in the room, a solemn, anxious listener.

Outside a crowd of the curious, with a sprinkling of east side gangsters, thronged the corridors of the building, but were kept in order by an active squad of police, including plainclothesmen delegated especially to guard District Attorney Whitman on his trips to and from the court room.

SAYS THERE IS DISCENSION IN THE CABINET

Mount Forest, Oct. 8.—The assertion that dissension in the Borden Cabinet was the cause of its dilatoriness in dealing with the C.P.R. stock issue was made by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in addressing a gathering of about two thousand people yesterday afternoon. In the evening he spoke to a meeting in the rink, and an overflow one in the town hall, being heard by about 4,000 party enthusiasts.

Dealing with the Government's course toward the C.P.R., he said:

"They have been in office twelve months next Thursday, and what have they done. They have done nothing, and they can't do anything, because Mr. Borden has such a balky team. Mr. Monk kicks or Mr. Foster roars. Neither whip nor spur, kicks nor cuffs will make them go. The C.P.R. stock shareholders' melon was shown to have been issued because of the difficulty arising out of the 'balky team.' The C.P.R.'s petition to issue new stock was ignored at the last Cabinet meeting, and when the C.P.R. meeting occurred the other day they went ahead and announced the issue of $60,000,000 worth of stock at $175 without waiting any longer for the Government's procrastinated decision, but the Government's excuse was that they had not yet considered the question.

"What is the use of a Government like that?"

In concluding his address in the rink at night, he said that just before the general election of last year he had told his wife that he expected to win, but that if he lost he would retire, so that they could spend their days together quietly. However, when defeat came Lady Laurier told him that he must go on, and he was now enjoying himself more as a critic of the Government than he ever had as its leader. His one regret was that Canada suffered by the change.

P. & O. LINE NOT ACQUIRED

Montreal, Oct. 8.—The report published in The Financial Times on Saturday that the C.P.R. would take over a controlling interest in the Peninsular & Oriental Steam Navigation Co., thus giving it a world-encircling transportation system, is denied by Mr. G. M. Bosworth, fourth vice-president of the C.P.R., who is in charge of the steamship lines. Mr. Bosworth states that such a proposal has never been considered.

Britain's Heavy Exports.

London, Oct. 8.—The September statement of the Board of Trade shows increases of $17,526,000 in imports, and $31,926,000 in exports.

The gains in the imports were principally in foodstuffs and raw material. The exports of manufactured goods show the largest increase, including iron and steel values at $7,500,000.

MODEL FOR MONUMENT

MODEL DESIGNED BY G. W. HILL, A.R.C.A., FOR THE CARTIER MEMORIAL CHOSEN BY THE COMMITTEE.

The models chosen are on exhibition in the old G.T.R. offices, corner of St. James and St. Francois Xavier streets, where they were inspected to-day by hundreds of admiring citizens.

PLOT AGAINST CANAL

McNamaras Had Planned an Outrage at Panama.

Evidence Shows, Says Prosecuting Attorney, That McManigal Was to Have Gone to Central America for Dynamite and to Divert Attention From Los Angeles Affair — One Prisoner Pleads Guilty.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 8.—Pages from the careers of the McNamaras and Ortie E. McManigal as leaders of "the flying squadron of dynamiters," with conversations in which they were said to have plotted to send McManigal to Panama to blow up the locks of the Panama Canal, were read by District Attorney Charles W. Miller, before the jury at the trial of the accused "dynamite conspirators" yesterday.

The incident in reference to Panama, Mr. Miller said, occurred just before the arrest of the Los Angeles' dynamiters, when they were becoming desperate in their efforts to secure explosives without betraying their identities. "John J. called James B. McNamara, his brother, and McManigal, to the headquarters of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers," said Mr. Miller. "John J. said to McManigal, 'We can't get any more dynamite around here without stealing it. Now, you go to Panama and see what you can do down there. The McClintic-Marshall Construction Co. has a lot of dynamite stored down there. You could easily get hold of it and blow up the locks. That would make 'em sit up and take notice and take their minds off the Los Angeles' affair.' McManigal refused to go at that time. Soon after they all were arrested."

Edward Clark of Cincinnati yesterday pleaded guilty to the Governments charges in the dynamite conspiracy.

He was then separated from the other forty-five defendants and taken to jail to await the imposing of his sentence. Clark pleaded guilty to all the charges—five counts of conspiracy and fifty counts of being a principal to the actual illegal interstate shipment of dynamite and nitroglycerine.

Clark was business agent and president of the Ironworkers' Local Union 44 from January, 1908, to July, 1911. His activities in promoting explosions, Mr. Miller asserted, were carried on through letters written by Frank M. Ryan, president of the union, and the McNamaras.

HOLD-UP MAN IN TORONTO ROBS TWO LIQUOR STORES

Toronto, Sept. 8.—Proprietors of two liquor stores were held up at the point of a revolver between 8.30 and 9.30 last night by an unknown man, who succeeded in getting close to $70 in cash from the tills. The first person to be robbed was Edward Field, a liquor merchant at 207 Wellesley street.

About 8.15 Mr. Field noticed a stranger standing opposite his store. After waiting about fifteen minutes the man came across the street and entered the store. Up till then there had been several customers, but all had gone.

The man asked for two bottles of porter. While the proprietor was getting the liquor he heard a sharp command to throw up his hands. Turning Mr. Field looked into the muzzle of a revolver.

Without [illegible] delay the robber jumped over the counter and scooped $25 from the till. After cautioning Mr. Field to "keep his mouth shut," the robber then walked east on the street. When Constable Mulholland arrived no trace of him could be found.

The next place to be visited was the liquor store of W. L. Dandy, 205 Parliament street. As in the other case the man came from the other side of the road. Mr. Dandy opened the door for him, and walked behind the counter.

Suddenly the stranger whipped out a revolver and placed it not more than three inches from Dandy's head. He made a few threats, slid over the counter and swept the cash from the register. Following this the robber walked south on Parliament to a lane. Constable White was notified. The man, however, had disappeared.

Another Power Merger.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Oct. 8.—Announcement was made yesterday that the Niagara, Lockport & Ontario Power Co., American distributing agent of the Ontario Power Co., of this city, had obtained control of the Salmon River Power Co.

The latter company's generating plant will be used to obviate the necessity of constructing a second transmission line from this city to Rochester and Syracuse.

$2,000,00 for Missing Man.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 8.—By advertisement and by aid of the police throughout Canada, search has been begun for George Taylor of Kimball, 52 years old, formerly of Red River, N.B., in order to put in his hands two million dollars from the estate of his father, who died a year ago in Seattle.

The man sought for left home twenty years ago, and not a word of him has been had since.

DESERT SHIP TO GO TO THE WAR

Montreal, Oct. 8.—The steamer Ovid was held up yesterday by a gang of seamen who declared that they wanted to go home and fight for Bulgaria, and deserted at an early hour.

Shortly before noon three of them were taken into custody, charged with deserting their ship. They were locked up, although they declared they were not under contract.

Artilleryman Stole $75,000.

Oakland, Calif., Oct. 8.—Robert Holt, arrested here on his own confession that he stole $75,000 from the Australian Government as a clerk with the Royal Australian Artillery at Sydney, N.S.W., was induced to surrender by a woman whom he had met in Sydney and who threatened to turn informer.

RATE ENQUIRY OPENS

Scope of the Investigation Will Be Enlarged, Says Drayton.

Railways Endeavor to Show That Eastern Tariffs Are Lower Because of Water Competition and Also That Numerous Reductions Have Been Made In the West—Notable Lawyers Present Before Board.

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—With an effort of the railroads to show that not only were their eastern rates lower by water competition which was absent in the west, but that numerous reductions had been made in rates as regards the latter as well, the western rate enquiry was opened yesterday morning by the Railway Commission, and continued in the afternoon. It will probably last all week.

That the scope of the enquiry would be enlarged so as to include more than the mere question of discrimination, was the important announcement of Chairman Drayton.

Although the enquiry has to do primarily with western rates, it is of interest to the east, inasmuch as one result of it might be a raising of eastern tariffs as well as a possible lowering of those affecting territory nearer the Pacific Ocean.

Probably the largest array of counsel and representatives of the various bodies interested ever seen in any single case before the Railway Commission was present. The many railway men included G. M. Bosworth, vice-president of the C.P.R.; Sir William Mackenzie of the C.N.R., and J. E. Dalrymple, vice-president of the G.T.R.

Mr. M. K. Cowan represented the interests of Alberta and Saskatchewan, and Mr. A. McDonald, British Columbia.

For the Federal Government appeared Mr. James Bicknell, K.C., of Toronto; Mr. H. W. White, K.C., of Winnipeg; Mr. Morrison of Vegreville, Alta., and G. E. Carpenter of Winnipeg.

Mr. Isaac Pitblado looked after the interests of the Winnipeg Board of Trade, and Mr. J. E. Walsh those of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

F. H. Chrysler, K.C., for the C.P.R., said the company did not admit that the interests of any one section were sacrificed to another. The public was protected, within the meaning of the clause of the railway act governing the matter and he promised to submit evidence showing that western rates were not unjust.

"Is there anyone connected with the C.P.R. who could tell what the water competition actually amounts to?"

"In tonnage?"

"No."

G. M. Bosworth said that western rates were chiefly based on Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway rates and were not affected by water competition.

Quebec and Maritime Province rates were governed chiefly by St. Lawrence River competition as well as by the I.C.R. The C.P.R. did a large amount of business east and west in the United States, receiving this business from the other lines originally at St. Thomas and now at Windsor and Detroit.

Much iron and coal is also carried from the eastern States westward by the C.P.R. at rates the same as those over American roads. American grain, when Canadian grain was not seeking transport, was carried to St. John for export, but the Canadian was given the preference. The local American rates had a large bearing on through rates from one country to another. Rates in the western States were higher than in the east.

Cross-examined by Hon. E. H. Phippen for the C.N.R., Mr. Bosworth said there was no other district in the world where railways were up against so much water competition as in eastern Canada and rates had been based on it. An effort had been made by the G.T.R. to make higher rates in winter to get away from this, but it had been prevented by an order of the board. There was no water competition in the west.

At the afternoon session Vice-President Bosworth of the C.P.R. was re-cross-examined by Isaac Pitblado for the Winnipeg Board of Trade, and stated that the rates between two inland points would probably not be affected by water competition. The whole Western Ontario peninsula, however, he declared, would be affected. In fact, the C.P.R. had a standard mileage tariff applicable to the whole of Eastern Canada, irrespective of individual cases of water competition.

Mr. Pitblado examined the witness in regard to his statement that St. Paul and Fort William, instead of Winnipeg, should be compared. He then returned to the question of water competition, which was thoroughly considered.

Mr. McInnes was next called and gave evidence as to a number of rate reductions made by the C.P.R. at different times in its eastern and western rates. The reductions as regards grain oats, etc. had in some cases been as high as 60 per cent., while there had also been considerable reductions in coal, coke and a number of other commodities.

WILSON IS ACCUSED OF BEING ANTAGONISTIC TO LABOR

New York, Oct. 8.—Governor Johnson of California invaded Long Island on behalf of the National Progressive party last night and proclaimed it his intention in future addresses during the campaign to discuss Woodrow Wilson's attitude toward trade unionism. He asserted he would seek to show that the Democratic Presidential candidate formerly was hostile to union labor.

In pursuance of the plan Governor Johnson last night dealt with a letter Governor Wilson wrote to President Joline of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad Co. in 1907. The letter contained acknowledgements of a copy of an address Mr. Joline had made, in which he attacked labor unions and "political demagogs." Governor Wilson wrote regarding the speech: "I have read it with relish and entire agreement."

After reading the letter Governor Johnson referred to a speech made by Governor Wilson in 1909, when he was quoted as saying certain labor unions' tendencies were economically disastrous," and then said:

"We have, therefore, the attitude of Mr. Wilson in hostility to labor unions in 1909, and the fact that 'with relish and entire agreement,' he read the address concerning the 'cruel, unthinking hammer of labor unions' in 1907. Therefore it must be presumed that he is still hostile to labor unions."

Four Months For Smuggling Chinese.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Oct. 8.—Four months in the Erie County penitentiary was the sentence meted out to Burt G. Blowers of Buffalo in the U. S. District Court on the American side when he pleaded guilty to the charge of smuggling Chinese across the Niagara frontier.

Blowers was arrested in New York City last week.

TO HURRY HOME RULE

London, Oct. 8.—Premier Asquith's timetable gives 32 days for the discussion, in all its stages, of the home rule bill. This with the time already consumed on that measure, totals 49 days, whereas Gladstone's bill in 1893 was under discussion for 85 days.

The Conservatives intend to offer strong opposition to this guillotining process, under which the bill will be sent to the House of Lords at the latest, by the middle of December. John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Parliamentary party, denies that he has been negotiating with the Government for the exclusion of Ulster from the bill.

A MODEL PASTOR

If Rev. W. C. Riddiford had not been a preacher he would most probably have been either a professional athlete or a politician in either of which roles he would have been a good one, just as he is a good preacher to-day, one of the best in this city. That he would in all probability have been a Liberal, if he had gone into politics goes without saying, because in his sermon last Sunday night he declared that his model statesman was the late W. E. Gladstone, or that good Baptist brother, the Hon. Lloyd George.

Mr. Riddiford announced that in his sermon last Sunday night he was to draw some lessons from the late Liberal rally in this city. If any one expected a political sermon then that person was disappointed. The best lesson that Mr. Riddiford could draw from the rally was the lesson from the life of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, which he told his people was pure in every element, private, domestic and public.

In the interests of a healthy, moral and religious life let us congratulate ourselves that Mr. Riddiford chose the pulpit instead of either of the other two fields in which he might have shone. He is one of the best preachers to-day, not only in this city, but in Canada, not only in the Baptist Church but in any other denomination. The people who heard him last Sunday night went home mentally and morally refreshed. They were all the better for hearing his eloquent and powerful discourse. They were all the better for his hearty greeting and handshake as he stood at the door after the service and wished his hearers a cordial good-night.

A BUSINESS MAN AS PREACHER

Mr. E. A. Breckenridge, who will be the chief speaker at the men's rally in Knox church to-night, is one of the most striking examples of a business man in religion. When he was a school boy in Streetsville his father one of the most successful ministers that ever preached in a Presbyterian pulpit, died, and the good Presbyterians of that village still sorrow at his going. Mr. Breckenridge, while still a boy, went to Toronto and secured a position with the firm, Gourlay, Winter and Leeming, of which he is now the general manager and son-in-law of the head, Mr. R. S. Gourlay, just elected president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Mr Breckenridge will be worth hearing to-night. He has a message for the people, the message of a man who, involved in business still believes in the Golden Rule. He was a brother-in-law of the late Rev M. McGregor, who was for years editor of the Presbyterian, and who, if he had lived a few days longer, would have had the degree of doctor of divinity conferred upon him by his Alma Mater.

A QUESTION OF ROOTS

In a paper read before the Senate Committee on agriculture and forestry, Mr. John Fixter, Farm Superintendent at Macdonald College, Quebec, takes the ground that dairymen and beef producers find that when roots are fed, animals keep in better condition, and the flow of milk and the production of flesh increase with lessened cost. Poultry keepers and hog raisers find that when there is no grass, roots form the best and cheapest substitute. There is nothing fed to animals that is more relished. Roots appear to act as a tonic and help to make all dry feed palatable. Mr. Fixter points out that the average yield of roots over Canada is 402.3c bushels per acre, and that the yield secured at the Macdonald College farm was more than 1000 bushels per acre. He goes on to describe how large yields may be secured in every province of the Dominion and then tells how to successfully harvest and store the crop. This paper, which is issued in pamphlet form for free distribution by the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, concludes by saying that the greatest success in growing roots will be obtained when the following are observed: A systematic rotation of crops; roots to follow a fresh clover sod; manure once in the rotation; thorough cultivation in preparation for the crop and after the roots are sown.

FACTS ABOUT TUBERCULOSIS

Diseased Cow May Present Perfectly Healthy Appearance

It is an extraordinary fact that a cow may present a perfectly healthy appearance, thrive well upon her feed and give a good flow of milk and yet be in a badly diseased state with tuberculosis. This is very clearly brought out in a pamphlet prepared by the International Commis- a copy may do so by applying to the [illegible] are [illegible] fine looking animals that are [illegible] to have been diseased for years without cough, and otherwise apparently healthy and yet constantly passing tuberculosis germs that when consumed by hogs produced the disease. Such animals are a constant menace not only to the health of the herds to which they belong, but also to the people who use their milk, or are otherwise associated with them. Apart from the health standpoint the disease causes the loss of millions of dollars annually in cattle and hogs, besides materially decreasing the food supply of the country. The disease is commoner in some regions than in others in some districts it being no uncommon thing to find as many as 70 to 80 per cent of the cows in a herd diseased. In order to lay these and many other important facts regarding the disease before cattle raisers, and others interested in live stock a large issue of the pamphlet known as the Tuberculosis Primer was printed by direction of the Honorable the Minister of Agriculture. Those who have not already received a copy may do so by applying to the Publication Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

Killed Wife and Himself.

Calgary, Oct. 8.—Crazed through jealousy and inability to effect a reconciliation with his wife, John C. Davis, a realty operator, fired three bullets into her body, killing her instantly; seriously, if not fatally wounding Miss Mabel Dixon, a private detective, and then ended his own life shortly after seven o'clock Sunday night. The tragedy occurred at Miss Dixon's apartments.

The triple shooting was the culmination of troubles covering a period of more than a year. Unable to convince himself of his wife's fidelity, Davis employed a detective to follow her about the city and to furnish him with detailed reports of her actions and places she visited. Sympathy for the woman prompted Miss Dixon to betray her trust, and later she brought Mrs. Davis to her home to live.

ON MONDAY, SEPT. 30th, the Winter schedule of trains will take effect. Important changes are as follows:—

The morning train for Lakefield, now leaving at 8.35 a.m. will leave at 7.00 a.m., returning will arrive in Peterboro at 8.15 a.m.

Particular attention is called to the afternoon train for Belleville now leaving at 1.40 p.m., which will be changed to leave Peterboro at 1.30 p.m. This is an important change and should be carefully noted as this train is made up here and always leaves ON TIME. 9d

The crops in Western Canada have been so heavy this year that it has been necessary for the farmers of the West to make another appeal for help. The demand for help is now more urgent than ever, and it will require at least twenty thousand additional men to complete the harvesting.

In order to relieve the situation the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run a Harvesters' Excursion [illegible] from Winnipeg, $18.00.

The Fireplace in Summer.

The fireplace in summer is always somewhat of a worry to the housewife. This, however, by a little trouble can be converted into a really artistic spot. A Japanese pot of quaint design filled with branches of copper beech is very beautiful, or the fireplace can be made into a miniature rockery. Fresh green ferns arranged in tiers, with shells or pebbles to hide the pots, is all that is needed, and it is surprising the cool, refreshing look these give to a room in summer if kept free from dust and in a healthy condition.

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Big export clearances today offset in the wheat market the effect of heavy receipts northwest. At the close, which was steady, prices ranged from 3-8c to 1-2c decline to a shade advance. Corn closed the same as Saturday night to 1c down; oats finished 1-16c off to 1-8c up, and provisions dearer by 12 1-2c to 15c to 42 1-2c.

The Liverpool market closed today ½d higher to ¼d lower on wheat, and unchanged on corn. Budapest wheat closed unchanged, Berlin ⅜c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Oct. 7.—There was a fair enquiry from the continent for wheat, oats and barley, but the demand from the United Kingdom was poor. Cables were generally weaker on wheat, and the prices bid were so far out of line that no business was reported. The bids on oats were good, but, as exporters are out of supplies, and none are to hand, none of the orders were accepted. Some business is being done in barley. The local trade in oats is quiet. A sale of 10,000 bushels of Ontario malting barley was made at 84c. Flour fairly active and steady. Millfeed firm. Butter strong, with prices tending higher. Cheese quiet and easy. Exports for week were 81,942 boxes, as against 106,140 a year ago. Eggs firm, under a good demand.

Corn—American, No. 3 yellow, 77c.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 54½c to 55c; extra No. 1 feed, 54c to 54½c.

Barley—Manitoba feed, 61c to 62c; malting, 80c to 84c.

Buckwheat—No. 2, 74c to 75c.

Flour—Manitoba spring wheat patents, firsts, $5.90; seconds, $5.30; strong bakers, $5.10; winter patents, choice, $5.35; straight rollers, $4.95 to $5; do., bags, $2.35 to $2.40.

Rolled oats—Barrels, $5.05; bags, 90 lbs., $3.40.

Millfeed—Bran, $23; shorts, $27; middlings, $28 to $30; moullie, $30 to $35.

Hay—No. 2, per ton car lots, $13.50 to $14.

Cheese—Finest westerns, 13½c to 13⅝c.

Butter—Choicest creamery, 28¼c to 28½c; do. seconds, 27c to 27½c.

Eggs—Selected, 29c to 30c; No. 2 stock, 21c to 22c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 7.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Oct. 5 were 2200 cattle, 4900 sheep and lambs, 3450 hogs and 500 calves, while the supplies on the market this morning for sale amounted to 1000 cattle, 4300 sheep and lambs, 1150 hogs and 375 calves.

The market for cattle was weaker this morning, and prices were fully 25c to 50c per 100 pounds lower than this day week, which was attributed to the steady supply. The trade opened slow and was of a dragging nature thruout the day, as butchers and packers did not show a disposition to operate freely. Sales of a few picked, choice steers were made at $6.75, while an odd load or two changed hands at $6.50, and fair to good cattle brought from $5 to $5.80 per 100 pounds. There was a good demand for canners, of which the supply was large, and sales of bulls were made at $2.75 to $3, and cows at $2.25 to $2.50 per 100 pounds.

The receipts of sheep and lambs were large. A good many had been contracted for by packers last week, consequently the offerings on the market were not in excess of the requirements, and the feeling was steady. The demand for lambs was good, and sales of Ontario stock were made at $5.75 to $6, and Quebec at $5.25 to $5.50 per 100 pounds. Ewe sheep sold at $3.50 to $3.75, and bucks and culls at $3 to $3.25 per 100 pounds. The tone of the market for calves was firm under a good demand and small supplies, and sales of choice, milk-fed stock were made at 7c to 7½c per pound.

A strong feeling developed in the market for hogs, owing to the smaller offerings, and prices as compared with a week ago show an advance of 10c to 25c per 100 pounds. The demand was good from packers, and an active trade was done, with sales of [illegible] lots at [illegible] per [illegible] weighed off cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.50 to $6.75; do., medium, $4.50 to $5; do., common, $3.75 to $4.25; canners, $2.25 to $3; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $4.75 to $5; do., medium, $4.25 to $4.50; do., bulls, $2.75 to $3.25; milkers, choice, each, $70 to $80; do., common and medium, each, $50 to $60; springers, $40 to $46.

Sheep, ewes, $3.50 to $3.75; bucks and culls, $3 to $3.25. Lambs, $5.25 to $6.

Hogs, f.o.b., $8.75 to $9.

Calves, $5 to $15.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Oct. 7.—Cattle—Receipts, 4700 head; active and 10c to 15c higher; prime steers, $9.25 to $9.50; butchers, $6 to $8.25; bulls, $4.25 to $6.25; stock heifers, $4 to $4.75; shipping, $7.50 to $8.50; heifers, $5 to $7.65; cows, $3 to $6.25; stockers and feeders, $4.50 to $6.75; fresh cows and springers steady, $35 to $75.

Hogs—Receipts, 14,500 head; slow and steady to 5c lower; heavy, $9.45 to $9.55; mixed, $9.35 to $9.50; yorkers, $8.75 to $9.50; pigs, $8.40 to $8.60; roughs, $8.25 to $8.50; stags, $5.50 to $7.70; dairies, $9 to $9.40; grassers, $9 to $9.35.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 18,000 head; active and steady; lambs 10c higher; lambs, $4.50 to $7.25; yearlings, $5.25 to $5.50; wethers, $4.75 to $5; ewes, $2 to $4; sheep, mixed, $3 to $4.50.

HAPPY THOUGHT

The "Heat-Where-You-Want-It" Idea

Sometimes a range is judged by its fancy trimmings—by the size of its firebox—by the number of holes, or the size of its oven—or by its general appearance.

All these things are important. But the most important for you to consider is:—What will the range you buy do for you?

What return in actual service will you get from the range itself and from every ounce of fuel you put into it?

Behind "Happy Thought" Ranges, you must remember, there is the experience of over twenty-five years—a quarter of a century of sustained effort to produce the best.

The aim of the makers has been from the first to produce a stove that will give the largest possible return in perfect service.

So you find to-day that the "Happy Thought" is not only the best for baking, but also for roasting, frying, grilling, broiling, stewing and all other forms of cooking.

A sane design proportions this range so that you have the heat at the holes or in the oven just where and when you want it, and in the volume you require.

A simple demonstration will prove this to you as it is already known to a Quarter Million Canadian women who use the "Happy Thought" every day.

Adventure

A Romance of The South Seas

BY JACK LONDON

Copyright, 1910, by Street & Smith
Copyright, 1911, by the Macmillan Company

"She looked at me and said—not to me, mind you, but to the soaks: 'It's time this worthy man went ashore'—me! Worthy man! 'Fowler,' she said, 'just tell Adamn Adam to man the whaleboat, and while he's taking Captain Oleson ashore have your boat put me on the Flibberty. The three of you sail with me, so pack your dunnage. All hands got me over the side, and it seems to me I went to sleep sitting in the stern sheets and watching that Adamn steer. Then I saw the Flibberty's mainsail hoisting and heard the clank of her chain coming in, and I woke up. 'Here, put me on the Flibberty,' I said to Adamu. 'I put you on the beach,' said he. 'Missie Lackalanna say beach plenty good for you.' And now I've come to find out whether I'm skipper of the Flibberty or that chit of yours with her pirating, heathen boat's crew."

"Never mind, skipper. You can take a vacation on pay." Sheldon spoke with more assurance than he felt. "If Miss Lackland, who is my partner, has seen fit to take charge of the Flibberty Gibbet, why, it is all right. As you will agree, there was no time to be lost if the Martha was to be got off. It is a bad reef, and any considerable sea would knock her bottom out. You settle down here, skipper, and rest up and get the fever out of your bones. When the Flibberty Gibbet comes back you'll take charge again, of course."

CHAPTER XVI.

"PLEASE DON'T BE ANGRY WITH ME."

AFTER Dr. Welshmere and the Apostle departed and Captain Oleson had turned in for a sleep in a veranda hammock Sheldon opened Joan's letter:

Dear Mr. Sheldon—Please forgive me for stealing the Flibberty Gibbet. I simply had to. The Martha means everything to us. Think of it, only £55 for her, $275! If I don't save her, I know I shall be able to pay all expenses out of her gear which the natives will not have carried off. And if I do save her it is the haul of a lifetime. And if I don't save her I'll fill the Emily and the Flibberty Gibbet with recruits. Recruits are needed right now on Berande more than anything else.

And please, please don't be angry with me. You said I shouldn't go recruiting on the Flibberty, and I won't. I'll go on the Emily.

I bought two cows this afternoon. That trader at Nogi died of fever, and I bought them from his partner—Sam Willis his name—who agrees to deliver them, most likely by the Minerva next time she is down that way. Berande has been long enough on tinned milk.

And Dr. Welshmere has agreed to get me some orange and lime trees from the mission station at Ulava. He will deliver them the next trip of the Apostle. If the Sydney steamer arrives before I get back plant the sweet corn she will bring between the young trees on the high bank of the Balesuna. The current is eating in against that bank, and you should do something to save it.

I have ordered some fig trees and loquats, too, from Sydney. Dr. Welshmere will bring some mango seeds. They are big trees and require plenty of room.

The Martha is registered 110 tons. She is the biggest schooner in the Solomons and the best. I saw a little of her lines and guess the rest. She will sail like a witch. If she hasn't filled with water her engine will be all right. The reason she went ashore was because it was not working. The engineer had disconnected the feed pipes to clean out the rust. Poor business unless at anchor or with plenty of sea room.

Plant all the trees in the compound even if you have to clean out the palms later on.

And don't plant the sweet corn all at once. Let a few days elapse between plantings. JOAN LACKLAND.

He fingered the letter, lingering over it and scrutinizing the writing in a way that was not his wont. How characteristic, was his thought, as he studied the boyish scrawl—clear to read, painfully clear, but none the less boyish.

He looked long at the name. Joan Lackland—just an assemblage of letters, of commonplace letters, but an assemblage that generated a subtle heady magic. It crept into his brain and twined and twisted his mental processes until all that constituted him at that moment went out in love to that scrawled signature. Joan Lackland! Each time he looked at it there arose visions of her in a myriad moods and guises, coming in out of the flying smother of the gale that had wrecked her schooner, launching a whaleboat to go a-fishing, running dripping from the sea with streaming hair and clinging garments to the fresh water shower, frightening fourscore cannibals with an empty chlorodyne bottle, juvenilely rattling on about romance and venture, bright eyed, her face flushed and eager with enthusiasm. Joan Lackland! He mused over the cryptic wonder of it till the secrets of love were made clear and he felt a keen sympathy for lovers who carved their names on trees or wrote them on the beach sands of the sea.

Then he came back to reality, and his face hardened. Even then she was on the wild coast of Malaita and at Poonga-Poonga, of all villainous and dangerous portions the worst, peopled with a teeming population of head hunters, robbers and murderers. For the instant he entertained the rash thought of calling his boat's crew and starting immediately in a whaleboat for Poonga-Poonga. But the next instant the idea was dismissed. What could he do if he did go? First she would resent it. Next she would laugh at him and call him a silly.

There was much in her willful conduct that caused him to wince in the heart of him. He was appalled by the thought of her shoulder to shoulder with the drunken rabble of traders and beach combers at Guvutu. It was bad enough for a clean, fastidious man, but for a young woman, a girl at that, it was awful. The theft of the Flibberty Gibbet was merely amusing, though the means by which the theft had been effected gave him hurt. Yet he found consolation in the fact that the task of making Oleson drunk had been turned over to the three scoundrels. And next and swiftly came the vision of her, alone with those same three scoundrels, on the Emily, sailing out to sea from Guvutu in the twilight with darkness coming on. Then came visions of Adamu Adam and Noa Noah and all her brawny Tahitian following, and his anxiety faded away, being replaced by irritation that she should have been capable of such wildness of conduct. And the irritation was still on him as he got up and went inside to stare at the book on the wall and to wish that her Stetson hat and revolver belt were hanging from it.

Several quiet weeks slipped by.

The steamer from Sydney, the Kammambo, broke the quietude of Berande for an hour while landing mail, supplies and the trees and seeds Joan had ordered. The Minerva, bound for Cape Marsh, brought the two cows from Nogi. And the Apostle, hurrying back to Tulagi to connect with the Sydney steamer, sent a boat ashore with the orange and lime trees from Ulava. And these several weeks marked a period of perfect weather.

Then came the long expected nor'wester. For eight days it raged, lulling at times to short durations of calm, then shifting a point or two and raging with renewed violence.

It was in the good weather that followed one of the house boys ran him down with the news that the Martha, the Flibberty Gibbet and the Emily were heading in for the anchorage.

Coming into the compound from the rear, Sheldon saw everything at once—first, a glimpse at the sea, where the Martha floated huge alongside the cutter and the ketch which had rescued her; and next, the ground in front of the veranda steps, where a great crowd of fresh caught cannibals stood at attention. From the fact that each was attired in a new, snow white lava-lava, Sheldon knew that they were recruits. Part way up the steps one of them was just backing down into the crowd, while another, called out by name, was coming up. It was Joan's voice that had called him, and Sheldon reined in his horse and watched.

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

Doctors Could Not Help Mrs. Templeton—Regained Health through Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Hooper, Nebraska.—"I am very glad to tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. For five years I suffered from female troubles so I was scarcely able to do my work. I took doctors' medicines and used local treatments but was not helped. I had such awful bearing down pains and my back was so weak I could hardly walk and could not ride. I often had to sit up nights to sleep and my friends thought I could not live long. At my request my husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I commenced to take it. By the time I had taken the seventh bottle my health had returned and I began doing my washing and was a well woman. At one time for three weeks I did all the work for eighteen boarders with no signs of my old trouble returning. Many have taken your medicine after seeing what it did for me. I would not take $1000 and be where I was. You have my permission to use my name if it will aid anyone."—Mrs. SUSIE TEMPLETON, Hooper, Nebraska.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

Woman's World

Miss Margaret Kelly, Who Bosses Uncle Sam's Coin.

MISS MARGARET V. KELLY.

Some misguided men in the United States have the idea that their wives boss their incomes, salaries or wages—different words to use in proportion to the amount they receive. This money they receive in bills or coin. The person legally responsible for it is the secretary of the treasury of the United States, who is charged with making all of Uncle Sam's money. But, getting down to real facts, it is somebody else who bosses all our money—Miss Margaret V. Kelly, Uncle Sam's highest paid woman official.

She gets $3,000 a year. She is assistant director of the mint. Actually the secretary of the treasury has little to do with our coin. Miss Kelly attends to that. There are but four persons between her and the secretary of the treasury, and in their absence she runs things.

Miss Kelly is a native of New Hampshire, a product of Boston educational institutions and an example of how hard work, when one lacks political pull, will bring sure advancement in the great civil service legion that keeps in motion the intricate machinery of the federal government.

As assistant director of the mint Miss Kelly holds such a high official position in the treasury department that it can be truly said that there has never been her equal in the service.

Fifteen years ago, fresh from the Boston schools, Miss Kelly tackled a civil service examination. She passed and fourteen years ago entered the service of the mint bureau as a stenographer. Since that time she has been successively private secretary to the director, adjuster of accounts, examiner, assistant director, and now, when the director is absent from Washington, she signs herself acting director.

Dainty Afghans.

Fascinating dainty afghans for the baby's carriage are of white handkerchief linen. First a strip of the material is cut into three-quarters wide by one and a half yards long proportions; then a half yard of the length is turned back from what is to be the upper end of the spread. This turnover is daintily embroidered in white and trimmed at either end with huge bows of pink or blue satin ribbon. The lower end is rather more closely hand embroidered, and finally the entire afghan, including the folded over edge, is bordered with wide cluny.

Macrame lace makes a substantial and most effective afghan, of appearance similar to those of handkerchief linen, but instead of folding over the top of a yard and a half long strip of the macrame all over, the apparent turnback veils coarse, unbleached net, and to this is attached the under section, after which the macrame edging is flatly sewed upon the sides of the entire spread.

One on Mrs. Catt.

Mrs. Chapman Catt, president of the International Woman Suffrage alliance, in which twenty-eight nations are represented, and founder of the Woman Suffrage party of New York, numbering a membership of 50,000, has reached Sumatra in her trip around the world. A recent letter from her says:

"It was a most curious experience to learn that the women of Rangoon, the metropolis of Burma, have had the municipal vote for years. Parsee, Hindu, Mohammedan, Chinese and Buddhist women are on the electors' rolls and actually vote. The leader of the women is an ardent and orthodox Buddhist, who gives her whole life and fortune to social work and has voted for a quarter of a century."

Belgium.

Belgium is one of the smallest countries in regard to area, containing only 11,378 square miles, but it stands today the fifth of all nations of the world in regard to commerce and industries and is the most densely settled in Europe, containing 7,817,561 inhabitants. It is is also one of the richest countries per capita and second to none in enterprise.

BANKING

When you take out a life insurance policy you make the biggest bank deposit you ever made in your life at one time. Did you ever put one thousand—five thousand dollars—through the receiving teller's wicket and say "put that to the credit of my account"? No! Well, the minute you sign the insurance application for this amount and pay the first instalment on your new bank account, you have actually provided that whole sum—ready waiting, for service against one big call that is coming to you sometime—the one on which you will never get any extension of time. That's banking in a new sense and banking with common sense and foresight.

BEST YEAR FOR LOCAL BRANCH WOMEN'S ART ASSOCIATION

Review of the Work in Report Read by Miss Denison —Election of Officers

The annual meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Women's Art Association was held in the studio in the Public Library Building on Monday Oct. 7th, at 8 p.m. The President, Miss Bennet, was in the chair. There was a good attendance of members present. The minutes of last year's annual meeting were read and confirmed. Miss Denison read the report of the Executive, which was as follows:

Report of Peterborough Branch of the Women's Art Association of Canada, 1911-12:—

We may safely say that the past year has been one of the best that our branch of the Women's Art Association has experienced. We held seven executive meetings, at which the average attendance was twelve, and the fact that these meetings were so well attended, and that we have many new members, proves that the interest in the work of the Association is growing. Our membership at the present time is 66. The four twilight musicales held during the year were most delightful, and were greatly enjoyed by the large audiences who heard them. For these musical treats Mr. and Mrs. Gliddon deserve the sincere gratitude of the Art Association. Our thanks are also due to Mr. Ferguson who gave us a lecture on the "Early History of Greece"; to Mr. Dobbin, who addressed us on the "Making of Books," and also on "Early Days in Peterborough"; to the Rev. F. J. Sawers, who spoke to us about "Turner, the Man and His Art," and to his Honor Judge Huycke, for his lecture of "The Holy Grail." We were able to hold all of these lectures in our new studio.

On January 4th, a dramatic musicale was given, under the auspices of the Association, by Katharine Hale, assisted by Alice Roger Collins.

Our annual exhibition, held in November, was one of the most successful in the history of the Association. It consisted of two collections of pictures—water colors by Mr. H. Franke Waring, of England, and oil paintings by Miss Jack, formerly of New Brunswick, and now of London, England. In addition to the paintings there were homespuns, pottery, hand-made silver and enamel jewellery and books bound by hand—all loaned to us by the head Association in Toronto.

The exhibition was opened by Mr. Sheriff Hall, who gave a most interesting talk on Art and its history.

The Art Association now has a home, the Library Board having kindly given us the use of a room in the basement of the Library Building, which we have decorated and furnished as a studio. Here has been placed for the use of members Studio Magazine and The Travelling Library from McGill University, which comes to us every year, and is of much assistance to the W. A. A. Reading Club. Last winter the subject studied was Greek Art, and a most successful Reading Circle was conducted by Mrs. Mowat.

The members of the Association greatly appreciate the gift of Mr. Waring's beautiful water color which was presented to us for the studio.

Our Association, in connection with the Peterborough Summer Fair, had an exhibition of art curios, whereby a substantial sum was realized for the benefit of the Health Association.

The medals offered as prizes by the Association, were competed for by the public school children in December, and were awarded by Inspector Mowat early in the year. The competitions for 1912 have not yet been held, but it is hoped that they will be brought on in November.

At the Peterborough Industrial Fair a special prize of $5 was offered by the Association for the best group of three original drawings, to be competed for by residents of Peterborough County. It is to be regretted that there were no art students sufficiently interested to enter the competition.

We regret very much the departure from town of Mrs. H. D. Burnett, whose services as convenor of our Social committee were greatly appreciated.

FLORA E. COLLINS,
Rec.-Secretary.

NEW OFFICERS.

Encouraging reports were then heard from various committees, and the election of officers took place, which resulted as follows:

Honorary President of the Women's Art Association of Canada—Her Excellency, the Duchess of Connaught.

Hon. President of the Branch—Mrs. Dignam.

Hon. Past President—Miss J. Bartram.

President—Mrs. Aylmer.

1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. A. K. Bennet.

2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. D. Walker.

3rd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. V. Eastwood.

Recording-Secretary—Miss Flora E. Collins.

Cor.-Secretary—Mrs. A. E. Sherwood.

Treasurer—Miss Maude Rush.

Archivist—Mrs. Palmer.

Honorary Members. Representatives—Mrs Huycke, Mrs. Goodwill, Mrs Harvey, Mrs. Buchanan, Mrs. Stevenson, Miss Linden Hall, Miss McCarthy.

It was moved by Mrs. Eastwood, seconded by Mrs. Mowat, that a very hearty vote of thanks be tendered Mr. Dela Fosse for his kind assistance in connection with the Reading Club, and for his untiring help during the time of the exhibition.

WIDENING OF BABB'S LANE WILL COST THE CITY $4,500

Several of the Aldermen Give Their Opinions—Chas. Scriver's Application is Finally Rubbed Off the Slate and Mr. Walker Loses $100.

Messrs. Peck, Kerr and McElderry wrote the City Council last night that the township residents on the Otonabee river have authorized them to take action against the corporation unless some other disposition of sewage is made before October 15th. The communication was received.

BABB'S LANE.

A by-law authorizing the purchase of land to widen Babb's Lane for $4,500.00, passed its three readings, but not before it had been objected to by Ald. Gordon.

"It will take a great deal to convince me that the widening of Babb's Lane is a necessity," he remarked.

Ald. Duffus—"I would like to go on record as favoring the extension of Walton street instead of Babb's Lane."

Ald. Gordon—"The widening of Babb's Lane as far I can see, would benefit the Cox property more than anything."

Mayor Bradburn—"Where do you get your information, Ald. Gordon?"

Ald. Gordon—"I went over the whole section myself."

Ald. Anderson—I believe the price is too high."

CAN'T PLEASE EVERYBODY

Ald. Buller remarked that whatever was done it would be impossible to please both parties. Ald. Duffus took him up on his remark, objecting to the reference about pleasing somebody. The latter was appointed chairman of the committee that were to look into the proposal to extend Walton street.

"We are not here to please people," said Ald. Duffus, "but to do what is required in the best interests of all."

SCRIVER'S ACCOUNT.

A resolution introduced by Ald. Johnston, recommending that Charles Scriver be reimbursed for the work he had done as garbage collector, failed to meet with approval.

The power committee chairman moved that clause 2 of the Property Committee report be referred back to committee, but no seconder was found.

Ald. Johnston thought that Scriver had been discouraged at the outset by people heaping garbage upon him for removal, which has accumulated for months and months back. He also showed honesty by quitting before the end of the first month, at the expiration of which he would have been entitled to his first month's wage.

OTHERS SUFFER.

In this connection Mr. Walker waited upon the Council and expressed a desire to receive some remuneration for his work in constructing the garbage boxes built for Mr. Scriver. He was out over $100 through the resignation of Scriver, who had never paid him for his work. The boxes were used by Scriver after having been ordered by him on the authority of the Council.

"I am a poor man," said Mr. Walker, "and I think the Council should remunerate me in some way." The matter was left in abeyance and the report of the Property Committee adopted.

The application of Joseph Farrow to have a sales stand at a street corner was also turned down by the adoption of the Finance report.

MR. DOWNEY IS ONE OF SEVEN NOMINATIONS

Toronto, Oct. 8.—Elections to the new Advisory Council of Education for Ontario are announced as follows:—Representing the High School Teachers—Messrs. Gilbert A. Smith, M.A., Toronto (Parkdale) and Arthur P. Gundry, B.A., Strathroy.

Representing the Public School Inspectors—Messrs. N. W. Campbell, B. A., Durham; and T. A. Craig, Kemptville.

Representing the Separate School Teachers—Mr. John J. Rogers, Lindsay.

No voting was necessary for these elections, Mr. Craig was nominated by the Minister of Education since Mr. Campbell was the only nominee in the Public School Inspector's section.

There promises to be a keen contest for the selection of four members to represent the Public School Teachers' section. Seven nominations have been made as follows:—Miss Harriett Johnston, Toronto; and Messrs. Thos. A. Reid, Owen Sound; R. F. Downey, B.A., B.Paed., Peterborough; Hugh A. Beaton, Walkerville; J. Frank Bryant, M.D., London; James B. Denny, B.A., Ottawa, and Wm. S. Reidenbammer, B.A., Exter.

All teachers reported by the inspectors as being entitled to vote will be sent ballot papers by October 16th, which must be returned to the Education Department by November 6th.

OPENING DINNER AND ADDRESS FOR THE AD CLUB

Peterboro business men will be privileged on Monday next in hearing Mr. C. W. McDiarmid, of Ryrie Bros., Limited, Toronto, when he will deliver an illustrated address on the question of "Analyzing the Demand for your Goods from a Retailer's Standpoint."

The occasion will be the opening dinner and lecture of the fall and winter season of the Peterborough Ad Club.

Our local business men who value new ideas from one of the experience and standing of Mr. McDiarmid, will keep Monday evening open and plan to take in the Ad Club dinner.

In addition to Mr. McDiarmid, who is president of the Toronto Ad. Club and who lead the big delegation to Dallas, Texas, last May, Mr. W. G. Rook, President of the "Home Journal" and Mr. Adam F. Smith, Secretary of the Canadian Division of the A. A. C. of America, both of Toronto, will be present, and take part in the program.

A profitable and interesting time is assured. Fuller announcements will be made as soon as final arrangements are completed.

WATER IN UPPER LAKES IS HIGHER THAN LAST YEAR BY TWENTY-ONE INCHES

It has been the general opinion of citizens of Peterborough for some time past that the water in the upper lakes is lower this year than for many years.

A party of Peterborough gentlemen left a few days ago for the express purpose of ascertaining this fact and returned last night with the information that such was not the case. They reported that the water at this time is 21 inches higher than this time last year and that the water was in good condition. The report that Peterborough had a poor water supply for power has reached the ears of manufacturers in outside towns who have decided that Peterborough has not the power which it is supposed to have. This is not true, however, as the city has one of the best water power systems in Canada, and one which is not likely to fail. The men who have found out this fact for themselves are prominent citizens with extensive interest in the city and confidence in the power supply.

LIST OF SUBJECTS TO BE DEALT WITH BY MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

The Ministerial Association held their regular meeting yesterday morning. Among other items of business was the submitting of a new constitution for the association. Leader—Rev. Isaac Couch.

April: subject The Book of Job; essayist—Rev. Chas. E. Cragg.

Leader—Rev. Canon Davidson.

May: Subject: Browning—The Preacher's Poet; essayist—Rev. F. McCorkingdale.

Leader—Rev. James Rollins.

TRENT CANAL

J. H. Burnham, M.P., in a letter to the City Council stated that he had been informed on good authority, that the canal will be completed and in running order in three years time. He suggested, however, that the Council take up the matter and see that the contractors complete their work within the specified time. It was only by the hearty co-operation of the various municipalities along the Trent route that the development of the canal to the fullest could be consummated.

Ald. Dufffus was in favor of getting together a deputation of two hundred more interested citizens and going to Ottawa to urge upon the Government, the speedy completion of the northern end of the canal.

Ald. Gillespie suggested writing a letter to the Government urging them to hurry the operations. It was decided to fall in with the suggestion.

Mayor Bradburn was in favor of hurrying along the work of the Government of that part of the canal which would enter Georgian Bay.

ANNIVERSARY AT MARK ST.

Bowmanville Pastor is Coming for the Special Services

The anniversary of the Mark St. Methodist Church will be held on Oct. 13th, at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Rev. H. B Kenny, the popular pastor of the Bowmanville Methodist church, will preach morning and evening. Special music will be rendered by the choir, assisted by outside talent. The congregation will make the greatest effort in the history of the church to make the day successful. On Monday night a congregational social and lecture will be held at which Mr. Kenny will give his very popular lecture on "The Old and New Woman." All strangers of the congregation are invited.

NEW TRUSTEES.

The Finance Committee and Trustee Board of the Mark street Methodist church met last night. The business was settled for the quarter and four new trustees appointed, namely, Messrs. Kerr, Brown, Albert Fowler and W. Gamble.

THE DRUGSTORE AT THE CORNER

Mr. F. C. Webber Located at Reilley's Former Stand

F. C. Weber of Toronto, honor graduate of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, who has been connected for the past number of years with Mackenzie Feyler Company, Limited Toronto, is now conducting a bright new drug store in the stand where Mr. George Reilley was formerly in business near the Grand Trunk station. Mr. Reilley disposed of his store to Mr. Weber, and has moved to Toronto.

Everything new has been installed by the proprietor, and the large and thoroughly modern stock that has been purchased, is laid out to best advantage. The entire store is being renovated and restocked and several specialty lines will be handled exclusively. Neilson's ice cream and McConkey's chocolates are included in the choice line of goods carried.

A complete line of Holland linen stationery has been added in addition to the drug business.

It is also the new proprietor's intention to add a full line of kodak and photographic goods and fill any orders for developing and printing.

Mr. Weber will also handle Dr. Norvall's proprietory medicines.

Special attention will be paid to the restaurant next season.

The prescription department in connection with the business will receive particular attention, and physicians prescriptions will be carefully compounded by experienced graduates only.

A complete line of sick room supplies will be carried including hot water bags, bandages, cottons, etc.

Mr. Weber comes to Peterboro with ample experience and there is little doubt that the new store will thrive under his capable management.

THE CAUSE TO BE INVESTIGATED

Inquest into the Death of the Late Mrs. Herron

Coroner Dr. Greer has selected a jury to investigate the circumstances under which the late Mrs. Herron, of Aylmer street, came to her death last night. It seems that the nurse who was attending the patient administered an injection of hot water, and it was shortly after this that Mrs. Herron passed away.

The jury will visit Comstock's undertaking parlors at four o'clock this afternoon, where the body of the deceased was taken.

JONES GOES TO THE SHELTER

He Causes Much Trouble as he Roams About to City

"He is a continual trouble," said Chief Thompson, of a young lad named Jones, who stood before Magistrate Dumble this morning.

Jones has alarmed officials of both stations by his actions on and about trains and more than once it was feared he would be killed. The lad is erratic in other respects and does not go to school because he is unable to absorb the lessons taught. Special Officer Pinchin, of the C.P.R., had the boy brought to court, and it was decided that he be sent to the Children's Shelter until a definite disposition of his case could be arrived at.

A local man "guessed he was full," and after hearing some good advice, departed on his way.

After his fiftieth birthday a man doesn't have to pay the fiddler so often.

Special to the Review.

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 8.—That interest is to a very large extent centered on the World's series, is evidenced by the thousands of fans who fought their way into the Polo Grounds to-day to witness the first game of the series.

Manager McGraw decided on Tesreau and Myers as the New York battery, while Wood and Cady were selected by Manager Stahl, of the Red Sox.

Umpire Klem is working behind the bat; O'Loughlin is in left field and Rigler in right field.

Mayor Gaynor threw out the first ball to Catcher Meyers.

Tesreau was relieved in the seventh by Crandall.

DICK SHEEHY STARRED FOR OTTAWA COLLEGE AGAINST QUEENS

An Ottawa paper refers to Dick Sheehy and his work in the Ottawa Queens Intercollegiate rugby game as follows—

Dick Sheehy, the College left half was head and shoulders over any man on the field. The Peterboro boy starred from start to finish and was the only Ottawa student who could gain any distance through Queen's line. His work was the bright feature of the game. Killian was another sparkler, but Sheehy was the pick of them all. Whenever he touched the ball it meant a gain. He is faster, less fearless and more reckless than ever and should have a great year. The darkhaired Ottawa student was handed some awful bumps but no one can stand them better.

FOWL SUPPER

Fairmount Ladies Provided an Excellent Meal and program

The Ladies' Aid of Fairmount Methodist church held a fowl supper last night and met with splendid success. The supper brought forth many complimentary remarks as the ladies did their work well.

For the program, Rev. Mr. Butler, the pastor presided, and with him on the platform were Rev. Mr. Nevell Bethany, Rev. Mr. White of Fraserville, and Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville.

A number of Peterborough people were present for the festivities.

GATE'S COMET

Can be Seen With Three Inch Telescope After Sundown

Gates Comet, discovered at Sydney on September 8, is drawing nearer to the sun. It is fairly bright, to a small telescope and can be seen if located with the three inch telescope, used by the Astronomical Society, immediately after sundown.

The solar disturbance on the Sun, visible for the past few days, has increased in size, until the disturbed area is now nearly 40,000 miles, that is to say the disturbance occupies one billion six hundred million square miles of the Sun's surface.

MR. ROWELL AND LOCAL OPTION

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—If Mr. Rowell, who no doubt is a very good man in his way, had not devised a new plan of getting the support of the people, the plan of abolishing the bar, when the people could have voted on local option, I think Mr. Rowell spoiled local option because they can vote for what they think is just as good and support their own party, at the same time killing two birds with one stone. I thought local option was the best thing we ever had because its enforcing was in the hands of the people of the municipality, and if they didn't do right at any time it was easy to have it straightened out. I am sorry that this is the end of the finest temperance measure we ever had, but I do not see how Sir James Whitney can blamed for thinking that the people didn't want local option, when the Liberals with a new leader, weren't satisfied with it. If they had been satisfied with it there wouldn't have been any substitute provided, but not being satisfied with it, they thought of something else that they thought was better. It's too bad, but it is possible the cause of temperance will get something nearly as good, and then in years to come we may get back to local option, for I have more faith in a municipality where there is an election every year than I have where there is an election once in four years and the whole lot of other things mixed up with it to prevent seeing what we have done.

Yours,
P. E.

FUNERAL OF MRS. PEARSON

Many Friends and Relatives Present at the Obsequies

Lindsay Post.

On Sunday afternoon all that was mortal of the remains of Mrs. John Pearson was laid away in the beautiful plot at Riverside cemetery, after impressive funeral services had been conducted by Rev. Mr. Phelps, of Brighton, a former local clergyman, and warm friend of the bereaved family. The funeral took place from the residence of Mrs. Earl, Queen St., and was largely attended by the citizens. Before the cortage proceeded to the city of the dead, Rev. Mr. Phelps conducted funeral services at the house in the presence of a large gathering of sorrowing relatives and friends. The reverend gentleman took occasion to refer to the exemplary Christian life which the deceased had led, her activity in church work and the motherly care and earnestness exercised in the rearing of her family. Such a noble example should inspire those she left behind to emulate her good deeds.

Beautiful floral tributes were sent by many friends as well as relatives of the deceased. Among those noticed were: Spray, Misses Lizzie and Mabel Howe; spray, Mrs. Earle and Arnie; spray, Mrs. McNutt and Minnie; cross, Mrs. C. Hughan; spray, Mrs. Sharpe and Mabel; spray, Mrs. Algar and Mildred; gates ajar, father and boys; pillow, Mazzie, Lulu and Grant; wreath, boys and girls in Portland, Ore.; sheath, Mr. and Mrs. H. Middleton; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong; spray, Mr. and Mrs. Nursey.

Among the relatives of the deceased present at the funeral were: Mr. A. H. Pearson, and Mr. R. J. Pearson, sons, and Mr. A. E. McLaughlin, Toronto; Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Raymer, sisters, Orillia; Mrs. Major and Mrs. Tucker, aunts, Peterborough; Mr. P. Walker, nephew, Orillia, and the members of the family from Haliburton, and Mrs. W. Adair, Norland.

The pallbearers were Hon. Senator McHugh, Messrs. Thos. Stewart, Ed. Armstrong, George Messey, Lewis McGregor, C. Hughan.

The freight steamer Bergore Head, eastward bound, is ashore near Flower's Cove, Straits of Belle Isle.

OBITUARY

The Late Mrs. Herron

Susan Elizabeth Perrin, wife of Michael Herron, passed away last night, at the age of 55 years.

The deceased was born in Cameron, township of Fenelon, and had been a life long resident there, only coming to live in Peterborough seven months ago, at 485 Aylmer street. The late Mrs. Herron was a well-known resident of Cameron, and was highly respected and esteemed by all who knew her.

The deceased lady is survived by a sorrowing husband, four sons, four daughters, five sisters and five brothers. The sons are, John, of Cameron; James, William and Elmer of Peterborough. The four daughters are, Mrs. H. Killon, of Glenarm, Mrs. Joseph Hill of Cameron, Stella and Minnie at home. The brothers and sisters are, George of Haliburton, Isaac of Cameron, John, Jesse, and Joseph of Lindsay, Mrs. T. Glassford, of Valentia, Mrs. H. Rich, of Oakwood, Mrs. D. Lee and Mrs. E. Maunder of Saskatchewan, and Mrs. J. Cook of Cameron.

The service will be held at the late residence to-morrow morning, the Rev. J. R. Webb officiating, before the remains are forwarded to Fenelon Falls for interment.

"THE THIRD DEGREE"

The approach of Charles Klein's great drama "The Third Degree" which is to appear here on Saturday next, Oct. 12, may bring with it some conjecture as to the meaning of the title.

Not all theatregoers are familiar through one source or another, with conditions as they exist in certain police circles, nor are they acquainted with the evils of a much used system of preliminary inquiry too frequently employed by the police in questioning a suspected person. This system is known as "The Third Degree." The more modern idea of the third degree constitutes a long, trying series of questions with or without some form of physical torture, but never without some mental shock or discomfort.

The third degree as used in the Sixteenth Century was worked only by means of physical horror and torture, and was known as "the Spanish Inquisition." This soon gave way under the opposing attack of certain European powers, and was abolished. Later, in France, a crime was enacted, as it was supposed to have been committed before the suspect, which necessarily called for the many grewsome spectacles without any real assurance of a correct "confession." This system of lapping crime was known as "The construction." and is still in vogue in France, though in milder form.

The name, the third degree, as applied to the present form of inquiry, is a phrase given to a "sweating" ordeal which was given a newspaper review of the event by a "police reporter." No one, even the reporter, himself, could tell just why the phrase was applied to the system; but it won instant favor among his fellow newspaper men, until now, it is a term that has an International significance.

$100 PENSION FOR JOHN McNAUGHTON IN FEW DAYS

Some Delay Was Caused as Peterborough's Veteran Shoemaker Enlisted for '66 Under the Name of Norton —Applications Are Being Considered as Rapidly as Possible.

The friends of Mr. John McNaughton, the veteran shoemaker and soldier, will be pleased to hear, that he will receive his Fenian Raid bounty in a few days.

There were some interesting complications in regard to the claim of Mr. McNaughton, that Mr. Burnham has succeeded in having cleared up by a large number of affidavits. It seems that when John enlisted, he enlisted as John Norton, not intending, of course, to give the idea that he had a different name, than the one he now bears, but he had been generally known as Norton, or McNorton, and only called by his right name by the few who paid attention to it.

When he wrote for his pension, and signed his name as John McNaughton, the Department replied that no such name appeared on the list.

It can be said, also, that the Department has issued a notice that those people entitled to the pension are having their applications considered as rapidly as possible and will have their names cleared off the list before long now.

There need be no anxiety on the part of those who were actually away from Peterborough on that occasion as their application will be attended to in the order of being received at the Department.

COUNCIL DID NOT DECIDE TO OPEN NEGOTIATIONS WITH POWER COMPANIES

Ald. Gordon's Motion that Power Companies be invited to Quote Prices on Power, Was Lost--Ald. Buller Says Seymour Company Solicitor Was Asked for a Price But Did not do so. City Can't Get Municipal Ownership from Seymour Company Says Mayor Bradburn.

At a regular meeting of the City Council last night, the power by-law was given its first and second readings. Some of the aldermen contended that it should not be given to the people, considering the present indefinite proposition made by the Commission. Alderman Gordon was one of the strongest objectors,

"If we don't put a more definite proposition before the people, we are going to be trimmed," he said. He led up to the above statement after freely referring to the newspapers and commenting upon the articles which have appeared in them lately, advising the City Council to secure offers for supplying power from the Seymour Power Company.

"ROASTING" THE COUNCIL

"The Morning Times, the Daily Review and the Examiner have all been taking the matter up," said Ald. Gordon, "and have had their coats off within the last few days, roasting the Council. The pith of these articles seems to intimate that the city is not being given a fair deal inasmuch as the Seymour Power Company has not been asked to give a price for the supplying of power." Ald. Gordon was therefore in favor of waiting and allowing other power companies an opportunity to quote prices and favored December 1st, as time for the submission of the Hydro-Electric offer. In the interval the Manufacturers' Committee could go into the matter with the Hydro-Electric again.

"Personally, my sympathy is with the Hydro-Electric proposition," he continued. "We are placing the responsibility upon the people for the by-law to stand or fall. I feel therefore that we will be free from criticism and show out desire to be free and frank with all persons.

Ald. Gordon moved, "That the City Clerk be authorized to write the power companies who are interested in the power question in Peterborough, asking them to quote prices on whatever power they are able to offer the city and to private consumers, and what they will accept for their distributing plant in Peterborough."

In supporting his motion, Ald. Gordon stated that the people who have read the exceedingly well written letters in the papers, are deeply interested in them, and now if the Council secures other quotations on power from the power companies for ten, twenty or thirty years, and the people see that these offers are not as good as the Hydro-Electric then let the rate payers decide.

Mayor Bradburn— "The only way is to ask for a perpetual agreement for the supplying of power."

Ald. Gordon—"Yes let a direct request go to them for what they can offer.

Ald. Duncan—"Is this matter to be dilly-dallied for another year or are we going to get busy and hurry it along."

Ald. Buller was for the Hydro-Electric. "They are the people," he said. He favored placing the by-law to the people after the De Laval Dairy Supply Company by-law had been voted upon.

FAILED TO GIVE PRICE

With regard to buying the distributing plant of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, Ald. Buller stated that Mr. Mulholland, their solicitor had been asked for a price upon it, but had failed to give one.

Mayor Bradburn— "One thing sure is, that if the city wants municipal ownership of power, they cannot secure it through the Seymour Power Company."

During the early stages of the discussion, Ald. Gordon stated that there was not a man sitting on the Council, who could quote a price to a manufacturer or householder on what hydro power would cost, with the information that they had.

Ald. Jos. Duffus was a supporter of Ald. Gordon's idea, of waiting for other power companies to be given an opportunity to submit prices. He favored any resolution to that effect.

Ald. Johnston—"That's different to what your former opinion was."

Ald. Duffus— "No. Ald. Johnston you cannot recall a statement or show the words where I ever was of a different view upon the matter."

Ald. Johnston— "Oh that's all very well to play to the gallery." A warm argument ensued until the Mayor rapped out "order gentlemen."

The last man to give an opinion was the Finance chairman.

"I believe the by-law should be laid over. The people are unanimous for municipal ownership. They expect, when they take over the Light and Power Company's plant, to secure power at cost, which they cannot secure it for, from the Seymour Power Company.

"It is however quite open for them to submit a price."

When placed before Council, Ald. Gordon's motion lost.

The date for submission of the by-law was not decided.

Fred Hagerty of Ottawa chauffeur accused at North Bay with an "elopement" with a young woman, was acquitted.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF GENERAL FIGHTING EXPECTED HOURLY

Allies May Follow Lead of Montenegro and Start Fighting at Different Points---Turks Reported Victorious in Short Battle With Montenegrins.

Constantinople, Oct. 9.—An official despatch from the Montenegrin frontier says that Montenegrins on Monday attacked the blockhouse at Kalava, but were repulsed with heavy loss. Fifteen Turks were wounded. The same day a large detachment of the Montenegrin army crossed the frontier and attacked Berans. A battle ensued, which, according to latest reports, still continues. It is also reported that the Turks surrounded and annihilated one body of Montenegrin soldiers.

Berana Surrounded.

Paris, Oct. 9.—Montenegrin forces early yesterday morning attacked Berana, which at noon was completely surrounded. Skirmishes also are reported on the Servian frontier, and with Greek bands in the neighborhood of Diskata. An exchange of shots has occurred near Djumabala, on the Bulgarian frontier.

General Fighting Expected.

Paris, Oct. 9.—A general conflagration in the Balkans is expected by officials here within 48 hours. Montenegro's declaration of war against Turkey is regarded merely as the beginning. It is believed that the other units in the Balkan coalition will follow suit as soon as the mobilization of their armies is complete. There is only a faint hope now that the representations of the powers will avert general hostilities.

Montenegro's move is considered in Paris to be all a part of a pre-arranged plan. It is asserted that Greece was first selected by the Balkan confederation to force the issue and inaugurate the war. This could easily have been done by Greece seating in the Greek Parliament the deputies from Crete, which was certain to prove a casus belli to Turkey. Greece, however, declined to accept the responsibility for starting the flame of battle.

Montenegro was then picked for the task. She had a long-standing quarrel with Turkey over the boundary question, and Turkey's refusal to grant satisfaction was seized upon as justification for Montenegro's resort to arms. A prominent diplomat said last night:

"It looks as if our fine European diplomacy had been beaten by the cleverness of the Balkan states. These states have grown weary of Ottoman promises. Turkey's recent decision to inaugurate reforms, which were considered unsatisfactory and the slowness and hesitancy of certain powers to join in urgent intervention has led the Balkan peoples to feel that the battlefield was the only sure means of exacting what they felt to be justice."

It is not doubted here that cooler heads in Bulgaria have been against the war from the start, but popular excitement is at such a high pitch that that country will practically be driven to war to satisfy public feeling.

In the failure of intervention every fibre of energy will be exerted by the great powers to prevent the war flame from engulfing Europe. It is realized that all depends on the attitude of Austria, which, according to late advices, has already mobilized four army corps—in Croatia, Bosnia, Herzegovina and Southern Hungary—and stands to occupy the Sanjak of Novipaar, should this coveted strategic territory be menaced by the Servians and Montenegrins.

Despite Russian sympathy for their Slav brethren of the Balkans, whose political welfare Russia has fostered, no complications are anticipated between Russia and Austria, and both these nations have assured the other powers of their determination not to be drawn into any Balkan embroglio.

Official circles in France greatly regret the criticism of certain French newspapers that Great Britain's slowness in agreeing to the phraseology of the note has embarrassed and retarded the presentations of the powers. This criticism, it is averred, does not represent the official French view. It is pointed out that such criticism is liable to cause a false impression abroad and that it has furnished ammunition for an attack by the German press on Great Britain.

Bulgaria in reply to the powers will thank them for their interest in the cause of the Balkan peoples, according to a despatch from Sofia to The Temps. After setting forth the exact demands of Bulgaria the Sofia Cabinet will ask the powers to obtain from Turkey a similar precise statement of Turkey's program of reforms. The correspondent adds:

"Bulgaria cannot afford to brook delay, as this would compromise her military situation."

The concentration of troops in Bulgaria is almost complete and it is expected that strategic points on the frontier in the vicinity of Harmanli and Kirk-Kilisseh and other places will be occupied to-day by Bulgarian troops, possibly producing skirmishes between them and the Turkish advance posts. It is reported that King Ferdinand has left for the front.

WILL GIVE FULL EXPLANATION WHY RATES ARE SO HIGH

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—That not only would the specific complaints upon which the enquiry was based be dealt with, but that as a matter of public information, reasons why freight rates in the west were so high as to increase the cost of living there, would be given, was the gist of a statement made by F. H. Chrysler, K.C., representing the C.P.R., at yesterday's session of the western rate enquiry.

Most of the day was taken up with the presentation of a series of statements designed to show that Canadian rates in the west were lower than American ones in similar territory, while to-day it will be argued that rates in western United States are higher than in the eastern part of that country.

That for short distances American tariffs were less and for long ones greater than the Canadian rates was indicated. Density of population and greater development of American States was given as the reason for this.

W. H. McInnes, C.P.R. freight traffic manager, said that in many cases C.P.R. rates in the west were lower than American ones.

M. K. Cowan, representing Alberta and Saskatchewan, objected to these statements being put in, on the ground of irrelevancy, but they were allowed to go under protest.

During the afternoon session, the series C. list of rate comparisons was continued. Differences in favor of the C.P.R. were shown in a variety of instances, in some cases amounting to 30 per cent. of the Canadian rate itself.

Series D. dealing with through rate comparisons was next presented. Objection was raised by Messrs. M. K. Cowan and Isaac Pitblado to the comparisons as being irrelevant to the purposes of the enquiry.

"These are not even eastern local rates; they are eastern through rates," said Mr. Pitblado.

"The fact is," replied Mr. Chrysler, "that the rates in the U. S., as the exhibits show, are very much in line with rates from the east to the west. Our rates in eastern Canada are influenced by rates in adjoining territory in the U. S. So are those of the west. Why are the rates in western United States higher? It is all a question of water competition and nothing else, which has made them higher in the U.S. and made our own higher, too, in the west than in the east."

"Do you mean to say your eastern Canadian rates are based on those in the U. S.?" asked Mr. Cowan.

"Not based, but influenced," said the C.P.R. counsel. He went on to explain that some of the facts brought out were designed to meet a certain amount of outside criticism.

"The public have a right to know, if the high cost of living in the west is due to railway rates, that the same conditions apply in western United States," he stated.

Commissioner McLean called Mr. Chrysler's attention to the fact that similarly designated classifications of Canadian and American rates might include different commodities and would thus not furnish a fair basis of comparison

The fact that the rates at Winchester, Ont., could not go above the basis established by water competition, Morrisburg was instanced as illustrative of the influence of such competition on eastern as compared with western rates. Special local railway competition was also experienced in the east and had to do with the making of rates.

"But you have this railway competition in western Canada," said Chairman Drayton.

"Yes, but on a different basis," was the reply.

Adjournment was taken until to-day.

PROMISES REDUCTION

Lower Rates Will be the Result of Hearing

Winnipeg, Oct. 9.—Feeling is intense in Macdonald constituency and with only three more days of campaigning both parties are waxing warm to the fray, each claiming a victory in sight.

At a meeting in St. James in the Conservative candidate's interest, Hon. Robert Rogers made the positive statement that freight rates would be reduced as the result of the present enquiry.

Mr. Rogers also dealt with the issue of C.P.R. stock, stating that the Government had not as yet dealt with the application of the Canadian Pacific Railway, but it was his opinion that were the C.P.R. watching the progress of the west as closely as it should do, they would be asking for ten times sixty millions to keep pace with the transportation requirements that the progress of Western Canada will require in the next few years. He added that he would favor any such request.

Among the prominent Conservatives who are speaking nightly in the campaign are Premier Roblin, Hon. Robt. Rogers, Hon. Dr. Roche, and Dr. Schaffner, while leading campaigners on R. L. Richardson's behalf are Dr. M. Clarke, M.P., Senator Watson, W. E. Knowles, M.P., Hon. George Langley, T. C. Norris, M.P., E. H. Devlin, M.P.P., C. D. McPherson, M.P.P.

Rogers' Promise Causes Talk.

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—Hon. Robert Rogers' assurance to the electors of Macdonald Monday night that freight rates will be reduced is causing considerable comment here among the railway men gathered here for the inquiry by the Railway Commission into the question of western freight charges. There is a tendency to scoff at Hon. Mr. Rogers' promise of redress to shippers, coming as it does at a time when the question is before the board. The proceedings have not yet reached a stage where a prediction of the outcome can be ventured, as there is a mass of evidence to be gone into, to be followed by further sessions in the east and west. Moreover, unless the hints of F. H. Chrsyler, counsel for the C.P.R., have created a false impression, the companies, in the event of an adverse finding, will fight the case right through to the Privy Council.

SIR JAMES IS AROUSED

Rebellious School Boards are Defying the Law

Toronto, Oct. 9.—"I am surprised at the inaccurate statements now being made concerning the new regulations affecting English and French schools," said Sir James Whitney yesterday. "These statements are unfounded. They are intended to excite the French-speaking people of Ontario against the law. In some cases school boards appear to have believed this false information and to have passed resolutions setting the laws of the province at defiance.

"To all resolutions based upon an entire misunderstanding of the new regulations I wish to make an emphatic and categorial denial that there is anything unjust in the regulations or that they are devised by enemies of the French-speaking and Roman Catholic people."

"By the law each teacher is subject to the Minister of Education, and neither school boards nor any other authority can interfere between Minister and teacher. If any teacher refuses to obey the regulations, the Minister must suspende or cancel the certificate of such teacher. The law also provides that any school board which employs unqualified teachers and does not comply with the instructions and regulations of the Department, forfeits the legislative grant and cannot lawfully pay as salaries to such teachers any part of the taxes levied for the support of the public and separate schools under its charge.

"I also notice with regret that pupils are being advised to leave school if an English-speaking inspector enters, although this, too, is a defiance of the law and is quite contrary to that courteous and kindly civility for which the French are famous. Under the law the inspector, during his visit, has full authority over the school, and no one, either school board or teacher, can interfere with the pupils without incurring penalties."

BATEMAN TRIAL TO-DAY

Whitby, Oct. 9.—The grand jury of the autumn assizes, Justice Latchford presiding, yesterday morning returned a true bill against John Bateman of Oshawa, for the murder of his wife on Sept. 4 last. The trial will begin to-day.

An informal conference last evening of those having to do with the matter, indicated that the motion for delay in order to secure needed funds for the defence from Bateman's daughter in South Africa, would, if made to-day, be denied by the court. Bateman is developing the same nervousness that characterized Archie McLaughlin after his confinement in jail here, and preceding his trial for wife murder.

To Rescue Burning Vessel.

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 9.—At 9 o'clock last evening Lighthouse Keeper Gilkie at Sambro sent a wireless message to the agent of the Marine Department at Halifax that a large vessel was on fire off Prospect, west of Sambro. An hour later he sent a second message that the vessel had sunk. No other particulars are available.

The marine agent at once ordered out the Government steamer Aberdeen to effect any rescue that might be possible and she sailed at midnight. The wind is northwest and the ship drifted during the hour the fire was visible.

It is believed that the crew of the burning ship would be rescued by some of the numerous motor propelled fishing craft on the coast, or it would not be a difficult matter for the crew to reach the shore in their own boats.

TURKEY FACES FUTURE WITH PERFECT CONFIDENCE

Special To The Review.

Constantinople, Oct. 9—In an interview to-day Nordundghian Effendi, the Ottoman foreign minister declared Turkey faced the future with perfect confidence. He pointed out that the declaration of war by Montenegro was made contrary to the practice adopted by civilized states. No attempt was made to seek the good offices of a third party and the declaration set forth no tangible cause for war. Hostilities were opened before the declaration was presented to Porte. He said the Turks would hold Greek vessels found most useful for transports and release the others.

OYSTER INDUSTRY

Under Jurisdiction of Provincia Department in British Columbia

Special To The Review.

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 9.—Hereafter the oyster industry of the province will be carried on under the direction of a provincial department of fisheries. The transfer of authority is made by an agreement executed yesterday and based on an order-in-Council of the Federal Government.

OBJECTS TO FLAG SALUTING

London, Oct. 9.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The practice of school children saluting the flag is criticized by a York alderman the children of which city have received a flag from York, Western Australia.

The objecting alderman says that many children go to school compulsorily and therefore ought not to be compelled to salute the flag except with the unanimous consent of their parents.

The lord mayor of York said the flag had been sent him as chief magistrate and that he should send it to each school for salutation.

HORSE DEALER IS DROWNED

Fell Into the Bay.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—A mistake in direction caused Alex. D. McWilliam, a horse dealer of Dutton, his life in the bay at 10.30 last night. McWilliam was in Toronto disposing of a shipment of horses at Burns and Sheppard's exchange. James Dickie, also from Dutton, was here assisting him.

To Preserve Game Birds.

St. Catharines, Oct. 9.—The shooting of pheasants and Hungarian partridges in the Counties of Lincoln and Welland will be prohibited during 1912 and 1913, according to the notice of an order-in-council just signed, which arrived in the city yesterday.

A massacre of Turks has occurred at Turtakai, in Bulgaria, near the Rumanian frontier. It is alleged that armed Bulgarians attacked the Turkish quarter of the town at dead of night and spared nobody.

It is announced that Arthur A. Mahaffy of Bracebridge, M.P.P. for Muskoka, has been appointed to the county judgeship. A. McGillivray of Whitby has also been appointed judge for the County of Ontario.

A report from a source generally reliable, is to the effect that the Ontario Government has appointed a commission to investigate charges against several provincial officials in St. Catharines and the County of Welland.

Andrew Johnson, aged 50, was fatally injured by a train at Sarnia.

PROVINCIAL LIBERALS HAVE MANY RECIPES FOR VICTORY

Opinion is Divided—Mr. F. D. Kerr Appointed to Executive.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—The General Reform Association of Ontario met for the eighth time yesterday. Organization was the chief topic discussed and varied were the opinions offered. Some were of the opinion that stirring speeches on the eve of election would swing a party into power. Some wanted better organization, others thought that patronage was the real road to office, because a delegate hailing from Cobourg advocated the necessity of carrying party politics into the civic affairs.

A resolution was put to the meeting, to the effect that "a committee of ten men should be appointed by the president; said committee to be living in or near Toronto, for the purpose of meeting and discussing the feasibility of appointing subdivision polling committees, which will be responsible for the enlargement of the aggregate Liberal vote in its constituency," as it is declared that laxity on the part of Liberal voters lost many seats at the last election.

"Liberalism has revived" was the keynote of Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King's message to the 150 stalwarts who attended the session, when he delivered his annual address. The president then introduced Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Discussing Dominion affairs, Sir Wilfrid said: "I do not think that I am exaggerating when I say that the present coalition ruling at Ottawa has gone into office by accident on a wave of prejudice, passion, ignorance and self-interest. This cannot last forever. But the present Government has duties to perform which it will find very difficult.

"They condemned our trade policy, which would have given a market to the western provinces. Now they must face the conditions in the west and deal with them. The people of the west are clamoring for an outlet for their products, and I am rather glad that I have not to face the responsibility of meeting that demand. But," added Sir Wilfrid with determined emphasis, "I am going to see that Mr. Borden is kept right up to his task, and we will see that he is forced to do his duty. (Loud cheers.)

"On the naval question, as on all other questions," concluded Sir Wilfrid, "the Liberal party has stood firm in defence of its ideals, and as long as I am at its head I will maintain it along those lines. I am very much in the fight, and I believe that the time to commence the fight is the day after defeat. It is what we have done, and we shall carry on the fight in this way until we win out. In those meetings which I have been attending through Ontario, I have throughout used a phrase which gave me more pleasure, and which I have even more pleasure in repeating to you to-day—I have an abiding desire to have another tussle with the Tories, and we shall beat them again."

Many congratulatory resolutions were passed and the executive for the ensuing year was appointed and is as follows: President, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Ottawa; vice-presidents, F. F. Pardee, M.P. (Sarnia), O. M. Bowman, M.P.P. (Southampton), A. J. Young (North Bay), Edmond Proulx, M.P. (L'Orignal); treasurer, A. E. Dyment, Toronto; general secretary, F. G. Inwood, Toronto; auditor, J. F. MacKay, Toronto.

Executive committee, Hon. Geo. P. Graham, Brockville; Lt.-Col. A. T. Thompson, Ottawa; Hugh Guthrie, M.P., Guelph; J. A. McMillan, M.P., Alexandria; H. M. Mowat, K.C., Toronto; W. O. Sealey, Hamilton; F. D. Kerr, Peterboro; J. W. Curry, K.C., Toronto

The officers (excepting the auditor), B. G. Connolly, Renfrew; C. A. Foster, Haileybury; John Lennox, Hamilton; J. E. Atkinson, Toronto; J. L. Regan, Blind River.

Two Break Jail.

St. Catharines, Oct. 9.—John McDonald, remanded for house breaking, and James Morris, awaiting a thirty days' term in Welland jail for disorderly conduct, escaped from the Thorold lock-up at noon yesterday and are still at large.

McDonald and another man, Jerry Shea, were brought from Toronto last week to work on the street paving contract for the Westerumite Co.

The authorities suspect that Shea, who is out on suspended sentence, on a charge of having with McDonald obtained money under false pretences, had a hand in the delivery.

FUNERAL OF WM. JOHNSTON AT BELLEVILLE

Belleville, Oct. 9.—One of the largest funerals which have taken place in this city for years, occurred yesterday afternoon, when the remains of the late Wm. Johnston, inspector of weights and measures, were interred. Citizens of all classes gathered to pay their respects. Many prominent Orangemen attended. An impressive service was held in Bridge Street Methodist Church. He was a brother of J. W. Johnston, M.P.P., for West Hastings.

NEW RADIAL LINE TO GALT

Galt, Oct. 9.—According to plans submitted to the Town Council by the solicitor and chief engineer of the Lake Erie Northern Railway, the new electric road from Port Dover to Galt, the route will be on the east side of the Grand River from Brantford Crossing on level G.T.R., a little south of the depot, following State street to Main street, and terminal constructed with C.P.R., whose new freight sheds are to be built close by.

The company will buy all its right of way.

Workingmen's Houses at Kingston.

Kingston, Oct. 9.—Jago and Harris, Toronto, were awarded the contract for the erection of thirty working men's houses for the Kingston Realties Co. They are at present erecting a foundry for the Canadian Locomotive Works.

REAL DYNAMITERS HAVE ALL CONFESSED, HE SAYS

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 9.—What the defence will be in the trial of the 45 men accused by the Government of complicity in the "dynamite conspiracy," was outlined before the jury yesterday by William N. Harding, attorney for the defendants.

Mr. Harding said at the outset it would be shown that the executive board of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers never appropriated a dollar to be used for dynamiting. He asked the jury to suspend judgment until after the witnesses had testified. If anyone connected with the union diverted the funds for any illegal purpose, the guilty persons, he said it would be shown, were not among the present defendants.

"[illegible] testimony," said Mr. Harding, "we think you will have concluded that about three men were engaged in the nefarious work of dynamiting, and that those three men already have pleaded guilty."

Referring to letters written by Frank M. Ryan, president of the Ironworkers' Union, to various business agents, which the Government used in showing that "jobs" was the term used to designate explosions against employers of non-union labor, Mr. Harding said it would be shown that "jobs" meant only new work which offered opportunity for union men to get employment. He added it would be upon the very letters which the Government quoted in the indictments that the defence expected to rest its case.

Once Mr. Harding became so vehement in answering District Attorney Charles W. Miller, that Judge A. B. Anderson interposed. "The court will make allowances for your enthusiasm for the defendants, but it is not necessary for you to split the ears of the jurors in an open statement."

The district attorney had just completed an address to the jury of 23 hours, covering five days.

Opposes Single Tax.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 9.—Before leaving for the east, James Forman, assessment commissioner of Toronto, who has been inquiring into the system of taxation in Canadian cities of the Pacific coast, expressed doubt as to whether the brand of single tax system now in use in Vancouver, would be able to stand the test of any lengthy period of adversity.

As far as its adoption in Toronto was concerned, he thought it was out of the question, and, in fact, said that outside of new communities, he thought that it would be of little use.

Will Cost Canada Money.

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—The declaration of war in the Balkans will interfere with Canada's growing trade in the near east. At present it is largely an import trade, though exports are increasing.

Canada's trade with Turkey last year totaled $5,743,836. Of this amount the Dominion sold to the Turks goods to the value of $17,691; while in return Canada bought from them goods valuel at $556,695. Imports from Turkey consist chiefly of carpets, mats and rugs, coffee, various drugs, fruits, hides and skins. They imported from Canada mostly breadstuffs, fish and various other manufactured articles.

With the other Balkan states, including Montenegro, Bulgaria and Servia, Canadian trade was nothing.

From Greece, Canada imported goods to the value of $453,647, and to Greece $135,347, making a total of $5,888,994.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cured

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor, and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular, and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night, and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system, and set things right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made me young again, and all my color, spirits, vigor, and health of former days have returned to stay."

Every girl and woman should use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They help a woman in many ways. Beware of the dealer who asks you to take an inferior pill on which his profit is larger than on Dr. Hamilton's. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone, Co., Kingston, Ont.

ONTARIO AND RECIPROCITY

That Sir Wilfrid Laurier's tour of Ontario at present is designed to give the leader of the Opposition an opportunity to study the sentiment of Ontario people there has been no doubt. With parliament to open in about another month, the Liberals are rather anxious to know what the chief support of Mr. Borden politically is thinking of the two main questions before the country—reciprocity and the navy. We are not in agreement with those Conservatives who say that the movement for wider markets is dead. The reciprocity pact as it was negotiated is dead for it is quite probable that before there is another general election the instrument that overthrew Laurier and Taft will have passed out of practical consideration. It is still on the statute books of the United States, though not of Canada, but it does not seem to be at all likely that the instigator of the pact and its main champion across the border, President Taft, will survive the fight into which he is now plunged. But Sir Wilfrid Laurier is not asking Ontario what it will have, in place of the pact. He refuses to admit that the necessity of wider markets for Canadian products—in the United States—is dead, or can be killed. It ought to be noted that this attitude betrays a curious circumspection about the reciprocity business that has usually been lacking. If Ontario would not have the pact in the shape it was presented, in what way would it prefer to have reciprocity dished up? What was the sauce that would make the dose more palatable?

Looking at the situation broadly we think that the reason Ontario objected so strenuously to the pact was not because of the proposal to remove duties on a few farm products. This was serious enough but was not sufficient to account for the national upheaval. If there had been a proposition for reciprocity in wheat and oats alone, would there have been a fuss by the workingman? Probably not. The reason Ontario would not have the pact was this: it was a sweeping blow at the Canadian system of moderate protection. It removed all duties on natural products, and left only manufactures as a rampart between complete free trade and commercial union. The pact was framed in such a way that it had to be accepted as a whole or rejected as a whole, and while there were a few isolated provisions in it that would not have been unacceptable, the whole dose was too much. The way was left open for the United States to use the agreement as a club on Canada to force further concessions. The Canadian fiscal system would become inextricably entwined with that of the United States. We would, in effect, become "adjuncts," and Ontario did not want to be an adjunct. Canada does not want complete free trade in natural products. Free trade in wheat alone, for the sake of the west, or in oats or any one or two commodities, is decidedly different from bringing half of the Canadian protective system crashing to the ground. The Ontario farmer to-day would have been a great sufferer from importations of American farm products, if reciprocity had passed, but that was luckily foreseen by a large proportion of Ontario farmers. If Canadians want to be commercially tied to the United States chariot, the very best way to succeed is to negotiate as a starter a reciprocity treaty such as the Laurierites proposed. Sir Wilfrid ought to be assured that Ontario is not likely to abandon this eminently safe and sensible position. Canada is not suffering for lack of the American markets. This country is now being accused by Liberal newspapers in Britain of exceeding the speed limit. Sir Wilfrid would be well advised to come out more explicitly, and tell Ontario whether his program of wider markets means merely another fight for the discarded pact.

ADVERTISING OF AND IN PETERBOROUGH

In another column we present to our readers the first of a series of letters or communications issued by and with the authority of "the Peterborough Ad Club," an organization that is seeking and urging certain objects most right and commendable.

To put it in another way, this is the Ad Club's creed—"First, to foster self improvement and education on matters pertaining to salesmanship, advertising, store management etc., on the part of its individual members; second, to get our merchants to practice as well as religiously preach "home trade" and thirdly, to awaken in the minds of our local citizens generally, a greater pride and loyalty in Peterborough and in Peterborough's institutions. This latter object is sought to be met by means of the series of articles published in the evening papers, setting forth information about our city, our industries and the general advantages of being a citizen of Peterborough."

The letters are, we understand, prepared by the able president of the club Mr. Chas. E. Nixon, who is one of the Farm and Dairy staff. The matter has been written with the right ring and in a hopeful and confident strain in its relation to Peterborough. What is urged has been said times without number by the local papers, in and out of season, but the presentation of facts and assurances in new words and form is always good. It reaches the old reader in a new way and the new reader as he should be reached.

The subsequent articles in the series in question will deal with subjects relating to Peterboro as a centre in which to buy. Peterborough as a social centre; the natural advantages of Peterborough, and probably one or two articles of a more or less personal nature, putting forth in the most readable form possible the reasons why an intelligent citizen prefers to live in Peterboro.

HOME RULE AND ULSTER

The London Daily Telegraph says that the Asquith Government has been negotiating with John Redmond in the hope of finding some way out of the Ulster impasse. It is suggested that perhaps some arrangement can be made whereby Ulster will be exempt from the operation of the Home Rule bill in its most objectionable features. The assurance that Premier Asquith has given, however, that the Government does not intend to yield an inch to the protests of Ulster must be regarded as more or less indicative of the Cabinet's intentions. It is rather too much to expect that at this late day, the Asquith ministry will be frightened by the signs that Ulster is in deadly earnest. The situation is really alarming, if Ulster intends to carry out its threats to fight to the last ditch. Theoretically Home Rule is all right. The British rule is that the majority shall govern, and the minority must bow before the majority. But where religious passions get mixed up in the case, the usual rules and theories do not always work. Ulster contends and believes that Home Rule would be Rome Rule, and who is there to say that Ulster has not a right to respect for her beliefs? Assuredly, domination by the Redmonites at Dublin would not be good for Ulster, though if Ulster could make up its mind to accept the situation, it might be possible to get along as well as Quebec and Ontario used to get along. That was not very well, it must be confessed, nor do Ontario and Quebec hitch well in some things now. The British House of Commons is in session again, and the Government has declared that the third reading of the Home Rule bill must be finished by December 20. Before it can come into effect, probably, there will be a general election in Britain, but the indications are that Home Rule will not figure prominently in the voting on English and Scottish soil. So much discussed has the situation been that the general public has been made weary.

IMPORTANT CHANGE OF TIME GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

ON MONDAY, SEPT 30th, the Winter schedule of trains will take effect. Important changes are as follows:—

The morning train for Lakefield, now leaving at 8.35 a.m. will leave at 7.00 a.m., returning will arrive in Peterboro at 8.15 a.m.

Particular attention is called to the afternoon train for Belleville now leaving at 1.40 p.m., which will be changed to leave Peterboro at 1.30 p.m. This is an important change and should be carefully noted as this train is made up here and always leaves ON TIME. 9d

The crops in Western Canada have been so heavy this year that it has been necessary for the farmers of the West to make another appeal for help. The demand for help is now more urgent than ever, and it will require at least twenty thousand additional men to complete the harvesting.

In order to relieve the situation the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run a Harvesters' Excursion Monday, Oct. 14th. $10.00 to Winnipeg, return fare from Winnipeg $18.00.

Full particulars from any C.P.R. Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, Dis. Passenger Agent, Toronto. 7d

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Declarations of war between Montenegro and Turkey made the wheat market strong today. The close was steady at an advance of 1-8c to 5-8c net. Latest trading left corn 1-2c lower to 1-4c to 3-8c up, oats with a gain of 1-8c to 3-8c, and provisions varying from 2 1-2c decline to a rise of 10c.

The Liverpool market closed today ¾d to ⅞d higher on wheat, and ⅜d to ¾d higher on corn. Berlin wheat closed ⅝c lower.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Oct. 8.—There were orders in the market from foreign buyers for 800,000 to 1,000,000 bushels of wheat, but at the advance in prices in Winnipeg bids at the close were all from one cent to two cents per bushel out of line. There was some business worked over the cable in Manitoba barley at an advance of 3d to 6d per quarter. The local and outside demand for oats continues good, but owing to the limited supplies available business is checked to some extent, and a big premium is being demanded over the October price for cash oats in Winnipeg. Ontario malting barley is in demand, but the offerings of choice grades are small. A good local business continues to be done in flour, but the export demand is very quiet. Millfeed is fairly active and firm. Demand for butter continues good. There was more enquiry for cheese from over the cable, and some sales of finest western were made on the basis of 13⅝c. Eggs active and firm. Provisions steady under a fair demand.

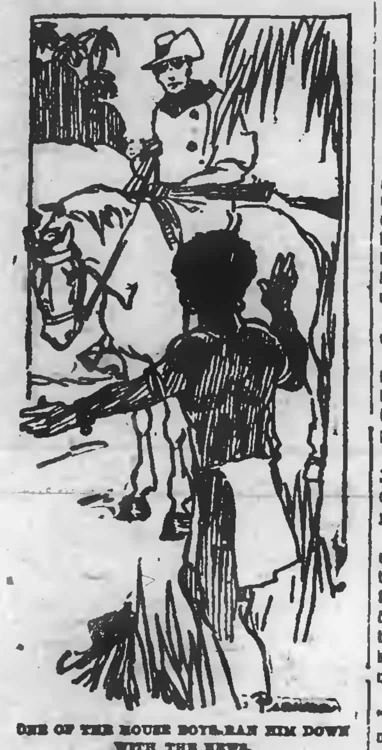
She sat at the head of the steps, behind a table, between Munster and his white mate, the three of them checking long lists, Joan asking the questions and writing the answers in the big, red covered, Berande labor journal.

"What name?" she demanded of the black man on the steps.

"Tagari," came the answer, accompanied by a grin and a rolling of curious eyes; for it was the first white man's house the black had ever seen.



ONE OF THE HOUSE BOYS RAN HIM DOWN WITH THE NEWS.

The black stepped down, and another mounted to take his place. But Tagari just before he reached the bottom step caught sight of Sheldon. It was the first horse the fellow had ever seen, and he let out a frightened screech and dashed madly up the steps. At the same moment the great mass of blacks surged away panic stricken from Sheldon's vicinity. The grinning house boys shouted encouragement and explanation, and the stampede was checked, the new caught head hunters huddling closely together and staring dubiously at the fearful monster.

"Hello!" Joan called out. "What do you mean by frightening all my boys? Come on up."

"What do you think of them?" she asked when they had shaken hands. "And what do you think of her?" with a wave of the hand toward the Martha. "I thought you'd deserted the plantation and that I might as well go ahead and get the men into barracks. Aren't they beauties? Do you see that one with the split nose? He's the only man who doesn't hail from the Poonga-Poonga coast, and they said the Poonga-Poonga natives wouldn't recruit. Just look at them and congratulate me. They're men, every last one of them. I have such a long story I don't know where to begin, and I won't begin anyway till we're through with this and until you have told me that you are not angry with me.

"Ogu, what place belong you?" she went on with her catechism.

But Ogu was a bushman, lacking knowledge of the almost universal beche de mer English, and half a dozen of his fellows wrangled to explain.

"There are only two or three more," Joan said to Sheldon, "and then we're done. But you haven't told me that you are not angry."

Sheldon looked into her clear eyes as she favored him with a direct, untroubled gaze that threatened, he knew from experience, to turn teasingly defiant on an instant's notice. And as he looked at her, it came to him that he had never half anticipated the gladness her return would bring to him.

"I was angry," he said deliberately. "I am still angry, very angry"—he noted the glint of defiance in her eyes and thrilled—"but I forgave, and I now forgive all over again. Though I still insist"—

"That I should have a guardian," she interrupted. "But that day will never come. Thank goodness, I'm of legal age and able to transact business in my own right. And, speaking of business, how do you like my forceful American methods?"

"Mr. Raff, from what I hear, doesn't take kindly to them," he temporized, "and you've certainly set the dry bones rattling for many a day. But what I want to know is, if other American women are as successful in business ventures?"

"Luck, 'most all luck," she disclaimed modestly, though her eyes lighted with sudden pleasure, and he knew her boy's vanity had been touched by his trifle of tempered praise.

"Luck be blowed!" broke out the [illegible] mate, Sparrowhawk, [illegible] shining with admiration. "It was hard work, that's what it was. We earned our pay. She worked us till we dropped, and we were down with fever half the time. So was she, for that [illegible] wouldn't stay down, [illegible] down. My word, she's a slave driver. An' the Lord lumme, the way she made love to old Kina-Kina!"

"He was older than Telepasse and dirtier," she assured Sheldon, "and I am sure much wickeder. Now I must run and wash up. Did the Sydney orders arrive?"

"Yours are in your quarters," Sheldon said. "Hurry, for breakfast is waiting. Let me have your hat and belt. Do, please, allow me. There's only one hook for them, and I know where it is."

She gave him a quick scrutiny that was almost womanlike, then sighed with relief as she unbuckled the heavy belt and passed it to him.

"I doubt if I ever want to see another revolver," she complained. "That one has worn a hole in me, I'm sure. I never dreamed I could get so weary of one."

Sheldon watched her to the foot of the steps, where she turned and called back:

"My, I can't tell you how good it is to be home again!"

"And Burnett said, 'Well, I'll be d—d! I beg your pardon, Miss Lackland, but you have wantonly broken the recruiting laws and you know it,'" Captain Munster narrated as they sat over their whisky, waiting for Joan to come back. "And says she to him, 'Mr. Burnett, can you show me any law against taking the passengers off a vessel that's on a reef?' What could Burnett do? He passed the whole hundred and fifty, though the Emily was only licensed for forty and the Flibberty Gibbet for thirty-five."

"But I don't understand," Sheldon said.

"This is the way she worked it. When the Martha was floated we had to beach her right away at the head of the bay, and whilst repairs were going on, a new rudder being made, sails bent, gear recovered from the niggers, and so forth, Miss Lackland borrows Sparrowhawk to run the Flibberty along with Curtis, lends me Brahms to take Sparrowhawk's place and starts both craft off recruiting. My word, the niggers came easy. It was virgin ground. Since the Scottish Chiefs no recruiter had ever even tried to work the coast. When we filled up we came back to see how the Martha was progressing."

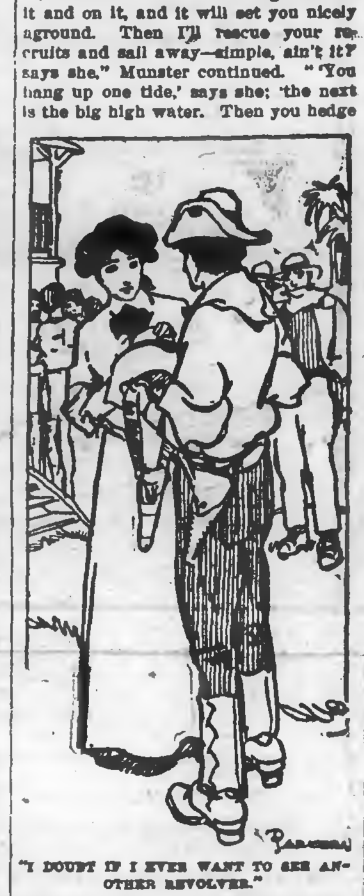
"And thinking we was going home with our recruits," Sparrowhawk slipped in. "Lord lumme, that Miss Lackland ain't never satisfied. 'I'll take 'em on the Martha,' says she, 'and you can go back and fill up again.'"

"But I told her it couldn't be done," Munster went on. "I told her the Martha hadn't a license for recruiting. 'Oh,' she said, 'it can't be done, eh?' and she stood and thought a few minutes."

"And I'd seen her think before," cried Sparrowhawk, "and I knew at wunst that the thing was as good as done."

Munster lighted his cigarette and resumed:

"'You see that spit,' she says to me, 'with the little ripple breaking around it? There's a current sets right across it and on it, and it will set you nicely aground. Then I'll rescue your recruits and sail away—simple, ain't it?' says she," Munster continued. "'You hang up one tide,' says she; 'the next is the big high water. Then you hedge off and go after more recruits. There's no law against recruiting when you're empty.' 'But there is against starving 'em,' I said. 'You know there ain't any kai-kai to speak of aboard of us and there ain't a crumb on the Martha.'



"I DOUBT IF I EVER WANT TO SEE ANOTHER REVOLVER."

THE SLIP ON FROCK.

Nothing More Sensible Ever Devised in Clothes.

OF CREAM CANVAS AND CLUNY LACE.

The "slip on" frock has been the sartorial winner of the season, and nothing in the way of clothes has been devised that has added so much comfort to the feminine wardrobe.

The charming dress pictured is a "slip on" of cream canvas, trimmed with cluny lace mounted over rose satin. Velvet buttons give the Frenchy touch of black.

The Only One.

Mrs. Ellen Spencer Musey, dean of the Washington College of Law, has the distinction of being the only woman law school dean in the world. She further is famous for her knowledge of law and for her work for the uplifting of the conditions of women and children. She framed the Musey act, which in the District of Columbia gives mothers equal rights over minor children with the fathers and gives married women the right to control the money they themselves earn. She is interested in children and is one of the directors of the American Playgrounds association. She belongs to a famous family. Her father was the inventor of the Spencerian system of writing. She traces her ancestors back to the Mayflower on her father's side and on her mother's side is descended from the colonial settlers. She is intensely patriotic, belongs to many societies and is one of the members of the Society of Founders and Patriots, to which only a thousand women are eligible. She was president of the American National Red Cross association and president of the Legion of Loyal Women.

Bridesmaid's Gifts.

It is now quite smart to give a pair of gold or enameled hatpins with intertwined initials of bride and groom and the date of the wedding. Equally appropriate are those set with birthstone of the bride or the different bridesmaids.

Small charms for watch or chatelaine in bridal emblems are pretty. These might be a tiny garter in deep yellow gold, a wedding bell with initials of bride and bridegroom and date engraved on it or an oval locket, plain or jeweled, containing pictures of the bride and bridegroom. On the right side should be a large monogram of the bridesmaid and on the opposite side the intwined initials of the bride and bridegroom, with the wedding date beneath.

Shoe buckles are attractive gifts and particularly acceptable just now. Recently a bride delighted her wedding party by presents of oblong shoe buckles studded with rhinestones.

Gold or silver cardcases are popular gifts at present. The ideal gift is one that can be worn for the wedding ceremony itself.

Reforming the Goat.

Day by day evidence is piling up to prove to him who will but see that in order to reform everything under the sun it is only necessary to give more power to women. Quite the latest thing to be threatened by their elevating influence is the despised goat. An "Irish goat society" has been established by the Countess of Aberdeen, according to a recent English exchange, with the object of improving the physical condition, manners and morals of the 250,000 goats now existing in the Emerald Isle. These animals, her excellency stated at the opening meeting of the society, are for the most part uncared for animals, wandering about roadways and frequently damaging property.

The Game of Letters.

Empty the contents of a box of "anagram letters" on a table so all the letters are in a pile, face downward. The players sit around the table.

The leader begins by turning up one of the letters and saying "Bird." The letter is laid where all can see it, and the first one who responds by giving the name of a bird beginning with that letter is given the letter, and it is then his place to turn up another card and call out "Bird," "Animal," "Fish" or "Famous man," or any other class of objects he wishes.

Suppose the first letter turned was "E," and a player answered it with "Eagle;" the next might be "G," and "Famous man" called. Some one would be sure to say "Grant."

The one who answers the most and has acquired the greatest number of letters is the winner and should receive a prize if it has been decided to give prizes.

BANKING

When you take out a life insurance policy you make the biggest bank deposit you ever made in your life at one time. Did you ever put one thousand—five thousand dollars—through the receiving teller's wicket and say "put that to the credit of my account"? No! Well, the minute you sign the insurance application for this amount and pay the first instalment on your new bank account, you have actually provided that whole sum—ready waiting, for service against one big call that is coming to you sometime—the one on which you will never get any extension of time. That's banking in a new sense and banking with common sense and foresight.

GRAND SUCCESS OF THE BIG BROTHERHOOD RALLY HELD IN KNOX CHURCH

The visit of Toronto's hundred men, the representatives of the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, was a great success in different ways.

One is that new chapters will probably be formed on account of their visit; another is the great brotherhoodly feeling felt by the men of the different churches of Peterborough to each other, in fact the feeling of brotherhood was in the air throughout the whole meeting and banquet.

The party arrived by the 7.57 C. P. R. local from Toronto and were met by the Salvation Army Band. Two C.G.E. cars which were waiting, conveyed the visitors to the Knox Church, the S. A. Band marching there. When in the church, the band played a hymn and an opening prayer was offered.

The people who filled the church then all stood and sung "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus." Chairman R. F. Downey opened the meeting with a few remarks in which he regretted that every man in Peterborough was not present and spoke of the privilege of having the visitors to Peterborough.

Rev. Mr. Keith also made a few remarks.

Rev. J. A. Stewart, president of the Canadian branch of the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, was then introduced and greeted with great applause. Mr. Stewart thanked the people for their cordial welcome and said that he had known of out city and he would like to know every one. He also said it was a pleasant trip the Brotherhood had in coming here. It was pleasing to see the Salvation Army represented, and he referred to the death of their leader, the late General Booth. It was not the first time that he had visited other cities and other churches and had found the Salvation Army almost first in reaching out to all classes of people, the rich and the poor. There were many people who did not know what the Brotherhood was.

BACKWARD IN FIGHT FOR HOLY CROSS

He said that it's one supreme object was to propagate the Gospel of Jesus Christ among men. People of to-day who will fight side by side of the Union Jack, are backward in fighting for the Holy Cross. The question of the night was, man, man enough to forsake all and spread the Gospel. If evil uses such force to drag down evil, surely there was something to elevate and that was what the Brotherhood was.

BROTHERHOOD HYMN

The Brotherhood Hymn, "The Brotherhood Army," was then sung by all, papers with the hymns on having been passed among the audience.

The singing was led by Mr. W. J. C. McCrea, the composer of this hymn and was sung with great heartiness.

Mr. E. A. Breckenridge, who wrote the words of the Brotherhood hymn was introduced. He felt it a great honor to address the large audience, and congratulated the committee who made the preparations for the excellent way they carried out their work. He also said that he was an amateur speaker and did not want to mar a good subject with a poor speech. His speech was, however one of the best that has been heard for some time by a Peterborough audience. One of the most important discoveries, not spoken of so much as the telephone, telegraph or wireless was the spirit of brotherhood among men. We are living in an age when the brotherhood, which at first was slandered, has come to stay, and is founded on a rock. He wished that the Protestant churches were all as one, and that they forget their different names, and as the Brotherhood, act as one. The Brotherhood love was like the love of Jesus Christ when He sacrificed all for us. The possibilities of Brotherhood to come are wonderful. If all men were to rise as one in brotherhood there would be no problems of State, Church and City. All should rally to praise the name of Jesus till the work is done.

Mr. Secord rendered "Jesus, Master, Smile Upon Us," with the audience joining in the chorus.

A LITTLE OF BOTH

The chairman then introduced the Rev. H. A. MacPherson, of Toronto, and wondered if it was a Scotch or an Irish name.

Mr. MacPherson opened his speech by satisfying the chairman's query, that he had the honor to have a Scotch name and an Irish face. This caused great applause. He knew there were good things waiting below, and said that he would not keep people long. The object in coming to this city was to let the churches know the great lesson in store in having the Brotherhood with them. He hoped the day would come when all organizations will be united together in brotherhood. He also hoped to hear reports of an increase of chapters in the city on account of this visit.

Onward, Christian Soldiers was then sung and the benediction pronounced, after which followed the banquet in the Sunday school room in honor of the guests.

The hungry visitors thereupon fell to the flowing board with great eagerness. A number of toasts were given. Everybody stood to a toast to "His Majesty." A toast to "Our Guests" was proposed by Mr. Chisholm and replied to by Mr. Dingwell of Toronto.

Dr. Middleton proposed a toast to "The Brotherhood," which was replied to with enthusiasm by Mr. McCrea, vice-president of the Canadian Council of the Brotherhood.

"The Brotherhood of the Future" was proposed by Dr. Gowan and replied to by the Rev. Mr. Magwood.

A number of speeches on Brotherhood work and its possibilities were made by some of the visitors. About twelve o'clock all stood to sing "God Save the King," and the banquet ended after one of the most pleasant evenings spent in Peterborough for a long time.

The visitors returned to Toronto this morning.

FALLON TO STAND TRIAL

Is Charged With the Theft of a Raincoat

William Fallon came up for trial this morning after a remand, on a charge of stealing a raincoat from the front of the store of Mark Fine 311 George street.

Mr. Fine was the principal witness, stating that he missed the coat from its place in front of his establishment. He saw the coat there at seven o'clock, and it was gone at eight. He valued the garment at $12.

Detective Newhall was notified of the disappearance, and after making inquiries, he arrested prisoner Fallon. The latter said to him when arrested:

"You are in wrong; I never owned a rain coat; I never had one. Although I did sell one a little while ago, which was my own. As soon as I get the money I can get it back."

The coat referred to by Fallon is not the one that disappeared from Mr. Fine's store.

Chief Thompson visited Fallon in his cell after he was first remanded, and after warning him that anything he might say would be used as evidence against him, asked him what he had done with the rain coat he had on Saturday night, Sept 28th. He replied that he had no rain coat on Saturday night, and the only one he had ever owned was one he had brought back from North Bay, which some weeks previously he had sold to Mr. Levasseur.

Carl Condon, another witness, said that on Saturday night, September 28th, he saw Fallon in the New York Chinese restaurant. He had a raincoat with him then, and witness asked him how much he wanted for it. Fallon answered that he would sell it, but he didn't state the price. Witness, or none of his companions purchased the coat. Fallon appeared to have been drinking.

Mr. Arthur Wood, acting for the Crown submitted that there was sufficient evidence to justify prisoner being committed for trial.

Fallon, when first arraigned, intimated a desire to be tried by a jury.

His Worship, however, was not convinced that sufficient evidence had been submitted to warrant committing him for trial.

The Crown, in order to strengthen the evidence, called John Dougherty, another witness. Dougherty saw prisoner on the night in question about eleven o'clock with a raincoat.

Fallon was finally committed for trial.

MAY ROBSON AT THE GRAND

May Robson, one of the most charming actresses of the present day, has developed a type of character new to the stage. The conventional old lady of the farce with traditional mannerisms of her predecessors, is absent from the work of May Robson, since she offers a distinctive type of the good-natured generous woman of to-day. Combining the rare ability to express naturally pathos and humor, and her manner of expression always us to laughter. While there is a wide scope for the introduction of "horse play," it is carefully avoided, and the movement of the action kept well within legitimate bounds. The play is well constructed, and above all, very funny. Miss Robson's characterization of "Granmum" is exceptionally clever, and she had the widest range for emotional work from which she may change to the ludicrous and yet so quietly and thoroughly at her ease that it does not jar, but is convincing to the last degree. There is in the background a certain amount of philosophy, which occasionally glimmers in the lines, particularly the reference to heredity [illegible] a broad minded old lady, generous enough to alter that opinion should she be convinced to the contrary.

The theme of "A Night Out" in brief is based upon the absorbing love of an elderly woman for her grandsons, and the results of their influence over her. She is curious to know what the attraction is in the city that draws the young men from a comfortable home at night to visit the city. This curiosity is not satisfied until after stealing away from the house and visiting a well-known restaurant in New York. Everything is apparently proper until a visit from the police changes her opinion and urges her immediate departure. The arrival home in the usual hours, finding the house fastened—the climbing up the ivy—the crushed and dilapidated appearance of Granmum, all form a most laughable incident, one of the many in this funny play. Miss Robson will present this play at the Grand Opera House, Monday night only, Oct. 14th.

MISSIONARY

Ladies of George Street Church had Rally Day Program

In George street church school room last evening, the Women's Missionary Auxiliary gave a very successful rally day program. About seventy-five were present. A feature of the program was a quartet selection by Misses Penttanu, Merrill, Hinds and Huycke, entitled, "Watchman, What of the Night."

The other number was a solo by Mrs. Wells.

The evening exercises were partly devotional in character, Mrs. (Rev.) Couch leading in prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed and routine business disposed of. Mrs. Armitage and Mrs. Couch spoke on China's New Day, after which a social hour was passed before the gathering dispersed.

RECEPTION AT CHARLOTTE STREET

A reception, very successful was held in the Charlotte street lecture hall last evening for the purpose of welcoming strangers to the church and getting them better acquainted. The evening was purely social and everyone present enjoyed it. The attendance was gratifyingly large the major portion of the members being present.

A program of solos and instrumental music supplied by Miss Clarry, Miss Pearl Brock, Mr. R. F. Downey, and the Misses Wright and Hassard was followed by delightful refreshments.

The evening came to a conclusion about ten-thirty.

Assault Case Follows Disturbance on Hunter Street Near Midnight Hour.

A bold case of assault occurred last night shortly after eleven o'clock, on Hunter street near the Monumental Works. It appears that Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ryder were proceeding to their home when they saw three fellows holding on the ground a man named Daniel Adams, apparently going through the prostrate man's pockets. When Ryder came along, one of the trio seized him and tore his clothes badly, threw him down and while he was on his back kicked him about the body. Another one of the assailants attempted to strike Mrs. Ryder.

POLICE FRIGHTENED THEM.

The police were notified and as they hove in view the trio hurriedly left. P. C. Sills and Reid caught up to them after a chase, and arrested three young fellows who appeared in police court this morning. They were Ross McCall, John Dougherty and Levergne Killingbeck.

Arraigned this morning on a charge of assault they all entered a plea of "not guilty."

Killingbeck proved to the satisfaction of the court that he had not been one of the party who was in the assault and his name was stricken out of the information.

MRS. RYDER'S STORY.

Mrs. Ryder in telling her story of the affair, said that Dougherty was struggling with her husband and McCall was interfering. She narrowly escaped being hit by the latter.

Without any warning she said they all ran off. The only ones she recognized were Dougherty and McCall.

Constable Reid's story of the fracas was clear and explicit. He received a message from the Bell Telephone office about the mix-up on Hunter St. and accompanied by P. C. Sills, visited the spot. He recognized the three who started to run off when they appeared. Some one yelled "here comes a cop." Two of the trio ran down Aylmer street and after chasing them he arrested Killingbeck, and P. C. Sills arrested McCall, and shortly after Dougherty was gathered in.

After it was over, and the three had been lodged in the police station Mr. and Mrs. Ryder came to the station and complained of being assaulted.

FINED TEN DOLLARS.

McCall and Dougherty were found guilty and each fined $10, the same to be paid forthwith. The alternative is 20 days in jail. The money was not paid in court.

Killingbeck was discharged.

SIX DOCTORS AT POST MORTEM EXAMINATION

Ordered by Jury, Empanelled to Investigate Death of Mrs. Herron.

The jury empanelled by Coroner Dr. Greer, yesterday afternoon, ordered that a post-mortem examination of the remains of the late Mrs. Herron, be made.

An inquest was opened yesterday afternoon at four o'clock in Comstock's undertaking rooms, where the coroner's jury, after viewing the body, adjourned until the evening of October 15th, when they will meet in the City Council Chamber.

The circumstances surrounding the death were deemed sufficient to justify Cown Attorney Wood, ordering an investigation.

Mrs. Herron had been a patient in Nicholls Hospital for some time and it is reported that through a possible error upon the part of a nurse who was attending her, the patient suffered painful burns that may have been partly instrumental in inducing death. This it is said, was during an injection of hot water.

The jurymen are W. A. Howard, foreman, George Elliott, Jos. Batten, George Cochrane, Porter S. White, Geo. Stenson, Ed. Conroy, James Flynn, Chris. Barnard, F. W. Miller and R. Denne.

The examination was made last night, when Drs. Halliday, Eastwood McPherson and Frederick, of this city; Dr. Johnston of Fenelon Falls and Dr. Connel of Kingston were present.

THE LATE PETER ARNOT WAS NATIVE OF PETERBORO

The Toronto papers announce the death of Mr. Peter Arnot, an old resident and native of Peterborough. He was one of a family of Arnots, son of William Arnot, who carried on a baking business and was afterwards Chief Constable of the town. The Mail and Empire says:—

By the death of Mr. Peter Arnot, the well known marine contractor and shipbuilder, which occurred at his residence, 94 Huntley St., yesterday, Toronto loses another highly esteemed pioneer citizen, who was associated with the commercial life of the city for over half a century.

Mr. Arnot, who had been ill since February last, when he underwent an operation for an internal trouble, was born at Ashburnham, near Peterborough, Ont., in 1849. He came to Toronto at the age of 12 years to take a position under his uncle, Mr. Emerson Coatsworth, late Civic Property Commissioner. Later he became connected with the contracting and shipbuilding trade. In 1875 he became a partner of the firm of Charles Robertson and Co., which partnership was subsequently dissolved. In 1885 he went into partnership with Mr. John P. Medler and the firm carried out many big contracts. Mr. Medler retired in 1905, since when the deceased was sole proprietor of the firm. For many years deceased lived with his family on Duke street, but removed to Huntley street about two years ago. He was a member of the Board of Trade, of St. Andrew's Lodge, A. F. and A. M., the Knights Templar, and Orange Order. In religion, a Presbyterian, he was at one time an elder and active worker of old St. Andrew's Church.

He is survived by a widow, six sons, William Peter, John Taylor, David, Norman, Charles Murray, and Byron; three daughters, Mrs. Herbert Smith, Calgary; Mrs. Percy Newman, Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Miss Helen Mildred.

Some of the chief contracts carried out by the deceased for the city were the construction of the sea wall in front of the Exhibition Grounds and at Sunnyside, the building up of the lake front Hanlan's Point and the piers of the old Queen's Wharf.

WITH THE 57th REGIMENT

The last weekly drill of the 57th Regiment was held last night. The regiment assembled at 8 o'clock in the armories and the following orders were read:

Headquarters,
Peterborough,
Oct. 8, 1912.

Orders issued by the Officer Commanding 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.

1.—Until further notice the regimental parades, with the exception of the rifle practices, will discontinue from this date.

2.—The first meeting of the Class of instruction, referred to in Regimental Order No. 2. date September 24th, 1912, will be held in the armories at 8 p.m. on Thursday, October 10th, 1912.

3.—The following are taken on the strength of the regiment:

A. Company—Ptes. G. James, T. Perrington, J. Rullied, June 18, 1912.

B. Company—Pte. W. H. Moore, July 23, 1912; Pte. T. Rose, Sept. 30, 1912.

C. Company—Ptes. J. Wilson, S. Curtis, J. K. Robinson, W. B. Costello, J. T. Knowles, W. Inch, W. Hall, Sept. 30, 1912.

F. Company.—Ptes. S. A. Lowes, O. E. Giles, Sept. 30, 1912. W. Hall, G. Thirnbeck, June 18, 1912.

4. Lieutenant G. W. Hall is hereby transferred from G. Company to C. Company.

W. H. CLUXTON, Capt.
Acting Adj.

The regiment then marched out to the Monaghan Road, the band playing as far as Park street, and a two hours' outpost duty was executed by the whole regiment. Major G. V. Hordern of the 3rd Division, G. S.O. inspected the ... wood avenue on the Monaghan Road. At 10 o'clock the regiment marched back to the armories and was dismissed.

This morning Col. Clegg, Major Hordern and two officers, motored out to Chemong in order to get a military view of the surrounding country. All the officers in the regiment including Major Hordern were to go in automobiles to Warsaw this afternoon for a similar purpose but on account of the rain the trip was postponed till to-morrow afternoon.

WHY THE RACES WERE CALLED OFF

A Statement by Officials of the Millbrook Fair

The directors of the Millbrook Agricultural Society wish to explain to the public why the "Speeding in the Ring" contests were not carried out, as advertised on Fair Day. A Free-for-All, purse $125 and a 2.40 class, purse $50 were advertised. A number of horses were here but the owners declined to enter the free-for-all unless the 2.40 class was changed to a named race. This change the Committee refused to make because there would not be sufficient entries to fill both races. There were enough horses to fill the free-for-all but not enough to fill the 2.40 class. The Committee proposed to pay the expenses of the one horse here for the 2.40 class, providing the free-for-all horses went out and raced. This they refused to do and as a result the races were called off.

WATER SHOULD STILL BE BOILED

So Read Report of M.H.O. on the City Water

President McDougal of the McDougal Company, Montreal will be in the city on Thursday morning with Mr. Kennedy their engineer, and accompanied by the Water Commissioners, will inspect the pumping apparatus at the water works station.

The Commissioners decided yesterday to notify Mr. James Kendry of the Auburn Woollen Company, that the rate for the hydrant at the mill will be $27.50 and five cents for the sprinklers, which is the same price charged other companies.

The application of Mr. Smith who is in charge of the De Laval Dairy Supply Company construction work, for water service, was granted. The Commissioners will give the Company an 8" main down Park street and run an 8" service up to their grounds.

M. H. O. McPherson reported that the drinking water should still be boiled as there is yet slight traces of infection.

Nature's Monument to Washington.

Among the many monuments to Washington is the one which every visitor to the Cape Verde islands will remember as one of the most colossal and marvelous freaks of natural sculpture in existence. Along the farther side of the harbor of San Vicente, the principal town, rises a bold ridge of dark gray volcanic rocks, the crest of which forms an exact likeness of our immortal George, seemingly lying face upward, as if in a peaceful sleep. The hero's large, bold features, the backward wave of the hair, his massive shoulders and even the frill of the shirt front are all reproduced on a gigantic scale with wonderful exactness. The strange monument, sharply outlined against the deep blue of the tropical sky, is one of the first objects that meet one's eye in approaching the island. Its gigantic proportions, with the boundless ocean for a background, form a portrait wonderfully true to nature and overpowering in its magnificence.

Wealth Underground.

Captain Janes, of the Canadian exploration party aboard Captain Bernier's "Arctic," tells of virgin forests beneath ground in Baffin's Land—the richest coal areas in the world, and fuel can be dug up with a shovel.

Captain Janes is of the belief that the two largest coal fields in the world have been discovered on Canadian soil, located in Baffin's Land. The two are about one hundred miles apart. In spite of their high altitude, he says that they will be workable all the year round. The coal is so easily secured that it can be dug from the surface with the shovel.

"This northern part of Canada will be the greatest country in the world," says Captain Janes. "I believe that the report of the Arctic's last voyage, when it is made public, will be of great value."

Special to the Review.

Fenway Park, Boston, Oct. 9. — Boston is baseball mad to-day, as a result of the win of the Red Sox, in the first game, and also to the fact of the Giants being the visitors to-day.

Matthewson will pitch for New York and Ray Collins for the Sox, with Chief Meyers and Bill Carrigan doing the backstop work.

Score by innings:—

New York ... ...0101000301—6
Boston ... ...3000100101—6

Game called at tenth.

DICKY RUDOLPH WAS MARRIED

His Bride is Miss Alice Craig, a Toronto Young Lady

Toronto, Oct. 9.—A pretty little baseball romance reached a happy conclusion yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Richard Rudolph, the clever pitcher of the Toronto baseball club, was married quietly in St. James' Cathedral, by Rev. A. A. Bryant, to Miss Alice Craig, of 641 Broadview avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph left after the service for New York, where they will reside until the opening of the next baseball season, when they will take up their home in Toronto temporarily at least.

CANADA AND DR. BARNARDO

An Interesting Deputation

What Dr. Barnardo has done for the Old Country and for Canada cannot be too well and widely known, and the Rev. W. J. Mayers has recently arrived from London on purpose to tell that interesting and remarkable story throughout the Dominion.

Mr. Mayers is the Senior Deputation Secretary of the Institution and one of Dr. Barnardo's oldest friends. He has brought with him ten specially trained boys from one of the London Homes, who, by their rendering of a very fine and varied program of music, will evidence the care that has been bestowed upon them. They are accompanied by their musical instructor, Mr. H. Aaron.

In England and in Australasia these musical meetings have been attended by thousands of people, and never fail to deepen the interest in the work. The presence in the Dominion of over 20,000 young people who have been placed out by this great philanthropic and inter-denominational Institution is at once a tribute to the greatness of Christian charity and to the advantages offered by this new country. A splendid record has resulted from Dr. Barnardo's emigration work for the last thirty years. It is hoped that wherever Mr. Mayers and his musical boys go they will be welcomed by all interested in the uplift of child life. It is certain that a most enjoyable musical evening may be spent in their company and the opportunity of helping a great Institution is one that Canadians will not willingly miss.

We would call special attention to the announcement of the visit of the Dr. Barnardo Deputation to this town, which appears in our advertisement columns, and which takes place in the Opera House, Oct. 15th, at 8 o'clock p.m.

Loan Shark Fined.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Oct. 9.—When the cases of Gustave A. Young and G. S. Smith, both of Buffalo, who are alleged to have operated as loan sharks at Fort Erie, came up before Magistrate Frazer yesterday. Young was convicted and fined $10 and costs, while Smith's case was held over for one week.

Overlooked Items.

Columbus had a dog named Jake that followed him everywhere it was allowed to go.

George Washington had a neighbor named Smith.

[illegible] food at his breakfast.

The second Punic war was pulled off without the moving picture man.

One of the privates in the Revolutionary war was named Johnson.

"He isn't. He's at the beach."

Dry Farming Congress.

Announcement has lately been made of the seventh international dry farming congress, which is to be held at Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada, Oct. 21-26 next. This movement had a small beginning several years ago. In the coming congress representatives are expected from every nation in which dry farming is practiced, and this refers particularly to western Canada and the dozen or more western states in which the production of cereals has been greatly increased through the adoption of dry farming methods. In the several days given to the convention there will be conferences on soils, tillage methods and machinery, crops and crop breedings, agricultural education, farm management, scientific research, agricultural colleges and experiment stations, while one of the most interesting features of the congress will be a special section whose discussions will be devoted to the interests and problems of farm women. Interest in the congress is being increased through the offering of substantial prizes for best exhibits of farm products and for the best articles treating of various phases of farm problems.

ANY WOMAN CAN HAVE BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Dandruff Disappears, Falling Hair Ceases, When You Use Parisian Sage.

No preparation has done so much to stop falling hair: eradicate dandruff and make women's hair beautiful as PARISIAN Sage.

It is the only certain destroyer of the dandruff microbe, the cause of most hair troubles.

PARISIAN Sage is most daintily perfumed. It is an ideal preparation not sticky or greasy. It does not contain poisonous sugar of lead or sulphur or any dye.

It is a magnificent dressing for women who desire luxuriant lustrous hair that compels admiration and for men and children nothing can compare with it.

It does away with terrible scalp itch over night and causes the hair to grow in abundance.

And a large bottle of PARISIAN Sage costs only 50 cents at all drug and toilet goods counters.

Wm Madill guarantees it.

HYLAND—WATSON

A very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday, September 24th, when Clara Marguerite the eldest daughter of Mr. James Watson, was married to Mr Murton Hyland of Campbellford, the ceremony being performed by J. R. Real. The bride was dressed in a white embroidered chiffon dress with customary bridal veil, and a wreath of white carnations on her head. The bridesmaid was Miss Elsie M. Hyland of Kingston. She wore a cream embroidered organdie with white sash. The flower girl was Miss Nellie Watson and the groomsman, Mr. John Watson of the C. P. R. The groom's present to the bride was a sunburst of pearls, to the bridesmaid, a very attractive and costly back comb, and to the groomsman a tie pin set with pearls. After the ceremony a beautiful dinner was served, at which a large number of the friends of the couple partook of the good things offered. Mr. and Mrs. Hyland will reside in Campbellford.

NEWS FROM OMEMEE

Special Correspondence.

Omemee, Oct. 8.—Governor Balfour, of Lindsay, Dr. an dMrs. Rogers of Peterborough, were in town on Tuesday.

Mrs. H. J. McLean and Miss Kate Harrison of Mount Pleasant, were the guests of friends in Omemee on Tuesday.

Reeve Mulligan was a visitor to Peterborough on Tuesday.

Miss Davidson returned on Saturday evening from a visit to her home in Toronto.

Mr. H. Fee, of Lindsay, spent the week end at his home here.

After a lengthy visit with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Henry Laidley, of Sturgeon St., Mr. F. N. Laidley has returned to his business interests at Swift Current, Sask.

A number of our citizens went down to Millbrook Fair on Friday. They were highly pleased with the show and delighted with the congenial brand of weather.

On Saturday Mrs. (Rev.) J. H. Messmore, of Pauri, India, who has spent the summer with her daughter, Mrs. T. W. McLean, of Sturgeon St., left on Saturday to visit her son, Mr. J. F. Messmore, of Simcoe.

Owing to the extreme moistness of the ground, some farmers have been cutting their grain with scythes.

Mr. Albert Yelland has returned home from a trip to western Canada.

The birth of a daughter to Dr. and Mrs. N. H. Sutton of Peterborough, is announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris, of Bowmanville are guests at the parsonage, of their daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) Chapman.

All the ladies of Omemee are cordially invited to a Thankoffering meeting under the auspices of the W. F. M. S., to be held next Friday afternoon at 8 o'clock in the Presbyterian church. In connection with an interesting program, Mrs. (Rev.) James Rollins, of Peterborough, will deliver an address.

The site for the new armory is ready for the foundation.

The Grand Trunk has installed one of its line 'phones in the Sturgeon street station. This will be a great convenience for the travelling public.

Mr J. F. Adams, of Lindsay, was in town last week.

The convention of the Victoria Teachers will be held on Thursday and Friday of this week.

Mr. R. A. Barron left for Bracebridge last week.

On Sunday, 27th inst., the Presbyterians will hold their anniversary services and on the Monday following Thanksgiving Day, a fowl supper will be served, and a lecture delivered by Rev. Dr. W. Nugent, of Newburyport, N.Y. As Dr. Nugent is an old Omemee boy, who has made his mark in ecclesiastical work we bespeak for him a large audience.

A congregational social was held in the basement of the Presbyterian church on Friday evening and a pleasant time was spent.

The anniversary services of Lebanon Methodist church drew a good attendance from our town, as did the tea and entertainment on Monday evening. Some of our talented performers contributed to the program.

The funeral of the late Mrs Robt. McQuade took place on Saturday to the Emily necropolis. A large concourse of friends and relatives attended the sad and solemn obsequies. The deceased lady was held in high esteem by all who were privileged to have known her, and had attained to the great age of 76 years. Warmest condolences are extended to her sorrowing husband and to the other bereaved ones.

Mr W. Smythe is the guest of friends in Omemee.

On Sunday the Presbyterian pulpit was occupied by a student, who took for his text, Phil. 4. 4. His discourse was beautifully, lucidly and practically delivered, expounded and applied to the present necessities of humanity, with an optimism that was certainly uplifting. During the taking of the offertory Miss Perkins rendered a vocal solo in splendid voice.

Mr T. W. McLean was a visitor to Toronto on Saturday.

Mrs A. C. Hodgetts and Master Freddie have returned home from an extended holiday with her people at Collingwood. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Birnie.

The Hydro-Electric demonstration outfit was exhibited on the farm of Warden Anderson, just outside St. Thomas.

The City Camp Hotel at McAdam, N.B., was burned, the occupants narrowly escaping death.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost is the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are thin and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It was done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes on receipt of price, fifty cents B. V. Marion, sole distributer. Play Clothes For Children.

Dutch play clothes are the privilege of smart children, but the pretty garments which are shown in a number of big shops can be reproduced at home for half of the store cost—that is, as far as the imported article is concerned, for there are some domestic imitations which are quite cheap. The novelties include frocks, aprons, bonnets and coarse stockings, with which are worn the usual leather sandals. Everything is Dutch in effect, substantial and amusing, and the sizes of the various articles are two to six years of age, says Mary Dean.

Little frocks of striped drill, tan linen or white drill trimmed with a border showing designs of Dutch children can be had as low as 65 cents. If the dress is banded with embroidery it will cost from $1.25 to $1.95. In style the frocks are much like the square necked aprons, or else they are in the form of high, long sleeved smocks, with front pockets made of trimming. The aprons are square or round necked, with the armhole cut deep and the gay bordering used only about the neck, armholes and pockets or else all around. The same drills, linens and crashes are used for them as for the frocks, but of course they are only used to protect the usual nice little gown, as over a Dutch dress they would be superfluous. A number of the bonnets, which are short at the back and show turnback front flaps, are of the same texture as the frocks and aprons. Others are of coarse white linen. The headgear naturally is only used outdoors, and it is more suitable for very small children than for older ones.

PETERBORO AS CITY TO ATTRACT INDUSTRIES

Do Citizens Appreciate Their Advantage to the Full?

(This article has been prepared and its publication authorized by the Peterborough Ad. Club.)

Some little stir has been occasioned in Peterborough over a new industry which is coming to our city. The industry in question is the De Laval Dairy Supply Co., Limited.

Peterborough has been pitted against strong competition to secure the DeLaval Company. The General Manager, Mr. W. B. Breyfogle, in seeking a new site travelled around on a trip of inspection to leading cities and towns. Welland was probably our strongest competitor; several lake-shore towns also were closely considered.

On deciding that Peterborough is the one place for his company to locate, Mr. Breyfogle had his Directors accompany him over the ground, inspecting all of the prospective places. They confirmed their General Manager's decision. They stood unitedly for Peterborough.

• • • •

Great importance attaches to this decision. It demonstrates what some of us have long known. It proves the great advantages Peterborough possesses as a manufacturing centre.

The question arises, do we citizens of Peterborough appreciate these advantages to the full? Are we as enthusiastic over them as these coolheaded successful business men and strangers who have come to us and selected Peterborough as the best site for their great industry?

If we have a full appreciation of the advantages of our city why are we not trying and doing more to get other industries to locate here?

• • • •

The value of industries to a city is well reflected in the tidy little boom that has already struck Peterborough following on the news getting out about the De Laval Company. Already there has been an appreciable rise in real estate values. Several parcels of real estate have changed hands influenced by the prospects ahead due to the coming of the new industry. Wise ones have been looking around and getting hold of vacant lots that can be built on or be held for the inevitable rise in land values.

The building trades feel the effect, and our merchants and all who do business in our city look forward to the greater business they will be enabled to do when the industry gets fairly started and its trades people, its workmen, and its executives are living in Peterborough. Our churches, fraternal organizations, clubs and our entire social fabric will receive new impetus and new life by virtue of the coming of these people.

Hence we see that every citizen in Peterborough has an interest in seeking new industries for Peterborough.

• • • •

The De Laval Dairy Supply Co., has been located in Montreal. They have a splendid business. Their head office is in the United States. They manufacture the world-famous De Laval Cream Separators, as well as all manner and kinds of dairy supplies; manufactured wooded "Ideal Green Feed" silos, etc., etc. Their's is a great World industry.

The Peterborough location selected is in the vicinity of the Exhibition Grounds at the foot of Park street. Work has already commenced. The plans are to rush the buildings to completion. The industry is to be in operation early in January. It is said that about 80 hands will be employed at the outset, this increasing to 150 or more inside of a year.

Some idea of the extent of this great De Laval business may be gained from the fact that annually their appropriation for advertising amounts to upwards of $250,000 a year. The DeLaval Company advertise to the farmers all over North America and in other countries. The Farm and Dairy weekly paper, published in Peterborough, numbers the De Laval Company as one amongst three or four of its largest advertisers.

The entire Canadian business of the De Laval Dairy Supply Co. (which has until now been carried on at Montreal) is to be brought part and parcel to Peterborough. The coming of this industry will mean the addition to our population of several most desirable leading citizens, and a number of skilled mechanics and workmen of the very first class.

• • • •

The 150 men, which the De Laval Co. will employ in Peterborough within a year, will represent, with families, probably at least 600 persons. These people must be housed, clothed and fed. Their earnings will help to swell and make greater the business done in Peterborough.

Let us consider what one of our larger industries represents in this particular. Take the General Electric Works with its pay roll of close to 1,800. This represents at least $43,000.00 every two weeks. Of this amount the great proportion finds its way into the various channels of trade and living within our city.

An item the like of this is one to conjure with. On being distributed each pay day this money finds its way to the grocer, the clothier, the landlord, the coal man, our electric lighting companies, etc., etc., and through the whole gamut, even to our professional men, such as, doctors, lawyers, teachers, preachers—it oils our whole social machinery and goes towards making us a people happy and prosperous. We appreciate this thing to the greatest extent as thought of in connection with our larger industries, but the same principle applies even to all of our industries, down to the smallest.

• • • •

Were our average citizen asked as to how many industries worthy of particular mention we have in the city of Peterborough, it is highly probable he could not tell without first taking thought and making count.

As a matter of fact we have in Peterborough at least 45 considerable industries.

• • • •

Each industry we have helps greatly to advertise Peterborough and to draw others to our city. Travellers go out into the ends of our country selling manufacturies from Peterborough. In cases like the Quaker Oats the packages that go out, each telling that it came from Peterborough, do much to advertise our city. Similarly our publishing houses, sending out their papers—say the Farm and Dairy, with nearly 16,000 every week and the Canadian Horticulturist every month almost an equal number, carrying on their front pages the word Peterborough as their home and reaching leading citizens all over Canada and even in other countries—do much towards advertising Peterborough.

Now with the coming of the De Laval Dairy Supply Co., we will add one more great distributor to our already considerable list.

• • • •

And this success in getting the De Laval Co., should start us after others. We should succeed in getting more. The De Laval people have come to Peterborough by virtue only of its natural advantages. We have conditions conducive to their best welfare. Our abundant electric power—with the prospects we have of still lower rates—our favorable railway facilities, our location on the Trent Canal, our beautiful city of desirable houses—reasonable in price and many at a fairly low rent, our favorable agricultural constituency for supplying food stuffs to our people. Having these advantages, why should Peterborough not look good to the De Laval Company? Why should Peterborough not appeal to others? And why should we not do a little more towards going out and getting them?

We citizens of Peterborough, who have so much to gain from the coming of new industries, will henceforth do our part. We will speak well of our own city. We will support our city fathers in every reasonable and worthy effort to build up Peterborough by getting in new industries worth while, and in making still more sound our present claim to being a city with advantages unparalleled.

RAILROAD MAN HAD TO LAY OFF

Until He Took GIN PILLS

Buffalo, N.Y.

"I have been a Pullman conductor on the C. P. R. and Michigan Central for the last three years.

About four years ago, I was laid up with intense pain in the groin, a very sore back, and suffered most severely when I tried to urinate.

I treated with my family physician for two months for Gravel In The Bladder but did not receive any benefit. About that time, I met another railroad man who had been similarly affected and who had been cured by GIN PILLS, after having been given up by a prominent physicians who treated him for Diabetes. He is now running on the road and is perfectly cured. He strongly advised me to try GIN PILLS which I did—with the result that the pains left me entirely."

VIRGINIAN BLOODHOUNDS

Used to Represent Hunting Scene in Kingan's Window

Animals are the Property of Mr Harry Winch

The Kingan Hardware Company have constructed in their George st. window, a front of a hunter's log cabin, with the sign Winketch Lodge over the portals. Hunters goods are seen through the windows and scattered around in front are traps guns, etc. Tied to the door are two full blooded Virginian bloodhounds, specially imported by Mr. Harry Winch for the annual Ketchecum Lake hunt. These two animals, male and female, are of a brown color, and have excited the admiration of many passersby. This very realistic scene is supposed to represent a hunter's cabin in the backwoods.

MR. HENRY BACON INJURED

Horses Frightened

WHEN WAGON OVERTURNED

Mr. Harry Bacon, driver of an old wagon, met with a painful accident about 9 o'clock this morning on the Norwood Road, near the bridge over the canal. Through some unknown cause, his team became frightened and bolted. At the east side of the bridge, the wagon upset in the ditch and Mr. Bacon was thrown out. He sustained several cuts about the head and his right thigh was badly bruised.

Mr. Fred Cox, who was ploughing in a near-by field saw the accident and was the first on the scene. Comstock's ambulance was telephoned for and conveyed the injured man to his home at 193 Wescott street, where Dr. Scott attended to his injuries.

The runaway horses were none the worse for their escapade and were temporarily installed in the stables of Mr. Fred Cox.

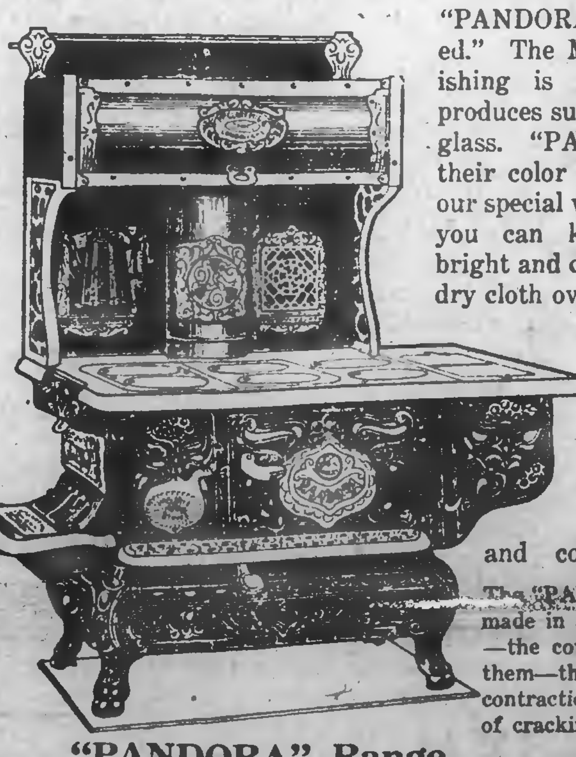
SERVICE FOR THE OLD PEOPLE

Held at Rev Mr. Henderson's Church in St. Catharines

Rev. G. W. Henderson introduced an innovation at the Welland avenue church, St. Catharines on Sunday in the form of an old folks' service. Carriages were provided for those who were unable to walk. one man being present who was totally blind. So impressive were the exercises and the sermon that tears were much in evidence.

A Beautiful Range— Yet Easily Kept Clean

Glance at the "PANDORA" as it stands complete—a handsome range surely, yet easily kept clean. McClary's famed "Duplex" nickelling cannot burn off—it never becomes tarnished. About it there is no superfine "impossible-to-keep-clean" tracery—the nickel adornment is rich—the carving bold.



"PANDORA" surfaces are "burnished." The McClary system of burnishing is a special process that produces surfaces as smooth as plate glass. "PANDORA" surfaces keep their color indefinitely—they retain our special water-proof dressing. So, you can keep the "PANDORA" bright and clean by simply rubbing a dry cloth over it.

The "PANDORA" is more than a handsome range. It is also a permanent investment because it is built to endure—it is the one range that is as strong and compact as it looks.

The "PANDORA" cooking surface is made in sections with expansion top—the covers and cross-bars fit into them—this allows for expansion and contraction without any possibility of cracking or warping.

"PANDORA" Range

Top sections are reversible—you can place a boiler cross-wise on the "PANDORA" if you wish to use front pot-hole over fire. "PANDORA" lids and entire top are extra heavy and guaranteed not to crack or break under ordinary usage.

N. B.—You can have the story of "PANDORA" Efficiency in detail by simply asking for our free book, "REASONS FOR 'PANDORA' POPULARITY."

CANAL WILL BE A GREAT BOON

C.P.R. Official Testifying In Rates Enquiry Before Railway Board Says an Effort Has Been Made to Send Alberta Grain Down to Mexico But Province Has Not Been Able to Produce Enough Since 1909.

Ottawa, Oct. 10.—Some hard knocks to the Pacific route for grain shipment were administered by the Canadian Pacific Railway at yesterday afternoon's session of the western rate enquiry. Judging from what was said the inference is that under present conditions the opening of the Panama Canal would make an immense difference to western producers of grain, furnishing as it will a new water route to Liverpool.

That Canadian grain could profitably compete in Mexican markets with that of the United States were it to be had was another interesting statement made. Owing to inability of Alberta to supply the product no business of this kind has been done since 1909, but conditions this year may be different.

The afternoon's session was largely taken up by the explanation of the Canadian Pacific in regard to the disparity between their western export and local rates. The Canadian Northern also commenced its case and took some evidence to prove that it was on a different financial basis from the C.P.R. It will probably plead that on this account it should not be classed with the latter in regard to rates.

The grain rate from Vancouver to Liverpool formed the basis of Mr. Chrysler's examination of Mr. Lanigan. The export rate from all points west of Swift Current to Vancouver was 19 1-2c. The railways had no control of the rate from Fort William to St. John, but had control from Calgary to Fort William on account of the lack of water competition. The rate from Calgary to Vancouver on grain for export was 19 1-2c. per hundred, while the local rate was 13 1-2c.

Mr. Lanigan explained this difference in the local and export rates between these points. During certain months in the year the Mexican Government lowered its duty on wheat. The C.P.R. had seen the possibility of marketing Alberta wheat in Mexico via steamship lines from Vancouver, so had made a flat rate, which allowed Alberta wheat into the Mexican market in competition with that of Kansas. This looked like a permanency, but since 1909 Alberta had not had the product and no business had been done.

There had been an effort to extend the area of the local market on the Pacific rather than an attempt to take grain via Vancouver to Liverpool, said the witness. Under normal conditions the rates charged to Liverpool from this point were exorbitant. The lowest was 25 shillings a ton and some times it was 6 shillings a ton for sea carriage, high insurance rates handicapping the Pacific route. None of the grain shipped went via the Tehuantepec Railway, said Mr. Lanigan.

The enquiry resumes to-day.

COUNSEL MAY ALLEGE INSANITY

Whitby, Oct. 10.—John Bateman, aged 77, on trial here before Justice Latchford and a jury, will know his fate to-day. The case for the crown was completed last night and this morning. Gordon Conant, the prisoner's counsel, is presenting the defence. Damaging evidence against the prisoner was adduced from the many witnesses during three sessions of the court yesterday, who revealed details of the gruesome tragedy in which Mrs. Bateman, aged 70 years, was found dead on the morning of Sept. 5, in her bedroom, with a fire burning over her body, which, according to witnesses, was started by the use of coal oil.

It is more than likely that the defence relies on an insanity plea to save Bateman. The defence endeavored to bring out evidence indicating that the prisoner was irrational and not responsible for his actions.

Dr. J. F. Ginneban of Oshawa, who performed the autopsy, stated that the woman's death had resulted from a fractured skull. He held the skull aloft to show where wounds had been inflicted. They could not have been self-inflicted or by falling, but they were caused by a sharp instrument, he declared.

"Did anything strike you as peculiar about Bateman?" asked Mr. Conant.

"Yes; he had a facial expression which indicated to me to some degree an unsound mind," replied the witness.

Dr. Bruce Smith, superintendent of hospitals and asylums in Ontario, and Dr. Beemer, formerly of Mimico Asylum, will be called as expert alienists by the defence to-day.

Dr. G. B. Archibald of Toronto, who analyzed the stains on the axe and coat which Bateman wore on the day of the murder, testified that they were spots of human blood.

Mrs. Emily Colborne, who with her husband occupied a section of the Bateman house, was the first witness of the trial. She testified that the Bateman couple had never lived happily together. They were constantly quarrelling. A few weeks before the tragedy Bateman had threatened to kill his wife by chopping her head off and placing it on the fence after which, he said, he would burn the house.

Richard Luke said that he was attracted to the Bateman house by the crowds. After he had gone into the house and found the body of Mrs. Bateman lying on the floor, he said to Bateman, "You have murdered your wife," and the accused man made no comment. Bateman showed no resentment concerning the charge. He turned away and left the premises unconcerned.

Killed by Freight Motor.

Galt, Oct. 10.—Falling from freight motor No. 40 on the G. P. & H. Railway, John O. Harbach, 128 Weaver street, Berlin, was instantly killed yesterday morning. His neck was broken, head smashed and one leg nearly severed. Nobody witnessed the occurrence, and a coroner's jury will try to solve the mystery. The victim was 28 years old and leaves a widow and four children.

NEW SCHEDULE SHOWS DROP IN HYDRO RATES

Toronto, Oct. 10.—Hon. Adam Beck yesterday announced a new schedule of rates, to be charged the municipalities using Hydro-electric power in the Niagara district at the beginning of the next fiscal year, Nov. 1. Reductions applying pretty generally to all the municipalities being provided with energy from generations at Niagara will be made to an extent that will surprise even the most sanguine of the Hydro electric supporters. The following are the towns in which reductions occur:

	Present Rate.	New Rate.
Toronto	$18.10	$16.50
London	28.00	27.00
Guelph	25.00	23.50
Woodstock	26.00	24.00
Ingersoll	28.00	27.00
Beachville	33.89	32.00
Berlin	25.00	24.00
Waterloo	[illegible]	25.00
Preston	25.00	23.50
Galt	25.00	24.00
Hespeler	28.00	25.00
St. Mary's	38.00	35.00
Dundas	17.00	16.00
Hamilton	17.00	16.50
Waterdown	37.50	30.00
Port Credit	36.79	32.00
Mimico	30.74	30,00

Out of twenty-seven municipalities there are only ten that are not scheduled for a rate reduction, and these may come in for reduction later in the year, if their consumption of power increases sufficiently.

The largest reductions in power price have been made in the cases of Waterdown and Port Credit, where the power consumption has increased away beyond the first estimate.

In addition to being able to make these liberal reductions in rates, the Hydro Electric Power Commission will have a surplus of $50,000 at the end of the present year, Oct. 31, after paying the cost of power, the cost of maintenance and the full interest to the Government on the loan for the year.

Charter Day at Victoria.

Toronto, Oct. 10.—This evening in the chapel of the college, Victoria College is celebrating the 76th anniversary of the granting of its royal charter. Besides the usual exercises there will be addresses by the acting president, Mr. Justice Maclaren, and by Prof. Robertson, who will make a report on the meeting of the universities of the empire in London, Eng., this summer. The chief event of the evening will be a lecture by Prof. Pelham Edgar on Carlyle.

EXECUTIVE TO NAME MAN

Waterloo, Oct. 10.—The Liberals of North Waterloo met yesterday afternoon and, after a three-hour session, decided to leave the matter of nominating a candidate in the hands of the executive. Seven party stalwarts were nominated, but none were willing to-day to accept, although the majority were outspoken on the Rowell policy to abolish the bar.

Rev. J. E. Lynn, one of the nominees, said that what was wanted was a David to go out to meet Goliath. North Waterloo was essentially a Liberal riding and he could not see why it could not be won back. He urged a contest, saying that the policy of the Liberal party was nothing to be ashamed of. Mr. Lynn is spoken of as the most likely to be the choice of the executive.

Others nominated were: Jacob Kaufman, Dr. J. F. Honsberger, W. D. Euler, E. P. Clement, K.C., Mayor Fischer of Waterloo and Leander Bowman.

It was pointed out at the meeting that Mr. Rowell strongly urged that a candidate should be put in the field, which remark was greeted with applause.

MAY ROBSON, as herself, and as she appears when not herself in the sparkling comedy, "A Night Out," which comes to The Grand next Monday, Oct. 14. Seats on sale to-morrow (Friday) morning.

MONTENEGRINS ARE ATTACKING A STRONG TURKISH POSITION

The Youngest Son of King Nicholas Fired the First Shot in the Assault on the Turkish Entrenchments.

Cettinje, Oct. 10.—King Nicholas issued a proclamation yesterday summoning the Montenegrins to go immediately to the assistance of their brethren in old Servia, where, he declares, women and children are being massacrd.

"Montenegro had hoped to secure the liberation of the Serbs in Turkey without the shedding of blood, but peaceful endeavors proved unavailing," continues the proclamation, "and no other recourse was left but to take up the sword in their behalf.

"We are assured, in this holy undertaking, of the sympathy of the whole civilized world, and we will have the loyal assistance of the kings of Servia, Bulgaria and Greece and their peoples, whom in this affair have ranged themselves with the Montenegrins like brothers."

The proclamation concludes: "Montenegro is attacking Turkey not from motives of arrogance, but inspired by a noble resolve to prevent the final extermination of her brethren."

Montenegrins Attack Turks.

Podgoritza, Montenegro, Oct. 10.—The Montenegrin army opened the war against Turkey yesterday morning by attacking a strong Turkish position opposite Podgoritza. Prince Peter, the youngest son of King Nicholas, fired the first shot.

This was the signal for firing all along the line, and an artillery duel ensued. Within twenty-one minutes five Turkish guns were silenced, and the Turks retreated from their first position on Mount Planinitsa. By noon the Turks had evacuated the mountain.

Podgoritza is the headquarters of the Montenegrin forces, and amid the enthusiastic cheering of the people King Nicholas, with Prince Mirko, his second son, and staff, rode early to the mountains to survey the positions. The Montenegrin outposts had been placed the night before and strong detachments were held in reserve should the Turkish forces prove larger than the reports of the scouts indicated.

Punctually at eight o'clock the first shot was directed at the Turkish position on the hills opposite by Prince Peter, who is a captain of artillery. At the booming of the gun the band in the Montenegrin headquarters struck up the royal hymn.

That the Montenegrin fire was effective was proved by the quick retirement of the Turks. After they evacuated the mountain a general advance of Montenegrin infantry was ordered. Covered by a concentrated artillery fire the infantry moved towards the strongly fortified Turkish positions in Detchitch Mountain, which commands the road to Scutari. At 2 o'clock the Turks landed troops on the shore of Lake Scutari, near the Montenegrin frontier. A general engagement followed, and was still in progress at five o'clock in the afternoon over an extensive front.

Crown Prince Danilo, who is commander-in-chief, has just ridden in with Prince Peter from the battlefield to the King's headquarters for fresh instructions.

War Will Be Ferocious.

New York, Oct. 10.—A cable to The Tribune from London says:

Expert military opinion is divided as to the probable course of the Balkan war, but it is agreed on all sides that the struggle will be one of hideous and perhaps unexampled ferocity.

Moreover, whichever side is successful, the peace of Europe will be imperilled. Austria is resolved not to permit any territorial expansion by Servia or Bulgaria, while in the event of the Turks sweeping their armies before them and trampling the Balkans under foot, the sympathy of the Russian people with the conquered Slavs will be aroused and the Russian Government forced by popular passion to take an active part in the game.

Montenegro Is the Only Balkan State In Open Warfare.

London, Oct. 10.—Another day has elapsed without, so far as is known, any extension of the Balkan war. The earlier rumors that Bulgaria and Servia have declared war are not confirmed. None of the embassies or legations in London last night had heard of any development since Montenegro made her hostile declaration.

It may be assumed that while making some show of deference towards the powers' intervention, the Balkan states are busily engaged in completing the concentration of their forces. The King of Greece returned to Athens yesterday and some definite move can now be expected on the part of Greece.

It is suggested that the Montenegrin advance on Berana, near the frontier, may indicate the intenton of that country to effect a junction with the Servian army coming from the north.

The Russian Government has issued a denial of the reported mobilization of her army. Russia declares that all the reservists called up for a test have already been disbanded. It is understood that Germany will protect Turkish subjects in the Balkan states should war ensue.

Situation Unchanged.

Constantinople, Oct. 10.—The ambassadors have not as yet had any communication with the Porte and the Balkan representatives profess still to be without instructions. Thus the situation appears to be unchanged.

There was a rumor here that the Turkish troops had occupied Podgoritza, but this is unfounded. Fighting continues around Berana.

The powers have notified the Porte that in the event of war with Greece they will not recognize foreign cargoes on Greek vessels detained by Turkey as legal prizes of war, the embargo having been placed in time of peace.

Bulgaria's Ultimatum.

London, Oct. 10.—The Bulgarian Cabinet sat until 8 o'clock last night to consider the note of the powers, says a Sofia despatch to The Daily Mail. The Greek and Servian Ministers conferred with the President of the Council, but nothing was decided upon. There is good authority, the despatch adds, for saying that probably no reply will be given, and that more likely an ultimatum will be presented to Turkey within a few days.

Killed by Falling Chimney.

Toronto, Oct. 10.—When the chimney of the old Baptist Church on Lansdowne avenue, just above Queen street, collapsed yesterday morning, and brought a large section of wall and flooring with it, James Doble, 29 years old, residing at 34 Saunders avenue, was so badly injured that he died in the Western Hospital a short time later. Two other men had narrow escapes.

Doble was a bricklayer's laborer. Although there were several sharp cracks as the wall broke away, he had no chance to save himself. He was working near the wall and was carried into the cellar with the debris. Doble was unconscious when picked up, but although he rallied slightly, medical skill could not save his life. Harvey Clark and Fred Smith were the men who escaped. The collapse was due to the undermining of the chimney in converting the old church into a hall.

TWIN FREAK IS NO MORE

Marvel of Human Anatomy Possessed Two Distinct Beings

Special To The Review.

Wilmington, N.C., Oct. 10 — Milie Christine, said to be the greatest "twin freak" of human anatomy, possessing two separate and distinct beings, died within a few hours of one another yesterday at the old homestead in Columbus county, of this state, where "they" were born in slavery, sixty years ago. They were exhibited in many countries and were once presented to Queen Victoria.

Motorcycle Races Saturday

Carried Empty Revolver.

New Westminster, B.C., Oct. 10.—The inquest into the death of Guard Joynson, killed while preventing the escape of convicts Smith and Wilson, showed that only the timidity of other convicts prevented a serious riot. Although over sixty convicts were left practically unguarded for a time, with the gate open, not one man ran away.

Guard Craig, who had been guarding 27 convicts, [illegible] hammers, testified that he had removed the bullets from his revolver because he thought them a greater menace to the guards than the prisoners. Guard Ernest Rowan was "held up" by the convicts with this harmless revolver. The rifles of the guards on the wall had three cartridges only. Of about 24 shots fired, only three took effect, and Joynson got two of them.

Six Laborers Injured.

North Bay, Ont., Oct. 10.—An explosion of dynamite on the construction of the Algoma Eastern Railway, near Sudbury, yesterday afternoon frightfully injured six Italian laborers. One man had both arms blown off and another lost both eyes and suffered severe injuries to his head. The others had arms and legs broken. The injured men were rushed to Sudbury Hospital, where it is stated several will die. The explosion resulted from the handling of a box of dynamite caps by a laborer.

FELL TO HIS DEATH

Structural Worker Knocked off Top of Bridge

Special to the Review.

Edmonton, Alta, Oct. 10—Accidentally touching the trigger of an automatic rivetting hammer, while one hundred and seventy feet up on the new C. N. R. bridge over the Pembina River at Entwistle yesterday afternoon, Joseph Johnstone, a structural iron worker was knocked off and after he struck an outjutting beam he fell headfirst on a raft in the river below, being instantly killed.

Motorcycle Races Saturday

Costly Error at Galt.

Galt, Oct. 10.—Investigation by the water commission into the cause of the inadequate water supply at the recent disastrous fire which destroyed the Galt robe works, reveals the fact that valves in the several mains from which the hydrants on North Water street are fed, had been closed through an oversight on the part of persons unknown.

Election Worker Still Held.

Winnipeg, Oct. 10.—J. J. Sullivan of Melville, Sask., arrested at the instance of the Attorney-General's Department on a charge of infractions of the election act, was arraigned yesterday, and the case was remanded. He is held without bail.

LIBERAL WORKER IS ARRESTED

Special To The Review.

Winnipeg, Oct. 10—D. H. Walkinshaw, a Liberal worker in the Macdonald bye-election was arrested at Hallwell yesterday afternoon and taken to Winnipeg and lodged in jail. He is a young man who came here recently from Ontario. (A writ of Habeus Corpus will be asked for his release to-day.

EFFORTS OF THE POWERS MAY BE MORE SUCCESSFUL TO-DAY

Special To The Review.

Constantinople, Oct. 10.—More energetic intervention on the part of the powers to prevent an outbreak on the part of Bulgaria, Servia and Greece and to bring about a cessation of war with Montenegro is said to be contemplated to-day.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 10. — I. E. Guechoff, Bulgarian premier and minister of foreign affairs, said this morning he had not yet despaired of war being averted at the last moment.

TO INVOKE B.N.A. ACT

Ottawa, Oct. 10.—"If they do that we will appeal to the Governor-in-Council and insist on our rights under the conditions of the British North America Act," said Trustee S. Genest of the separate school board when seen yesterday in reference to Premier Whitney's statement relative to bilingual schools, and to the effect that the new regulations will certainly be carried out.

Trustee Genest is the man who moved the resolution that the local separate school board passed, flatly refusing to carry out the regulations the Ontario Educational Department has promulgated.

The Ottawa Separate School Board last night received a circular from the Ontario Department of Education dealing with the board's opposition to the new bilingual regulations, which defines the attitude of the Minister of Education in the matter.

Trustee Genest proposed that the matter of the bilingual regulations should be left over for a special meeting. He thought it was evident from the circular received from the Department that the board's purpose was misunderstood. He disclaimed any incivility towards the inspectors appointed. "It is a movement, not to educate the children, but to Anglicize them, to crush back in their throats the tongue the Almighty has given them," he said. "I do not think the Government is stronger than the Almighty, and it is not beyond the Whitney Government to change its mind. Are we uncivil and unkind in pressing for the right to sing the praises of our Lord and King in our own tongue? Emphatically I say it is tyranny and injustice. We ask these people to withdraw these nefarious regulations and give us the justice to which we are rightly entitled."

A number of letters from parents supporting the action of the board were presented, as was also one from Rev. Father Therrien, parish priest of St. Jean Baptiste Church, this city, along the same lines. No further action was taken by the board, and a further meeting will be held to take up the matter.

BRUCE ON TRIAL AT HAMILTON

Hamilton, Oct. 10.—The crown did not conclude its case yesterday against James Bruce, charged with poisoning Rose Ziepe. An important point for the defence was made when the drug clerk who sold the poison the crown sought to show was purchased by Bruce, was unable to identify him as the purchaser, although he said Bruce had been in the store on several occasions. The case will be resumed to-day.

Dr. Edgar of the City Hospital was the first witness. He told of being called to attend Rose Ziepe after she had eaten the candies. He thought it looked like a case of strychnine poisoning. Coroner Rennie told of sending a sample of the candies and the dead girl's stomach, with other food, for examination by the Government analyst. Detective Sayer told of finding that a man who signed "J. Brown" had procured strychnine at A. E. Mealley's store in York street. Dr. Rogers, the provincial analyst, was called yesterday afternoon, and told of finding a grain in the contents of the stomach. It did not necessarily follow that because chocolates had a bitter taste they contained strychnine. Dr. Edgar, who assisted in the post-mortem, said the finding of strychnine was quite in sympathy with the congested state of the girl's blood. Dr. Rogers said in his evidence that the bottle found in Mrs. Bruce's room did not contain poison. F. F. Holmes, a Herald reporter, told of going to Bruce's house on the night Miss Ziepe died and breaking to him the news of the tragedy. Bruce showed no signs of agitation. Bruce said that he had taken a box of candy to his wife. His sister remarked that the police would be after him, and Bruce responded, "Well, let them come."

R. P. Hickey, chief clerk for the Armstrong Cartage Co., produced Bruce's signature, and W. H. Shaw, Toronto, an expert on handwriting, said he had compared Bruce's writing with the writing on the druggist's book, and in his opinion they were made by the same man. C. R. McCullough, another expert, said in his opinion the two writings were by the same man.

Gertrude Dalby stated that on the Sunday Miss Ziepe died she was with her in Mrs. Bruce's room, and that while [illegible] Bruce, [illegible] chocolates around. Miss Ziepe complained abou the candy being bitter, and later was stricken with convulsions and died shortly after. Witness was also sick and was given an emetic.

$15,000,000 FOR TORONTO'S HARBOR

Toronto, Oct. 10.—Calling for an expenditure of about $15,000,000 on Toronto harbor, the harbor commissioners will submit plans to the Government in about two weeks' time, outlining a general scheme for improvement, which will include the industrial development proposed for Ashbridge's Bay and the boulevard scheme across the front of the city. If the money is granted the improvements made will yield a revenue to the commissioners sufficient to meet all the interest and charges in connection with the upkeep.

Preparations have already begun for the creating of a considerable area of new land at the foot of Bathurst street, and one contract has already been awarded for 2,000 cubic yards of fill.

SHE SUFFERED TEN MONTHS

Mrs. Blankenship Tells of Her Restoration to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elliston, Va.—"I feel it my duty to express my thanks for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a sufferer from female troubles and had been confined in bed over one third of my time for ten months. I could not do my housework and had fainting spells so that my husband could not leave me alone for five minutes at a time.

"Now I have been restored to health and it has come from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Whenever I see a suffering woman I want to tell her what this medicine has done for me and I will always speak a good word for it."—Mrs. ROBERT BLANKENSHIP, Elliston, Va., Montgomery Co.

Was Helpless—Now Well.

Trenton, Mo.—"About two years ago I had female trouble and inflammation so bad that I was literally helpless and had to be tended like a baby. I could not move my body or lift my foot for such severe pains that I had to scream. I was very nervous and had a weakness.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me to such an extent that I think there is no medicine like it for female troubles. I am up and able to do my work again and I give you full permission to publish my letter for the sake of other suffering women."—Mrs W. T. PURNELL, 320-10th St., Trenton, Mo.

A RATE REDUCTION

Hon. Robert Rogers has stated in one of his speeches in the Macdonald bye-election that the Government intends to force a reduction of freight rates in the West. This is good news, for it is generally conceded that the time has come when the Canadian rates in the west ought to be put on a parity with those in the East.

The difficulty will be to deal justly with each of the three railways. What the Canadian Pacific can stand in the way of reductions in freight rates, the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific, being newer and such less well established, cannot afford. And as rates must be the same on competitive traffic for the three roads, how can a cut be made on all three that will not materially discriminate against the C.N.R. and G.T.P. Let the railways be given a square deal in the matter, as they have always been given a square deal by Canada; but the Borden Government should not hesitate to force the roads into line on the rate question if it can devise any method of effecting the reduction without discriminating against the newer lines. Here is a test of the Borden Government. The fulfilment of Mr. Rogers' prediction will be eagerly awaited.

THE BALKAN WAR

The declaration of war against Turkey by the little state of Montenegro has at last set the Balkan heather on fire. It is quite fortunate that the large powers are signatory to any agreement by which the general peace of Europe must be preserved for otherwise there might be no telling when international differences might not result in a spark catching fire in the big machine of international politics. The population of Montenegro is about 250 000, but the inhabitants are no slouches at guerilla warfare and in their mountain fastnesses are almost impregnable to an invading force. It seems rather ridiculous for the Montenegro military authorities to take the offensive when their forces are so largely outnumbered; but at any time the word to march forward may be given. The first dispatches bring word of heavy fighting in the mountain passes but as far as the outside world is concerned the fighting is not of more direct interest than were the conflicts in Tripoli between the Italians and the Turks.

The real danger point is that Servia Bulgaria and Greece may be precipitated by the passions of their respective peoples into joining Montenegro. This would set practically all of the Balkans, except Roumania, against the Ottomans, and the situation would be difficult and dangerous unless the big powers were to adhere to some general plan for intervention or for restricting hostilities. It is certainly very much to be hoped that the explosion will not set the military ardor of the other Balkan principalities into active motion. The long postponed dismemberment of the Sick Man's country is not likely to occur for a while if the powers can keep little Montenegro from inducing her allies to join the attack of Turkey and thus give an opportunity for a row between the guarantors of Turkish integrity.

SLOBBERING OVER LAURIER

The Toronto Globe is slobbering over the Laurier tour in a way that makes many of its readers rather sick. Let everyone concede that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is worth special attention, that what he says is important enough to attract large crowds and a general hearing. But why should every little detail that is common to all tours of men in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's position, be magnified and glorified into sickeningly sycophantic exhibition of popular adulation. Mr. Borden has been given plenty of attention by the Conservative newspapers, but never at any time in his career has his party press tried the "slobbering" game, in trying to make political capital for him. As far as the political effect of the buncombe which the Globe plasters on so unsparingly is concerned, we think it will not go very far. The day has passed when the people of Ontario are to be led from voting as they think on public questions, by the personal merits or demerits of any one man. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, is a very fine man and a very clever leader, but he cannot always embody the spirit and principles of Canadian Liberalism. If the Globe wishes to try the tactics of setting Laurier away up on a pedestal by himself, above his party lieutenants, how does it propose to find in one of these lieutenants, a fitting leader when Sir Wilfrid Laurier lays down his office? He cannot at the very best, continue for long at the head of the Liberal party. If the Globe thinks that in tring to make converts for Laurier personally, it is attaching people to the principles of Liberalism we think it is on the wrong track. It would, be better to try for converts to Liberalism, rather than to Laurier, for the two are not really synonymous. These remarks are made from the standpoint of one who can readily appreciate the motives that lead the Globe to make such an exhibition of itself. For the men and women who are fond of what is practically "sob-squad" material, perhaps its line of buncombe is acceptable. Though we disagree with the Globe politically, we have admired it as a zealous newspaper, for a long time. It must be confessed, however, that though the rankness of the Globe's partisanship can be passed over as a necessary (?) evil, it is a wonder that a good many of its readers do not feel rather nauseated by its slush regarding the Laurier tour.

What Clover Will Do.

A Canadian bulletin issued last year contains details of an interesting experiment in the growing of clover for the distinct purpose of increasing the nitrogen content in a tract of land. Clover was grown on this tract continuously for a nine-year period. The ground was dug over every second year and the plot reseeded, the hay that was cut each season being allowed to rot on the ground. The soil was analyzed at the beginnings of the experiment and at intervals later. At the end of nine years it was found that each acre of soil to a depth of four inches contained 479 pounds more nitrates than at the beginning, worth on an average $9.36 per acre each year, or $84.96 for the nine year period. If this clover had been fed to stock instead of being allowed to rot it is admitted that nearly as large an amount of nitrogen would have been contributed to the soil.

Belgium.

Belgium is one of the smallest countries in regard to area, containing only 11,373 square miles, but it stands today the fifth of all nations of the world in regard to commerce and industries and is the most densely settled in Europe, containing 7,817,561 inhabitants. It is is also one of the richest countries per capita and second to none in enterprise.

Sufferers From Piles

Zam-Buk Has Cured These

Friction on the hemorrhoid veins that are swollen, inflamed and gorged with blood, is what causes the terrible pain and stinging and smarting of piles. Zam-Buk applied at night will be found to give ease before morning. Thousands of persons have proved this. Why not be guided by the experience of others.

Mr. Thomas Pearson, of Prince Albert, Sask., writes; "I must thank you for the benefit I have received from Zam-Buk. Last summer suffered greatly from piles. I started to use Zam-Buk and found it gave me relief, so I continued it, and after using three or four boxes I am pleased to say it has effected a complete cure."

Mr. G. A. Dufresne, 183-185 St. Joseph Street, St. Roch, Quebec, P.Q., writes; "I can highly recommend Zam-Buk to everyone who suffers from piles."

Magistrate Sanford, of Weston, King's Co., N.S., says: "I suffered long from itching piles, but Zam-Buk has now cured me."

Mr William Kenty, of Upper, Nine Mile River, Hants Co., N.S., says: "I suffered terribly from piles, the pain at times being almost unbearable. I tried various ointments, but everything I tried failed to do me the slightest good. I was tired of trying various remedies, when I heard of Zam-Buk and thought as a last resource I would give this balm a trial. After a very short time Zam-Buk effected a complete cure."

Zam Buk is also a sure cure for skin injuries and diseases, eczema ulcers, varicose veins, cuts, burns, bruises, chaps, cold sores, etc. 50c box from all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam Buk Company Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful imitations.

IMPORTANT CHANGE OF TIME GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

ON MONDAY, SEPT. 30th, the Winter schedule of trains will take effect. Important changes are as follows:—

The morning train for Lakefield, now leaving at 8.35 a.m. will leave at 7.00 a.m., returning will arrive in Peterboro at 8.15 a.m.

Particular attention is called to the afternoon train for Belleville now leaving at 1.40 p.m., which will be changed to leave Peterboro at 1.20 p.m. This is an important change and should be carefully noted as this train is made up here and always leaves ON TIME. 9d

The Letter of the Law.

Mr. F. E. Smith, British M.P., tells a story of a county court case he was once engaged in, in which the plaintiff's son, a lad of eight years, was to appear as a witness.

When the youngster entered the box he wore boots several sizes too large, a hat that almost hid his face, long trousers rolled up so that the baggy knees were at his ankles, and, to complete the picture, a swallow-tail coat that had to be held to keep it from sweeping the floor. This ludicrous picture was too much for the court; but the judge, between his spasms of laughter, managed to ask the boy his reason for appearing in such garb.

With wondering look the lad fished in an inner pocket and hauled the summons from it, pointing out a sentence with solemn mien as he did so. "To appear in his father's suit," it read.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Oct. 9.—There was a good demand from European sources for Manitoba spring wheat, at an advance in prices of 3d to 4½d per quarter, but owing to the further rise in the Winnipeg market of 1⅝c to 2⅝c per bushel, foreign bids, based on the closing figures, were from 2½c to 3⅝c per bushel under cost. The demand for Manitoba barley for export continues good, but owing to the difficulty in making purchases in Winnipeg the volume of business doing is small. The local demand for oats was good, but on account of the increasing scarcity of supplies on spot buyers find it impossible to fill their wants. The local trade in flour continues fairly active at firm prices, but the foreign demand is limited. Millfeed firm. Demand for butter is good, but cheese is quiet. Eggs active and strong. CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 9.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Oct. 5 were 2200 cattle, 3100 sheep and lambs, 2360 hogs and 800 calves. The offerings on the market this morning for sale amounted to 1200 cattle, 1000 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 500 calves.

Owing to the continued heavy supplies of medium and common cattle coming forward, a weak feeling prevails in the market, and prices show a further decline since Monday. The gathering of buyers was large, and considering that they bought pretty freely earlier in the week, the trade was fair at the lower range of prices, and only about 300 head were left over at the close of the day. A few choice steers sold as high as $6.25, but the bulk of the trading in good cattle was done at $5 to $6, and the common and inferior sold at from $3.50 to $4.50 per 100 pounds. There were a number of butchers' cows on the market, which brought from $3.25 to $5 per 100 pounds, as to quality, and the bulls sold at from $2.50 to $3.25 per hundred.

A steady feeling prevailed in the market for sheep and lambs, owing to the smaller offerings and the good demand for the same from butchers and packers. Ontario lambs sold at $5.75 to $6, and ewes at $3.50 to $3.75 per [illegible] to the weakness in the Toronto market for hogs on Tuesday, and the decline in prices of 50c per 100 pounds, the local market was weaker today, and prices were 25c per hundred lower than on Monday. The demand from packers was good, and sales of selected lots were made at $8.50 to $8.75 per hundred, weighed off cars. The demand for calves was good, at prices ranging from $3 to $15 each, as to size and quality.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Cattle—Receipts, 16,500; market steady to 10c up. Beeves, $5.60 to $11; Texas steers, $4.50 to $6; western steers, $5.80 to $8.90; stockers and feeders, $4.40 to $7.80; cows and heifers, $2.90 to $8.10; calves, $7.50 to $10.

Hogs—Receipts, 21,000; market strong, 5c higher; light, $8.60 to $9.25; mixed, $8.65 to $9.30; heavy, $8.45 to $9.35; rough, $8.45 to $8.70; pigs, $4.75 to $7.75; bulk of sales, $8.90 to $9.20.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 55,000; market steady to a shade up; native, $3.25 to $4.35; western, $3.40 to $4.35; yearlings $4.25 to $5.25. Lambs, native, $4.50 to $7; western, $4.75 to $6.95.

The West Calls for Help Twenty Thousand Harvesters Wanted

The crops in Western Canada have been so heavy this year that it has been necessary for the farmers of the West to make another appeal for help. The demand for help is now more urgent than ever, and it will require at least twenty thousand additional men to complete the harvesting.

In order to relieve the situation, the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run a Harvesters' Excursion, Monday, Oct. 14th, $10.00 to Winnipeg, return fare from Winnipeg, $18.00.

"'Don't let the kai-kai worry you, Captain Munster,' says she. 'If I can find grub for eighty-four mouths on the Martha, the two of you can do as much by your two vessels. Now go ahead and get aground before a steady breeze comes up and spoils the manoeuver. I'll send my boats the moment you strike.'"

"And we went and did it," Sparrowhawk said solemnly and then emitted a series of chuckling noises. "Miss Lackland transferred the recruits, and the trick was done."

CHAPTER XVII.

AN OFFER OF MARRIAGE.

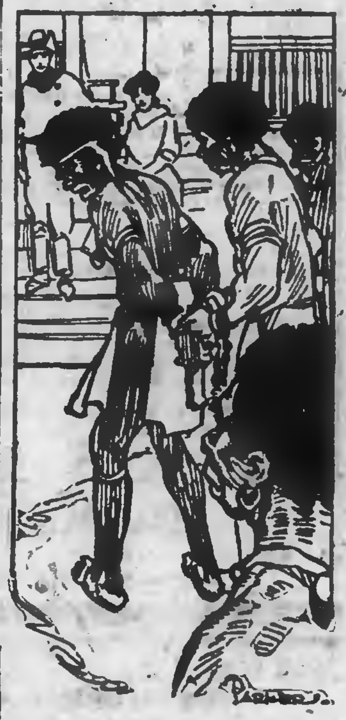
"BUT where was she during the nor'wester?" Sheldon asked.

"At Lauga-Langa. Ran up there as it was coming on and laid there the whole week and traded for grub with the niggers. When we got to Tulagi there she was waiting for us and scrapping with Burnett. I tell you, Mr. Sheldon, she's a wonder, that girl, a perfect wonder."

Munster refilled his glass, and while Sheldon glanced across at Joan's house, anxious for her coming, Sparrowhawk took up the tale.

"Gritty! She's the grittiest thing, man or woman, that ever blew into the Solomons. You should have seen Poonga-Poonga the morning we arrived—Sniders popping on the beach and in the mangroves, war drums booming in the bush and signal smokes raising everywhere. 'It's all up,' says Captain Munster. 'Up your granny,' she says to him," Sparrowhawk went on. "'Why, we haven't arrived yet, much less got started. Wait till the anchor's down before you get afraid.'"

"That's what she said to me," Munster proclaimed. "And of course it made me mad, so that I didn't care what happened. We tried to send a boat ashore for a powwow, but it was fired upon. 'What we want,' says Miss Lackland, 'is a hostage. I'm going ashore tonight to fetch Kina-Kina himself on board, and I'm not asking who's game to go with me, for I've got every man's work arranged for him. I'm taking my sailors with me and one white man.' 'Of course I'm that white man,' I said, for by that time I was mad. 'Of course you're not,' says she. 'You'll have charge of the covering boat. Curtis stands by the landing boat. Fowler goes with me. Brahms takes charge of the Flibberty and Sparrowhawk of the Emily. And we start at 1 o'clock.'



"ME FINISH ALONG YOU, YOU DIE ALTOGETHER."

"My word, it was a tough job lying there in the covering boat. I never thought doing nothing could be such hard work. We stopped about fifty fathoms off and watched the other boat go in.

"Of course there was a row. It had to come, and I knew it, but it startled me just the same. I never heard such screeching and yelling in my life. The niggers must have just dived for the bush without looking to see what was up, while her Tahitians let loose, shooting in the air and yelling to hurry 'em on. And then I heard them coming through the mangroves and an oar strike on a gunwale and Miss Lackland laugh, and I knew everything was all right. We pulled on board without a shot being fired. And there was old Kina-Kina himself, being hoisted over the rail, shivering and chattering like an ape. The rest was easy. Kina-Kina's word was law, and he was scared to death. And we kept him on board issuing proclamations all the time we were in Poonga-Poonga.

"It was a good move, too, in other ways. She made Kina-Kina order his people to return all the gear they'd stripped from the Martha. She—here she comes now."

It was with a shock of surprise that Sheldon greeted her appearance. The ready made clothes from Sydney had transformed her. A simple skirt and shirt waist of some sort of wash goods set off her trim figure with a hint of elegant womanhood that was new to him. Brown slippers peeped out as she crossed the compound, and he once caught a glimpse to the ankle of brown openwork stockings. Somehow she had been made many times the woman by these mere extraneous trappings.

"I've opened up a new field," she said as she began pouring the coffee. "Old Kina-Kina will never forget me, I'm sure, and I can recruit there whenever I want. I saw Morgan at Guvutu. He's willing to contract for a thousand boys at 40 shillings per head. Did I tell you that I'd taken out a recruiting license for the Martha? I did, and the Martha can sign eighty boys every trip."

Sheldon smiled a trifle bitterly to himself. The wonderful woman who had tripped across the compound in her Sydney clothes was gone, and he was listening to the boy come back again.

• • • • • • •

"Well," Joan said, with a sigh, "I've shown you hustling American methods that succeed and get somewhere, and here you are beginning your muddling again."

Joan stood beside Sheldon and sighed as she watched the Martha beating out to sea, old Kinross, brought over from Savo, in command.

"My, but she is a witch! Look at her eating up the water, and there's no wind to speak of. Honestly, if I'd dreamed of the chance waiting for me at Guvutu when I bought her for less than $300 I'd never have gone partners with you. And in that case I'd be sailing her right now."

The justice of her contention came abruptly home to Sheldon.

"You make me feel like a big man who has robbed a small child of a lolly," he said, with sudden contrition.

"And the small child is crying for it."

She looked at him, and he noted that her lip was slightly trembling and that her eyes were moist.

"But the small child won't cry any more for it," she was saying. "This is the last sob. But some day I'm going to sail the Martha again. I know it. I know it."

In reply, and quite without premeditation, his hand went out to hers, covering it as it lay on the railing. But he knew beyond the shadow of a doubt that it was the boy that returned the pressure he gave, the boy sorrowing over the lost toy. The thought chilled him.

"Never mind," he said. "You can go sailing on the Martha any time you please—recruiting on Malaita if you want to."

It was a great concession he was making, and he felt that he did it against his better judgment. Her reception of it was a surprise to him.

"With old Kinross in command?" she queried. "No, thank you. He'd drive me to suicide. I couldn't stand his handling of her. I'll never step on the Martha again unless it is to take charge of her. I'm a sailor, like my father, and he could never bear to see a vessel mishandled."

An hour later, just as they were riding out of the compound, Sheldon glanced at her sharply and noted her face mottling, even as he looked, and turning orange and green.

"It's the fever," she said. "I'll have to turn back."

By the time they were in the compound she was shivering and shaking, and he had to help her from her horse.

"Funny, isn't it?" she said, with chattering teeth. "Like seasickness—not serious, but horribly miserable while it lasts. I'm going to bed. Send Noa Noah and Viaburi to me. Tell Ornfiri to make hot water. I'll be out of my head in fifteen minutes. But I'll be all right by evening. Short and sharp is the way it takes me."

Sheldon obeyed her instructions, rushed hot water bottles along to her and then sat on the veranda glancing across the compound to the grass house. Yes, he decided, the contention of every white man in the islands was right—the Solomons was no place for a woman.

He clapped his hands and Lalaperu came running.

"Here, you," he ordered; "go along barracks, bring 'm black fella Mary, plenty too much, altogether."

A few minutes later the dozen black women of Berande were ranged before him. He looked them over critically, finally selecting one that was young, comely as such creatures went, and whose body bore no signs of skin disease.

"What name, you," he demanded. "Sangui?"

"Me Mahua," was the answer.

"All right, you fella Mahua. You finish cook along boys. You stop along white Mary. All the time you stop along. You savvee?"

"Me savee," she grunted and obeyed his gesture to go to the grass house immediately.

"What name?" he asked Viaburi, who had just come out of the grass house.

"Big fella sick," was the answer. "White fella Mary talk 'm too much allee time. Allee time talk 'm big fella schooner."

DYSPEPSIA MADE HIM MISERABLE

Suffered Agony Until "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him

Hundreds of people gladly testify to the wonderful curative powers of the famous fruit medicine, "Fruit-a-tives". To those now suffering with Indigestion, Dyspepsia or other Stomach Troubles, this letter of Mr. Stirling, the well known real estate operator of Western Ontario, shows the way to a speedy and certain cure.

GLENCOE, ONT., AUG. 15th. 1911

"Fruit-a-tives were so beneficial to me when I suffered with distressing Dyspepsia, that I wish to inform you of their satisfactory results.

Although I have, in past, suffered agony with Dyspepsia, I am now in perfect health. "Fruit-a-tives" accomplished the desired result"

N. C. STIRLING.

"Fruit-a-tives" will cure every trace of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach Bloating, Pain After Eating, Biliousness and Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy in the world made of fruit juices and valuable tonics.

ANNA PAVLOWA.

Anna Pavlowa's conquest of London society was manifested as never before when the Russian dancer held court in her suburban home in north London. Her latest triumph was the talk of London.

Among those present were the Duchess of Marlborough, the Duchess of Rutland, Mrs. Asquith, Mrs. Leopold de Rothschild and Count Benckendorff, the Russian ambassador, as well as a crowd of other prominent persons.

Pavlowa danced on the lawn in gold slippers and provided other entertaining surprises.

Nature's Monument to Washington.

Among the many monuments to Washington is the one which every visitor to the Cape Verde islands will remember as one of the most colossal and marvelous freaks of natural sculpture in existence. Along the farther side of the harbor of San Vicente, the principal town, rises a bold ridge of dark gray volcanic rocks, the crest of which forms an exact likeness of our immortal George, seemingly lying face upward, as if in a peaceful sleep. The hero's large, bold features, the backward wave of the hair, his massive shoulders and even the frill of the shirt front are all reproduced on a gigantic scale with wonderful exactness. The strange monument, sharply outlined against the deep blue of the tropical sky, is one of the first objects that [illegible] in approaching the island. Its gigantic proportions, with the boundless ocean for a background, form a portrait wonderfully true to nature and overpowering in its magnificence.

Using Old Stockings.

Instead of throwing away your old stockings when the feet are worn out, cut off the feet and rip the stocking open at the seams. Sew them together, keeping the narrow parts together, and of them make the top of your petticoats.

After the stockings have been sewed together fit them about the hips, sew on a waistband and trim off even about the bottom. Add a corded silk ruffle the necessary length and attach it to the stocking top by a French seam and you have a perfectly fitting petticoat at about half the cost of one bought in the shops.

To Wash Blankets.

When washing blankets put two large tablespoonfuls of borax and one pint bowl of soft soap into a tub of cold water. When dissolved put in a pair of blankets and let them remain there overnight. Next rub them out and rinse thoroughly in two waters and then hang them out to dry. Do not wring them.

In Case of Fire.

The gas jets of small city rooms are often placed near a window, and fires have been started through the curtains being blown toward them. To obviate this danger sew several small weights in the lower seam of such curtains to hold them down or at least to prevent them from flying high with every breeze.

The Giraffe's Neck.

"Why does the giraffe have such a long neck?" asks the teacher.

"Because its head is so far away from its body," hopefully answers the boy.—New York Press.

An Employer's Liability Policy
MIGHT SAVE YOU HEAVY DAMAGES

While an accident may be due to an employee's own carelessness, still there's no certainty that the employer will not have to pay heavy damages. New legislation too is steadily increasing the responsibility of the employer. But an Employer's Liability Policy in the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would protect you against financial loss through injuries to an employee while on duty. The General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would deal justly with your employee too. It is noted for fairness and broadmindedness. It is one of the oldest and strongest Insurance Companies in the world. Do not delay to write for further particulars.

Injuries in the industrial world are frequent. In the building, metal and woodworking trades alone there were 294 people killed and 1,421 injured in Canada during 1910 and 1911. Our business is to relieve the employer of all financial responsibility resulting from accident.

IS ABLE BUT UNWILLING

To Support His Wife, is Charge Against Husband

Robert Glover was charged this morning in police court with being able to support his wife, but neglecting to do so. His case was adjourned until to-morrow morning, until witnesses can be subpoenaed whom Robert claims will clear him of the charge to the fullest satisfaction of the court.

Mr. Glover is a very garrulous chap and his statements of what he would do after he was proven innocent threatened to get him charged with contempt of court. He claimed that his employers, Weir and McCarthy, coal dealers, for who he drives, would testify that he was a regular worker, and his grocer and butcher would have nothing but good words for his character and industry.

If he is proven innocent he threatens to bring an action against his informants for defamation of character.

THE PASSING OF MRS. A. R. ALLAN

Was Sister of Mr. R. W. Travers of This City

The death occurred at Montreal on Monday of this week of Mrs A. R. Allan sister of Mr. W. R. Travers manager of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Mrs. Allan's maiden name was Miss Eva Travers and she was the only daughter of the late John Nicholas Travers in his day a prominent banker of Eastern Ontario. Born in Kingston she went in her seventh year with her father to Brockville when he assumed charge of the Bank of Montreal and lived here all the rest of her life until the end of last August when she broke up her old home and went to Montreal to reside in a new dwelling built for herself and only son Mr Travers Allan. Two years ago while travelling in Scotland Mrs. Allan was attacked with a serious illness and had never enjoyed robust health since. But no serious results were anticipated and Monday afternoon Mrs. Allan was out for recreation. In the evening she was taken ill and passed away peacefully about midnight.

About forty years ago she was married to the late Alexander R. Allan one of the well-known ship owners of Montreal and owners of the Allan Line of Trans-Atlantic steamships. Mr. Allan died about eleven years ago. She leaves one son Travers to mourn her loss, and one brother Mr. Robert W. Travers manager of the Bank of Montreal of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Travers were in Brockville when they learned the sad news.

The Brockville Times says: The passing of Mrs Allan removes one who will always be associated with the history of Brockville. Not only was she a resident of the town for half a century but she was always prominent in the social life of the town. Mrs. Allan was admittedly one of the most beautiful women in Canada and she combined with her unusual beauty an unaffected kindness of heart and a striking grace of manner which made her a favorite with high and low alike. Her vivacity and gaiety made her especially welcome at social gatherings in which she took a prominent part. She was always active in charitable work and was long a pillar of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Brockville General Hospital. She was a life-long member of St. Peter's church. Her old friends in Brockville will be greatly grieved over her loss.

CHOIR LEADER OF MURRAY ST. CHURCH IS REMEMBERED

Gold Watch and Chain for Mrs. Miller, Who is Leaving Peterboro, for Calgary

Mrs. G. B. Miller, who for the past eight years has been identified as choir leader with Murray street Baptist Church, is leaving for Calgary within a few weeks. Last evening after the regular mid-week service she was presented with a valuable gold watch and chain by the choir who placed themselves on record as sincerely regretting her departure.

Dr. W. D. Scott read the following address and Miss Smith made the presentation:

Peterborough, Oct. 9, 1912.

Mrs. G. B. Miller,

Dear Mrs. Miller,—In the providence of God, the removal of your family has called you from us to the far West and in a few weeks you are to bid good-bye to your many friends in this city and remove to Calgary.

You have been with us for over eight years and apart altogether from your profession you have endeared yourself to the members of Murray St. Church. In your capacity as choir leader you have done much for the spiritual worship and have trained many of our children that they in turn may be of service.

The choir under your leadership became a real part of the church and a recognized power in our services.

We want you always to cherish the kindest thoughts of us as we will of you, and we offer you this gold watch and chain as a small but tangible token of our love and esteem, while we pray that God's richest blessings may be upon you and yours wherever you go.

Signed on behalf of the Church:

J. P. CUNNINGHAM,
W. D. SCOTT, M. D.
T. F. MATTHEWS,
Music Committee.

Mrs. Miller made a very appropriate reply in which she expressed her appreciation of the choir's kindness and her regret at being compelled to bid them farewell.

A MAN OF EXPERIENCE

Is Mr. McDiarmid Who Will Address the Ad Club

A detailed account of personal experience on the part of Mr. McDiarmid and his firm, Messrs. Ryrie Bros. Limited, of Toronto, on the way they analyse the demand for their goods, will be given to Peterborough business men who attend the Ad. Club dinner, Monday night, October 14. The address has been given by Mr. McDiarmid before the Toronto Ad Club, and two weeks ago Mr. McDiarmid gave it at the Hamilton Ad. Club. Both clubs referred to it as being the best and most practical address that had ever been delivered in the Club.

In securing Mr. McDiarmid to address Peterborough business men, the Peterborough Ad. Club has been most fortunate. Mr. McDiarmid is a broad gauge man of unusually wide experience. He has in connection with holding the Presidency of the Toronto Ad Club been required to make unusual sacrifices of his time and talent. He comes to Peterborough out of the goodness of his heart and for the love of the Ad. Club movement, the local Club meeting only his expenses.

As President of the Toronto Ad Club, Mr. McDiarmid, last season, made extensive tours throughout the eastern and western states and was sent even as far as Dallas on campaign work, done by the Toronto Ad Club in their preliminary efforts to secure the great convention, which they tried so hard to get for 1913. Our Peterboro business men can, without exception, be assured of something of deepest interest and of practical cash value coming from Mr McDiarmid's address, which they will be privileged to hear on Monday night.

The Executive of the Peterboro Ad. Club had a meeting last night and decided to again give the dinner at Hooper's Palm Parlor. The accommodation is limited. Tickets should be reserved early. Phone the Secretary, J. M. McNichol at 1333.

MEN! BE ON YOUR GUARD

Now the fall season is on in dead earnest, and it is time for the discarding of all summer wearing apparel, it is necessary to put on much warmer clothing in order to protect your health. This is the time of all times when men should be very careful to protect themselves and the best way to do it is to go to Cameron, the New Men's Wear Store, and get a Suit of that cosy all wool Underwear, the kind that defies the coldest blasts and keeps the body warm. There are extraordinary values at $1.00 to $2.00 per garment. Now you know, and it is up to you whether you buy a Suit of Underwear or pay a doctor's bill. Take the advice from one who knows and get the Underwear right away. You may say "I will wait and get tempered to the cold weather before I do," but take care that the cold weather don't temper you so that you will never get over it.

Don't forget the New Men's Wear Store, it's CAMERON.

Samuel Trotter the Victim of Serious Mishap in Railway Yards

Samuel Trotter, a boilermaker by trade, had his left leg broken and crushed to a pulp while at work in the railway yards at Lindsay yesterday morning.

It appears that Mr. Trotter was doing some repair work with one of the engines in the roundhouse, when another mogul came up behind him, knocking him to the ground. His left leg was run over above the knee, and broken and crushed.

The ambulance was immediately summoned, and he was removed with all haste to the Ross Memorial Hospital. Dr. Jeffres, the G.T.R. physician, was summoned, along with Drs. McCulloch and Simpson, and the injured man was carefully attended to. It was discovered that the ligaments and tissues are badly lacerated and strained, and it is feared that amputation will be necessary. However, this will not take place until the medical men are absolutely sure that the leg cannot be saved.

Mr. Trotter is a married man, and resides with his family on Durham street.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Two Toronto Clergymen to be Heard Oct. 20 and 27

A meeting following the regular service was held in the vestry at St. John's last night, when arrangements for the special evangelistic services were forwarded and almost completed.

The movement will be begun with a preparatory service on Sunday evening next at the conclusion of the regular Sunday evening service, when a large attendance is requested.

On Sunday, Oct. 20, Rev. J. Russell MacLean, M.A., of Toronto, will be in charge. His subject will be "The Obscuring of the Vision."

On Sunday, October 27, the service is to be under the direction of Rev. R. J. Moore, M.A., of Toronto, whose general subject will be the "Vision of the Saviour."

The subjects for the two Wednesday night conferences will be announced later. Rev. Mr. MacLean and Rev. Mr. Moore are two of the most earnest and eloquent clergy of Toronto and are coming to take part in the effort, at great self-sacrifice to themselves, which will be appreciated here.

FIRE SUBSTATION IN SOUTH END OF THE CITY

One of Several Items Discussed by Fire, Water and Light Committee.

A regular meeting of the Fire Water and Light Committee was held last evening, when Miss Peck's application for a light was referred to the Board of Works. It was moved however, that two incandescent lights be placed on Downie street, one near Mr. D. O'Connell's residence, that section of the street being at present very much in need of illumination.

A light will also be placed on Carlisle Avenue, East City. A hydrant was authorized to be placed on the south side of Princess street.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee have $1000 of their appropriation yet to their credit.

Chairman Gillespie queried whether it was the committee's desire to go into the revision of the building by-law.

"You are not having much trouble now, Mr. Chairman, with sheds and the like," said Mayor Bradburn, "because people are not building many of that class of structures. "The matter will be gone into later.

Fire Chief Howard asked the committee whether they are ready to go ahead with the construction of the fire sub-station in the south end of the city.

Mayor Bradburn remarked that it was an absolute necessity for such a station in that part of the city, for the protection of the valuable manufacturies there. He intimated that the incoming Council would do well to take the question up just as earnestly as was posible.

"Personally," said the Mayor, "I would just as soon see the Dominion Bank block burned down as see any fire occur to a manufacturing establishment in the south end of the city."

Ald. Buller moved that the Mayor and Chairman, look up a suitable site for a sub-station in the southern portion of the city. Carried.

The question arose about the suitabiltiy of the location of the present fire hall. Some of the committee considered it was rather distant from the good residential sections of the city, particularly in the north end.

The committee adjourned at nine o'clock.

ELEMENTARY GRADES UNION AND S. S. WORK

Mr. Hagerman Will Take Charge of Class for Seniors

The Elementary Grades Union of the city met in St. Paul's S.S. room at 7.45 Tuesday, with a large and representative attendance, both of denominations and grades. The junior department, of which Mr. Ferguson is superintendent, being out in large numbers. The meeting was called to plan the work of the fall term.

Miss English, of St. John's S.S., presided at the piano. The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Rose, of Murray street school.

The President outlined the object of the Union—more efficient work in the teaching of the children of the elementary grades, because it is foundation work. There is a great loss of pupils in many schools, somewhere between the primary classes and the senior classes. Whatever the cause or causes, this fact is calling loudly for the best teaching that can be made possible among these grades.

MEMBERS ENROLLED.

Mr. A. T. Hagerman, of the Normal teaching staff, has kindly consented to take charge of the senior class. Eighteen names were enrolled, and any others who desire to join the class, whether teachers or pupils, or mothers, will be very welcome.

Miss Monroe, of St. Paul's school, made a splendid argument for the graded lessons, as she has seen using them for some years, she could speak with conviction. At least three more schools have decided to introduce this series into their elementary grades.

Samples of the graded course were upon the table; also a copy of the new song book by Carey Bonner.

After appointment of committees the meeting closed with prayer. The next meeting will be held the first Tuesday in November in the same place.

MUNICIPAL FUEL DEPARTMENT SUGGESTED BY LABOR COUNCIL

The regular monthly meeting of the Trades and Labor Council was held last evening in Labor Hall, a good attendance of representatives being present. Considerable routine business was transacted, and Secretary Thos. Dark presented a sheaf of correspondence, some of which elicited a spirited discussion. A letter from the striking tailors of Toronto was referred to the consideration of the several local unions.

The Council decided unanimously in favor of the formation of a Provincial Federation of Labor.

J. M. Galbraith, the secretary of the committee that had charge of the program on Labir Day, presented a report of receipts and expenditures. Notwithstanding the unsuitable weather of the day, there will be a nice balance in favor of the treasury. Secretary Galbraith received the thanks of the Council for his work and a cash token of appreciation. Thos. Dark and D. Wires were appointed on the trustee board to take the place of retiring members. J. M. Galbraith was elected treasurer of the trustee board in place of representative Hugh Robertson, who has left the city. An important item of business was the decision of the Council to ask the City Council to move toward the establishment of a municipal fuel department. Some were in favor of inaugurating a co-operative movement to bring about desired results, but it was decided finally to ask the City Council to take the matter up. A committee was appointed to arrange for a series of entertainments during the coming winter.

The thanks of the Council were tendered to all who had given prizes for the Labor Day demonstration.

NEW REGULATIONS FOR RURAL MAIL COURIERS

Must Sell Postage Stamps and Supply Money Orders and Postal Notes on Application, the Forms of Which Are to be Placed in the Boxes—Delivery of Registered Letters.

On the 1st October last the new regulations under which the rural mail Couriers must sell postage stamps and also purchase Money Orders and Postal Notes for the patrons who may request them went into effect and henceforth a courier will have to provide himself out of his own funds with a small supply of stamps in order to be able to furnish stamps when a demand is made upon him by a person of his route or routes.

A small booklet will be supplied to every rural mail courier in order to facilitate the carrying of the stamps.

As regards Money Orders and Postal Notes the Department has caused to be printed blank forms of application for same in bundles of ten. A bundle will be placed in every box so that the patrons may fill them out as desired by them and thus simplify the courier's task who will then have only to sign the receipt for the money received by him and hand same to the patron. The Courier will on reaching the distributing office purchase the Money Order or Postal Note and take it to the purchaser's box on the next trip or, if preferred by the patron, there will be no objection to the latter giving the Courier the open letter in which the Money Order or Postal Note is to be enclosed and thus forward same to the addressee at once.

Blank forms of application should however, be carried by the Courier so that he may be able to meet any demand from patrons of his route.

The Courier must also accept for registration any article offered him properly pre-paid as such by any of the patrons of his route and must give a receipt for same from a small book which will be furnished him for that purpose.

As regards the delivery of registered articles, a notice will be sent by the Postmaster, or the distributing office when such article reaches his office, that it will be sent by the following trip of the courier, and advising the patron to meet him at the box and give a receipt for the article on a card which will be filled in by the Postmaster or the distributing office.

If the patron fails to meet the courier at the appointed time the registered article should be taken back to the distributing office, and a second notice sent to the patron telling him such article will be held there until he has either called for it or given further instructions as to its disposal.

A small bag with shoulder strap will be supplied to every rural mail courier for the carrying of these forms and stamps, and a small registered book. These will be sent at a later date.

SIDELIGHTS FROM GAME IN BOSTON

Boston, Oct. 9.—Fletcher was broken-hearted to-night over his poor game at shortstop for New York. Two of his three glaring errors aided materially in the making of runs for the Red Sox.

Wagner starred at shortstop for Boston, accepting ten chances, and executing a brilliant play in the ninth innings when ,on the dead run he speared Fletcher's grounder with his gloved hand, turned, and with a rifle-shot throw that Stahl took with one hand, nailed Fletcher at first.

There was an unusual bit of base-running in the game, for a world's series contest, five bags being stolen. Of these Hooper stole two and Stahl one for the Red Sox, while Snodgrass and Herzog each beat Carrigan's throws.

Hooper ,for the Red Sox, had a field day. He knocked out three hits, stole two bases, scored once, and gathered in three flies in the outfield. Murray and Herzog were heavy hitters for the Giants. Murray duplicated his work of yesterday with the stick, by hammering out a single, a double and a triple. Herzog also garnered a single, a two-bagger and a three-bagger, and sent up a sacrifice fly opportunely.

Mathewson's control was perfect, He did not issue a base on balls, and fanned four men. Doyle played a scintillating game at second for New York.

"We have stopped the Red Sox on their home grounds," said Manager McGraw to-night, "and the team is very well satisfied. We have shown that the Giants are game, and that gameness is going to count a great deal more before the series is over."

"The Red Sox have always felt that Mathewson was the one man they had to beat," said Manager Jake Stahl to-night. "I think today's game, while it did not end in a victory, shows that we can hit the New Yorker. His work to-day must have tired him out."

AUTO WENT OVER IN DITCH

Party From Norwood Fair Met With Mishap

Mr. Kelly, of Bridgenorth, was returning home from the Norwood fair yesterday in his auto with a party of five, including a couple of ladies, when, owing to the muddy and slippery state of the roads, his car skidded and turned over into a deep ditch bordering the road. The car was going slowly at the time, and the driver was unable to turn the machine out on to the road. The ladies stayed with the car. Nobody was injured and the little incident served to enliven what might have been otherwise a rather dreary trip.

STATEMENT BY HORSEMAN REGARDING MILLBROOK RACES

The Two Directs Won Races —Generous Display of Exhibits.

The following letter has been received with the request for publication—

To The Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir—I notice in last evening's Review an explanation for why there were no races in Millbrook. I am sorry to have to contradict the statements of Messrs. Kelly and McGill, the president and the secretary of the Fair. In the first place, the race was never called. The horsemen simply left the grounds when they received such coldness from the officials. As for them saying that they would pay the expenses of the 2.40 class horses, that is a false statement as I was the manager of the 2.40 horse, and no such offer did I receive. They did not tell the public that they wanted 7 entries in the free-for-all at the rate of $13 for each horse, and only pay out three monies, where the most of places nowadays pays out six monies, as is advertised for the meeting in Toronto. Furthermore, they did not explain the condition of their track and that it is a three laps track. Three horses in one race and four in another would be a lot safer. I might say that the horsemen are going to have a say from this out, on such things as cutting the purse, such as was done here at our Fair, and putting men on the stand contrary to the horsemen's wishes. I would advise, not only Millbrook committee, but all other committees to at least see that each horseman gets British fair play. It was too plainly the other way in a great many cases of late.

Yours respectfully,
Manager of free-for-all and 2.40 horse.

RAIN DID NOT PREVENT SUCCESS OF NORWOOD FAIR

Although it rained steadily all the afternoon, Norwood Fair yesterday was pronounced to have been fully as successful as in previous years. Every event that was announced was pulled off and the people remained out in the drizzling rain to watch the judging and the horse races.

Of the latter there were two events, a fre-for-all and a green race. As was expected "Jim Direct" romped home a winner in the first event in each heat. "Picket Boy" carried off second money and "Bourbon Brook" had to be satisfied with the third share. There were just the three entries.

In the green race "Billy Direct," owned by James Elmhirst of Keene, a black mare, owned by Henry Elmhirst, and a farmer's horse, provided some fair racing.

"Billy Direct" won two out of the three heats and took first money. The black mare was second and the farmer's steed, third.

Dr. Johnston claims that the Fair was one of the best he has ever seen in Norwood, and that the hosts of spectators seemed to be of the same feeling. The agricultural exhibits were exceptionally healthy in appearance and the fancy work class was also well represented.

The midway was also very large, and plentifully attractive. The proprietors of the games did a flourishing business and netted big profits.

A rather lamentable accident occurred just after the judging of the best lady driving outfits was over. One of the ladies, in a smart runabout, was driving on the track and in turning quickly, the front wheel struck and upset the vehicle. The horse took fright, threw the fair driver out and tore away off into a far corner of the grounds, where it was finally extricated. The biggest damage was suffered by the runabout, which was badly smashed. The lady escaped practically unhurt.

The financial end of the Fair, considering the weather, was very pleasing to the directors.

The Fireplace in Summer.

The fireplace in summer is always somewhat of a worry to the housewife. This, however, by a little trouble can be converted into a really artistic spot. A Japanese pot of quaint design filled with branches of copper beech is very beautiful, or the fireplace can be made into a miniature rockery. Fresh green ferns arranged in tiers, with shells or pebbles to hide the pots, is all that is needed, and it is surprising the cool, refreshing look these give to a room in summer if kept free from dust and in a healthy condition.

A Hymeneal Expert.

Sir Samuel T. Evans is one of the greatest experts in Great Britain on matrimonial problems. As President of the Divorce Court he passes his days listening to tales of woe, and no judge is harder worked. But he is never depressed, and refuses to answer the question as [illegible] being a failure in the affirmative.

This keen-witted judge started his legal career as a solicitor. Realizing that the Bar offered more scope, he changed over, and was so successful that he took silk in the remarkably short space of nine years. He was the last Q. C. to be appointed. For over twenty years he represented Glamorganshire in Parliament, and was Solicitor-General from 1908-10, when he took his place on the Bench.

By his hat shall you know Sir Samuel Evans. No matter how fashions may change in toppers he clings to a weird type of headgear which is flat in the brim and tall in the crown, something like those hats you see on women dressed in Welsh costume.

Mr. James Brown, for 42 years head verger of St. Paul's Cathedral has retired.

Daytime Jewelry of Amber.

Amber is at present a very highly favored item of daytime jewelry. It is seen as the baton head, globular in shape and of a medium size, and is the ornament of combs and broochs.

Magical properties were believed to be ascribable to amber in former times, and there were wearers of the beads who vowed they were saved by them from that tedious and troublesome complaint, hay fever. The new delight found in amber is traceable not to any [illegible], but to the fashion for every shade of gold, through all the gradations from the most pallid to the most radiant tint.—London Mail.

The Soldier Laddie.

He was a soldier laddie,
And he stood erect and grand,
With toes turned out and cap a-tilt
And musket in his hand.
Oh, the way he held his musket
Was indeed beyond compare,
Such fitness, such precision,
Such a military air!

Was his musket a real Mauser?
Was his coat of khaki made?
Was the frown upon his forehead
One to make a foe afraid?
No. His jacket and his musket
And the cap upon his head—
In fact, this soldier laddie
Was all made of gingerbread.

Winnipeg, Oct. 10—Dr. E. R. Grieveson, a well-known medical practitioner, was arrested at midnight on a charge of assault sworn out by Dr. A. H. Silverman.

Silverman says he was seated in his office Tuesday night when Grieveson and another man entered and locked the door after them. He says that Grieveson then seized a heavy inkstand and struck him in the face, knocking out two teeth, and that then Grieveson seized him by the throat and pointed a knife at his breast and compelled the latter to write a retraction of a statement Grieveson apparently claims Silverman had made in connection with an alleged scandal.

SENTENCE OF THIRTY YEARS

Antonio D'Alba Attempted to Assassinate King Victor Emmanuel

Rome, Oct. 1.—Antonio D'Alba was sentenced to thirty years solitary confinement for attempting to assassinate King Victor Emmanuel on March 14.

D'Alba is a day laborer, and can neither read nor write. He was a convert to anarchy, however, and told the court that his comrades chose him to attempt the killing of the king, and would have killed him had he refused. The police could find no evidence in corroboration of this story and gave it to the court as their opinion that the prisoner had no accomplice.

D'Alba fired three revolver shots at the king, as he and the queen were driving from the palace to the Pantheon to attend a memorial mass for his majesty's father, King Humbert, assassinated by the anarchist Bresci in 1900. Major Langa, commanding the royal cavalry escort, was badly wounded by one of the bullets.

The condemned man will spend the next thirty years, if he lives, in a rounded cell, that there may not be even a corner to break the monotony, lighted from the top, without ever seeing a human face, and absolutely without occupation. Even his food will be passed to him through a compartment designed to prevent him from seeing his jailer. Prisoners so confined almost invariably soon go insane.

ELECTION CROOKS ARE DENOUNCED IN MANITOBA

Mysterious List of Voters Names With Marks, Taken From Man Under Arrest — Says He is Nephew of "Cap" Sullivan, Who Flourished in Days of Ross Government.

Winnipeg Oct. 9.—There is again something of a [illegible] in the Macdonald campaign. The chief talk centres around the arrest of the man Sullivan, the imported Saskatchewan election operator. The [illegible] at Carman had some very interesting papers on his person.

Among the documents were [illegible] sheets of names of electors who were to be "seen," four of the sheets being lists of residents of Poll 35 and two at Brookdale. Opposite each name was the number which it occupied on the voters' list, while mysterious marks, the meaning of which Sullivan alone knows, were placed against the majority.

Sullivan did not attempt to hide his identity. He told the officers who arrested him that he had come to Carman to do election work, and he admitted that he was a nephew of "Cap" Sullivan a veteran election operator who flourished in the days of the Ross Government in Ontario.

Sullivan did not relish the idea of having his list of electors taken away from him.

"It's of no use to any person else" he told the detective "as nobody but myself knows the meaning of the marks."

At a reciprocity meeting at Brooklands last evening Mr. T. H. Johnson said that two reputable citizens along with a magistrate, went to the Provincial jail yesterday afternoon and asked for the release of Sullivan. The request was refused. Mr Johnson also said that Marshal Jackson the detective, who kept Magistrate McMeeken from releasing Sullivan was in the employ of the Roblin Government and received thousands of dollars every year from the Government. Dr. Clark, M.P. Red Deer, also spoke, and put up a strong plea for reciprocity.

PREMIER ROBLIN IS HITTING HARD.

In the meantime Sir Rodmond Roblin is continuing his pungent references to the Liberals in general and [illegible] Frank Oliver in particular. Last night he was at M[illegible] in company with Dr. Roch. Tonight he speaks at Roland and tomorrow he winds up his campaign at Carman.

Sir Rodmond is making vehement attacks in his speeches this week about the alleged treasonable character of the campaign which is being put up against Mr. Morrison. Speaking at Mariapolis on Monday night, Sir Rodmond said: "The attack is engineered is organized and is financed by the secessionists and annexationists and the Americanized element of Saskatchewan and Alberta but more particularly Saskatchewan."

A MUSICAL TREAT IS PROMISED AT BAND CONCERT IN ARMOURIES

Some idea of the excellency of the program that will feature the General Brock centenary celebration on Friday night may be obtained by a perusal of the following.

It will open with the famous United Empire March, followed by the grand patriotic fantasia "Under the British Flag." This is a collection of Songs and Dances of Great Britain and her colonies, the synopsis of which is—

Introduction—National Anthem

Great Britain—English song, "The Dashing White Sergeant," Irish Song, "I'm the Boy for Bewitching them." Welsh song, "Fair Cambria" Scotch song, "Here's a health to one I lo' best." (Carionet solo with vocal accompaniment.)

Canada— (a) The Canadian National Song. "The Maple Leaf for Ever." (b) "Vive la Canadienne," French Canadian.

Hong Kong—Chinese Flower Song "Mo-lee-wha."

Burmah— National Air, "Kayah Than."

East India— (a) Mand Song. (b) Hindustani Air.

Australia— "The Australian National song, "There is a Land where Summer skies."

South Africa—An evening in camp (Thoughts of Far-off Home.) (a) song, "Isle of Beauty," cornet solo with vocal accompaniment, (b) Kaffir Dance.

New Zealand—The National Song, "God Defend New Zealand."

Finale—Sailors' Dance, "Hornpipe." "Rule Britannia."

After the playing of the above selection, "The Maple Leaf," and "O Canada," will be played and the thoroughly patriotic concert will fittingly conclude with the celebrated "Voyage in a Troopship."

The band, with Mr Gliddon director, have exerted every effort to make the program as patriotic and loyal as possible. They will hold their final rehearsal to-night.

HEAVY LOSSES

Suffered by Turks in Engagement With Greeks

Special To The Review.

London, Oct. 10.—Heavy losses were inflicted on Turkish troops by a band of Greeks, numbering about one thousand, who to-day attacked a Turkish frontier post, near D'Hisihata, according to a news agency despatch from Salonica.

To Dam Long Sault.

Brockville, Oct. 10.—Harry Acres, engineer of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, accompanied by C. T. Wilkinson, manager of the Brockville light and water department, and George J. Staley, an engineer of the Long Sault Development Co., made an inspection of the proposed damming of the Long Sault Rapids where it is proposed to develop many thousand horsepower of electrical energy. The party left here in a launch, running the South Sault Rapids and returning by the Cornwall Canal.

Wooing Cinderella

It Wasn't a Very Hard Task After All.

By RUTH SAWTELLE.

Scarcely had Dudley forced his breathless way through the thicket into the little cleared space at the edge of the bluff when a young voice assailed him.

"I thought you would come before long. You are the prince, of course?"

He wheeled with a start and stared. She sat on a low rock, looking straight at him out of smiling brown eyes. There was a general impression of brownness. It seemed to be a gown of some shimmery brown stuff—or was it gold?—and a kind of aureole of fluffy light brown hair. How the deuce did a girl get up that cliff? About how nearly a puffing porpoise had he sounded, anyway? Pity a man couldn't keep track of his breath! He'd go into training on that hill till he could take it on the run without turning a hair—he would, by Jove! Must be something the matter with her eyes. He'd never seen—that is to say, they sort of—

"You said yes, didn't you?" she interrupted sweetly. "Surely you must be the prince."

"I beg your pardon," began Dudley, suddenly realizing that she had asked a question some minutes ago and that an answer was expected of him. "The prince, you say? I've never been accused before, you know." And then, in a flash of comprehension, "Most assuredly I am the prince—if you are the princess," he finished triumphantly.

The brown eyes twinkled into his more distractingly than before.

"Oh, not at all!" she laughed. "I'm only poor Cinderella."

"Cinderella?" questioned Dudley, looking the mystification he felt.

"Why, yes—you see"— She hesitated. And then a very wonderful thing happened. A line of rosiest pink appeared just above the brown collar and crept up stealthily, enveloping the tiny ear, dashing into flame on the white brow and hiding at last in the light hair that blew about her face. Dudley, fascinated, watched its progress and forgave the intrusion.

"Of course it's very simple, only disgracefully stupid of me. And"—sitting up straight and suddenly becoming very brave—"I'm not in the least afraid to tell you."

Dudley mumbled suitable assurances, while the girl moved uneasily on her rocky throne and continued to look brave.

"I just—I only—the flower was way over the edge of the bluff, and—I held on to a branch and leaned down—and—my heel got wedged by a stone—and"—There was a tentative shifting of the shimmery skirts, then a hasty motion of withdrawal beneath them. "And I—I—lost the mate to that!" she finished, with desperate courage, thrusting into sight the other foot, incased in a stout little brown walking boot.

Two furious blushes were in full operation by this time.

Dudley gazed fixedly at the small trim boot. "You say the one you lost was just like this?" he questioned, with great solemnity.

"Oh, no; it belonged to the left foot, you know," she responded, with corresponding earnestness.

And then came the welcome relief of laughter, under the relaxing influence of which Dudley sank upon the edge of the rock.

"I only meant to suggest," he announced fervently, "my unbelief that there could be another like it in the world."

"Bravo, bravo!" she applauded gayly. "That is pretty enough to savor of much practice in such speaking."

Dudley's ardent expression was replaced by one of due submission to rebuke.

"It is meet," [illegible] sought a capacious coat pocket and disappeared therein, "that the downtrodden should arise to do thee service. Perhaps I can aid you better than you know."

"I'm sure you can," she interposed hastily. "But let me tell my plan first. I couldn't let you go to find it and leave me helpless and alone again."

"Of course not." Dudley's face assumed a thoughtful expression, and his hand slowly left the big pocket. "I—a—hardly suppose you could borrow mine."

Again her bright laughter rang out. "Oh, flattery, where is thy sting?" she cried gaspingly. And Dudley, looking ruefully from his own generous boot to the adorable mateless one, realized that once more he'd "put his foot in it."

"Forgiven," she declared in a moment, "because of the pretty one you said first. And so, to go back to our muttons, I see only one way. And yet, of course, it's such a little distance—the camp's just back in the trees there—I could hop on one foot, I suppose."

She paused mischievously for the mere pleasure of regarding his look of frank disappointment; also to observe whether it occurred to him to wonder why, with friends so near, she had not called for help.

"But I should be sure," she relented, "to lose my balance and let the wrong foot down." Dudley brightened perceptibly. "And it's very stony and I know would hurt dreadfully. So after all there is just the one way, as I said."

She tilted the lonely boot back and forth on its heel and regarded it pensively. Dudley did likewise. When this had gone on long enough she raised to him an expectant look.

"Yes," he said, almost mournfully, "there only remains for me to help you. I suppose I ought," he continued, while his hand moved again ever so haltingly toward the pocket, then rapidly away from it, "to—to"—

"Oh, pray don't feel any obligation in the matter!" was the hint, with just a bit of ice in the tone.

"To avail myself of the most fortunate opportunity that ever befell an undeserving beggar!" he finished, laughing hilariously as he assisted her to her feet—that is to say, her foot.

Mere words cannot approximate the delight of that trip in the neighboring (much too neighboring) camp. They laughed like children and clutched each other in frantic mirth. And with what exceeding care and deliberateness it was necessary to proceed! The most inoffensive pebble was occasion for a wide detour, in spite of the lamentable fact that it increased the distance. And did the little unshod silken foot so much as caress the ground in its wabbling career Dudley was ready to weep in worshipful contrition. It was almost too much joy to discover in the course of the hysterical conversation that this was Tom Hutton's ranch—dear old Tom that he hadn't seen since the college days—and Cinderella his wife's guest.

But, as all pleasant moments come to an end, so must this, as Cinderella dropped, tired, but still merry, into a chair on the bungalow piazza.

"And then the prince," he said slowly, looking down upon her with compelling eyes, "caused his heralds—no; I think you know what the prince did without my telling you."

"Ah," she cried, her own eyes falling under his scrutiny, "but first you've to find the slipper."

"Yes, first I've to find the slipper. And when it is found I've the advantage of knowing where dwells Cinderella—and that the slipper will fit."

"Which last is yet to be proved!"—teasingly.

"May I put it to the test?" he begged.

"Oh, Faintheart!" she whispered mockingly. "Try and see."

Whereat Dudley began a most peculiar course of behavior. Going quickly around the corner of the cabin, he bumped his head softly several times against the logs, gave himself a violent shake and then strode through the trees to the low rock in the little cleared space at the edge of the bluff. Sitting down, he plunged an empty hand into the deep pocket and brought it out full of a stout brown walking boot of small dimensions.

To his credit be it said that there was self denunciation in his aspect as he sat turning it miserably over and over. Oh, yes; of course he'd had it there all the while. Well, hadn't he tried to let her have it at the very first, and didn't she keep interrupting till he couldn't—that is to say, didn't want to? Suppose he was the biggest cad on record, he'd wager no fellow ever had a better excuse! Hang it! What did she have to look at him that way for? How could he deliberately hand the thing over and put an end to the happiest few moments he'd ever spent, or ever expected to spend, for that matter? For surely by this foolishness he'd dished any prospects of further acquaintance about as effectively as possible. Well, anyhow, this was torture; might as well have the confession over with and go off and shoot himself.

In three minutes he was back. The trial trip had taken twenty to navigate. She was waiting and still alone. Oh, yes; rub it in! She might have cared if he hadn't spoiled it all.

"Most eager knight!" she called in greeting. "Was it wings? Nothing else could have taken you down the ravine and up again in this time."

For answer he knelt without a word and put the fateful shoe in place with elaborate care. He would have that privilege before he forfeited her favor forever. Then—

"I found it in the ravine before I climbed up at all," he said abruptly. "[illegible] pocket all the while. Now send me away, for I can't go unless you do."

But Cinderella leaned forward to take his remorseful face between two butterfly hands.

"Oh, boy, boy," she cried softly, "most innocent of boys! Did you think I didn't know? I saw you pick it up down below—no, you shall have all the truth; it fell—I let it fall because I saw you!"

Just then Tom Hutton, coming around the corner of the house, decided he could quite as well postpone his errand.

TACTICAL SURVEY OF THE COUNTRY

Being Taken by Major Hordern and 57th Officers

The officers of the 57th Regiment, accompanied by Major Hordern, left in automobiles for an afternoon's tactical survey of the country east of Peterborough at 2 o'clock this afternoon. When some distance out in the country they will discard their automobiles and manoeuvre as though each officer had men under his command. One idea of the outing is that there may be real manoeuvres carried out with the men in the same part of the country and the knowledge gained will be of great use to the officers.

Major Hordern leaves to-morrow for Belleville where he will carry out the same work with the officers of the 15th Regiment.

BATEMAN IS TO HANG DECEMBER 13

Justice Latchford Declines to Consider the Jury's Recommendation to Mercy But Places the Date of the Hanging Far Enough Ahead to Permit of an Appeal for Clemency Being Made by Counsel.

Whitby, Oct. 11.—John Bateman, 77 years old, for forty years a resident of Toronto, was yesterday afternoon sentenced to be hanged on December 19 for the murder of his aged wife at Oshawa.

He stood upright in the dock as the jury returned from the consideration of his case, having been out 35 minutes. He was pale. His hand trembled, and his arms twitched. His snowy white beard touched the dock rail as he leaned towards the judge's seat. His gray hair was ruffled by listless rubbing and he presented a dejected appearance. The jury announced their verdict. A rider asking the mercy of the court had no effect.

"What have you to say why the sentence of the court should not be passed upon you?" Justice Latchford asked.

"Just this," Bateman replied, his voice trembling with emotion, "I never intended to kill that woman."

There was a momentary pause and the judge continued:

"A jury of your fellow countrymen have found you guilty of the crime of murder. You have had a fair trial. You have been exceptionally well defended by your counsel, Mr. Conant. Everything that a counsel could say and do has been said and done in your behalf. No other conclusion was possible for any jury to arrive at than which has been given upon the evidence. I have no desire to add to the seriousness of your situation by reminding you of its horror.

"The jury has made a recommendation for mercy. Mercy is a function of the crown. I can hold out no expectation to you, whatever, that mercy will be exercised. What you should do, it seems to me, is to prepare yourself in the interval of life that is left, for the ending that must come to you, if the quality of mercy is not exerted by the crown in your behalf."

Bateman sat down as though dazed and was a minute later taken out to the jail.

Before the passing of sentence, Mr. Conant asked that as long a time as possible be given the doomed man, as he intended to make application for clemency, and the court acceded to this request by placing the execution date so far ahead.

"It is not often that twelve men are charged with the serious responsibility as that which rests upon you," said Justice Latchford in his address to the jury. "It is not often that such responsibility is attended with such little difficulty as in the present case. The prisoner stands charged with the murder of his wife, and the question you have to determine is did the prisoner kill his wife? Now, can any of you, upon evidence, have the slightest difficulty in answering that question?"

The judge explained the law of the different degrees of murder. Taking up Mr. Conant's appeal for a verdict of manslaughter, he said: "There is not one jot or tittle of evidence, that I can see, which would justify a reduction of this crime to one of manslaughter. If there is, you are free to apply it, but I can't see it."

McMANIGAL IDENTIFIED

Indianapolis, Oct. 11.—For the first time since he confessed to dynamiting, Ortie A. McManigal was before a jury in the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday, was identified by hotel clerks as having visited various cities at times when explosions occurred.

H. E. Pearce of Kansas City, Mo., in the pages of a hotel register, traced "J. W. McGraw" as having registered at a Kansas City hotel Aug. 20, 1910, three days before McManigal blew up a portion of a $1,500,000 bridge across the Missouri River, which, he says, was arranged for by W. Bert Brown of Kansas City and James B. McNamara.

"Do you see McGraw in the courtroom?" asked James W. Noel, special assistant district attorney.

"That's the man," said Pearce, pointing straight to McManigal.

R. J. Quigley of Duluth, Minn., identified McManigal as a visitor at a Duluth hotel in July, 1910, shortly before an explosion at Superior, Wis. F. W. Gates said McManigal was the "Judge Brice" who frequently registered at a hotel at Rochester. Pa- near which the later were discovered quantities of nitro-glycerine hidden in a shed.

Engineer Wright Resigns.

London, Ont., Oct. 11.—Geo. Wright, engineer of the city of London for the past three years, resigned yesterday, and in an eight-page letter alleges interference with the affairs of his department. The letter criticises Mayor Graham.

Mr. Wright came here from Toronto and has held important posts with the municipality there. His father is a resident of Toronto at the present time. By the drowning of his uncle on the Titanic he inherited about $18,000. At the present time the engineer is at Gravenhurst, suffering from a general breakdown as a result of working in water when the city was threatened by flood. He is the only engineer the city ever had that made a personal inspection of the interior of the sewers.

Dr. Carret Gets Nobel Prize.

Stockholm, Oct. 11.—The Nobel prize for medicine this year has been awarded to Dr. Alexis Carret of the Rockefeller Institute, New York. The award, it is announced, is made in recognition of his achievements in the suture of blood vessels and the transplanting of organs.

The Nobel prize is valued at $39,000.

RATE CASE NOW STANDS ADJOURNED

Lawyers Will Have Until Nov. 4 to Go Over Evidence.

Cross-Examination of Witnesses Will Be Proceeded With When Hearing Is Resumed—C.P.R. Has Had to Bear the Brunt of the Testimony—Railroads Will Probably Be Required to Justify Their Rates.

Ottawa, Oct. 11.—With the completion of the presentation of the case of the G.T.P., which followed that of the C.P.R. and C.N.R., the western freight enquiry, which has been conducted all week before the Railway Board, was adjourned yesterday afternoon, to meet again Nov. 4.

Although witnesses have been called and evidence given by all three railways, it is understood that none of them has closed its case as yet and may call further witnesses. However, when the enquiry opens next month the cross-examination of those already heard by the array of counsel which represents the different Governments and organizations interested will probably begin. The adjournment will give the latter time to go over the mass of figures presented by the railways, including rate reductions and comparisons, statements of variations in density of traffic east and west and higher cost of operation.

To the C.P.R. has been left the greater part of the responsibility for the presentation of the railways' defence. It is the only road which has at present a transcontinental line, and is therefore more directly interested in the allegation of discrimination. The evidence brought out by the C.N.R. and G.T.P. has been in the main corroborative. There have been two exceptions, however, the C.N.R. endeavoring to show that it is on a different financial basis from the C.P.R. and the G.T.P., laying stress on the fact that if rates are reduced it will not be able to build the branch lines demanded by people of the west.

There is every indication that the enquiry will shortly be broadened to include not only the mere question of discrimination, but the broader one of justification of rates as well. The burden of proof as regards discrimination was thrown on the railways at a previous session by M. W. Cowan, representing Alberta and Saskatchewan.

The statement was made yesterday by the railways that any decrease of tariffs will wipe out their surpluses, though whether this will be borne out by the evidence presented is something in regard to which the prosecution will, of course, have much to say.

D. B. Hanna, vice-president and general manager of the C.N.R., continued his evidence yesterday morning.

Saskatchewan and Alberta, said the witness, demanded branch lines, which, if all asked for were built, would put the C.N.R. down and out financially. Branch lines were not a paying proposition and part of the cost of their operation came from the earnings of the main lines.

The C.N.R. grain rates in the west of Canada were more favorable than those in the western states. The rates were framed on the basis of making the lowest possible charge on the chief product of the [illegible] farmer.

Hon. E. H. Phippen examined the witness in regard to the rate comparisons submitted by the C.N.R. They are made up in great part of comparisons of rates on the C.N.R. in the Canadian west with those of the Great Northern in Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana. They showed that for similar distances the C.N.R. carries coal, lumber, live stock, implements and all articles in which the farmer is interested for less than the rate charged by the Great Northern.

Mr. Hanna contended that it had been the object of the railways to frame these rates in such a way as to assist the farmers and in so doing help the country's prosperity. They had worked in sympathy with the western provincial and Dominion Governments to meet the west's great cry —more railway facilities.

A PICTORIAL CALL TO BUSINESS

The engraving appears on a mammoth postal card announcing the Annual Meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club, on Wednesday evening, Oct. 16th, at Bank of Montreal Chambers. This beautiful picture is the work, in collaboration of Mr. J. H. Ferguson, Mr. Fred Roy and the City Engineer. It does the quartette, Messrs. Connal, Brightman, Stevenson and Ferguson proud. The attitude and expression is characteristic of each player, all well-known and engaging curlers. They contemplate, as they should, in admiration, the Sailor Boy Prize, the gift of Mr. Cameron, "Come awa wi' us."

MONTENEGRINS ARE JUBILANT OVER VICTORY

The Allied States Are Still Inactive and the European Powers Are Perplexed at the Situation — Turkey Invited to Consider a Program of Reforms for Macedonia — Turks Reported to Have Surrendered.

London, Oct. 11—Montenegro claims the first victory in the Balkan war by the capture of the strong Turkish position on Detchitch Mountain, whose commander surrendered yesterday with the bulk of the forces. Montenegrin also crossed the frontier near Berana, and according to Turkish account, have been repulsed.

The situation meanwhile is as puzzling as before. No declaration of war has been issued by the other allied Balkan states, and there is no news yet of their Ministers having left Constantinople. It cannot, therefore, be definitely said whether Montenegro has acted independently, with the motive of forcing a conflict, so as to render the powers' efforts to preserve peace negatory, or in accordance with a strategic plan arranged by the Balkan coalition.

The powers yesterday presented a collective note, inviting Turkey to discuss a scheme for reforms in Macedonia. It appears, however, as though, while diplomacy is trying to arrange the matter peacefully guns will decide it for them.

Fresh Bulgarian attacks on Turkish frontier towns are reported, and the opinion is growing that the opposing parties are only using diplomatic delays to concentrate their forces in readiness for the inevitable outbreak.

The statement of the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, Count von Berchthold, in the Hungarian delegation yesterday, that Austria is prepared to guard her interests in the Balkans at all hazards, has created a sensation in European capitals, as an indication that the powers may be unble to confine themselves to the policy of merely holding the ropes.

The Frankfurter Zeitung publishes a sensational report that Greece will withdraw from the Balkan agreement and demobilize, but this is hardly credited here. Both Greece and Turkey are trying to purchase the Chinese cruiser Chao Ho, recently built at Newcastle.

Fought For Thirty Hours.

Podgoritza, Montenegro, Oct. 11.—The Montenegrins have captured Detchitch Mountains. The Turkish commanders and officers with many soldiers have surrendered.

For the past thirty hours the battle between the Montenegrin forces, under the direct command of King Nicholas, and Turkish troops strongly entrenched in the hills has been in progress. The fight began at eight o'clock Wednesday morning.

Strongly fortified positions were occupied by the Turks, however, on Detchitch Mountain, which commands the road to Scutaria, and reinforcements were brought up, which resulted in a general engagement, which extended along the line for several miles.

King Nicholas remained at his headquarters at Podgoritza, while Crown Prince Danilo directed operations at the front. The Montenegrins resumed the bombardment of Detchitch at dawn and a heavy canonading was kept up until 11 o'clock in the morning, when the Turkish batteries on the mountain were silenced.

In the meantime a great battle was proceeding near the Turkish town of Tuski, about 15 miles to the south of Podgoritza. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the Turkish commander on Detchitch, with his officers and a majority of his troops, surrendered. The Montenegrins captured four guns.

Investigating Death.

Belleville, Oct. 11.—A coroner's jury will investigate the death of James Doyle, aged 55, who passed away on Wednesday night.

On Sept. 21 Doyle was assaulted by a young man named Thomas Harding, who was found guilty of the offence, and was to have received sentence Wednesday, but owing to his assailant's serious condition, was further remanded to jail for a week. As to the direct cause of death the investigation will no doubt determine it.

It is alleged in some quarters that the beating he received at the hands of Harding hastened death, while on the other hand it is stated that death was the result of an attack of pneumonia. The jury after being empanelled adjourned without any evidence being submitted.

To Stay an Extra Year?

London, Oct. 11.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—It is almost certain that the Duke of Connaught's term in Canada will extend another year, says Truth, which is generally reliable in such matters. "It is very desirable that he should be at the head of the Canadian Government when the Prince of Wales and Prince Albert visit Canada in 1914. An extension of the duke's term will be very popular in Canada. The duchess and Princess Patricia are coming in April for a few weeks' visit to England and will visit the Crown Prince and Princess of Sweden at Stockholm. Probably the latter will visit Canada next autumn."

Authorities Do Not Know How His Release Came About.

Special To The Review.

Winnipeg, Oct. 11.—J. J. Sullivan, the election worker in the interest of Richardson in the Macdonald bye-election, was released on condition that he refrain from working further in the election, and that he leave the province. He refuses to go until discharged by the magistrate. The magistrate who committed him and refused bail, and Governor Lindsay of the provincial prison, say they know nothing of how his release came about. Sullivan says he was taken out of custody by O. H. Forrester, said to be a friend of Sir Rodmond Roblin. A provincial officer accompanies Important Decision Regarding Rates for A.O.U.W.

Special To The Review

Toronto, Oct. 11.—Justice Riddell this morning granted the application for an injunction restraining the Grand Lodge of the A.O.U.W. from putting into effect the increase in the rates ratified by that body last summer until a hearing of the suit to determine the legality of such action is heard. Justice Riddell also orders a speedy trial.

A WAITER NAMES THREE

New York, Oct. 11.—The trial of Charles Becker, former police lieutenant, for the murder of Rosenthal, the gambler, began in earnest yesterday. The jury was completed with the selection of the twelfth juror, District Attorney Whitman made his opening address for the people, and the taking of testimony was begun.

Louis Krause, a Hunganian waiter, was the star witness. He was called by the state as an eye-witness of the murder and identified in the courtroom three of the gunmen.

Krause's identification of the three gunmen made a dramatic scene in the courtroom. The four gunmen and Jacob Reich, alias Jack Sullivan, were then brought into court. Krause, who later testified that he received letters threatening his life, and who ever since he testified before the grand jury, has been guarded by a detective, left the witness stand and walked over to the bar where the prisoners were lined up.

"That is Lefty Louie," said Krause, touching the gunman on the shoulder. Successively he identified the other prisoners with the exception of "Dago Frank," and met the angry glare of their eyes without flinching.

Whitman began his address to the jury as soon as the box was filled yesterday.

"So far as we can learn," he said. "None of the four gunmen who killed Rosenthal knew him at all. There was no personal reason for them to desire his death. So far as the actual participants in the killing were concerned, no motive whatever seemed to exist."

Becker listened to his indictment by the district attorney without any noticeable display of feeling. His counsel, John McIntyre, repeatedly interrupted the prosecutor with objections, few of which were sustained. He objected particularly to Mr. Whitman's reference to Becker as "the most desperate criminal of them all."

The court finally reprimanded Mr. McIntyre for "his unseemly interruptions" and ordered him to sit down.

BRUCE IS ACQUITTED

Hamilton, Oct. 11.—"Not guilty" was the verdict returned in the Bruce murder trial at 9.20 last night, after the jury in the case had been out nearly four hours.

With the exception of a slight twitching of his mouth and moistening of his lips as the jury filed into the courtroom to record their verdict, the prisoner displayed the same apparent indifference that has characterized him throughout the case since he was first arrested on a nominal charge of vagrancy on Aug. 11 last. When discharged by Justice Kelly, Bruce hurried out of the courtroom without speaking to anyone and quickly disappeared outside.

Before discharging Bruce, Justice Kelly lectured him on his evident neglect of his wife. "I have no fault to find with the verdict, but the jury might reasonably have found you guilty of the charge against you," said his lordship to the prisoner. "During the trial just closed there have been evidence produced to show that you have not treated your wife as well as you might have done. You have a most solemn duty to perform as the head of a family, and I hope the horrible warning you have just had will induce you to do your duty to your family and wife in the future. You are now discharged," concluded the judge.

The evidence in the case was finished yesterday morning without anything being added to the fact previously disclosed.

James Bruce was placed on the witness stand and told a remarkably straightforward story in his own defence. His evidence could not be shaken in any respect and the witness created a very favorable impression.

E. H. Creswicke, K.C., the crown prosecutor, made a comparatively brief address in summing up the crown's case to the jury. One of the most brilliant forsenic efforts ever heard in the Hamilton courtroom was the three-hour speech of the prisoner's counsel, C. W. Bell. The lawyer presented his arguments in a most logical and forceful manner and made a tremendous impression on the jury and the crowd in the courtroom. His peroration was followed by a spontaneous outburst of enthusiastic applause from the spectators, and it was several minutes before order could be restored in the courtroom.

Justice Kelly's charge to the jury, which was eminently impartial, occupied a half hour, and the jury retired at 5.30 o'clock to deliberate on the case.

Bruce was charged with murdering Rose Zeipe by administering strychnine on Aug. 11 last. On the evening of that day, while visiting the wife of the accused, who was then a patient at the city hospital, Miss Zeipe was taken ill a few minutes after having eaten some chocolates given to her by Mrs. Bruce. It was subsequently shown that the girl died of strychnine poisoning and it was the theory of the crown that Bruce had placed the strychnine in the candies with the intention of administering the poison to his wife, and that Miss Zeipe was the unintentional victim of Bruce's act.

THE FIGHT IS BITTER

Winnipeg, Oct. 11.—The Macdonald bye-election will go down to history as the most bitterly contested election ever held in Manitoba. From the commencement of the campaign the fight has been a heated one.

J. J. Sullivan, alleged to be a worker for the Scott Government, who was placed under arrest at Carman and subsequently lodged in the provincial jail, was released from custody yesterday on condition that he would take no further part in the election. He returned to Regina last night.

Mr. Richardson's committee has addressed no less than three open letters to Sir Rodmond Roblin, challenging him to make good his statements that the constituency swarms with Saskatchewan and Alberta workers. In each instance the Premier has responded with the arrest of Liberal workers.

The second arrest of the week occurred yesterday when Mr. Donald Walkinshaw was brought to Winnipeg on the Souris train. His friends met him at the station, but Detective C. A. C. Ross peremptorily refused to allow him to speak to his friends. They managed, however, to arrange with him to try to secure bail and to get counsel.

Mr. McMurray, who is extremely indignant over the affair, said: "It is a disgrace, a crying shame, and we, as citizens of a free and British country, should resent it. If the law, in the hands of political minions, fails to protect us, then we must become a law unto ourselves and be willing to die, if need be, that we may hand on to our children the traditions of Britain unsullied by tactics of political buccaneers."

Mr. Walkinshaw was later taken to Portage la Prairie.

Bail Is Refused.

Portage la Prairie, Man., Oct. 11.—D. H. Walkinshaw of Rathwell, who was arrested Wednesday at Rathwell for alleged crooked work in connection with the Macdonald bye-election, was brought before Magistrate Marshall yesterday afternoon. He was remanded till Saturday af[illegible]. Bail was not granted.

A LIBERAL RESURRECTION

Under Mr. Rowell's "vigorous and inspiring" leadership, the Ontario Liberal party has been reanimated with a new energy and a new enthusiasm. Almost daily, the Rowell newspapers have assured us in glowing phrase of the infectious spread of zeal for the Liberal cause. In fact, if it were not for such embarrassing incidents as bye-elections it might be gradually borne home to the people that they were practically a solid phalanx behind the Liberal leader, and that Sir James Whitney held office quite against the general will. But as in most cases where such a splendid impression is built up on sand, something happens to tear the mask off, and reveal the situation as it actually is.

Two bye-elections will be held on October 23, one in North Waterloo and one in East Middlesex. On Wednesday, the Liberals of North Waterloo, held a convention to select a candidate. Seven names were proposed, but the gentlemen thus honored, declined with thanks. With the wonderful enthusiasm so recently instilled into the party, the convention resolved to hunt for a candidate, and it would not be at all surprising if it succeeded. In East Middlesex, the Conservatives nominated George W. Neely, and an Independent Conservative candidate announced himself. This Independent, William Sutherland, is a Conservative, but has a personal grudge against the Whitney Government. But here again, the wonderful zeal inspired by Mr. Rowell's leadership permeated the atmosphere. To demonstrate how moved they were at the opportunity to demonstrate their support of the new leader, the Liberals of East Middlesex resolved not to put a candidate in the field but to support the disgruntled Conservative. Both of these instances must strike terror into the heart of Sir James Whitney. If the Liberal party shows the strength and combativeness all over the province that it is displaying in the two bye-elections, it would seem a sad day for the "old un" as Queen's Park.

THE DUKE'S STAY

Truth, of London, says that the term of the Duke of Connaught as Governor-General, will be extended at least another year, in order that he may be here to receive the Prince of Wales and Prince Albert in 1914. Truth is usually well informed on such matters, but what it says will occasion little surprise. The usual term for the Governor-General is five years, but though it was no thought that the Duke of Connaught would remain here the full term, it was, however, expected that he would be in Canada for at least two or three years, and Canadians would have been disappointed if he had been prematurely recalled.

The Duke has won, by his democratic yet dignified bearing, the true admiration of the Canadian people. Trained as he has been, during a long life of public affairs, and official appearances, he knows his role like a book. Not a word or a deed calls for attention by its remissness. His attention to detail, his punctiliousness in the discharge of trifling ceremonial, is thorough. These are not in the minds of most Canadians, the chief qualities of greatness in royalty or any other class of personage. But the Duke has become so interested in the progress of things Canadian, that if he remains for another year or two, he will return to England as Earl Grey did, a thoroughly acclimatized Canadian, and a thorough believer in the national greatness and the prosperous future of this young country.

A WIFE DESERTION PROBLEM

Sir George Rae, chairman of the Government Board of Scotland, has been at Ottawa to inquire if some arrangement cannot be made whereby husbands in Canada who have deserted wives in Scotland cannot be made to contribute to the support of these wives. He says that the number of deserted wives in Glasgow dependent upon public charity is nearly 2,000, and in the whole of Scotland about 9,000. It is evident that there is a gap in the relations of the legal systems of the two countries here that ought to be bridged. There is one remedy, but it is scarcely likely that the Canadian Parliament would consent to such a drastic measure. That is to make wife desertion a criminal offence, thus making it possible for the husband to be deported if he could be found. If wife desertion were a criminal offence in Scotland it would not be hard to keep matters adjusted somewhat better than at present. But what the authorities in Scotland want is that the deserted wives in Scotland shall have some means of prosecuting in the Canadian courts for non-support, though the offence of desertion really occurred in Scotland. There would be a lot of judicial trouble about such a system if it were possible because any man charged with non-support must be given a fair trial, and the personal evidence of the wife would seem to be necessary. It would not do much good to deport the offender to Scotland there to be prosecuted, and prosecution in Canada would seem almost out of the question. The evil is one which all the British over-seas Dominions might take up with the old country, as Canada is not the only receivers of these deserters.

The West Calls for Help Twenty Thousand Harvesters Wanted

The crops in Western Canada have been so heavy this year that it has been necessary for the farmers of the West to make another appeal for help. The demand for help is now more urgent than ever, and it will require at least twenty thousand additional men to complete the harvesting.

In order to relieve the situation the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run a Harvesters' Excursion Monday, Oct. 14th, $10.00 to Winnipeg, return fare from Winnipeg $18 00.

Force of Lightning.

It is hardly possible to use instruments for the purpose of figuring the forces of lightning, yet there are many other ways of calculating familiar to every mathematician. The amount of light given by a single lightning flash is enough to illuminate an area of two square miles. The bolt itself would be visible several miles further off, but the remotest part of the region mentioned would have as much light as would be given by a candle—quite enough to read by. To produce such a light it would be necessary to expend 13,000 horsepower for a second. These figures appear very large, but the time is short. The flash might be for only one-thousandth of a second, but the impression on the eye would continue for a tenth of a second anyway. Figured down to an exact hour this amount of force would mean only about four horsepower.—Electric News Bulletin.

To establish peace on earth
Keep the white flag bravely flying
Till love has a newer birth.
But meanwhile the world is calling

Let men regulate the weather
And put harness on the sun,
But the world wants first the favor

DISTRIBUTING BIBLES

THE COLPORTUUR'S LIFE IS OFTEN AN EXCITING ONE.

The Reports of Agents of the British and Foreign Bible Society Who Have Distributed Over Seven Million Volumes In the Past Year, Contain Many Stirring Stories of Peril and Adventure.

Adventures and persecutions, which recall records out of the first century, are recited in abundance in the report issued recently of the experiences during the year of agents of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

The tale begins just across the English Channel, and takes its way round the world. At Avignon Colporteur Charvet is pelted by Anarchists; in Middle Franconia Colporteur Fingerlin's work is compared in the press to "the spreading of cancer among the people" — this hubbub about a book which teaches the highest personal and social ethic—and in the brickfields outside Vienna is attacked by Social Democrats!

That one's books may still be burnt on a bonfire, as they were in the days, say, of the Council of Trent, Colporteur Woschitz discovers in the city of Trent itself; and Colporteur Ruggeri, at Staiti, in Calabria, fares even worse, being attacked "with great hostility by a fanatical populace, armed with rakes, sticks, and stones." Carabineers have to protect the house where for a few hours the colporteur snatches a disturbed rest.

"As the Lord liveth," writes Colporteur Yonan from prison in Kurdestan, "there is but a step between me and death." A "Chaldean Catholic priest" intervenes, and the brother of the ex-Shah, into whose presence the trembling man had been brought, first offers him instead of death a post in his service, and then, on his refusing it, gives him "a title with a firman making him a khan." The title is "Translator to the King"; the translator had come near being translated. All the swift transitions of the Far East are in this story.

China, of course, offers many examples of escape and adventure. In Yeungkong robbers set upon a colporteur, but end by buying "Matthew's Good News" of the ten-thousand-kingdoms Saviour.

There comes a tale of how a colporteur saved a city from attack. It happened in this way:

He put up one night at an inn in a market town in the extreme south-east of the district. After he had retired a belated traveler arrived, and occupied the same bed. In the morning the unknown traveler resumed his journey before others were astir.

When the colporteur arose he found a letter in his bed, under the quilt. As no one at the inn knew anything about it, he concluded that the late occupant had dropped it. As this man had not returned by the time the colporteur was ready for the road, the letter was opened with a view of getting necessary information, when, lo! it was found to be from a notorious brigand chief to two lesser leaders, calling on them to assemble at a given hour on a given day.

Much information was given as to the strength of their forces, etc., and the purpose of the attack was stated to be the massacre of the prefect, the foreigners and the police, and also the destruction of chapels and schools.

Noting the importance of the information, the colporteur came direct to the city without divulging his secret to anyone, and the society laid the letter before the prefect in time to enable him to gather sufficient forces together to frustrate the design. He had had no warning of danger, and the soldiers in the city were quite inadequate for its defence.

In South India a colporteur caught sight of a tiger crossing his path. In Burma a colporteur came face to face with a leopard. In a Peru town a Bible-seller was cruelly beaten by fanatical opponents. In the insurrection in Persia a colporteur was arrested and charged with being either a spy or an assassin.

On the other hand, the colporteurs have experiences which relieve the hardships of their task. An old woman in Les Eglisottes, Gironde, Western France, bought a copy because her fancy was struck with the name Nathanael which occurred in a chapter read to her by the seller. She thought the name very pleasing, and decided to propose it for a grandson who was not yet baptized.

Curious bargains are often struck by these Bible-sellers. Eggs are a frequent currency. In a Roumanian village a colporteur bartered a Bible for a hen. It was a very excellent hen, so he added a New Testament. For four yards of home-made linen he disposed of another Bible. Ten eggs and "a lump of bacon" was the price of one Bible in a Hungarian village. In North Hungary a farmer gave a live pig for a large Bible. A rabbit was an exchange in one Spanish village, and a quantity of preserved peppers and tomatoes in another.

But the assiduity and pluck of these agents has led to over 7,394,500 copies being distributed during the year, 800,000 more than two years ago. [illegible] includes the name of 440 distinct forms of speech.

Among the populations of Asia more than 900,000 books were circulated in the Indian Empire, and 1,650,000 in China, notwithstanding the revolution. Both these totals exceeded all previous records. Of the year's issues more than a million and a half volumes were in English or Welsh, mainly for readers in the British Empire — 380,000 volumes in advance of the figures for 1910-11. Finally, since its foundation in 1804, the Bible Society has issued over 230,500,000 copies of the Scriptures.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Oct. 10.—There was only a fair demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, but at the decline in Winnipeg several loads were worked. The local demand for oats continues good at firm prices. A fairly active trade continues to be done in flour for local account, but the prices bid from European sources for new crop flour were 6d to 1s out of line. Demand for millfeed is good. Butter is fairly active and firm. Cheese steady with some business doing. Eggs active.

The Months—A Game.

The leader need be the only one who understands this game. He asks, "What month are you going away in?" One player might answer, "September." The leader then asks, "What will you wear?" "What will you take with you?" and "What will you do?"

All the answers must be given with the initial letter of the month chosen. For instance, the answers to the above questions may be, first, "Silk stockings;" second, "Sardine sandwiches;" third, "See the sights."

The answers will probably be mixed, as the players do not know the trick. Each one who misses pays a forfeit, and the leader questions the next player. When one or two do "catch on," the more ridiculous they make their answers, the funnier the game.

HAPPY THOUGHT

Give Your Stove the "Frying Test"

PROBABLY you think frying such a simple form of cooking that all stoves should be equal in this respect. That is just where you are mistaken. The "frying test" proves conclusively a stove's real worth to you.

Frying with the "Happy Thought" shows you this. A small fire does more and better work than a big fire does in other stoves—gives you more heat, right at the lid opening. Besides, the moment you lift the lid and put the frying pan in place, you get the very maximum of heat that the fire can produce—just where you want it. When you replace the lid, the heat goes straight to the oven and concentrates there with all its intensity.

No other stove is designed to do this so effectually. That is one reason why the "Happy Thought" has a superior value for you.

A Romance of The South Seas

JACK LONDON

Sheldon nodded. He understood. It was the loss of the Martha that had brought on the fever. He lighted a cigarette, and in the curling smoke of it caught visions of his English mother and wondered if she would understand how her son could love a woman who cried because she could not be skipper of a schooner in the cannibal isles.

* * * * * * *

The most patient man in the world is prone to impatience in love, and Sheldon was in love.

But how to approach her? He divined the fanatical love of freedom in her, the deep seated antipathy for restraint of any sort. No man could ever put his arm around her and win her. She would flutter away like a frightened bird. Approach by contact—that, he realized, was the one thing he must never do. His hand clasp must be what it had always been—the hand clasp of hearty friendship, and nothing more. And then, one morning, quite fortuitously the opportunity came.

"My dearest wish is the success of Berande," Joan had just said apropos of a discussion about the cheapening of freights on copra to market.

"Do you mind if I tell you the dearest wish of my heart?" he promptly returned. "I long for it. I dream about it. It is my dearest desire. It is for you some day when you are ready to be my wife."

She started back from him as if she had been stung. Her face went white on the instant, not from maidenly embarrassment, but from the anger which he could see flaming in her eyes.

"This taking for granted! This when I am ready!" she cried passionately. "Listen to me, Mr. Sheldon. I like you very well, though you are slow and a muddler, but I want you to understand once and for all that I did not come to the Solomons to get married. Getting married is not making my way in the world. It may do for some women, but not for me, thank you. When I sit down to talk over the freight on copra I don't care to have proposals of marriage sandwiched in. Besides—besides"—

Her voice broke for the moment, and when she went on there was a note of appeal in it that well nigh convicted him to himself of being a brute.

"Don't you see? It spoils everything. It makes the whole situation impossible—and—and I so loved our partnership and was proud of it. Don't you see? I can't go on being your partner if you make love to me. And I was so happy!"

Tears of disappointment were in her eyes, and she caught a swift sob in her throat.

"I warned you," he said gravely. "Such unusual situations between men and women cannot endure. I told you so at the beginning."

"Oh, yes; it is quite clear to me what you did. You took good care to warn me against every other man in the Solomons except yourself."

It was a blow in the face to Sheldon. He smarted with the truth of it, and at the same time he smarted with what he was convinced was the injustice of it. A gleam of triumph that flickered in her eye because of the hit she had made decided him.

"It is not so one sided as you seem to think it is," he began. "I was doing very nicely on Berande before you came. I did not want you to stay. I wasn't in love with you then. I wanted you to go to Sydney, to go back to Hawaii. But you insisted on staying. You virtually"—

He paused for a softer word than the one that had risen to his lips, and she took it away from him.

"Forced myself on you—that's what you meant to say," she cried, the flags of battle painting her cheeks. "Go ahead. Don't mind my feelings."

"All right, I won't," he said decisively, realizing that the discussion was in danger of becoming a vituperative, schoolboy argument. "You have insisted on being considered as a man. Consistency would demand that you talk like a man and like a man listen to man talk. And listen you shall. It is not your falt that this unpleasantness has arisen. I do not blame you for anything—remember that—and for the same reason you should not blame me for anything.

"You can't help being yourself. You can't help being a very desirable creature so far as I am concerned. You have made me want you. You didn't intend to; you didn't try to. You were so made, that is all. And I was so made that I was ripe to want you. But I can't help being myself. I can't by an effort of will cease from wanting you any more than you by an effort of will can make yourself undesirable to me."

"Oh, this desire, this want, want, want!" she broke in rebelliously. "I am not quite a fool. I understand some things. I really think it would be a good idea for me to marry Noa Noah or Adamu Adam or Lalaperu there or any black boy. Then I could give him orders and keep him penned away from me and men like you would leave me alone and not talk marriage and 'I want, I want.'"

Sheldon laughed in spite of himself and far from any genuine impulse to laugh.

"You are positively soulless," he said savagely.

"Because I've a soul that doesn't yearn for a man for master?" she took up the gauge. "Very well, then, I am soulless, and what are you going to do about it?"

"I am going to ask you why you look like a woman? Why you have the form of a woman, the lips of a woman, the wonderful hair of a woman? And I am going to answer because you are a woman, though the woman in you is asleep and that some day the woman will wake up."

"Heaven forbid!" she cried in such sudden and genuine dismay as to make him laugh and to bring a smile to her own lips against herself.

"I've got some more to say to you," Sheldon pursued. "I did try to protect you from every other man in the Solomons and from yourself as well. As for me, I didn't dream that danger lay in that quarter. So I failed to protect you from myself. I failed to protect you at all. You went your own wilful way just as though I didn't exist—wrecking schooners, recruiting on Malaita and sailing schooners, one lone, unprotected girl in the company of some of the worst scoundrels in the Solomons. I love you for that too. I love you for all of you, just as you are."

She made a moue of distaste and raised a hand protestingly.

"Don't," he said. "You have no right to recoil from the mention of my love for you. Remember, this is a man talk. From the point of view of the talk, you are a man. The woman in you is only incidental, accidental and irrelevant. You've got to listen to the bald statement of fact, strange though it is, that I love you. You are better off and safer on Berande, in spite of the fact that I love you, than anywhere else in the Solomons. But I want you, as a final item of man talk, to remember from time to time that I love you and that it will be the dearest day of my life when you consent to marry me. I want you to think of it sometimes. And now we won't talk about it any more. As between men, there's my hand."

He held out his hand. She hesitated, then gripped it heartily and smiled through her tears.

"I wish"— she faltered, "I wish, instead of that black Mary, you'd given me somebody to swear for me."

And with this enigmatic utterance she turned away.

Cold Dishes For Hot Days.

Jellied Dishes.—During hot weather one may use to great advantage many meats or parts of the animal that can only be made into attractive form and given savor and palatableness by being made into a jelly or loaf or salad. Even if these dishes do not possess much nutritive value they contain sufficient to sustain bodily health and vigor, and they are far more palatable and appetizing than a roast, hot or cold. Then they do not necessitate the high temperature required to roast or boil, for even a meat loaf, though baked in the oven, if you are not the happy possessor of a fireless cooker, does not require a hot oven or long loaves, while the meats intended for jellied loaves or molds should be very slowly and gently simmered to have satisfactory results. The tougher and rougher parts of the animal and old fowl are the best materials for making meat jellies that taste like those "mother used to make."

Spiced Beef.—Wipe the beef thoroughly with a damp cloth, put in a stewing kettle, cover with boiling water and let it come to boiling point. Then skim and set where the heat will keep the water at a steady, gentle simmer until the meat is very tender. During the last hour of cooking or when the meat begins to get tender add a cup each of chopped onion and carrot, a bouquet of sweet herbs tied in cheesecloth, a dozen peppercorns, a bay leaf, three or four whole cloves and a level tablespoonful of salt.

When meat is done remove from the liquor and let the latter simmer down until reduced to a cup and a half. Then cut the meat into neat small pieces and add to the liquor. Taste to see if more seasoning is required. Put into a bread pan or plain mold, pressing down firmly, and set at once in a very cold place. The quicker it stiffens the firmer jelly you will have.

Jellied Tongue.—Parboil one beef tongue and two calf's feet until you can skin and clean them well when removed from the water. Take the bones out of the feet. Mince two white onions very fine and fry in a tablespoonful of butter, letting them turn brown. Lay on these the calf's feet and tongue, well seasoned. Simmer ten minutes and then add a pint of consomme and simmer five minutes longer. Then add a glass of white wine. Cover closely and let smother well for one and a half hours. Remove the tongue and let the calf's feet cool and reduce for half an hour longer. Then put in the tongue and cook for two minutes. Put into a plain mold and set in the refrigerator to form and you have a delicious morsel. Whole spices, such as bay leaf, whole cloves, whole pepper and celery seed, tied in cheesecloth, greatly improve this jelly.

Veal Loaf.—Chop very fine two pounds of lean veal and a quarter of a pound of salt pork, using the old fashioned chopper and wooden bowl if you wish the loaf to taste just right. Add a cup of breadcrumbs, three beaten eggs, a teaspoonful of salt, pinch of cayenne or paprika, a teaspoonful of onion juice and enough lemon juice to give a zest. Moisten with well seasoned beef or veal stock if you have any on hand (enough may be made from a few bones and trimmings) or moisten with beaten egg. Pack into a buttered bread pan, cover and bake an hour, moistening occasionally. Cut in slices when cold and serve with cold ketchup or horseradish and whipped cream sauce.

Chicken Mousse.—Soak a tablespoonful of gelatin in one-third of a cupful of cold water until soft and then dissolve it in half a pint of good chicken broth, well seasoned. When the gelatin is well dissolved add a [illegible] minced fine and pounded to a smooth paste. Beat well and then cut and fold in the whites of two eggs. Season with salt, pepper and celery salt. Add a tablespoonful of chopped olives and, last of all, a cupful of whipped cream. Pour into buttered molds and chill for several hours, then serve on crisp lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing. Lobster mousse is delicious if you make it of steamed lobster meat, fresh from the shell. It is made in the same way as the chicken mousse.

Tomato Jelly.—There is something very refreshing about tomatoes, whether cooked or raw, hot or cold, and tomato jelly delights the eye as well as satisfies a fickle taste. It may be served with cold meats or fish, cut in slices or cubes, or molded around chicken or fish or even vegetable salads and served with mayonnaise and whipped cream. A few chopped olives, gherkens or capers sprinkled over the molds or mixed with the mayonnaise give you a most inviting salad.

Cucumber Ice.—Cut a large tender cucumber into pieces an inch long. After removing the seeds boil the cucumber in salted water for five minutes, drain it on a cloth and let it finish cooking in a covered stewpan with an ounce of butter, salt, pepper and a gill of white stock. Reduce the moisture and rub the cucumber through a hair sieve. When the puree is quite cold mix it with two tablespoonfuls of mayonnaise sauce, half a gill of cold liquid aspic jelly, two tablespoonfuls of whipped cream and seasoning to taste. Whisk it until it is thoroughly amalgamated and then freeze it in the ice freezing machine. Fill the cucumber molds and set them in ice and salt for an hour. Serve garnished with sections of tomato and watercress.

An Employer's Liability Policy

MIGHT SAVE YOU HEAVY DAMAGES

While an accident may be due to an employee's own carelessness, still there's no certainty that the employer will not have to pay heavy damages. New legislation too is steadily increasing the responsibility of the employer. But an Employer's Liability Policy in the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would protect you against financial loss through injuries to an employee while on duty. The General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would deal justly with your employee too. It is noted for fairness and broadmindedness. It is one of the oldest and strongest Insurance Companies in the world. Do not delay to write for further particulars.

Injuries in the industrial world are frequent. In the building, metal and woodworking trades alone there were 294 people killed and 1,421 injured in Canada during 1910 and 1911. Our business is to relieve the employer of all financial responsibility resulting from accident.

TORONTO MEN TO MEET WITH THE AD. CLUB

It is expected that at least three and probably more, members of the Toronto Ad. Club will come to Peterborough, Monday evening, and join with the Peterborough Ad. Club at their opening dinner and lecture, beginning promptly at 8.30, in Hooper's Palm Parlors. Besides Mr. C. W. McDiarmid, of Ryrie Bros., Ltd., who will be the principal speaker of the evening, Mr. W. G. Rook, President of the Canadian Home Journal, will be present.

Mr. Rook, in writing to the Executive of the Peterborough Ad Club recently, mentioned in connection with Mr. McDiarmid's address, that it is exceedingly interesting and is filled full of "meat" and there is no particle of "hot-air" about it.

A. E. SIMS,

MEN! BE ON YOUR GUARD

Now the fall season is on in dead earnest, and it is time for the discarding of all summer wearing apparel, it is necessary to put on much warmer clothing in order to protect your health. This is the time of all times when men should be very careful to protect themselves and the best way to do it is to go to Cameron, the New Men's Wear Store, and get a Suit of that cosy all wool Underwear, the kind that defies the coldest blasts and keeps the body warm. There are extraordinary values at $1.00 to $2.00 per garment. Now you know, and it is up to you whether you buy a Suit of Underwear or pay a doctor's bill. Take the advice from one who knows and get the Underwear right away. You may say "I will wait and get tempered to the cold weather before I do," but take care that the cold weather don't temper you so that you will never get over it.

Don't forget the New Men's Wear Store, it's CAMERON.

BAND CONCERT IN ARMOURIES

Special Program is Deserving of Large Attendance.

The audience at the armories tonight at the General Brock Centenary celebration will have the opportunity of hearing the 57th Regimental band, under the direction of Prof. Rupert Gliddon, give a rendition of the grand nautical fantasia "A Voyage in a Troopship," composed by Georg Miller, of the B.M. Royal Marines. This is one of the most descriptive patriotic selections in the band's repertoire, and when played by forty-two instruments, as it will be this evening, it should excite highly favorable criticism.

It early commences with a cornet solo called "The Soldier's Tear," as he embarks upon the troopship. Next the Bos'un's Whistle, followed by "All Hands up Anchor," as the big transport is cleared for the voyage. A beautiful portion of the composition comes next entitled, "Fare Thee Well fair Portsmouth Town." This is followed by a merry chorus

Hey ring, a ding, ding ding, a ding,
a ding,
Heave ho, heave ho.
Away all land lubbers down below,
he ho.
He ho away.

Several excellent variations carry out the faithfulness of the scene which the selection is intended to portray, particularly the part describing the storm.

Then follows other descriptive melodies, as "We'll rant and roar like true British sailors," "Tom Bowline," "The White Squall" and particularly the description of a Saturday night on the Fo'c'sle. The remainder of the selection is mostly variations, all delightfully melodious and catchy. The rendition of the piece should prove one of the greatest hits of the program.

COME TO ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH, Tuesday Eve., Oct. 15th, at 8 o'clock.

FIRST TWILIGHT MUSICALE OF THE SEASON

The first of the "Twilight Musicales," to be given this year will be held to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock in the Conservatory of Music Hall. Some splendid talent is heard at the musicales and a choice and high class program has been arranged for the first one to-morrow. One of the artists will be Miss Rochester, a recent acquisition to the elocutionists of Peterborough.

A NIGHT OUT

May Robson will appear at the Grand on Monday next Oct. 14, in "A Night Out," a comedy that fairly bubbles with the joy of youth, that radiates happiness and comes over the footlights with a message of good cheer and hearty laughter. As Grammum May Robson is delightfully comical, furnishing the audience with laugh after laugh, all of them spontaneous, all of them wholesome. Grammum, who goes out with her grandsons seeking adventure, is in a raid on a giddy restaurant and her efforts to cover it up furnish Miss Robson with plenty of opportunity for the exercise of the funny facial contortions and the hundred and more subtle comedy touches in which she is so expert.

Seats are now on sale.

THEATRICAL

The Blindness of Virtue

The small crowd of people who attended the performance by an English Company, of "The Blindness of Virtue," at the Grand last night, will carry the memory of the presentation for some time. With a splendid company of actors, playing a finished play on [illegible] one of the [illegible] of the day and well written, it deserved a larger audience. Doubtless, if the company comes here again, or if it had played a two-night engagement, it is safe to say that the second house would be capacity.

A. Holmes-Gire, as Rev. Harry Pemberton fitted his role like a glove, and acted very realistically and is the best dramatic actor Peterborough has seen for a good while.

Comedy was also brought in, in a clean natural and very pleasing manner by Polly Emery as Cook. Too much cannot be said of the rest of the cast—every one an artist.

Such a play as this one would have been a good lesson to every father and mother in the city, as well as an evening's entertainment.

The company went to Hamilton this morning.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

IS IT WORSE?

As a temperance measure local option attracted the enthusiasm of all anti-liquor men and women. It abolished the bar, it abolished treating, it abolished the shop. Why then has a political leader come forward with an appeal to temperance people to support a half measure? He will split up the vote on the question beyond doubt and the prospects for local option will be reduced to a minimum. It is a pity that any body of men and women should fail to recognize these facts. It is a pity because many a man who wishes the cause of temperance well will be compelled to stand aside. It does not pay to be connected with certain failure and it is to the last degree ruinous to the great cause itself.

NAVIGATION OPENED FROM PIGEON LAKE TO OMEMEE

Work Has Just Been Completed Transportation Facilities Greatly improved

For some time the Department of Railways and Canals has had a tug and derrick scow and a gang of men working on this river. The channel from Omemee down to the floating bridge which crosses Pigeon Creek, had become filled up with bogs, in fact in places even people passing down with canoes had to portage their canoes over these bogs. These bogs had to be sawn on each side of the channel and drawn out by the tug and stored away and boomed back. This took about eight thousand feet of booms. The old residents of that district remember well when Omemee River was navigated by steamboats and a great deal of business was carried on on the river, but the last few years it has been impossible to get a boat up to Omemee. The residents of Omemee and Emily township made representations to the Minister of Railways and Canals, the Honorable Mr. Cochrane, and he has had this work carried out, and Omemee again placed on the Trent waterway. The work that has been done is satisfactory to the steamboat men, and also to the residents of Omemee, who will now be able to ship their grain and hogs to Peterborough by boat, the same as the farmers around Rice Lake do. The work has just been finished to-day, and a channel fifty feet wide from Pigeon Lake up to Omemee, will accommodate all the boats fifty feet wide from Pigeon Lake up to Omemee, will accommodate all the boats that will go up that river taking up tan bark, which comes down from the north, also bringing the farmers' produce out to the front, and will be largely used for excursion business in the summer season.

We congratulate Omemee on again being connected with the Trent waterway.

LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN AND VOTE FOR PETERBORO

The Unanimous Decision of Meeting of Temperance Workers—Large Committee of Representative Citizens to Conduct the Campaign

The Temperance people of Peterborough will conduct a campaign in the interests of Local Option, and a vote will be taken at the Municipal elections in January.

This was the decision of the meeting held last night in the Y.M.C.A. and the following statement was made to the Review;

After a very careful consideration of the whole situation, at a meeting in the Y.M.C.A., where there was an attendance of about forty persons, it was unanimously decided to conduct a local option campaign, in the city this fall, and to ask for a vote at the January elections.

A committee of influential citizens will conduct the campaign.

The policy adopted is simply along the lines of temperance reform, which has been increasingly popular in Ontario during the last eight or ten years, namely that of local option. After canvassing the city very thoroughly, the leaders of the movement have reason to believe that there would be wide-spread disappointment if such a campaign were not conducted.

The committee of citizens, numbering sixty, to look after the campaign is thoroughly representative, and will be extended.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Miss Mary J. Scott, Toronto, has sent a check for $500 to the Kingston General Hospital funds. She resided in that city many years ago.

Jacob Skloyer, the well-known Russian author and journalist, spent Tuesday in Saskatoon. He is interested in securing ten thousand Jews to go to Saskatchewan.

When asked after yesterday's Cabinet meeting what the probable date of the opening of the House would be, Premier Borden said that nothing definite had been decided.

Norman York, aged 35, convicted on Tuesday of an offence against Zella Walsh, a 15-year-old cousin, was sentenced at Whitby yesterday to ten years in Kingston penitentiary.

Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, paid a visit of inspection to the route of the proposed Welland Ship Canal yesterday, in company with Chief Engineer Weller.

It was decided to hold a mass meeting of Toronto citizens last night to take immediate action to secure a reform in the police administration. The meeting is a result of the recent St. Clair case.

W. R. Goddard, a lineman, aged 55, living at 54 Caroline avenue, was instantly killed at about 11.30 yesterday morning by a live wire near the corner of Dundas street and Sorauren avenue, Toronto.

Last March, Edward Timms, aged 14, son of the foreman of streets of Kingston, was hurt while at play with school companions. He received a blow over his heart, which caused his death yesterday.

Receipt Was Destroyed.

Washington, Oct. 11.—John D. Archbold, president of the Standard Oil Co., testified to the Clapp Committee yesterday that a receipt the late Cornelius N. Bliss gave him for the company's $100,000 contribution to the Roosevelt campaign fund of 1904 had been destroyed just before the death of H. H. Rogers.

"It was not a thing of pleasure to look at," said Archbold.

Committed For Trial.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—The Great Northwestern Telegraph Co. was committed for trial by Magistrate Denison yesterday morning on a charge of committing a breach of the Betting Act.

The case was the outcome of a seizure of forty-nine telegrams in the office of the Metropolitan Racing Association, 156 West King street. These messages bore the names of horses and the odds at the Windsor and New York tracks. A. M. Orpen of the Racing Association testified that without these telegrams business could not have been carried on.

B. H. Ardagh argued that the crown must show that the company knew the telegrams were being used for wagering and betting. The magistrate said a jury could determine that.

Rabies In Paris, Ont.

Brantford, Oct. 11.—Rabies is reported in Paris, Ont. A boy was playing with a dog in that town on Sunday morning, when the animal suddenly turned around and bit him. The Paris chief of police had the dog shot, and its head sent to Ottawa. Yesterday the report comes that the dog's head was infected with rabies, and the boy has been taken to Toronto for treatment.

The Paris chief of police has issued an order that all dogs are to be kept on leash until further orders.

Stolen Bills In Belleville.

Belleville, Oct. 11.—A number of Bank of Montreal bills, which were stolen from the New Westminster bank some months ago, have been detected in this city, but who brought them here has not been ascertained.

University In China.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—Modelled after the University of Toronto, a university and various residential college will be founded by the Methodists of Canada and the United States, the Baptists of the United States, and the Friends of England, at Chengtu, the centre of the West China mission field.

Rev. T. E. E. Shore, D.D., Rev. Prof. B. P. Bowles and Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., M.P.P., will represent the Methodists of Canada on the board of governors.

The project was definitely decided upon at a meeting held in the Wesley buildings yesterday, and in the announcement was made last night by Rev. Dr. Goucher of Baltimore, who will be the president of the board of governors.

The occasion was the 76th anniversary of the granting of a charter to Victoria University by King William IV., and a large gathering of friends of the college and students assembled in the university chapel to commemorate the event.

Rioters Sentenced.

Port Arthur, Oct. 11.—Justice Middleton yesterday sentenced Dominico Duprenzo and Nick Duprenzo to ten years' imprisonment each in Stony Mountain penitentiary, for having assaulted Chief of Police McClellan on July 29, the night of the riots on the coal docks.

Rev. Madison Hicks was convicted of having been at the head of an unlawful assembly on the evening of July, 29, at the time when the rioters were in progress at the coal docks. Sentence was suspended and Hicks bound over in the sum of $500 to keep the peace.

Training Young Cobblers.

Cobbling is recognized as a trade in the vocational schools of Buffalo. Several schools are set aside for teaching trades to young boys and girls, and the latest addition to the course is one in cobbling. A competent instructor has been engaged to teach the young men how to repair shoes. There are a number taking up the course, and it is certain that the trade will not become extinct with the young generation studying the principles of rejuvenating old shoes.—Shoe Retailer.

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store

WILL THIS TIME EVER REACH US

In approaching any questions of Socialism, I am conscious that I am trespassing on delicate ground. The path-way is so full of pit-falls, that the man is not yet born, who can see his way clearly to the end.

I think it must be granted that the principal difficulty in organizing society on the basis of Socialism, would be giving equality to individuals, and apportioning the labor required by the community. Is it to be supposed that one man will be allowed to have fish cooked for him, for his breakfast, when his brother man has to be up all night facing the dangers of the deep, in order to supply the fish for this man's breakfast, and another brother man to be employed working under ground, in getting the coal to furnish fuel to cook the fish?

I am aware that the advocates of Socialism speak of the "Labor Mass." They are the people who are to do the unpleasant things of life, and the socialist dismisses this part of the subject merely by saying that they have their own "unpretending qualities" to blame for it.

This, then, seems to be one of the principal difficulties which will have to be surmounted. Some prefer to leave the struggle for individual "self gratification," and thus they will not destroy competition. Men will be left to compete for three fundamental things; salaries, authority, personals prestige, rank or honor. If you take away from the individual the hope of gain and reward, then what is to stimulate personal effort? Some of the prominent Socialists make a good income; some have made fortunes. Then they change their views some- and they console their less fortunate brethren by saying that they are thus enabled to express their nature adequately. A question arises as to what will happen to those individuals who are the defeated competitors, those who are not prompted to higher positions. It is said that the failures in life will be taught by the State to earn their bread and butter in another manner.

I think it will be admitted, by those who advocate Socialism in its wildest sense, that such a system might easily become bureaucratic tyranny.

Then there are other Socialists who want to "exchange new worlds for old" There are else more than half of the employments of the community, comprising thousands of different kinds of work, which will have to be left to individuals. Other Socialists claim that no man will be able to own any "accumulated means of production." For example; a man may make fifty thousand dollars by the sale of artistic productions. There will be no objection to him spending the whole of that money upon fireworks, but if he spend it in producing any new kind of machinery, calculated to save labor, then the State would confiscate the machine, as it would become a vital source of permanent unearned income.

There is, undoubtedly room for very great improvement in regard to the present construction of society, and there cannot be any reason why the railroads, large and small, should not be nationalized; the present owners would be credited with the full value of their shares and the State would guarantee the same dividends as they now draw, and there would be no objection, from a semi-Socialistic point of view, to the income of these people, especially if they inherited it, being subject to a burden of taxation. I am fully aware that there are socialists who would claim that the only way to tax such an income, would be to tax it at one hundred cents on the dollar. But this would be confiscation, and the state does not exist that can afford to destroy confidence in the future, and thus paralyse one of the great driving forces of the economic process. One writer has usefully discussed this matter by asking what would happen if the winners of the prizes of a State Lottery were to have the whole of their winnings taken from them because they did not work for them. Would any person buy tickets in the next State Lottery? I think, therefore, that should the State guarantee the dividends of the present owners in railways, they must tax them equitably.

The large departmental stores are opening the door to a large system of co-operation on the part of the public, and there would not be any difficulty in the people themselves providing for the people, by taking over the large departmental stores, and giving the owners script for a reasonable present value. This system might be extended to the growing of farm produce, raising of cattle, and the manufacture of cloth, and cotton goods, utensils, etc., and a great diversity of goods found in a departmental store. It would afford a fair idea of Socialism on a proper basis. These people supply the people with water, why not with light, heat and power? The people should, by the aid of the State, carry their own insurance, and furnish, as is being done in many countries, an old age pension. There can be no reasonable objection to a portion of the proceeds of the sale of the people's lands, forests, minerals and and fish, which to-day, is nominally in the Crown, being used for the direct benefit of the people in times of [illegible] sickness, old age and death. We do not object, to-day, at the State furnishing the money for the education of the race, then surely there can be no objection to carrying this matter a little further, and instead of learned professors, the state would find us doctors, nurses and medicine when sick, and some insurance for our representatives after our demise. We have the Parcels Post which could in Canada be extneded much to the benefit of the community, by taking over the business of the Dominion Express Company, whose exhorbitant rates are a scandal and a disgrace to any civilized community. As far as State Life Insurance is concerned, this could be carried on immediately, by the post office issuing cards to the public, and supplying insurance stamps of various denomination for the benefits desired. This could be done so cheaply that it would be unnecessary to employ any persons to carry on the work, beyond Postmasters and a few clerks in an office in Ottawa. After a portion of the proceeds of the wealth derived from the land, forests, mine minerals and fish was allocated to an Insurance Fund the people themselves would have to pay only a small rate for their adequate insurance.

Reverting again to the debatable part of the subject, I think nearly all reasonable people will agree that Socialism, as it is enunciated by so-called Socialists, is a long way off. Probably the greatest and truest Socialist was the only true man who ever lived, but His Gospel is not carried out, and when the day comes as it surely will come, then we shall see all selfish interests eliminated, and each will sell all that he possesses, and cast into the common fund. But many things will happen before such a happy state of society actually exists.

TOOK HIS OWN LIFE

Gardiner Hunter, formerly of Bobcaygeon Used Small Pocket Knife

Further details of the death at Neepawa, Man., of Gardiner Hunter, formerly proprietor of the Royal Hotel at Bobcaygeon, have been received.

He had for some time been a bartender in the Clarendon Hotel at Winnipeg, but shortly after reaching Neepawa he took his own life by plunging a knife into his breast, while walking on one of the streets.

He had given his name as Gardiner and it was believed that he was living under an assumed name. It was known that he had family troubles.

Eye witnesses of the affair, had him removed to a hospital where he shortly passed away. An examination by the coroner, showed five stab wounds in his chest, near the region of the heart.

In his pockets were found one copper, two keys and a ring. One witness, who stated that he had known Gardiner personally, said that he was with deceased on the day before his death, when he had been drinking. They had left Winnipeg together and gone to Neepawa, where they put up at the Hotel Hamilton. Deceased was a bartender at the Clarnedon Hotel, Winnipeg, until two weeks previously.

Another witness testified ot seeing Gardiner stabbing himself in the open street. He, the witness, was with a friend at the time, and they went up to deceased and took the knife away from him. The instrument with which he killed himself was a pocket knife.

HUSBAND TO PAY $5

Each Week for Support of His Wife and Family

A deplorable condition of family neglect was brought to light in police court this morning, when Mr. Robert Glover sought to prove that he was not guilty of the charge of neglecting to provide his wife and family with the necessities of life. Although his wife is at present in a delicate condition, she was in court to testify to the hardship and want to which she has been subjected, for lack of money, withheld from her by her husband.

The facts of the case furnish an almost harrowing story of privation patiently endured by a long suffering wife, and of an inability to secure proper physical nourishment.

HAS FOUR CHILDREN

That his actions and treatment were cruel, was eloquently borne out by the story his wife poured into the Magistrate's ears, frequently breaking down during the telling of it. She is the mother of four children the oldest ten, and the youngest eleven months. Her husband, while earning $11 a week as a teamster, gave her absolutely nothing last month for herself.

"I have not received a copper from him to spend on myself since the 5th of July," was her remark.

"Who furnishes you your clothing?"

"People give it to me," she replied reluctantly.

One little girl is being kept at home, because she has no shoes to go to school, and her husband had refused to buy boots for them.

Their mother came out of the hospital only three weeks ago. She has been compelled to go without the nourishment which her physician ordered, owing to her husband refusing to buy eggs, "because," she added, "he says they are 25 cents a dozen."

"And I have only had one pair of boots from him in three years."

Dr. Mann testified to the frailty of Mrs. Glover's condition. From an inspection of their home during his professional visits, he thought the children were improperly clothed and there was not much variety in the edibles he saw. He had sent her to the hospital where she stayed for a week, because she could not get the proper nourishing food at home.

In court, Glover accused the physician of "snooking around his pantry."

As was expected, Mr. Glover was hard to control in court, having to be repeatedly warned to "keep quiet" He insisted in interrupting the witnesses and his language was not the kind that could be recommended for pious people. His favorite saying was "I'm here to defend my character, and I'm here as a rate payer of Peterborough."

"You're showing us your character all right," said Chief Thompson.

A GOOD WORKER

T. B. Maniece, John Mervin and Archie Weir, testifeid that Glover paid his bills and that he was a good worker.

A couple of years ago, Glover was up on a charge of non-support. On that occasion, his wife, who was expected to testify against him, surprised everybody by defending her husband. This time she refused to do so.

"I lied to screen you once," she said "but I'm not going to this time."

The dispute was settled by Glover agreeing to allow his wife $5 a week, while he would take up his abode elsewhere.

LICENSE INSPECTOR WENT ABOUT WITH THE "BOYS" BUT FOUND NO BLIND PIGS IN ORILLIA

Local Option He Says is being Carried Out According to Law

To test the assertions sometimes heard that liquor is illegally sold in Orillia arrangements were recently made to have one of the best liquor detectives in the province visit the town says the Orillia Packet. After spending a week here, boarding in two of the hotels, and knocking around with "the boys" doing his best to purchase a drink of liquor, he presented a written report [illegible] illegal sale of liquor in this town. Though he treated freely, he utterly failed to get anything stronger than Cobalt beer. In his written report the detective says:—

"After enquiry and upon the information I was able to gather, I can say there is not one place doing business as a blind pig. There is a clique among the town citizens who come together like a club and send for liquor and have a good time together; but no outsider would be allowed to join them. Some citizens have an idea that booze is going right and left, but there is no foundation for it. It is all got privately and according to law. I used different ways of enquiry with——, who has been telling several persons that sales are going on in the town, but when I got to the bottom of it, he did not know, and could not say where it was to be got, though he declared there was lots around. The thing is there is no sale going on. From my experience I was satisfied that Local Option is being carried out according to law. There are no loafers or drunkards around at night. I tried all the drug stores. One keeps no liquor for prescriptions. The others want a prescription. Strangers in the town think it is one of the strictest Local Option places in the country. They think the police have good control. I boarded at the—— house, and I was satisfied the fellows there did not know where they could get liquor. Saturday was my busiest day. I had a feeling some liquor came into town with farmers, but did not see any violations. —— was telling me his experience in the north country, where he used to [illegible] no chance [illegible] in this town. I noticed the police as far as I could see, were doing their duty. I considered it no use to stay any longer."

The detective reported that there was considerable illegal selling of cigarettes and soft drinks on Sunday; also selling of cigarettes to minors. The town police are taking steps to put a stop to these infractions of the law.

HYDRO ELECTRIC RATES ARE LARGELY REDUCED IN WEST

New Schedule Gives Large Number of Manufacturers Using Current, a Big Cut in Price

Just at this juncture when Peterborough is entering on a campaign to secure local control of energy for power and light, the gratifying fact is made known that nearly all manufacturies, including the city of Toronto, that are controlled with the Hydro-Electric Commission, are about to gain a substantial reduction in rates. This is a genuine show down in favor of municipally controlled power and light. Any argument that is brought up against the proposition will have to contend with the facts. It is no matter of conjecture. It is positive, substantial and gratifying, and there is promise of additional reductions, as the community of power and light users increase.

The Toronto papers give the facts and a brief report, and we reprint from the Mail & Empire, the following comment and a table of rates showing the old and the new.

"A general reduction in power rates, which will benefit over half of the municipalities in the Niagara power zone, including Toronto, London, Hamilton and other important industrial centres has been decided upon by the Hydro-Electric Commission. The announcement was made by Hon. Beck yesterday following a conference with the members of the Toronto Hydro-Electric Commission. The reduced rates are based upon an expected consumption of power at the end of the present month of thirty thousand horse-power, and will go into effect on November 1st.

Couple with the announcement Hon. Adam Beck was able to give a striking reply to the pessimistic and antagonistic individuals who have since its inception, prophesied nothing but ultimate ruin for the provincial power system.

"After paying the full interest charges to the Government—we have already paid $115,000 and will at the end of the month pay the balance, bringing the amount up to $160,000—we will have $50,000 on hand. This amount is within $15,000 of the sum necessary to meet the requirement for the sinking fund. The commission has placed it under the heading of 'depreciation account,' but the money could be used as a sinking fund, if it was so decided," said the Minister.

But the end is not yet. The reduction announced yesterday is only the forerunner of others. "In another year we will be able to reduce our rates still more—I haven't a doubt of that," said the Minister. "In fact, we could do it now if we went ahead and based our figures on the probable consumption of power next year. The present consumption is 28,000 horse-power, but before the end of the month it will be 30,000. The consumption for next year promises to be away over that figure."

Toronto has secured a reduction of two dollars a horsepower. Instead of paying $18.50 the city Hydro Commission will get its power for $16.50, the new price being based upon a consumption of 43,000 horsepower.

THE OLD RATES AND THE NEW.

	Old Rate.	New Rate.
Toronto	$18.50	$16.50
Guelph	25.00	23.50
Seaforth	41.00	Unchanged
St. Thomas	32.00	Unchanged
Ingersoll	28.00	27.00

St. Marys	38.00	35.00
Hamilton	17.00	16.50
Port Credit	36.79	32.00
Brampton	29.00	Unchanged

"I was laughed at when I said a year or so ago that Toronto would get power at $14 a horsepower, but the city is in sight of that now."

The City of London secures a reduction from $28 to $27, Guelph from $25 to $23.50, Woodstock from $26 to $24, Berlin from $25 to $24, Waterloo from $26 to $25, Galt from $25 to $24, Hamilton from $17 to $16.50, Ingersoll from $28 to $27, Dundas from $17 to $16, Watertown from $37.50 to $30, Port Credit from $36.79 to $32, Mimico from $30.74 to $30, Preston from $25 to $23.50, Hespeler from 26 to $25, St. Mary's from 38 to $35, Beachville from 33.89 to $32.

Ten municipalities have not added to their consumption of power sufficiently to be entitled to lower rates. The following figures are unchanged:—Stratford $32, Seaforth $41, Mitchell $38, St. Thomas $32, Tilsonburg $32, Norwich $30, New Hamburg $32, Baden $37, Weston $30, and Brampton, $29.

In what degree the reduction in rates to the municipalities will be passed on directly to the consumers depends largely upon their respective surpluses. The rates of each municipality, however, are subject to the Hydro-Electric Commission, and Hon. Adam Beck stated yesterday that where a municipal system possessed a comfortable surplus the Commission would see to it that rates were lowered to consumers.

According to the Minister practically every municipal power system now operating in the Niagara zone is upon a sufficiently sound footing to at once lower rates, the City of Toronto included.

For some time past the Toronto Hydro-Electric Commission has had a communication before the Provincial Commission with respect to rate reduction. The original contract between the city and the Commission called for ten thousand horsepower, the price afterwards fixed for a somewhat lower consumption being $18.50. The consumption of the city system has now risen to 43,000, and the Toronto Commission asked the parent body whether in view of this increase in consumption the city was entitled to lower rates."

CRACK MOTOR CYCLISTS OF TORONTO

At the Exhibition Grounds To morrow Afternoon

Rain the day before a race meet or on the morning of a race meet is what the speed fiends like to see: it leaves the track a little spongy underneath, but the top will dry as soon as the machines run around a couple of times. Judging by appearances now the track will be tremendously fast to-morrow without a sign of doubt. Harold Cole, with his White Theo, leaves Toronto to-night and will be trying out the track first thing in the morning. The meet is run under the rules and sanction of the Canadian Motorcycle Association, who will send officials from Toronto here to see that all goes off smoothly. Many people think that they have seen something fast if they have seen a motorcycle scooting along a country road, but just bear in mind that the lowered racing machine can make at least 20 miles per hour faster than the fastest and most powerful stock machine. Racing machines are specially built and are hung very low. They have no spring forks nor any fittings at all. They are just a light frame, small wheels and a tremendously fast engine. Ten miles on a country road would shake a racing machine to pieces. They are no earthly use for anything but what they are built for, the race track, but they sure fill the bill there. Come and see them fly to-morrow afternoon. The race track in the Fair Grounds is the spot. All the "cracks" of the Toronto Motorcycle Club will be here.

LONDON IS MORE HOPEFUL

No News of Further Fighting Is Received From the Balkan States, But Austria's Warlike Preparations Are Ominious—She Is Arming In Order to Gain More Weight In the Deliberations of the Powers.

London, Oct. 12.—No news was received in London last night concerning the operations of Montenegrins in the direction of the Turkish town of Scutari or of hostilities on any of the other Balkan frontiers. The legations of the Balkan states in London were without any advices either of a military or diplomatic nature.

The continued delay by the states other than Montenegro in declaring war has revived hopes in diplomatic quarters here that a general war in the Balkans may yet be averted. It is said that a much more hopeful view of the situation prevailed in the British Foreign Office last night. No tangible reason was assigned for this optimism, but it seems to have been based on the idea that the warnings of the powers may have caused the Balkan states to pause. The Bulgarian Government yesterday denied Turkish reports of fighting on the Turco-Bulgarian frontier.

Austria Is Ready.

Vienna, Oct. 12.—That Austria-Hungary is making military preparations in anticipation that the Balkan conflagration may involve the large powers was indicated yesterday by the reply of the Minister of Finance in the Hungarian delegation to a criticism by a Socialist that the extraordinary military credits requested by the Government implied warlike designs. While protesting that the Government's policy was a most pacific one, the Minister of Finance said: "We are of the opinion that internal deliberations regarding the consequences of a war in the Balkans may ensue, and in that case we probably would make our voice heard more successfully if we were well armed."

Porte Will Bow to Powers.

Constantinople, Oct. 12.—The Porte is not expected to reply to the note of the powers concerning the trouble in the Balkans before to-morrow. It is believed this reply will acquiesce in the views of the powers and accept their offer to submit a program of proposed reforms in Macedonia. It is presumed, however, that the Porte is not unwilling to gain time by prolonging the discussion, knowing that each day gained means so much added to Turkey's strength.

The local newspapers in their articles yesterday hinted that attempts have been made by Turkey to separate Greece from the quartette of Balkan states now verging upon war with Turkey by offering special advantages, but that the Hellenic Government turned a deaf ear to the proposals.

Turkey Has the Funds.

Paris, Oct. 12.—Turkey declares that she has all the armaments she wants while the war tax recently imposed by the Ottoman Government is declared to be sufficient to carry on the war, according to a despatch from Constantinople to The Temps. It is also stated at the Porte that the pretended negotiations for a Turkish loan abroad are due purely to the initiative of unauthorized intermediaries.

Shot Son While Hunting.

Brockville, Oct. 12—News has reached here of a fatal accident which occurred in the Township of North Crosby, near Westport, when Walter Woods, a farmer, accidentally shot his son, a lad of fifteen years, with whom he was coon hunting a short distance from their home.

They came across a coon and treed it. The father had loaded his weapon and was about to fire. Just then the coon moved from one limb to another necessitating the father changing his position. As he was doing so he tripped and fell, the gun discharging and the boy fell, shot through the back. The father carried the boy to the house and summoned a doctor, but death ensued in twelve hours.

Woods had been a hunter and trapper all his life and this is his first accident.

Want High Level Bridge.

St. Catharines, Oct. 12.—Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, completed his inspection of the proposed new Welland Ship Canal yesterday and left last evening for Niagara Falls.

Before leaving St. Catharines he was waited upon by a deputation from the City Council and Board of Trade, who asked for a Government grant of $50,000 toward a proposed high level bridge across the old canal from the main business section of the city to a point near the main line depot of the G.T.R.

The Minister looked over the site and promised to lay the matter before his colleagues. He stated that if the grant is made, the city will be expected to maintain the old low swing bridge in that locality.

Dominic Fallen Dead.

Cornwall, Oct. 12.—At the age of 77 years, Dominio Fallon died here yesterday from pneumonia. Deceased had lived in Cornwall for the past four years, previous to which time he carried on a wood business. He lived in Kingston 65 years, and is survived by his wife and seven sons, Bishop H. F. Fallon of London, Father James Fallon of Ottawa, Frank Fallon of London, and Charles Fallon at Tewksbury, Mass., and Joseph, Thomas and Vincent in Cornwall. The funeral will take place on Monday in Kingston.

Train Bandits Beaten Off.

Fort Smith, Ark., Oct. 12.—Four bandits held up a northbound Kansas City Southern passenger train between Hatfield and Potter, Ark., at two o'clock yesterday morning. Express Messenger Burgett was shot, but will recover.

One robber was perhaps fatally shot and was captured an hour later. The bandits got no loot.

TWO MORE ARE ARRESTED

Winnipeg, Oct. 12.—The arrest of two more Liberal workers by the provincial police yesterday was the feature of the windup of the Macdonald campaign and added fuel to the bitter controversy now raging as to whether these arrests are justified, or are merely to intimidate the opposition candidate's organization.

The men who were arrested are R. J. Prince and F. Turcotte, both of Winnipeg. The charge apparently is that they were attempting to corrupt electors.

An evening paper says that Frank Turcotte, now of Winnipeg, is the same man who ran in the Conservative interests against Turgeon in Duck Lake at the recent Saskatchewan general elections.

R. L. Richardson, the opposition candidate, comes out with a final appeal to the electors in which he says that his victory will be the definite formulation by the west of a demand for a square deal in terms which the Dominion Government will be obliged to respect. He appeals from the "Cossack Government in the Province of Manitoba to the integrity and intrepidity of the unpurchaseable citizens of Macdonald."

In the other hand Sir Rodmond Roblin warns the electors against the "hordes of boodlers and bribers from Saskatchewan sent to Macdonald by the Saskatchewan Government to sway by illegal means its foreign vote." Attorney-General Cross of Alberta is quoted by The Tribune in rebuttal as saying that a prominent member of the Edmonton Liberal Association endorsed his own view that there are no crooks in Macdonald from Alberta.

Gananoque Man Dead.

Gananoque, Oct. 12.—Wilfrid J. Bulloch, first vice-president of the Parmenter & Bulloch Co., Ltd., one of the leading manufacturing firms of eastern Ontario, died suddenly at his home in Gananoque late last evening. He was taken ill during the early evening. Deceased was one of the leading poultry-breeders of Canada, was proprietor of the Glenholme poultry farm, and also a member of the Wyandotte Club. He was a son of the late Wm. Bulloch, and leaves a wife and three young children.

Heavy Penalty Upheld.

Ottawa, Oct. 12.—Judge McDougall in Hull Superior Court yesterday upheld the judgment of Magistrate Goyette, who fined an Assyrian peddler $30 and $30 costs, and confiscated his wagon and outfit, valued at $555, for peddling without a license. A. Abraham, the peddler, took action on the ground of excessive jurisdiction.

Treaty Almost Finished.

Geneva, Oct. 12.—The Italo-Turkish peace treaty will probably be signed to-day, or within twenty-four hours, or a complete rupture will take place, as Italy is tired of delays. It will be known as the peace of Lausanne. The mayor has offered to the delegates the town hall for the ceremony.—Reschid Bey arrived at Ouchy from Constantinople.

Children's Venturesome Journey.

Montreal, Oct. 12.—Two little tots, Kenneth Silver, aged 4, and Hazel Silver, aged 3, arrived here yesterday, having come alone from Bristol on the Royal George. They are bound for Hamilton, Ont., where their parents reside.

Britain's Many Divorces.

London, Oct. 12.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—For the Law Court sittings starting to-day there are 622 divorces cases, being 144 more than the previous year. Of these, 339 cases are undefended.

MONARCHS OF BULGARIA AND SERVIA PLACE ISSUE OF PEACE OR WAR IN THE HANDS OF THE LEGISLATORS

YOUSSOUF ZIA PACHA, TURKISH AMBASSADOR.

KING PETER OF SERVIA. KING FERDINAND OF BULGARIA.

In answer to the mustering of the troops of the Balkan States against the Turkish border, the Turks, boldly declaring for war, are advancing toward the frontier. Bulgaria, Greece, Servia and Montenegro, as well as Turkey, are all anxious to begin hostilities, and a formal declaration of war is expected very soon.

The Bulgarian and Servian Parliaments are now convoked in extraordinary session to consider the crisis, and the monarchs of these countries have left it to the legislators to decide on peace or war.

DEATH OF SIR CHARLES MOSS

Ontario's Chief Justice Succumbs to Acute Indigestion.

After an Illness Extending Over Nearly a Year Sir Charles Has Relapse and Dies Unexpectedly—Was Born In Cobourg In 1840, and Was a Brilliant Student, Lawyer and Judge—Held Post Since 1902.

Toronto, Oct. 12.—Sir Charles Moss, LL.D., Chief Justice of Ontaria, passed away at his residence, 547 Jarvis street, late last night. He was in his 73rd year.

The late judge had been considerably indisposed since last January, and under the circumstances could not take his seat in the Court of Appeal, which sat in the newly-constructed wing of Osgoode Hall. He departed for an extended tour through England and Ireland last June, where he stayed during the summer months, but he trip was not productive of any appreciable results. Since his return, about a month ago, he has been confined to his bed, where, during the past two or three days, he had suffered a relapse, but the end came suddenly, as he was expected to recover. His medical attendants attribute his death as due to stomach failure, brought on by acute indigestion.

The late Sir Charles was born in Cobourg in 1840, and came to Toronto early in life, subsequently graduating from the university here. He was a brilliant law student, and held the Law Society's scholarships in 1865, '66, '67 and '68, being called to the Bar in 1869. He was lecturer and examiner to the Law Society of Upper Canada from 1872 to 1879; was appointed a bencher of the Law Society in 1880, which he retained until 1897, and became a Queen's counsel in 1881.

LATE SIR CHARLES MOSS.

In 1881 he was elected president of the York Law Association, which post he held until 1892, being appointed a justice of the Court of Appeal in Ontario in 1897, and became Chief Justice five years later, succeeding the late Chief Justice Armour. The University of Toronto conferred the degree of LL.D. upon the late Chief Justice in 1900, and he was vice-chancellor of the university from 1900 to 1906. He was appointed to the university senate the same year.

Before taking his seat on the bench, he was for many years in partnership with the present Chief Justice Falconbridge and Sir Allan Aylesworth and the late Walter Barwick, K.C., as head of the firm of Moss, Falconbridge & Hoyles.

In 1871 he married Emily, the second daughter of the late Hon. R. B. Sullivan, judge of the Queen's Bench Court, who now survives her husband. Three sons—Charles A., G. F., and Thomas—and two daughters—Mrs. W. E. Davidson and Miss Adelaide Moss—all resident in Toronto, also survive.

The funeral will take place next Monday afternoon from his late residence to St. James' Cemetery.

Reid Cannot Accept.

Waterloo, Oct. 12.—Richard Reid, who was the Conservative nominee at the convention here last Saturday and who asked for a week's time to consider, gave out the statement last night that he would be unable to accept. He stated that, from the consensus of opinion, he thought Charles H. Mills would be the choice of the convention.

There was a rumor last night that there will be a candidate on a "progressive" ticket, in which event there will be a four-cornered contest, with an independent and Socialist in line.

Kingston Fears Coal Famine.

Kingston, Oct. 12.—Kingston will be short of coal this winter if conditions do not alter. Several dealers have been notified not to send any more vessels to Oswego to load as no more coal can be shipped. A strike of two months' duration in Lackawanna is given as the cause. They are allowing Canadian dealers but sixty per cent. of their usual supply. American dealers are demanding that their supply be looked after first.

Will Go to Vancouver.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 12.—It was reported yesterday that whatever doubt existed as to the Right Rev. T. Casey, Bishop of St. John, going to Vancouver as archbishop, has been removed, and definite announcement will be made in a day or two.

Lady Guides Next.

Ottawa, Oct. 12.—An organization of lady guides, somewhat similar to the Boy Scouts, has been started here, Rev. Mr. Reed and others taking an interest. The parent organization in England has appointed Lady Pellatt, of Toronto, as head of the organization in Canada, and those interested are asked to write to her.

Rugby Player Dies.

Montreal, Oct. 12.—After being knocked out by colliding with another player yesterday, H. Calvin McCallum, captain of the Westmount Academy football team, continued in the game.

He then became unconscious again and died after being taken home from a hemorrhage of the brain.

STUDENT'S RIOT IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Oct. 12.—One man suffering from concussion of the brain in the Royal Victoria Hospital, six youths arrested, many cuts and bruises and many police uniforms badly in need of cleaning was the result of a mix-up between the students of McGill University and the police last evening.

Thomas Marsh, 62 years of age, while walking home along Sherbrooke street, was struck on the head by a flying stone and knocked unconscious to the sidewalk. He was conveyed to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where it was stated that the doctors suspected concussion of the brain.

The first trouble occurred at about half-past five o'clock, after the conclusion of the annual sports, held on the grounds of the M.A.A.A., at the corner of Chomedy and St. Catherine streets, where the students commenced their old practice of holding up the street cars by pulling off the trolley poles. A. Dawes, a student, was placed under arrest, and this was the signal for an uproar. The student was taken to the police station, and the students made a strenuous effort to get into the building, but the police formed a cordon and kept them away.

There was a running fight between the students and the police on St. Catherine street eastward. The police, reinforced, patrolled the route to see that no damage was done and they were pelted with rotten eggs by the students.

All street car and vehicular traffic was held up on McGill College avenue. At the corner of Burnside place the second battle occurred, when stones were thrown and five other arrests made.

A huge crowd had gathered on McGill College avenue and it was into these that the students allege a patrol wagon laden with reserves was driven at full speed, knocking down two of the students.

Mrs. Jessie Goodman, regent of the St. Catharines Chapter I.O.D.E., is dead.

O. Boullee and Frank Letson, of Berlin, were hurt when their auto upset.

BECKER MADE MURDER THREAT

Witness Declares Becker Said He Would "Croak" Rosenthal.

Maurice Lubau, a Hanger-on In the New York Underworld, Gives the First Evidence at Trial Actually Implicating Police Lieutenant In the Murder—Identifies Two Gunmen as Having Fired the Shots.

New York, Oct. 12.—The first testimony implicating Charles Becker, in the murder of Herman Rosenthal was given at yesterday's session of the trial of the former police officer accused of instigating the murder of the gambler. It was testified by Maurice Lubau, a hanger-on of the underworld, that Becker had said to Jack Rose about three weeks before the murder:

"If that ——— Rosenthal is not croaked, I will croak him myself."

Lubau, who was also an eye-witness of the murder, identified in court yesterday "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie" as two of the men who fired the shots that killed Rosenthal and William Shapiro as the driver of the murder car. "Gyp" and "Lefty" he had known for more than a year, he said, and he also swore that "Dago" Frank, likewise an acquaintance, was in the group when the shots were fired. The witness also knew Rosenthal. He proved to be such a star witness for the state that John F McIntyre, chief counsel for the defendant, spent two hours and a half trying to break down his testimony.

Lubau was only discovered by District Attorney Whitman a day or two ago. With his brother Jacob, in Newark, N.J., on a forgery charge, the brothers claimed to have been "framed up" by somebody. The New York authorities secured their release on parole, and, according to Maurice, the witness, promised to "help them in every way if they would prove their frame up."

Lubau said that he heard Becker utter his alleged death threat against Rosenthal in the steam room of the Lafayette Baths, and that he stood within two or three feet of the police officer at the time. He did not know Becker well, he conceded, but had seen him in a gambling house on Allen street. Lubau added that Becker was talking at the time with "Denny Sly Fox," an underworld character, who is expected to be a witness in the trial.

Giovanni Stanich, another eye-witness, had previously identified "Whitey" Lewis as one who fired at Rosenthal. Thomas Ryan, a chauffeaur, disappointed the prosecutor by refusing in a frightened manner to identify any of them, although he, too, had seen the murder.

The gunmen on their third appearance made a protest. "We don't object to being identified, but we think we ought to have a chance like everybody else to be lined up with more men," said Lefty Louie. "We want this thing cleared up, but we want a square deal."

Mr. McIntyre attacked the character of the witness Lubau. The court excluded many of his questions along this line.

The defence yesterday subpoenaed the witness' brother, and demanded that the court instruct the district attorney to keep him within jurisdiction until he could be called. This the court refused to do, but instructed Lubau not to talk with his brother meantime.

Jack Rose, the state's most importance witness, upon whose testimony before the grand jury Becker's indictment was mainly based, was called to the stand, the last witness of the day, but did not testify. Justice Goff adjourned court when he was informed by counsel that it would take at least five hours to complete Rose's testimony.

He Saw the Tragedy.

London, Oct. 12.—Thomas Coupe, the eye-witness of the Rosenthal murder, is expected to sail for New York to-day on board the Mauretania in the company of Assistant District Attorney William DeFord. Coupe returned to his home in England with the intention of joining Mr. DeFord at Liverpool to-day. He makes no secret of the fact that he considers his return to New York a very dangerous undertaking.

According to his agreement with the district attorney Coupe returns to New York with his expenses paid and his life insured for $10,000. The state will bear the cost.

Many Killed In Battle.

Laredo, Texas, Oct. 12.—A rebel force numbering 1,800 ambushed and practically annihilated a force of 150 federals near Herma late Thursday.

Of the federal force only 17 are said to have escaped. After killing Col. Tello, the rebels hanged his body to a telegraph pole.

Eighteen federals were captured and their ears were cut off.

The federal flagbearer was offered his liberty if he would surrender the flag which he kept after he was captured. He refused and was shot.

Limbs Cut Off; Will Die.

Windsor, Oct. 12.—Eugene Prudhomme, 35 years old and married, living at 24 Windsor avenue, and employed as a switchman in the Detroit yards of the Michigan Central Railroad, was run down by a switch engine early yesterday morning and so seriously injured that physicians say his death is only a matter of hours. Both legs were cut off above the knee, and one arm was badly mangled.

Prudhomme was inexperienced, having been in the railway service for only a few months.

Rabies Feared.

Galt, Oct. 12.—Adam Wilson, ten years old, visiting his mother, housekeeper for Hugh Rutherford, on the latter's farm, a mile from the Township of Hall, North Dumfries, was bitten by a house dog which is supposed to be suffering from rabies. The lad was severely bitten on the hands, arms and back. The animal was killed and the head forwarded to Ottawa where it will be examined to see if the animal was suffering from rabies. The injured lad was sent to Toronto to undergo treatment.

AN ANCIENT LAW INVOKED

Montreal, Oct. 12.—Under a law passed in the time of Richard the Third, Judge Lebeuf, in the Circuit Court yesterday, gave judgment against the corporation of bailiffs for $50 as the result of negligence on the part of one of the corporations members. The ancient law declares that the bailiffs are responsible for each other.

The action was by Leon Kaster, a musician, who, in the spring of 1910, came to Montreal with an Italian opera company, which performed at the Arena. Kaster sued for his wages, $50, and obtained a seizure against the company which was entrusted to a bailiff named Aumais, who in turn turned the property over to another guardian named Thorpe. During the night the company and property vanished and the action against the corporation followed.

HOT ATTACK ON GOVERNMENT

London, Oct. 12.—A heated debate on the British Government's contract with the Marconi Wireless Co. for the establishment of an Imperial wireless service took place yesterday in the House of Commons.

Attorney-General Sir Rufus Issacs, Postmaster-General Herbert Samuels, and Chancellor of the Exchequer David Lloyd-George denied emphatically that they had profited by the Government's contract with Marconi.

Several newspapers had demanded an investigation and had strongly hinted that corruption underlay the remarkable rise in the price of Marconi shares from $3.75 to $45 before the public knew of the agreement.

Several members of Parliament attacked the Government for making a contract without giving other wireless systems a chance to tender for it.

A committee has been appointed to investigate the matter.

ENGLISH GENERAL MAKES FIRST VISIT TO AMERICA

MAJOR GENERAL SIR JOHN FRENCH

The famous English general, Major General Sir John French, who has come to the United States for the first time, is very much interested in American ways and American people. After a short stay in New York city, General French will go to Chicago and Canada, where he will visit the different military posts

DO YOU USE PILLS?

If In Doubt About the Right Pills to Use Read the Following Letter Carefully:

"I am one of those persons whose system requires aid," writes Mr. Young Gledhill, from Picton, "but it is so easily affected by reason of the great sensitiveness of the bowels that ordinary drastic pills inflict great injury to the delicate coating, and excite such persistent activity as to be with difficulty checked.

"I wish in the highest terms to express the great value of Dr. Hamilton's Pills in cases like mine, and I am sure also for elderly people and the very weak there is no pill like them.

"Speaking of my own experience with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I can say they have proved the most stimulating pills for the liver I have found. I have proved their tonic action upon digestion, and the same results have been secured by friends upon whom I have urged their use. The manufacturers are to be congratulated upon possessing so valuable a prescription, and the public should know that so valuable a remedy has been placed at their command."

No other pill for constipation, for liver, kidney, or stomach trouble, compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild and sure always to restore health. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all dealers, 25c per box, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston Ont.

UNION LABEL

THE EUROPEAN WAR

The Russian Minister of War, M. Suchomolinoff, is reported to have said that the Balkan outbreak is the beginning of a great European clash into which Russia will inevitably be drawn. The same fears have been expressed in other high quarters, the declaration of Count von Berethold, the Austrian Minister of Foreign Affairs, that Austria intended to preserve her rights in the Balkans at all costs, being regarded as quite significant of the danger to the general peace of Europe. Servia, Greece and Bulgaria, have not yet followed the initiative of Montenegro in declaring war, but they have intimated that this is only a matter of time. Turkey grimly declares that the war will be fought without mercy. No prisoners of war will be taken, but all will be slaughtered. If such a threat is carried out, the hand of Sir Edward Grey in English policy may be forced by indignation against the Turkish atrocities. The days when Gladstone stirred England by his indignant prostests against the Bulgarian atrocities comes vividly to mind in this connection.

The European powers outside of Britain were seemingly quite intent upon the coercion of Turkey into granting the demands of the minor Balkan states. But Britain held back, for some reason best known to the foreign office. The channels of international diplomacy are so complex and intricate, that the outsider who judges of the proceedings merely by what is reported to be happening, is in no position whatever to form a really accurate estimate of the situation. Britain must have some very substantial reason for staying by the Turk in such a case. Possibly it fears in this move a design by Russia, with whom it is at present on friendly terms, to get a stronger sphere of influnece in that part of Europe. Russian activity has been very pronounced in that sphere of late. The hand of Germany is not at all distant, but the one fact stands out as beyond dispute, and that is this: The spark which the Balkan war has set afire would not have much trouble in causing a general European blaze, in which we might well arrive at a real Armageddon.

THE MACDONALD ELECTION

The Macdonald bye-election in Manitoba has been the hottest political campaign in the history of Canada. Within two weeks hundreds of meetings have been held by the campaigns on the two sides. As many as half a dozen meetings a night have been held by one party. The powerful aid of Sir Rodmond Roblin, the Premier of Manitoba, has been enlisted, and Hon. Robert Rogers, the Dominion Minister of the Interior, has been camping on the ground day and night. Against the forces under the Roger management, the Liberals put up Saskatchewan and Alberta government agents. Some of the leading Liberal lights from the two westerly provinces have been on the platform, and the agents of their machines have been very busy throughout the ridings. The boldness and barefacedness of their attempt to intimidate the electors, and to practice under-hand methods of obtaining support for R. L. Richardson, the Liberal candidate, has led to several arrests, one arrest being that of a man named Sullivan, a leader in the Scott gang in Saskatchewan.

The normal Conservative majority of Macdonald, which comprises eight provincial constituencies, is probably about 500, or 600. It is probably the strongest Conservative constituency in the west. If the reciprocity propagandists have gained headway in Manitoba, the result of the bye-election ought to show it. The polling will probably be quite heavy, but there has been little doubt expressed that the Conservative candidate will have a substantial majority.

MISS WYLIE'S VISIT

Miss Barbara Wylie, the representative of the Women's Social and Political Union, who is sizing up conditions in Canada as affecting the suffragette movement, thinks that the Canadian suffragettes are quite timid. Alongside of Miss Wylie, who has been a stone thrower, and who has served a term in prison, the Canadian suffragettes are undoubtedly quite mild-mannered. Probably most Canadians think that it would not be a very happy day for Canada if they were not. There is little sympathy on this side of the water for the militant method, and any suffragette introducing militancy would be severely frowned upon by more than the adherents of the movement.

Miss Wylie has said that it is quite possible militancy will be introduced into Canada, but we are disposed to think that this is just a little game of bluff, to cover up what is a rather disappointing experience.

It is also said that Miss Wylie purposes to keep after Mr. Borden and let the provincial premier alone. If she hopes to get very far with her propaganda, that is a mistake. Mr. Borden has explicitly stated his position on the matter, and is not likely to deviate from it. The Dominion suffrage is based upon the provincial lists, and not unless the Dominion were to repeal the law which has been standing for 15 years would there be any chance of the vote being given to women. There is not much prospect that the Dominion will change this law for the present, as it has worked quite satisfactorily. We would advise Miss Wylie to tackle Sir James Whitney. That bluff old fox would be able to handle her in most becoming style. In fact, if Sir James were in some of his roaring humors, it would be worth an admission ticket to see the militant suffragette try to get on the nerves of the premier. Probably it is Sir James' reputation that has decided her to stick to Mr. Borden, who is quite couteous and patient at all times. But Sir James does not always earn his reputation. It depends on how he is approached.

BABY'S BEST FRIEND

Baby's Own Tablets are baby's best friend and the mother's greatest aid. They cure constipation, simple fevers, break up colds, expel worms and regulate the stomach and bowels. Concerning them Mrs. Napoleon Pelletier, St. Marcel, Que., writes; "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for constipation and simple fever for both my little girl of three years and my boy of four months and have found them entirely satisfactory and always keep them in the house." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TUBERCOLOSIS SUNDAY [illegible] OCTOBER 27th

At a meeting of Typographical Union No. 248, held on Saturday, Oct. 5th, at the request of James M. Lynch, President of the International Typographical Union, it was resolved to enlist the services and sympathies of the local Ministerial Association so that a few, if not all of the ministers of the City, might give a sermon dealing with tuberculosis, on Sunday, October 27th, to be known as "Tuberculosis Sunday."

The object is, first, to call attention to the ravages of the great white plague; second, to show that tuberculosis is preventable, and, third, to point out that it is curable.

The Typographical Union has been one of the most active crafts, or organizations in the country, in attempting to stamp out tuberculosis. For many years the printers have maintained an International Home for those of the craft who have been stricken with the Great White Plague. It is the only institution of its kind in the world.

NO RHEUMATISM THIS WINTER

Thanks to GIN PILLS

DON'T you want to have ONE WINTER free of Rheumatism? Don't you want to enjoy life as other men enjoy it? Don't you want to eat and sleep and work as healthy, normal men do, instead of being all crippled up with Rheumatism or Kidney Trouble?

Your Hair Needs Parisian Sage

Use It As a Dressing — Banish Dandruff—Stop Falling Hair and Scalp Itch.

PARISIAN Sage, the delightful and invigorating hair tonic, is a true hair nourisher. It penetrates into the scalp, gets to the roots of their hair, kills the dandruff germs, and supplies the hair with just the kind of nourishment it needs to make it grow abundantly.

Since its introduction into Canada PARISIAN Sage has had an immense sale, and here are the reasons:

It does not contain poisonous sugar of lead, nitrate of silver or sulphur or any injurious ingredient.

It cures dandruff in two weeks, by killing the dandruff germ.

It stops falling hair.

It promptly stops itching of the scalp

It makes the hair soft, glossy and luxuriant.

It gives life and beauty to the hair.

It is not sticky or greasy.

It is the daintiest perfumed hair tonic made.

It is the best, the most pleasant and invigorating hair dressing made.

Made only in Canada by The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. The price is only 50 cents at drug stores and counters where toilet goods are sold.

Wm Madill guarantees it.

Her First Thought.

Ella—What a dreamer she is! Stella—I should say so! When I told her about an accident in which a poor fellow lost both of his legs she said that that was too bad, as he would not be able to leave any footprints on the sands of time.—Judge.

The Difference.

"So Jack's going to marry her! Why, she's a mere nobody, and his grandfather came over with the Mayflower."

"That's nothing. Hers came over with $100,000."—Philadelphia Record.

Cruel.

Mrs. Benham — Do you remember that I gave you no decided answer the first time you proposed?

Benham—I remember that you suspended sentence.—Judge.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Renewal of fear that the Turkish war might have a dangerous spread brought about a material advance today in wheat. Closing prices were nervous, ⅝c to 1¼c to 1⅜c net higher. Corn scored a gain of ⅛c to 1c, and oats a rise of ⅜c to ⅝c. In provisions the outcome was an upturn of 10c to 35c.

The Liverpool market closed ⅜d to ⅝d higher on wheat, and ⅛d to ½d higher on corn. Antwerp wheat closed unchanged, Budapest ⅝c higher, and Berlin ⅜c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Oct. 11.—Cables on Manitoba spring wheat were stronger, at an advance of 3d per quarter. The demand was good and some business was done early, but the advance of 1c at Winnipeg checked exporters from making further sales later in the day, as late cables were no higher. American corn on spot was weaker and 2c lower, but even at this reduction the demand is slow. Oats firm under a fair demand for small lots. Foreign demand for Manitoba barley is good. Flour steady under a good local demand, but export trade quiet. Butter fairly active and strong. Cheese firmer and more active under an increased demand from English buyers. In provisions, compound lard has declined ½c, and pure has advanced ½c.

Corn—American No. 2 yellow, 75c to 76c.

ANOTHER MIRACULOUS CURE OF RHEUMATISM BY "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Pain Was Almost Unendurable Until He Began To Take The Famous Medicine Made From Fruit, Which Is Making So Many Cures.

Suffered For Five Years And Would Be Still Suffering—Probably—Had It Not Been For "Fruit-a-tives".

There is no doubt about "Fruit-a-tives" being the long sought for cure for Rheumatism, Sciatica and Neuralgia. Every day sees some sufferer relieved by "Fruit-a-tives". Every day sees some "hopeless, incurable" case of Rheumatism yield to the magic powers of these truly marvellous tablets, which are made by a wonderful secret process from the juices of fruits.

There may be skeptics. There may be people who think that perhaps "Fruit-a-tives" is all right for others, but not for them. There may be people who insist that their cases are too far gone to be helped. To all such, we say "Try Fruit-a-tives" as Mr. Dobson did. Give them a chance to prove their value. Mr. Dobson thought his case incurable yet a short treatment was sufficient to cure him.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest remedy for Rheumatism that the world has ever known. Here is the proof.

BRONTE, ONT., March 1st 1912

"Fruit-a-tives" has made a complete cure in my case of Rheumatism, that had at least five years standing before I commenced the treatment. The trouble was principally in my right hip and shoulder, the pain from it was almost unendurable. Not being able to sleep on that side, if I chanced to turn on my right side while asleep, the pain would immediately awaken me. This kept up until I started taking "Fruit-a-tives". I started by taking one or two tablets in the morning with a large glass of water, before breakfast and experienced pronounced benefit very shortly. After a continued treatment for about six months, I was cured and am now in first-class health. This, I attribute to my persistent use of "Fruit-a-tives", and I heartily recommend your remedy to any Rheumatic Sufferers, feeling confident that if taken faithfully, a cure will result.

I keep a general store at the above address and often recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to my customers".

JAMES DOBSON.

Get a box of "Fruit-a-tives"—take them as Mr. Dobson took them—and "Fruit-a-tives" will cure you just as they cured Mr. Dobson. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

CHAPTER XVIII.

CONTRABAND.

SHELDON did not mention the subject again, nor did his conduct change from what it had always been. There was nothing of the pining lover, nor of the lover at all, in his demeanor. Nor was there any awkwardness between them. They were as frank and friendly in their relations as ever.

The labor situation in Berande was improving. The Martha had carried away fifty of the blacks whose time was up, and they had been among the worst on the plantation—five year men recruited by Johnny Be-blowed, men who had gone through the old days of terrorism when the original owners of Berande had been driven away. The new recruits, being broken in under the new regime, gave better promise. Joan had joined with Sheldon from the start in the program that they must be gripped with a strong hand.

"I think it would be a good idea to put all the gangs at work close to the house this afternoon," she announced one day at breakfast. "I've cleaned up the house, and you ought to clean up the barracks. There is too much stealing going on."

Joan and Sheldon, both armed, went through the barracks house by house, the boss boys assisting.

A wealth of loot was recovered. There were fully a dozen cane knives, big hacking weapons, with razor edges, capable of decapitating a man at a stroke, but most astonishing was the quantity of ammunition—cartridges for Lee Metfords, for Winchesters and Marlins, for revolvers from 32 caliber to 45, shotgun cartridges, Joan's two boxes of 38 cartridges of prodigious bore for the ancient Sniders of Malaita, flasks of black powder, sticks of dynamite, yards of fuse and boxes of detonators. But the great find was in the house occupied by Gogoomy and five Port Adams recruits. The fact that the boxes yielded nothing excited Sheldon's suspicions, and he gave orders to dig up the earthen floor. Wrapped in matting, well oiled, free from rust, and brand new, two Winchesters were first unearthed. Sheldon did not recognize them. They had not come from Berande; neither had the forty flasks of powder found under the corner post of the house; and, while he could not be sure, he could remember no loss of eight boxes of detonators. The absence of any cartridges made Sheldon persist in the digging up of the floor, and a fifty pound flour tin was his reward. With glowering eyes Gogoomy looked on while Sheldon took from the tin a hundred rounds each for the two Winchesters and fully as many rounds more of nondescript cartridges of all sorts and makes and calibres.

The contraband and stolen property was piled in assorted heaps on the back veranda of the bungalow. A few paces from the bottom of the steps were grouped the forty odd culprits, while behind them, in solid array, the several hundred blacks of the plantation. At the head of the steps Joan and Sheldon were seated.

"Look at it," Sheldon said to Joan. "We've been sleeping over a volcano. They ought to be whipped"—

"No whip me," Gogoomy cried out from below. "Father belong me big fella chief. Me whip, too much trouble along you, close up, my word."

"What name you fella Gogoomy?" Sheldon shouted. "I knock seven bells out of you. Here, you Kwaque, put 'm irons along that fella Gogoomy."

Kwaque, a strapping gang boss, plucked Gogoomy from out of his following, and helped by the other gang bosses twisted his arms behind him and snapped on the heavy handcuffs.

"Me finish along you, close up, you die altogether," Gogoomy, with wrath distorted face, threatened the boss boy.

"Please, no whipping," Joan said in a low voice. "If whipping is necessary, send them to Tulagi and let the government do it. Give them their choice between a fine or an official whipping."

Sheldon nodded and stood up, facing the blacks.

"Manonmie!" he called.

Manonmie stood forth and waited.

"You fella boy bad fella too much," Sheldon charged. "You steal 'm plenty. Me cross along you too much. S'pose, you like 'm, me take 'm one fella pound along you in big book. S'pose you no like 'm me take 'm one fella pound, then me send you fella along Tulagi catch 'm one strong fella government whipping. Plenty New Georgia boys, plenty Ysabel boys stop along jail along Tulagi. Them fella no like Malaita boys little bit. My word, they give 'm you strong fella whipping. What you say?"

"You take 'm one fella pound along me," was the answer.

And Manonmie, patently relieved, stepped back, while Sheldon entered the fine in the plantation labor journal.

Boy after boy, he called the offenders out and gave them their choice, and boy by boy each one elected to pay the fine imposed.

Gogoomy and his five tribesmen were fined three pounds each, and at Gogoomy's guttural command they refused to pay.

"S'pose you go along Tulagi," Sheldon warned him; "you catch 'm strong fella whipping and you stop along jail three fella year. Savvee?"

Gogoomy wavered.

"You take 'm three fella pound along me," Gogoomy muttered, at the same time scowling his hatred at Sheldon and transferring half the scowl to Joan and Kwaque. "Me finish along you, you catch 'm big fella trouble, my word. Father belong me big fella chief along Fort Adams."

"That will do," Sheldon warned him. "You shut mouth belong you."

"Me no fright," the son of a chief retorted, by his insolence increasing his stature in the eyes of his fellows.

"Lock him up for tonight," Sheldon said to Kwaque. "Sun he come up put 'm that fella and five fella belong him along grass cutting. Savvee?"

"There will be trouble with Gogoomy yet," Sheldon said to Joan, as the boss boys marshalled their gangs and led them away to their work. "Keep an eye on him. Be careful when you are riding alone on the plantation. The loss of those Winchesters and all that ammunition has hit him harder than your cuffing did. He is dead ripe for mischief."

MRS. STEVENS RECOVERS

After Years of Suffering. Tells How Her Health Was Regained.

Waurika, Okla.—"I had female troubles for seven years, was all run down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different things but did me no good. I got so bad that I could not sleep day or night. While in this condition I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and began its use and wrote to you for special advice. In a short time I had regained my health and am now strong and well." —Mrs. SALLIE STEVENS, R.F.D., No. 2, Comanche, Okla.

Another Woman Recovers.

Newton, N.H.—"For five years I suffered from female weakness and dragging down pains. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored my health and the pains are gone."—Mrs. F. A. PEASLEE, R. F. D., Box 88.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

THE SAVIOR'S TEACHINGS
BROOKLYN TABERNACLE
INTERNATIONAL BIBLE STUDIES

GOD'S WORDS NOT MAN'S.

—October 13.—Mark 7:13.—

"For the Kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit."—Rom. 14:17.

THE STUDY TO-DAY shows that the Pharisees of eighteen centuries ago, while professing to keep carefully the Divine Law, and while even boasting of faithfulness in this respect, had gradually gotten away from God's Word and become followers of human tradition.

And surely the same is true of Christians to-day. The Bible is the recognized Authority and Standard, but each denomination of Christians has its own theory, its own proof-texts, its own catechism. When the Bible is read the gloss or interpretation of the accepted creed is before the mind and veils it. Thus it is that with Bibles in our hands Christians are divided into six hundred different sects, with very little prospect of coming together, because each one insists upon using his own creedal spectacles in the study of the Bible.

"Hold fast the faithful Word."

If truly wise, would not all Christians cast aside and destory these creed spectacles which have so long separated us, given false coloring to various passages of God's word and confused our minds in general? Would it not be following Heavenly counsel and Heavenly wisdom to take a different course and to begin a study of the Word of God afresh in the light which shines from one page upon another? We surely will all agree to this theoretically; shall we not put our agreement into practice?

In this lesson the Pharisees inquired why the followers of Jesus were not instructed along the lines of the Talmud—to be very careful to always wash their hands before eating, as a religious duty. We may be sure that Jesus set His followers no example of filthiness. Indeed, we know that in proportion as truth enters the heart it has a cleansing and purifying effect upon the entire life, upon the whole person—mental, moral and physical. What the Pharisees meant was a ceremonial washing, whether the hands were clean or unclean—to make a formal washing a part of their religion. This was what Jesus objected to. He could not so teach because it would have been ceremonial hypo- [illegible] the Pharisees on these points, Jesus said to them, You are the holy people mentioned by Isaiah the Prophet, saying, "This people seeketh Me with their lips, but their heart is far from Me. But in vain do ye worship Me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men," for ye leave the commandments of God and hold fast the traditions of men.

Jesus gave them an example of how they neglected the Divine commandments while giving so much attention to ceremonial washings, which were commanded, not of God, but of the Talmud. The illustration was that the Mosaic Law commanded that father and mother should be honored and that he that spoke evil of either of them should be put to death. But this command had been changed by the Talmud and any man might be free from his parents by consecrating himself and substance to God and religious uses. Having done so, according to the Talmud, he was freed from all obligations to his parents.

This was the conflict between the teachings of Jesus and the teachings of the Pharisees. Both claimed holiness and strict observance of the Divine Law, but Jesus held to the Word of God and rejected the Talmud, the traditions of the Elders, and the Pharisees neglected the Word of God and held to the traditions. What are we as Christians doing to-day? "Let us hold fast the faithful Word," "The Word of God, which is able to make us wise." Let us search the Scriptures daily and critically, and let us abandon everything which conflicts therewith.

Our text is frequently misunderstood to mean that God's Kingdom consists in righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit. The context shows that this is entirely a wrong thought. Let us follow the context and see.

Let us bear in mind what we have already seen respecting the Kingdom mentioned in the Bible—that it is the glorious reign of Messiah for a thousand years, for the uplift of the human family, and that during that reign the Church will be associated with Jesus in His Kingdom glory, power and honor. The call of this Gospel Age is to select this Bride class and to develop them and make them "meet for the inheritance of the saints in light."

The Gentiles who came into membership in the Body of Christ were not required to conform themselves to the demands of the Jewish Law. For instance, a Jew, according to the Law, might not eat fish that had no scales, mackerel, etc., neither might he eat rabbit meat, nor pork, and in a variety of other ways he was restrained and limited in his eating and drinking. But none of these restraints apply to Christians who have come from amongst the Gentiles and who never have been under the Law Covenant.

"Who touched Me."

The body of Jos. Turkington was found in a stable at Guelph. He had been missing a week.

Ambition is like a race horse. It's all right as long as a man keeps in his own class.

An Employer's Liability Policy

MIGHT SAVE YOU HEAVY DAMAGES

While an accident may be due to an employee's own carelessness, still there's no certainty that the employer will not have to pay heavy damages. New legislation too is steadily increasing the responsibility of the employer. But an Employer's Liability Policy in the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would protect you against financial loss through injuries to an employee while on duty. The General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would deal justly with your employee too. It is noted for fairness and broadmindedness. It is one of the oldest and strongest Insurance Companies in the world. Do not delay to write for further particulars.

Injuries in the industrial world are frequent. In the building, metal and woodworking trades alone there were 294 people killed and 1,421 injured in Canada during 1910 and 1911. Our business is to relieve the employer of all financial responsibility resulting from accident.

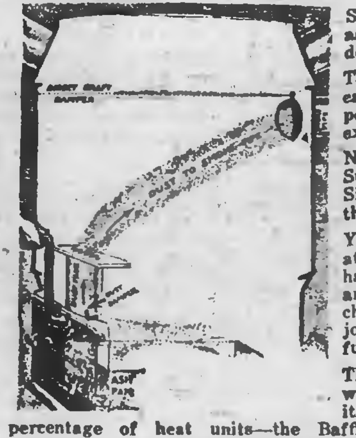
More Facts About McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace

—The Understudy of the Sun—

There's no dust nuisance about the "Sunshine"—when you rock down the ashes the dust is drawn up dust-flue then directly across to smoke-pipe where it belongs. Look at the illustration and remember to open both "Dust" and "Direct Draft" dampers—these simple devices make the "Sunshine" the cleanest furnace for the home.



See the famous "cup joints" here—the frame of the ash pit—the two sections of the fire-pot and the dome all jointed together by our "cup joint."

There's a layer of asbestos cement in each joint—this unites all sections in a permanent way, yet leaves room for the expansion and contraction of the metal.

No wonder that this "Understudy of the Sun" is called the "Sunshine" furnace—Since it diffuses pure warm June air throughout the house.

You don't have to wear overalls when attending to the "Sunshine" furnace—It has a big roomy ash-pan. All the ashes are guided directly into the pan by ash-chutes. A minute or two performs the job. Yes, the "Sunshine" is the clean furnace.

The "Sunshine" Furnace burns either wood or coal. Coke, too, if you prefer it. The "Sunshine" distributes a greater percentage of heat units—the Baffle plates (a new McClary device) decidedly increase the heating efficiency of the furnace.

But—see the McClary agent of your locality. Ask him to show you all the features and exclusive devices which make the "Sunshine" Furnace worthy of the name—The Understudy of the Sun.

If you do not know the McClary Agent, write us at our nearest address and we'll forward you a letter of introduction by return.

SERIOUS INJURY TO TWO LADIES

Disasterous Accident Followed Upset of Surrey

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Miller, formerly of town, but now of Campbellford with their family of small children and two friends were the victims of a very serious accident on Sunday night while returning from a visit with Mrs. Miller's parent, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Edwards, of Percy.

They were all in a surrey with Mr. Miller driving, when, just as they were nearing Campbellford, one of the reins broke, causing the horses to swing the rig into the ditch. At the same time the rear wheel of the surrey dished. The team had been going at a fast pace, and of course the rig upset throwing all of the party out. Mrs. Miller had both bones in her leg broken, and a young woman, who was with her, had her shoulder blade broken. The children were badly bruised about the head, but the baby, who fell under the top was not hurt at all. Mr Miller was severely bruised about the face and head and one side, but the party with him in the front seat jumped in time to save himself. The team had been practically unmanageable all day, but strange to relate, as soon as the rig overturned they stopped dead still till the rig was righted. An auto came along just a minute after the accident and all the injured were taken to a doctor's office at Campbellford— Hastings

TIMELY WORDS OF COUNSEL IN THE INTEREST OF PETERBOROUGH BOYS

Written by Mr. Nash Boy's Work Secretary, Y.M.C.A.

The Boy and the Community—Each individual is a unit; each family is a larger unit, and each community is a still larger unit. Each one of these units must have its share of our attention if we are going to make it as easy as possible for our boys to do what is right, and as difficult as possible for them to do what is wrong. No individual member of a family can do anything, whether it be good or evil, without that act affecting in a greater or less degree all the other members of the family. And in the very same way, no one can long remain in any place without leaving its impress upon the community. Humanity is so bound together by circumstances over which we have no control, and is so interdependent that well defined team work is necessary in order to train the rising generation. If our influence and responsibility did not extend beyond the limits of the family of which we happen to form a part, we would do well to employ all our time and means towards the perfecting of that home, and to utterly disregard all others. But since this is not the case, each individual should do all he can for the betterment of his home and at the same time all the families should work together with a united effort towards the elevation of the entire community. Unless we do this, we are not giving the boy more than half a chance.

It is impossible, and, moreover, it is also impracticable to confine the boys of each household within the four walls of their own home and to prevent the boys of a community from associating together during at least a part of their leisure time. This fact creates a community obligation in behalf of the boys thus thrown together. The work of the home, the church and the school in the interest of the boy is invaluable, but if the mothers and fathers of a community, as such, would band themselves together and discuss ways and means whereby the leisure time of all the boys would be [illegible] at a place and in a way that would help them most, and then if those parents would continue their united efforts until the boys have reached the age of manhood their children would rise up and call them blessed, the community would be respected by all and the world would be better.

The boy and the community presents a problem which demands the serious consideration of every adult in the community.

MEN! BE ON YOUR GUARD

Now the fall season is on in dead earnest, and it is time for the discarding of all summer wearing apparel, it is necessary to put on much warmer clothing in order to protect your health. This is the time of all times when men should be very careful to protect themselves and the best way to do it is to go to Cameron, the New Men's Wear Store, and get a Suit of that cosy all wool Underwear, the kind that defies the coldest blasts and keeps the body warm. There are extraordinary values at $1.00 to $2.00 per garment. Now you know, and it is up to you whether you buy a Suit of Underwear or pay a doctor's bill. Take the advice from one who knows and get the Underwear right away. You may say "I will wait and get tempered to the cold weather before I do," but take care that the cold weather don't temper you so that you will never get over it.

Don't forget the New Men's Wear Store, it's CAMERON.

HORSE RAN AWAY FROM MARKET

A farmer's horse attached to a covered rig took fright on the market square this morning about ten o'clock and tore out of the square and up Water street at a fairly fast clip. When turning out of the square the vehicle struck the raised sidewalk near the market scales and nearly upset. The contents of the rig and the cushioned seat were thrown out into the muddy road. It was halted in the vicinity of Smith St., and driven back to the market.

REPRESENTATIVE MEETING OF CITIZENS DEALT WITH DE LAVAL PROPOSITION

Vote will be Taken on Monday October 30—"Don't Think the Other Fellow's Vote will be Enough But Get Out Yourself"—New Concern is One with a Promising Future.

The enthusiastic and representative citizens' meeting held last evening in the City Council Chamber, when the De Laval Dairy Supply Company proposition to locate here was discussed pro and con, augurs most favorably for the success of the by-law at the hands of the ratepayers on October 30th. Peterborough's most prominent business men and manufacturers were present and the Council Chamber was filled to capacity.

"The best citizens' meeting I have ever witnessed" was the opinion of City Clerk S. R. Armstrong, who has seen quite a number and is competent to judge.

The efforts of the City Council in inducing the company to come to Peterborough received the most hearty approval and endorsation. Not a single objecting voice was raised and if the ratepayers will only rally at the polls in as large numbers as possible, the result of the vote on Oct 30th can easily be forecasted.

Men like E. G. Patterson, superintendent of the Canadian General Electric Works, D. W. Dumble, W. H. Denham, J. R. Stratton, W. H. Moore, John Crane, Dr. Morrison and others, all came out strongly in urging a general rush to the polls on voting day, and the casting of a vote that will mean another well capitalized and reliable manufacturing establishment for the city.

Mayor Bradburn presided last night and he gave the gathering the fullest information about the project. He explained the terms and conditions upon which the company propose to locate here, which has been previously published. He told them that the Council has always been up against the difficulty of getting the people to supply the capital which various industries asked for before they would promise to locate.

"The object of calling this meeting," he said, "was to ask you, as citizens and ratepayers who have this city's interest at heart, to form an organization with the object of getting the voters out on October 30th.

The by-law will require a two-thirds vote. The amount of money involved is $19,500. In this sum is included the amount of moving expenses of the company's equipment to here which will cost approximately $3,500.00.

The Council will provide sewer connection and a cesspool.

S. R. Armstrong outlined the financial side of the proposition clearly, and also answered several questions which he had been asked since it was learned that the company had chosen a site in Peterborough. One particular good feature he spoke of was the fact that the De Laval Dairy Supply Company will employ male help almost entirely. The fact also that a site on the south end had been chosen was owing to the absence of any land of sufficient area in the central part of the city. The majority of the employes will also reside inside the corporation, and the city will thereby benefit from the added tax revenue, which must necessarily ensue. The income which will accrue from the school and local improvement taxes upon the factory will exceed by more than $300 the proceeds which are now derived from the property. The latter information, when imparted by Mr. Armstrong elicited an outbreak of applause.

OPERATE BY JUNE 1

The company promise to have their building up and in operation by June 1st. They will manufacture all kinds of dairy supplies, such as cream separators, milk coolers, churns, sterilizing outfits, etc., which will undoubtedly realize big sales around Peterborough.

D. W. Dumble heartily endorsed the Council's efforts in inducing the company to locate here.

"We have, however," he remarked "allowed some industries to go which we have mourned ever since."

LET EVERY ONE WORK

"I for one would say, don't let this by-law be lost, but when the day comes do not stay at home, but let every man strive to get to the polls first. Let us close our stores if necessary, and get out a brass band."

"I'm for this by-law heart and soul," he wound up, amid spontaneous applause.

KNOWS THE COMPANY.

J. I. Allen, superintendent of the Prudential Assurance Company, upon the solicitation of Mayor Bradburn, told the gathering that in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., his home town, the De Laval Dairy Supply Company have an extremely large establishment. He traced its growth from its humble beginning to its present flourishing state employing 700 hands.

A BRIGHT FUTURE

Mr. E. G. Patterson said: "If the people do not back up this by-law they are losing a good thing for I believe they will employ 500 hands in Peterborough in less than three years."

At this juncture Mr. Crane moved a resolution endorsing the action of the Council for their efforts to bring the company here, and pledging them the support of the ratepayers. Mr. J. J. Hartley seconded the motion with a few timely words of approbation.

Mayor Bradburn after many other nominees had declined the duty, accepted the office of chairman of a general committee to look after getting the voters out. City Clerk Armstrong also consented to act as secretary.

A committee from each ward will be chosen to look after ward arrangements, with an alderman for sub-chairman of each committee.

A GENEROUS GIFT OF FORMER CITIZEN

Conditonal Pledge of $1,000 to Y.M.C.A. From Mr. E. R. Wood Toronto

The following letter was recently received from Mr. E. R. Wood, of Toronto, who is vitally insterested in the work and progress of the Young Men's Christian Association of Peterboro.

J. W. Tennett, Esq.,
President Young Men's Christian Association,
Peterborough, Ont

Dear Mr. Bennett— Referring to your recent visit to me, in company with the Secretary of the Peterborough Association, I was quite surprised to find that the Association at Peterborough is in debt to the amount of $3,000, on current account.

As I understand it, the late Mrs Nicholls left an amount of money sufficient to not only purchase the site of the present Association on George street, but also to construct and completely equip the building, so that the citizens of Peterborough were not called upon to contribute a dollar toward the Association's property account. The citizens of Peterborough, have therefore, had very little burden upon them. Such towns as Woodstock, Galt and Brantford have found it necessary to raise among their citizens generally, thousands of dollars to erect and furnish their buildings and at the same time to increase their annual budget for the conduct of the new and larger work.

I am certain that if the people of Peterborough had the values of a well equipped and well conducted Young Men's Christian Association put before them in the proper way, they would support such a work to the extent necessary for its success. I cannot believe that the work has been lacking in value, but it must be that the citizens of Peterborough have not realized their responsibility for its maintenance. In agreeing to help you out of your present difficulties I am taking the liberty of calling your attention in this fashion to the necessity of the development of an adequate financial constituency in Peterborough itself. As you know, I have been a contributor in a small way to the Association before, and shall not cease to be interested in it, and it is because of this, and because of what I have seen in Toronto in connection with the Association that I am writing in this way.

You may state to the Directors of the Association that I will contribute $1000 on the understanding that the other $2000 is secured and the entire floating debt wiped out; and I sincerely hope and believe that the friends of the Association in Peterborough will see to it that never again shall it get into debt.

Yours truly,
(Signed)
E. R. WOOD

The Board of Directors of the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association met last evening and unanimously voted to accept Mr. Wood's offer, and they will make a strenuous effort to raise the additional $2000. Within the next few days the citizens of Peterborough who have not as yet contributed will be called upon and given an opportunity to help in this very important work for the boys and young men of our city.

Mr. Rueben Beavis, of the local District Plant Office, has been transferred to the Bell Telephone Company of Lindsay, and will leave to take up his duties on Monday.

Mr. Frank Yeigh, the well known travel talk lecturer, has been secured by the Young Ladies' Mission Circle, of Charlotte Street Church, for Friday evening, Oct. 25th. The subject is "Canada's Hundred Years of Peace." Further announcements.

MME. LILLIAN NORDICA

One of the biggest musical events will be the appearance here in concert of that great artist, Mme. Lillian Nordica. The wondrous beauty of Nordica's voice, her great and rare art and her magnetic personality are all too well known to need more than a mention, but the wonderful versatility that makes her at once mistress of a great dramatic song, a florida Italian aria and a simple English ballad, enables her to provide a program of wonderful variety and rare artistic delight, and for this reason Nordica shines as brilliantly on the concert platform as on the operatic stage.

Mme. Nordica is an example of constant achievement. She has never stood still nor remained content with the triumphs she has won. Last season she scored one of the greatest successes of her career by singing "Isolde" in German at the Berlin Royal Opera, while the season before she added a fresh triumph to her list by singing the same role in French at the Parsi Grand Opera.

At her concert here, Mme Nordica will be heard in a number of English selections, as she is an enthusiastic advocate of singing in the vernacular and was the first to attempt singing Wagner in English.

The date of the Nordica concert is Monday, October 21.

Seat sale opens to general public on Monday, October 14.

"OBSERVER" HAS SOMETHING TO SAY
(THE POWER SITUATION)
ON THE LETTER BY "MANUFACTURER"

To The Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir,—I would like to point out a few little things that I think "Manufacturer" should make a little clearer. He speaks of the inestimable benefits of competition the frontier towns are now receiving in having three railroads now serving their interests, and then goes on to talk about electric power as if the local power company had about everything in sight in that line around here and that the city should knuckle under and help make that monopoly more complete. Why, the Council by bringing in the Hydro-Electric are trying to get some of the inestimable benefits of competition." Again he says our small visioned Council is talking about buying out a plant for $58,000 that is valued at $200,000. Now, if Adam Beck's engineers do not know how to figure on power cost as well as engineers of the local company they certainly would have proven themselves failures before this. But the whole country knows what they have already accomplished. Taking the local figures, the consumers in this district are expected to put up dividends on $142,000 watered stock. Right in line with this style of financing is the Burleigh Falls power which cost somewhere around $5,000 and is now valued at $200,000. Our government spends the country's money building up a fine dam, and thus makes possible a fine power development, evidently for the benefit of just a few instead of the people whom they are supposed to represent. The best thing to happen is for Adam Beck and his Commission to expropriate all Trent Valley power sites and bring things back to a normal situation—that is the natural resources of the country for the benefit of all the people and not for a favored few.

Yours truly,

"OBSERVER."

Will Play Second Rugby Team of Trinity College School

The Peterborough Collegiate Institute senior Rugby team left this morning for Port Hope, where they will play the Trinity College School second team. They will return this evening.

PERSONAL

Rev. Mr. Keith will conduct the services in "Bally Duff" on Sunday and Rev. Robert Haddow will preach at Knox church.

Mrs. Ernest Howson (Laura Lochhead) will receive for the first time since her marriage on Tuesday, October 15 at her home, 548 Aylmer street and afterwards on the third Tuesday of each month.

Enlarging Store

During the month, Miller & Sons will occupy, not only their own store but the one adjoining as well, a growing business and added stock calling for more room to handle the business.

A woman can be just as proud of her store hair as if she raised it herself.

It is the things that are possible but not probable that keep some people from being happy.

London, Oct. 12.—(C.A.P. Reckoning Time.

From the best information we have the calendar came into use 2330 B. C., with a week of seven days and a year of twelve months, named after zodiacal signs. The year consisted of 360 days, which probably suggested the division of the circle into degrees. Astronomical chronology was divided into cycles of 60 years, 600 years and the star, or 3,600 years. The "Observation of Bel," the great Babylonian work on astronomy and astrology, gave a record of eclipses of the sun and moon, conjunctions and phases of some of the planets, the time of the new year and many other scientific problems. Many of the calculations made in this ancient astronomy are of the utmost importance even in our day, and to it is due the era of Nabonassar, one of the most famous in the annals of chronology, the basis of all the computations of Ptolemy, and the dates in connection with Alexander and Aristotle. Since its epoch, Feb. 26, 747 B. C., it maintained its ground till after the commencement of the vulgar era.—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of The Review,

Sir,—It is well known that the managers of the Liberal party in Peterborough with one well known exception are anxious to foil local option. They know that if local option carries the last hope of beating Sir James Whitney in Peterborough is gone but if local option does not carry then they hope to combine temperance and the Liberal vote in support of Rowell's policy at the next general election for the Legislature. The consequence is that local option will be beaten if it is brought on now for the Liberal machine will vote against it and great harm will undoubtedly be the result. Local option is a temperance measure. Abolish the bar is only a bid for support and a little more than nothing. People are now standing on the ragged edge and it will be necessary for those who love law and order to pull themselves together and not allow political heelers and traitors to rip up the whole temperance movement. Yours, etc.,

FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR WEDDING DAY CELEBRATED

Lakeview Farm, Bridgenorth, the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Mann, was the scene of a joyous occasion, on Tuesday evening, when members of their family and friends to the number of thirty-five, gathered to celebrate with Mr. and Mrs. Mann, the fortieth anniversary of their wedding day.

A bountiful supper was disposed of and afterwards the evening was spent in a sociable manner, a program of instrumental and vocal music being given. Rev. J. R. Bonner, of Gilmour Memorial church, acted very acceptably as chairman. An interesting feature of the occasion was the presence of Mrs. James Mann, Sr., mother of Mrs. T. R. Mann, who is in her 95th year, and she shared in the congratulations of the evening as speeches were made, by Mr. G. W. Mann and Mr. T. T. Milburn.

The following address and presentation was made:

To Mr. and Mrs. Mann:

Dear Parents,—We have gathered here to-night in commemoration of the fortieth anniversary of your wedding day.

We wish, as children, to thank you for your care of us, when we were young and needed your guidance and council. To-day, now that we have grown to manhood and womanhood, we still prize your words of cheer and counsel, and we feel that your words of advice are as valuable as ever to us.

We find that one of the chief blessings to us, is the fact of having been reared in a Christian home and amid goodly influences.

We all unite in wishing that you may be spared to celebrate many more such events as this in your married life.

We would ask you to accept this couch and chair as a slight token of our love and respect for you.

Signed on behalf of the family,

J. GORDON MANN.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

The Fire Eating Trick.

The first known fire breather was a Syrian slave named Eunus, a leader in the servile war in Sicily, 130 B. C. He pretended to have immediate communication with the gods. When desirous of inspiring his followers with courage he breathed flames and sparks from his mouth. In order to perform this marvel Eunus pierced a nutshell at both ends, and, having filled it with some burning substance, he put it in his mouth and breathed through it. The same trick is performed today in an improved manner. The juggler rolls together some flax while it is still burning. By this means the fire is retained in the ball for a long time. He slips this ball into his mouth unperceived and breathes through it. His breath revives the fire, and he sustains no injury so long as he inhales through his nostrils only.

An Appetizing Greek Dish.

Whatever may have been the secret of ancient Greek culture, it seems probable at least that it did not lie in the cuisine of the race, if the details of it that have been discovered by modern scholars are to be taken as accurate. A writer in Frazer's Magazine recently told of one dish that might have provoked a warrior to desperate deeds, but would hardly have inspired an artist or a poet. He says they mixed hog's lard and milk with thick gruel, making a paste of it and adding fresh cheese, yolks of eggs and beef brains. The mixture was wrapped in a fig leaf and boiled in the gravy of a chicken or kid. Then they took off the fig leaf and soused the morsel in a pot of boiling honey, then ate it.—Steward.

BLOOD ATONEMENT WAS NECESSARY

Failure to Understand This Leads Many to Unbelief.

Need of the Hour in Pulpit and Pew Is a Correct Appreciation of the Value of Blood Atonement for Sin, Declared Pastor Russell at Lynn.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 13.—One of Pastor Russell's discourses here to-day was from the text, "Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins." (Heb. 9:22.) He said in part:—

The Scriptures declare that the life is in the blood (Lev. 17:11); hence the shedding of blood represents death; and death may be spoken of as the shedding of blood, regardless of whether or not a single drop of blood be spilled literally. Thus the presentation of the blood of the sacrifices of old represented the offering to God of their lives as typically an offset to the forfeited life of Adam and his children, who lost life through his disobedience.

Israel's Atonement Sacrifices.

Each year, at approximately this season, the Jews celebrate their Atonement Day, by which their sins are thought to be covered afresh for the year begun. The underlying thought is a reminder that they are sinners, and that without the shedding of blood, without a sacrificial death, there can be no Divine forgiveness of sins.

For more than sixteen centuries Israel observed these typical Atonement Day services, up to the time that Jesus case. Since then the Jews can have no Atonement Day, really; because their priestly line is lost, and they have no Holy and Most Holy in which to make the Atonement, and no Shekinah Mercy-Seat on which the blood of Atonement may be placed, and from which Divine blessing and forgiveness would proceed. They, nevertheless, keep up the ceremonial.

In their typical procedure the Day of Atonement included all the Atonement work of the priest on the tenth day of the seventh month. His Atonement included all the Atonement work of the priest on the tenth day of the seventh month. His Atonement sacrifice consisted of two parts—first, a bullock, which he slew; and afterwards a goat, which he treated in like manner. He took the blood of the bullock into the Most Holy and applied it, not on behalf of Israel in general, but simply on behalf of the priestly tribe of Levi.

After accomplishing this he came out and slew the secondary part of his offering, the Lord's goat, which typified those consecrated to be his under-priesthood. After treating the goat precisely as the bullock had been treated, its blood was taken into the Most Holy and there was sprinkled on the Mercy Seat, not on behalf of the tribe of Levi, but on behalf of all the other tribes—on behalf of "all the people," representative of all humanity—how eventually they will come into harmony with God.

"The Better Sacrifices"—Antitypical.

In the type the bullock represented Jesus consecrated to death, and dying and dead; and the high priest represented The Christ, spirit-begotten, Jesus, as the appointed antitypical priest after the order of Melchisedec, offered up Himself—His human body—when He reached manhood's estate—thirty years. This death of the bullock represents Him in His baptism at Jordan. Gradually He fulfilled His baptism unto death, for three and a half years, completing it at Calvary. During His earthly ministry, as a Priest He was in the Holy, having fellowship with the Father. At Calvary, as Priest, He passed under the second veil, and in His resurrection arose on the other side of the veil, in the Most Holy—in the perfect spirit condition—in glory, honor, immortality, a partaker of the Divine nature.

Our Lord remained for forty days to manifest Himself to His disciples, after which He ascended on high and presented the merit of His sacrifice (Heb. 9:24) on behalf of the Church, just as Aaron presented the blood of the bullock on behalf of his household, the tribe of Levi. The Divine acceptance of this merit on behalf of the Church was manifested by the giving of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost.

Members of Jesus Still Dying.

The Scriptures set forth that the faithful few of Jesus' followers who will constitute the Royal Priesthood by and by have been represented as the antitypical Lord's Goat of the Atonement Day, which is caused to pass through the same experience exactly as the antitypical Bullock, our Lord. (Heb. 13:11-13.) Thus the faithful followers of Jesus are to be sharers in His suffering of this present time and to be sharers in His glory by and by. "If we suffer with Him we shall also reign with Him."

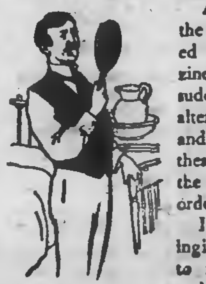
Not until the last of these faithful ones of the "better sacrifices" shall have tasted death—not until the foreordained number shall have been completed in glory—will the forgiveness of the world's sins be accomplished. At that time the antitypical Priest will make the secondary application of His blood on behalf of "all the people," on behalf of all who will ever come into harmony with God. As the Church class was typified by the tribe of Levi, so all mankind were typified in the remaining tribes of Israel, whose blessing means the blessing of the world.

Since atonement signifies to make at one, to bring into harmony, the great High Priest, Christ, must first make satisfaction of Divine Justice, and then the way will be open before Him for a thousand years to bless those whose sins He cancels.

In the time a pretty stenographer spends manicuring her finger nails she could almost learn to spell and punctuate.

A Lazy Liver

Upsets the Whole System.
Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Put Things Right Again.



His liver is so sluggish—his stomach bad.

A bitter taste in the mouth—coated tongue—dizziness on rising suddenly—bowels alternately loose and constipated—these mean that the liver is out of order.

Instead of flowing into the bowels, to regulate them and aid digestion, the bile has been going all through the system, upsetting digestion, leaving the bowels constipated, and making the sufferer perfectly miserable. This is biliousness.

The quick, safe and certain cure is Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. They clear out the clogged-up system, stir up the lazy liver, cleanse the stomach and bowels and purify the blood. The bile returns to its normal course, the food is again digested properly and all the disagreeable symptoms vanish.

Doctors prescribe Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills and they are known throughout the world as a proven cure for all digestive troubles. They are equally effective in strengthening weak kidneys and curing rheumatism.

ONLY ONE WAY TO CURE RHEUMATISM

It Must be Treated Through the Blood and the Poisonous Acid Driven Out

The twinges and tortures of rheumatism are not due to cold, damp weather as so many persons suppose. Rheumatism comes from poisonous acid in the blood. This is a medical truth which every sufferer should realize. There is only one way to cure rheumatism—it must be treated through the blood. All the liniments and rubbing and so-called electric treatment in the world will not cure rheumatism, and the sufferer who tries them is not only wasting money, but is allowing the trouble to become more deep-rooted in the system and harder to cure when the proper remedy is tried. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills always cure rheumatism because they go right to the root of the trouble in the blood. These Pills make the new, rich blood of health, and in this way drive out the poisonous acid which cause rheumatsim. Thousands of instances of cures might be given, among which is the following one. Mrs. G. R. Dulmage, Cherry Valley, Ont., says: "I was attacked with rheumatism which gradually grew worse until I was confined to my bed. For about two weeks I had to be shifted and turned in bed, as I was utterly unable to help myself. I was under the doctor's care and so far recovered that I was able to get up and move about, but the trouble still remained in my system. If I put my hands in cold water, or if I went out in the evening or in damp weather the trouble would return and for four year I thus suffered from rheumatism, until I began to think it could not be driven from my system. Finally I gave up all other medicine and began to use Dr. Williams Pink Pills, and after using them for a couple of months I was completely cured and have not had a twinge of rheumatism since. I can recommend the Pills to anyone suffering from this trouble."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont

SUNDAY DRINKING AND ACCIDENTS.

An employee in a hospital connected with the University of Vienna was caught in the machinery and severely injured one Monday morning while cleaning his elevator. He was promptly cared for in the surgical department, and having a strong constitution, pulled through. In giving an account of the accident at his clinic, Prof. Hochenegg, the chief surgeon remarked: "The man forgot to shut off the engine before he began his cleaning. That, of course, he would forget to do only on Monday. Then, instead of reaching under the moving cable for his oil-can, he reached over it, which, of course, he would do only on Monday. Such things happen most frequently on Monday. On this point medical experience is in harmony with that of factory inspectors and accident insurance companies."

Commenting on the above, Mr. G. L. Transeau writes in the Scientific Temperance Journal of Boston, Mass.

This prevalence of accidents on Mondays in countries where Sunday is the chief drinking day, like France, Germany and Austria, has come out clearly in a number of investigations. In a few cases a larger percentage of accidents fell on Tuesdays instead of Monday, and here it developed that many of the workmen spend Monday in continuing or recovering from the alcoholic indulgence of Sunday, and do not come to work at all until Tuesday.

The testimony of experience as to the undesirability of the alcoholic habitue in modern industry is further strengthened by the physiological explanations of his condition. Dr. Leopold Kraus pointed out in a lecture given in Vienna not long ago that the chances caused by alcohol which dispose the drinker particularly to accidents are: unsteadiness of the hands, illusions of sight and hearing, and diminution of intelligence, and that these may be the results of either the temporary or continued effects of alcohol. The foremost leaders in the investigations of the relation of alcohol to accidents have been the German insurance societies, which have found that they were losing heavily by accidents resulting from alcoholic indulgence. The results of their investigations are of special interest to employers of labor in this country at the present time, because of the extension and enforcement of legislation requiring employers to pay a compensation to injured workmen.

AN ADVANCE MOVE IN GERMANY

Germany, that wonderfully progressive nation, is evidently tired of having outsiders think that Germany and beer are synonymous terms. We have frequently noted the advance ground taken by the Emperor of Germany and other leaders on the temperance question. Germany is great not on account of beer, but in spite of it. A nation's greatness is manhood and whatever destroys or debauches manhood weakens and robs a nation's best asset. Herr Franziskus Hahnel, the distinguished temperance advocate of Bremen, now of Leipzig, Germany, has supplied the National Advocate, of New York, with a copy of the letter to the Ministry of the State of Lippe to Dr. Kraut, of Hamburg, stating that:

"After inquiry from the authorities concerned, and with the gracious consent of His Highness, the Prince, the Pollard System is to be used in this country experimentally."

TO-MORROW AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Brock Centenary will be Observed at Both Services

The services morning and evening at St. John's Church promise to be of special interest. In accordance with instruction from the Bishop, patriotic addresses will be made to commemorate the battle of Queenstown Heights and in memory of Sir Isaac Brock. There will be appropriate music. At the conclusion of the evening service a meeting will be held in preparations to the coming evangelistic services which promise to be largely attended. Popular mission hymns will be sung, kindly lead by the Conservatory orchestra. Considerable interest is being aroused in connection with this movement and it is expected that a good beginning will be made to-morrow night.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The West Calls for Help
Twenty Thousand Harvesters Wanted

The crops in Western Canada have been so heavy this year that it has been necessary for the farmers of the West to make another appeal for help. The demand for help is now more urgent than ever, and it will require at least twenty thousand additional men to complete the harvesting.

In order to relieve the situation the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run a Harvesters' Excursion Monday, Oct. 14th, $10.00 to Winnipeg, return fare from Winnipeg, $18.00.

Do you think a cheap range an economy? It may appear so when buying it.

But when you see it eating up the coal—When the oven is slow in heating—When first one part then another requires renewing—Then your cheap range is not an economy, but the very opposite. Then you will see that it wastes enough coal to pay for a good range.

The Peerless Range is a well-designed, strongly constructed range—designed for economy of fuel—constructed for durability and wear. Ask your neighbor what she thinks of her Peerless. Get her opinion of it as a coal-saver and a baker. You will find that your cheap stove has actually cost more than your neighbor's well-designed, economical, and convenient Peerless.

SANCTUARY LAMP IN CHURCH LIFE

In Church Life of this week there appears a remarkable photograph of the Oriental Sanctuary Lamp, one of the most costly gifts ever presented to St. John's Church, and made in Jerusalem. The photograph was taken by Mr. T. A. Smith and is a triumph of the photographer's art. In its appreciation it says: "This ranks as one of the most beauteous and costly offerings, and gives the church an ecclesiastical art treasure which is absolutely unique in Canada. The presentation has received wide notice and occasioned a wide spread interest. In connection with the above it may be stated that St. John's is open every day and the lamp may be inspected by the public at any time.

What Makes a Complexion?

The season's program of evening parties, social events, etc., is before you. Why not look your best? Why not ensure a good complexion? Matter of time and perseverance only, if you will use Zam-Buk.

Zam-Buk is a skin food; and complexion is purely a matter of skin health. Zam-Buk smeared lightly over the face, each night, acts as a skin tonic. It stimulates the cells beneath the cuticle to healthy action makes the capillaries and blood vessels work, and the vigorous circulation, thus started, carries away secreted impurities. Waxy, sallow deposits are thus removed. That yellow tinge gives place to the pink of health.

Isn't this wiser than relying upon talcum powder and cosmetics? Zam-Buk builds up a complexion from blood and tissue. It lasts!

BORDEN GOVERNMENT UPHELD IN MACDONALD

Alexander Morrison, the Conservative Candidate in Manitoba Bye-Election, Has a Majority of 837 With Two Polls to Hear From—Canada is Self-Reliant and Imperial Says Roblin in Summing Up.

Winnipeg, Oct. 14.—With two polls to hear from, the majority of Alexander Morrison, Conservative candidate in the bye-election in Macdonald, is 837. Final figures will only slightly alter this total. The majority is the largest ever received by a Conservative candidate in that constituency. In the election of 1911 the Conservative majority was 161.

B. L. Richardson, the Liberal-Independent candidate, conceded defeat soon after the returns began to come in showing unexpected Conservative gains in supposedly Liberal districts.

The Liberals expected that the chief Conservative strength would be found in the suburban districts, and, on the other hand, that their gains in the rural districts would overcome the Conservative majority in the urban polls. The reverse of their expectations proved to be the case. They suffered unexpected reverses in the rural districts, while the urban vote fell somewhat short of Conservative expectations. As a matter of fact, Mr. Richardson ran behind the Liberal vote in previous elections in almost every polling subdivision.

MR. ALEX. MORRISON.

Premier Roblin said: "To sum up, the election of Alexander Morrison was a declaration that Canada is self-reliant, that Canada proposes to make use of her opportunities and foster her own resources; that Canada is loyal; that Canada is Imperialistic, and that Canada longs for the day when Chamberlain's dream shall be realized and the Motherland and all her overseas possessions shall be bound together with an Imperial preference that will strengthen the ties that bind us and make the British Empire one and indivisible.

At the Deer Lodge poll, in St. James' division, Mr. Thomas Morris, who, it is alleged, was sent by the Conservative organization to vote under the name of V. G. Quinn, was arrested at the persistent request of the Independent scrutineer. An effort will be made here to get to the bottom of the case.

"The result of the Macdonald election must not be regarded as a criterion of the Liberal feeling in the west," said Dr. D. B. Neely, Liberal member for Humboldt, Saskatchewan, in the Dominion House, last evening. "With the combination of the Conservative Government in the Dominion and also the Manitoba Legislature, which had control of the ballot boxes, nothing can be wondered at. The party in power had control of the voters' lists, which were all wrong, and would stick at nothing to attain their end."

BILINGUALISTS TO HAVE PAPER

Ottawa, Oct. 14.—A daily paper to advocate the claims of the separate schools and Roman Catholics resident in Ontario generally, is the latest project of those behind the movement against the new bilingual regulations of the Ontario Government.

"It has been proposed to us to start a new daily paper in Ottawa, which will have Roman Catholic tendencies and will advocate our cause," said Trustee Freeland, prime mover in the agitation, yesterday. "Such a daily we have not in the Province of Ontario at present."

It is desired to keep the movement altogether apart from politics, and this is one of the main objects in establishing a separate newspaper, as the men behind the proposal fear that if the bilingual question has to rely entirely on the existing newspapers for publicity it might be treated from a political standpoint.

BARGE MARENGO IS WRECKED

Port Colborne, Oct. 14.—The barge Marengo, owned by the Pittsburg & Erie Coal Co., is a total loss. The Marengo in tow of the steamer Porter left Erie Friday with 12,500 tons of coal for the Lannan's coal dock here and in heavy fog went ashore on Morgan's Point, six miles west of here.

The crew with difficulty reached shore safely in a small boat. Harbor tugs could do nothing owing to the heavy southwest gale and high seas. The barge went to pieces Saturday afternoon. The loss will be $6,000 with no insurance.

DIPLOMATS SEE NO HOPE OF AVERTING BALKAN WAR

London, Oct. 14.—War in the Balkans is now only a matter of a few days. The replies of the Balkan states to the powers' note, virtually rejecting intervention, will be delivered at the various capitals to-day, and at the same time notes practically in the shape of an ultimatum will be sent to Turkey demanding autonomy for the Macedonian provinces.

According to a reliable despatch from Rome the Balkan coalition will make a demand which it will be found impossible for the Porte to accept, namely, that the reforms be executed under the control of the European powers and the Balkan states, and, as a pledge, that the Porte assent to the immediate demobilization of the Turkish forces.

It is understood that the Porte will be given until Tuesday to reply, therefore, there is every probability that general hostilities will be opened before the week is ended.

A Sofia despatch reports that the movement of the Bulgarian army has already begun. The Montenegrins, continuing their advance, have captured Byelopolye, an important strategic point to the northwest of Berana, after desperate fighting. They are now on their way to Sienitza, thirty miles to the northeast of Byelopolye and close to the Servian frontier against which they will direct an attack. It is in this direction that the Montenegrins expect to join hands with the Servian army when it advances from the north.

Twelve Bulgarians were reported killed at Kulprili, in Macedonia, by Turkish soldiers Saturday. Massacres in Macedonia will be an inevitable feature of the war, but it is asserted that the Turks will not begin.

Montenegrins Beleaguer Town.

Podgoritza, Oct. 14.—After an engagement lasting until midday the Montenegrins broke through the Turkish ranks near Tusha Saturday and invested the town, which is completely cut off from Scutari.

The Montenegrin army has been fighting for four days along the whole frontier, penetrating the Turkish territory slowly owing to the many fortifications. The Turks have burned several Malissori villages.

Many wounded Turks have been brought to Podgoritza.

Pole Broke; Boy Drowned.

St. Catharines, Oct. 14.—Willie Stone, the 7 1-2 year-old son of W. A. Stone, a former Thorold hotelkeeper, was drowned in the old canal in that town Saturday afternoon, when a pole with which he was vaulting on the canal bank broke, causing him to roll into the water.

THEY DECORATED HISTORIC PLACES

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 14.—At Queenston Heights yesterday the Niagara Frontier Veterans' Assembly, post No. 1, of Niagara Falls, Ont., met in the pavilion near Brock's Monument at high noon yesterday and thence proceeded to place wreaths on Brock's Monument, Laura Secord's Monument, the cairn marking the location of Macdonnell's battery, and also the small monument, where Gen. Brock fell, one hundred years ago yesterday. The corner-stone of this monument was laid by the late King Edward, when Prince of Wales, Sept. 18, 1860.

Each of the four wreaths bore a card with the imprint of the seal of the assembly on one side and on the reverse side was written: "In Loyal Affection," "The Niagara Frontier Veterans' Assembly." This is the youngest military organization in Canada.

Russell Man Killed.

Cornwall, Oct. 14.—The large skating rink being built at Russell, Ont., collapsed during the high wind on Saturday afternoon, and T. A. Lowe of that place, who was under the building, was instantly killed. Seventeen of the nineteen arches to support the rink were in position, and on account of the great velocity of the wind the workmen laid off on Saturday. Lowe went into the rink to see what progress was being made.

The rink was fast nearing completion. The huge timbers and framework were badly wrecked.

BARRY BY TWO LENGTHS

Eddie Durnan Unsuccessful in Effort to Land Sculling Championship of the World

Special to the Review.

London, Oct. 14.—Ernest Barry, of England, easily defeated Eddie Durnan, of Toronto, this morning in the race on the Thames for the world's professional single sculling championship. Barry's time was 22 mins. 6½ secs., and he won by two lengths. The course was from Putney to Mortlake, the scene of many championship events. With the championship Barry takes the Sportsman's Cup and $5,000 in stakes.

BELATED NEWS OF FATALITY

Belated News of Fatality.

Toronto, Oct. 14.—Two months afterwards, news on Saturday reached Toronto from the James Bay country of the drowning of Herbert Mackenzie Shutt, a fifth year student at the university, who was in a survey party.

His parents, returning from Prince Rupert, are on the train near Winnipeg. They do not yet know of the fatality.

Mr. Shutt, who was 23 years of age, was a member of the Dominion Government geological survey party, in charge of H. C. Cooke.

Chinamen Held at Border.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 14.—Two Chinamen are being held in Buffalo for being smuggled into the States from Canada. The authorities believe the Celestials were smuggled across the Niagara frontier Friday night. They were arrested Saturday night when about to board a train for New York.

Until the arrest of the two Chinamen it was believed that the organized band of smugglers trafficking in humans had been broken up.

James Coe Is Missing.

Belleville, Oct. 14.—A young man named James Coe, whose parents reside in the northern part of Hastings County, has been missing for some days and it is feared that he may have been foully dealt with.

Coe attended the fair at Bancroft village and at 9.30 in the evening left for home and has not been heard of since.

PARLIAMENT MUST SETTLE QUESTION

Ottawa, Oct. 14.—With the close of the first three days of the resumed western freight rates hearing before the Railway Commission, the impressions growing here among all those who have followed the proceedings closely, that Parliament must equally be called upon to deal with and settle the question. It is being forcibly pointed out, that with their array of brilliant railway counsel with unlimited resources to draw upon the companies are enabled to build up strong technical fortifications of their position.

In view of this the opinion is freely expressed here that the matter is one of such vital interest and importance that it should be turned over to Parliament for a free and fair discussion by the representatives of the people. It is practically felt that a reference to the Privy Council would be most undesirable as the question is one to be decided not by a perusal of a mass of figures, but by a thorough knowledge of actual conditions. Then again it is argued that where so many British investors are concerned the questions should not be settled in Britain, but right here by the Canadian people, whose interests alone are affected.

"BIG JACK" ZELIG, NOTORIOUS GUNMAN AND CHIEF WITNESS IN ROSENTHAL MURDER CASE, MURDERED

'BIG JACK' ZELIG.

Here is shown "Big Jack" Zelig, the notorious east side gunman and band leader, who was shot in New York on October 5. Zelig, who was one of the principal witnesses in the trial of Lieutenant Charles Becker, charged with the murder of Herman Rosenthal, was shot two nights before the trial. His assailant, now under arrest, is Philip Davidson, a well known gunman, familiarly known as "Red Phil."

GO-BETWEEN TELLS HOW BECKER ORDERED MURDER

Police Lieutenant Had a Mortgage on Rosenthal's Place and Did Not Think He Was Getting Enough of the Proceeds, Says Rose—Ordered a Raid and Rosenthal Threatened to Inform.

New York, Oct. 14.—"Bald Jack" Rose, who says he was Police Lieutenant Charles Becker's collector of graft from gambling houses, told his story on the witness stand Saturday at Becker's trial for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler. He declared Becker told him he wanted Rosenthal "murdered, shot, croaked or dynamited."

"Becker told me," said Rose, "that Rosenthal meant to do what he had threatened after they had quarreled—to squeal and break him. 'We have got to put Rosenthal,' he said, 'where you nor I nor anybody else will ever have to worry about him again'."

Rose said he protested at this, but Becker was obdurate. At Becker's orders, he continued, he saw Jack Zelig, a gang leader, in the Tombs, and got the gunmen to kill Rosenthal.

"Becker told me to tell the gunmen he would 'frame them up' if they didn't kill Rosenthal," Rose declared.

Notwithstanding that it was Saturday, when adjournment is usually taken over the week-end, the trial of Police Lieutenant Becker, charged with the murder of Herman Rosenthal, went on as usual. Justice Goff, having expedited the selection of the jury, is now using every means to carry the trial through with despatch.

Before going on the stand Rose said: "I'm going to make good. I know what I'm going up against, but I'm going through with it. I don't care what happens. I have only one regret in going on the stand. I have met and known some decent people and now, through me, they will be besmirched. I wish that nobody but myself need be dragged into this, but I suppose it is part of the penalty. I shall tell every detail of the most awful plot that was ever hatched."

Rose said he had known Rosenthal for twenty years and Becker for several.

He told of meeting Rosenthal and Becker in the Elks' Club at a New Year's celebration. He met Becker again at his house and at the Union Square Hotel, where Becker told him, [illegible] the details of the alleged partnership in the operation of a gambling house between Becker and Rosenthal.

"Becker," continued Rose, "said Herman had made a proposition to him that he go into partnership with Rosenthal in running a gambling house and had asked him to invest $5,000 in it. I said no one ever made any money in the gambling business with Rosenthal."

Becker, however, continued the witness, did not agree and made a proposition to allow Rose to take a 25 per cent. share in the business of the proposed establishment. Becker took a $2,500 chattel mortgage on Rosenthal's property and arranged for a "dummy" to hold the mortgage. Becker began to think he was not getting enough of the profits so he threatened a raid. Rosenthal defied him, the raid occurred, and many habitues were jailed.

"Becker told me," he continued, "that Rosenthal had been calling him up every day, asking a meeting, to find out what he was going to do about those indictments against the men arrested in Rosenthal's place. Becker said he had put Rosenthal off. Soon after, Becker said, Rosenthal had begun to talk around street corners that he was in partnership with Becker and was going to show him up.

"Becker, a few days later, told me of having seen Commissioner Waldo, and that the commissioner had heard of Rosenthal's charges and had not believed them."

Then Becker told Rose that Rosenthal should be done away with—"murdered, killed, dynamited or anything."

Long hours of cross-examination by supperless lawyers before a supperless court and jury failed Saturday night to make Rose vary his story.

The witness, thick-lipped, wide-eared, and without a hair on his blistening head, was unruffled by the ordeal. Once he faltered when Becker's lawyer hurled question after question at him, each ending with: "And when you said that you lied, didn't you?" Once he leaned forward, buried his face in his hands and tottered on the stand. He seemed about to faint, and the court quickly ordered a pause in the proceedings and windows were lowered to revive him. Within a few minutes, he was refreshed and the cross-examination was continued.

Rose admitted, time after time, that he had lied, had perjured himself, had been a gambler and had been engaged for twenty years in illegitimate business. He admitted that he was testifying to save his own life, but said, he was telling the truth now.

"'Bridgie' Webber gave me $1,000 after the shooting at Fiftieth street and Eighth avenue," declared Rose, when he resumed the stand after lunch. "I gave it to 'Lefty Louie'."

"What did you say to 'Lefty Louie' when you gave him the money?"

"I told him 'There's $1,000 for you Louie, you and the rest of the boys lie low for a few days. Becker says above all things you must not talk and that everything will be all right'."

MRS. BORDEN DENIES INTERVIEW

Ottawa, Oct. 14.—Mrs. Borden's attention has been directed to the report of an alleged interview, according to which she is supposed to have declared that no cultured English woman should ever think of going to Canada unless she is going out to family friends or has some definite purpose in going there.

"The report on its face is so absurd as to hardly deserve or demand contradiction," she said.

Mrs. Borden desires it to be distinctly understood that she never expressed any such opinion or made any such statement. The press report to the contrary is absolutely unfounded.

GENERAL OUTBREAK APPEARS IMMINENT

Turkey Will Not Allow Intervention in Question of Macedonian Reforms — Greece Demands the Release by Turks of All Greek Vessels and Payment of Indemnity.

Special to the Review.

Belgrade, Oct. 14.—A body of Turkish troops crossed Servian frontier at Ristovatz near Vrayna this morning at five o'clock and attacked the Servian garrison, according to an official dispatch from the Servian General in command. Fighting was still in progress when the message was sent.

Podgoritza, Oct. 14.—Montenegrin troops occupied another position closer to town of Gusinye yesterday, according to General Vukotitich, commanding that division of the Montenegrin Army. The Turks offered a stubborn resistance and sustained a heavy loss in killed and wounded. Montenegrin casualities up to yesterday morning were 256 killed and eight hundred wounded.

Constantinople, Oct. 14.—The Turkish government handed a reply to the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador representative of the powers here this morning, declining to allow the powers to intervene in the question of Macedonian reforms. He said, we thank the powers for their friendly interest, but say that Turkey is determined to carry out the promised reforms, and cannot tolerate any foreign interference.

Athens, Oct. 14.—The release within twenty-four hours of all Greek vessels confiscated by Turkey will be demanded to-day by the Greek Minister at Constantinople, under instructions of his government. Payment of indemnity to owners is also demanded.

Constantinople, Oct. 14.—Bulgarian, Servian and Greek Ministers here have been notified to be ready to leave as soon as they receive notification from their respective capitals. The rupture of diplomatic relations between these three Balkan States and the Ottoman Empire is hourly looked for.

IN MEMORY OF GENERAL BROCK

Celebration Marks Centenary of Hero's Victory and Death.

Military and Civilian Organizations From All Over the District Are Represented at Queenston Heights When Fowers Are Laid on Historic Landmarks—Indian Chief Pleads For Fulfilment of Old Promise.

Brock's Monument, Queenston Heights, Ont., Oct. 14.—Militarism and civilian alike paid tribute here to the memory of Gen. Brock, the hero of Queenston Heights, who one hundred years before brought such unbounded glory to Britain and British traditions. With the booming forth of a salute of 17 guns, the raising of the Union Jack to the flag pole and the enthusiasm of several thousand people, the ceremonies of the centennial of Gen. Brock and the battle of Queenston Heights commenced at 1.30 Saturday afternoon.

Regiments sent representatives from Toronto, St. Catharines, Hamilton and a number of other Ontario cities, while officers and members from between 25 and 30 military, veterans and historical societies were present. Addresses from representatives of the Dominion Government, the Ontario Government, the Ontario Public Schools, the Veterans' associations and the historical associations were made.

It was announced that a dinner, in commemoration of Gen. Brock would be given at the Canadian Club in Toronto to-night, when an address on Gen. Brock and Queenston Heights will be given by George T. Denison.

The centennial was of a triple nature. It was a celebration of the wonderful victory against great odds and in honor of the memory of both Gen. Brock and his gallant aide, Lt.-Col. Macdonnel, the Canadian officer who led the charge when his brave leader fell, and whose body lies beside that of Gen. Brock.

While the salute of the St. Catharines Field Battery, R.C.A., boomed forth in memory of Brock the memory of Lt.-Col. Macdonnel was strikingly honored. To the accompaniment of the guns a lament for the gallant Canadian officer who laid down his life in the same cause with Brock, was played on the bagpipes by Pipe Major Dunbar, late of the Second Battalion Gordon Highlanders; Pipe Major Beaton of the 48th Highlanders, and Piper Mackay of the 48th Highlanders. This part of the ceremony was observed with barred heads.

The centennial was strongly military in character. On the main roadway and facing the monument stood the Royal Canadian Infantry from Toronto. To either side the monument were drawn up the representatives from the 48th Highlanders and Queen's Own Rifles and the Royal Grenadiers, Toronto, and the Governor-General's Bodyguard, the Royal Grenadiers in red uniforms and the Body Guards with their silver and plumed helmets sparkling in the sun, forming a sight worthy of the event.

Nearly two thousand persons gathered around the monument and included officers and members from about twenty-five historical, military and veterans' associations.

The enthusiasm of those present was aroused to the cheering point by a reference made to what Canada should do for the Imperial navy by Col. Sterling Ryerson of Toronto, the chairman, in his opening address.

A strong prophecy of Canada's future was made by W. M. German, M.P., of Welland. "The day is not long distant when Canada will have a population larger than Great Britain," said Mr. German, "and will be in a position to maintain a navy of her own equal to Great Britain's. When we will have not only 40,000,000 people, but 100,000,000 who will maintain the true ideals of the British."

That the Six Nation Indians were deserving of every praise was also brought out by Hon. Dr. Pyne. He considered the help afforded by Indian allies as something which should be brought out in the schools.

"If it was not for the bravery of the Six Nations, the flags that are waving o'er Queenston Heights would not be waving to-day," declared Chief G. S. Smith of Brantford, known as Chief Dekanenenranch (Double File of Men) of the Six Nations Indians. "It is claimed that Canada has resources which will make this Dominion into one of the greatest countries on which the sun shines. Who is responsible that the Canadians have such a heritage? It is due to the bravery of the Six Nations Indians in coming to the assistance of the country. He urged the fulfilment of the promise of self-government for the Indians, made at that time.

Addresses were also given by Col. Geo. T. Denison, Toronto; C. R. McCullough, Hamilton; J. S. Carstairs, Toronto, and Rev. Canon Macnab, Toronto.

GIRL KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Toronto, Oct. 14.—Edna Watson, aged 22, living at 75 Brunswick avenue, died in the General Hospital about 5.30 Saturday afternoon, as a result of injuries received when she was knocked down by a motor car on the Kingston road. Edward Johnson, 9 Withrow avenue, driver of the car, was placed under arrest and later released on bail by County Magistrate Clay.

SUSPENDED ACCOUNTING

Indianapolis, Oct. 14.—Miss Clara Smith, a stenographer, formerly employed by John J. McNamara, now in prison in California, at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial Saturday, identified a circular letter as having been addressed to all local unions of the International Ironworkers, notifying them of a temporory suspension of a detailed accounting of the union's finances.

SUFFERED FROM VIOLENT CATHARTICS

The Warning of Mr. Geo. C. Fox Is One That Should Be Heeded by All.

Few men on the road are better known than genial George Fox, whose friends throughout the West are legion. In the following letter he expresses gratitude for signal services rendered by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. He goes on to say: "Until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills and experienced their wonderful mildness and curative power, I estimated the value of every pill by its activity. Talking about this to a well-known physician I met on the train the other day, he explained there are different kinds of drugs that act upon the bowels, the most active being known as drastic. Except in extreme cases where the life of the patient depends upon speedy evacuation of the bowels, pills should never be drastic. Purgatives cause catarrh of the bowels and inflammation; their dose must be increased, causing even more harm. With such a clear explanation I could see why Dr. Hamilton's Pills are curative and not irritating, why they are mild, yet most searching.

"From my experience I recommend everyone that takes pills to give up the old-fashioned harsh, purging pill, and, instead, to use Dr. Hamilton's. They cure headache, biliousness, constipation, bad stomach, and keep the system in perfect condition."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cure Constipation

The Daily Review.

MONDAY. OCT. 14, 1912.

A GOVERNMENT WIN

The constituency of Macdonald has returned the government candidate by a large majority. That was to have been expected, because Macdonald has been one of the strong Conservative ridings in the West. But the result is very significant, as demonstrating that where the corrupt influence of the Grit machines in Alberta and Saskatchewan is thwarted, there will not be the strength of reciprocity feeling the Laurierites like to represent. The Liberals had a very strong candidate in R. L. Richardson, of the Winnipeg Tribune, and the fight was made on reciprocity entirely. It is quite true that the whole strength of the Roblin Government, and of the Dominion Government as far as Hon. Robert Rogers has command of it, was thrown against Richardson. That in itself ought to have ensued his defeat under ordinary conditions, but many Liberals had been so misled by the buncombe printed in the reciprocity organs that they were quite confident of victory. The result might have been different if the machinations of the Scott and Sifton agents sent to the constituency to "work" it has not been frustrated by the prompt action of the special police in arresting a few of them. A hue and cry was raised because of the arrests, but that there was plenty of evidence of intimidation and underhand work, there is no doubt. The riding could no be "stolen" from under the eyes of Premier Roblin. The voting in itself is significant as showing that the reciprocity horse has been stuffed and inflated away beyond its proper size. In the west, as in the east, the strength of the movement has been greatly exaggerated. If the movement is not dead, the result in Macdonald won't help to keep it alive.

A MOST WORTHY GIFT

The officers and friends of the local Y.M.C.A. realize that they are under a debt of gratitude to Mr. E. R. Wood, of Toronto, for his generous and helpful gift of funds in aid of the Association. The sum is one thousand dollars, contributed on the understanding that the friends will raise locally $2,000, and so wipe out arrears of payments and debts of the institution. Mr. Wood's handsome gift is acknowledged, and we are sure the condition imposed will be carefully and successfully met.

Mr. Wood asks the question and quite properly: "It must be that the citizens of Peterborough have not realized their responsibility for its maintenance." and adds that if the people as a whole realized the value of a well equipped and conducted Y.M.C.A., they would, and should, support it. His question and stricture are both correct and applicable.

Its functions and opportunities are not appreciated. Its influence as a factor in supporting and guiding the moral life of our youths and young men is almost ignored, as a whole. The burden of its support and management falls on a willing few—too few, in fact.

What is the reason? Among others the distracting things that have come into our lives. The helpful educative, refining influences such as surround and pervade the Y.M.C.A. are ignored largely on account of what the rising generation, and many of the elder, call "sport." Sport, in which the boy is the active participant, when he rows his oar, or wields his club at shinney, or engages in cricket or some other good form of exercise that will learn him the lesson of patience, manliness, forbearance and courtesy, is all right—the very best. But when a thousand people sit freezing on benches of a winter night and watch a dozen frantic ones chase a piece of rubber over the ice and call it "sport" for the boy it is a travesty. The sporting craze is popular too popular with hundreds who may not bear the burden of a helpful educative thought. The whole thing is breeding an era of disrespect, carelessness in demeanor, slovenliness in speech and detrimental to educational and business application.

Where does this effect the objects of the Y.M.C.A. may be asked. Because the tendency—in the youth—s to create an appetite for excitement and stir and bustle beside which the opportunities and offers of the Y.M.C.A. seem stale.

The Y.M.C.A. is primarily for the youthful. As the years come and go the young men seem less and less inclined to frequent its to help in interesting others to take the place of those who have given of time and service, and stepped out or gone away. If the youth of the city will interest themselves in the Y.M.C.A. there will be no lack of funds and of energy and accomplishment. They furnish the materials out of which the citizen of the future is to be moulded.

The management—which cheerfully gives of thought, time and money, cannot do everything. If parents of young boys will send their sons to spend such hours as may be spared from studies and household helpfulness, to the Y.M.C.A., they will be doing a service to themselves, to the boys and to the community that only the future can measure and determine.

EDITORIAL NOTES

There was a meeting of the Ontario Reform Association the other day. The Liberals of this district no doubt were surprised to note that the only man chosen to represent the Liberals of Central Ontario was Mr F. D. Kerr of Peterborough. Where are our other local wonders, or are they purposely left out?

Ticket Speculators Arrested.

New York, Oct. 12.—A dozen men charged with ticket speculating, arrested outside the polo grounds yesterday, were fined $10 apiece in the police court. The operations of the men were apparently of a limited manner, as most of the arrests were made comparatively early in the day and none of the prisoners was found to have more than half a dozen tickets in his possession.

Twenty-Two Injured.

New York, Oct. 12.—Twenty-two passengers were injured early yesterday when two elevated trains came together in a rear-end collision at the One Hundred and Fourth street station of the Sixth avenue railroad.

Opening of Parliament.

Ottawa, Oct. 12.—The date for the meeting of Parliament will be fixed on Monday. This statement was given out by Premier Borden following yesterday's meeting of the Cabinet.

SYMPATHY IN TWINS.

Curious Cases of Dual Suffering in Case of Children of Same Age.

Improbable though it may seem, there is good foundation for the statement recently made to the Chertsey Board of Guardians that a girl, now sixteen years of age, was struck deaf and dumb when she was two and a half years of age, following the sudden death of her twin sister. Scientific investigation has revealed some curious instances of "sympathy," as it has been termed, between twins. For instance, of thirty-five specially noticed cases, in no fewer than seven did both twins suffer from some special ailment or other exceptional peculiarity.

One curious instance is of two girls who, at the age of twenty, both found they experienced great difficulty in coming downstairs except very slowly and awkwardly. Two twins, at the age of twenty-three, were attacked by toothache and in each case the same tooth had to be removed. There were also curious cases of coincidence in the falling off of the hair.

There is another case of twins in a Government office, one of whom sickened and died of Bright's disease. Seven months later his brother died of the same complaint. In nine out of the thirty-five cases, twins found they sickened from the same disease simultaneously, although neither was infected by the other.

Darwin has recorded a French case of two twin brothers, one living in Paris and the other in Vienna, who were attacked by rheumatic ophthalmia at the same moment. Each was certain, when consulting a specialist, that the other was suffering from a like complaint, and mentioned the fact. Subsequent letters confirmed this.

This case recalls that of the twin sons of a Birmingham manufacturer, who were passionately attached to one another. For close upon twenty years they had never been separated. Then one of them went to London. One day he was knocked down by an omnibus and killed. At the identical moment, as it was afterwards proved, that the accident occurred, the brother in Birmingham complained of being attacked by sharp and violent pains in the head, and he too died, a few days later, from some mysterious disease that the doctors failed to diagnose.

The Theban Sphinx.

The Theban sphinx was said to be a monster sent by Juno to lay waste the country around Thebes. It had the head and bust of a woman, the body of a dog, the wings of a bird, the paws of a lion and a human voice. It at once become the terror of the neighborhood and devoured all who could not solve the riddle which it propounded. "What animal walks on four legs in the morning, two at noon and three at night?" Oedipus, attracted by the promise of King Creon of his crown and his sister in marriage, came to Thebes and declared that man goes on all fours in infancy, erect on two legs when upgrown and supports the infirmities of age with a staff. On hearing this correct solution the sphinx dashed her head against a wall, and the land had rest.

Snake's Eyes.

Snakes may almost be said to have glass eyes, inasmuch as their eyes never close. They are without lids and each is covered with a transparent scale much resembling glass. When the reptile casts its outer skin the eye scales come off with the rest of the transparent envelope out of which the snake slips. This glassy eye scale is so tough that it effectually protects the true eye from the twigs, sharp grass and other obstructions which the snake encounters in its travels, yet it is transparent enough to allow the most perfect vision. Thus, if the snake has not a glass eye it may, at any rate, be said to wear eyeglasses.

The Largest Kitchen.

The largest kitchen in the world is part of a Paris department store. In this kitchen is prepared the food for the 4,000 employes of the establishment. The smallest kettle holds 75 quarts, the largest 375 quarts. There are fifty frying pans, each of which is capable of holding 300 cutlets at a time or of frying 220 pounds of potatoes. When there are omelets for breakfast 7,800 eggs are used. The coffee machine makes 750 quarts of coffee daily. There are regularly employed sixty cooks and a hundred kitchen boys.

Not a Distinction.

The detective was trying to get a few pointers from the man who had employed him to hunt for a runaway boy.

"Has he any distinguishing marks about him?" he asked.

"Yes," said the father, frowning impatiently. "The distinguishing mark about him, sir, is that he looks like me."

"H'm!" mused the detective. "I should hardly call that a distinction. That's a handicap."

Olfactory Nerves.

The olfactory nerves are rendered useless for an hour by simply rinsing with cold water, and other fluids may destroy their efficiency far more. The anatomist Hyrtl, who drew an infusion of tea into his nose with the idea of curing a cold, suffered loss of the power of smell for six months and throughout his life never completely recovered it.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Oct. 12.—There was an active demand from European sources for wheat and barley and a number of orders were for round lots. Cables were strong and the prices bid showed an advance of 3d to 6d per quarter for wheat and sales were made of a fair number of loads, but the volume of business was checked by the scarcity of ocean freights. Bids from the continent for barley were much higher, but owing to the difficulty in buying it in the west, few of the orders were accepted by exporters. There was also a good demand for oats and sales of a few odd loads of extra No. 1 feed were made to London for prompt shipment at 22s 9d, which is the highest price paid for this grade up to date. The local demand for carlots of oats is good.

A fairly active trade continues to be done in flour for domestic account and there was also an increased demand from foreign buyers, but the orders were principally for small lots. Demand for bran and shorts is good. Butter is in demand and prices are tending upward. Receipts for the week were 10,559 packages, against 9904 a year ago. Cheese is firmer, and more active under an increased demand from English buyers. Receipts for the week were 55,250 boxes, as against 59,191 a year ago. Eggs, active and firm. Adventure

JACK LONDON

Joan Lackland was sitting astride her horse by the bank of the Balesuna, where the sweet corn had been planted, and Sheldon was leaning against her horse's shoulder.

"Yes, it is a long time for no news to have trickled down," he answered, watching her keenly from under his hat brim and wondering as to the measure of her anxiety for the adventurous gold hunter. "But Tudor will come out all right. He did a thing at the start that I wouldn't have given him or any other man credit for—persuaded Binu Charley to go along with him. I'll wager no other Binu nigger has ever gone so far into the bush unless to be kai kai'd."

"Look! Look!" Joan cried in a low voice, pointing across the narrow stream to a slack eddy, where a huge crocodile drifted like a log awash. "Ugh! The filthy beasts! I hate them! I hate them!"

"And yet you go diving among sharks," Sheldon chided. "Just the same, I wish I could swim as well as you. Maybe it would beget confidence such as you have."

"Do you know I think it would be nice to be married to a man such as you seem to be becoming," she remarked, with one of her abrupt changes that always astounded him. "I should think you could be trained into a very good husband—you know, not one of the domineering kind, but one who considered his wife was just as much an individual as himself and just as much a free agent. Really, you know, I think you are improving."

She laughed and rode away, leaving him greatly cast down. If he had thought there had been one bit of coyness in her words, one feminine flutter, one womanly attempt at deliberate lure and encouragement he would have been elated. But he knew absolutely that it was the boy and not the woman who had so daringly spoken.

Joan rode through twenty acres of uncleared cane. The grass was waist high and higher, and as she rode along she remembered that Gogoomy was one of a gang of boys that had been detailed to the grass cutting. A little farther on she heard voices and reined in and listened. It was Gogoomy talking.

"Dog he stop 'm along house, night time he walk about," Gogoomy was saying. "You fella boy catch 'm one fella pig, put 'm kai-kai, belong him dog along one big fella fish hook. S'pose dog he walk about catch 'm kai-kai, you fella boy catch 'm dog allee same one shark. Dog he finish close up. Big fella marster sleep along big fella house. White Mary sleep along pickaninny house. One fella Adamu he stop along outside pickaninny house. You fella boy finish 'm dog, finish 'm Adamu, finish 'm big fella marster, finish 'm white Mary, finish 'm altogether. Plenty musket he stop, plenty powder, plenty tomahawk, plenty knife fee. Sun he come up we long way too much."

"Me catch 'm pig, sun he go down," spoke up one whose thin falsetto voice Joan recognized as belonging to Cosse, one of Gogoomy's tribesmen.

"Me catch 'm dog," said another.

"And me catch 'm white fella Mary," Gogoomy cried triumphantly. "Me catch 'm Kwaque he die along him quick."

This much Joan heard of the plan to murder, and then her rising wrath proved too much for her discretion. She spurred her horse into the grass, crying:

"What name you fella boy, eh? What name?"

They [illegible] ing, and to her surprise she saw there were a dozen of them. As she looked in their glowering faces and noted the heavy, two-foot hacking cane knives in their hands, she became suddenly aware of the rashness of her act. If only she had her revolver or a rifle, all would have been well. But she had carelessly ventured out unarmed.

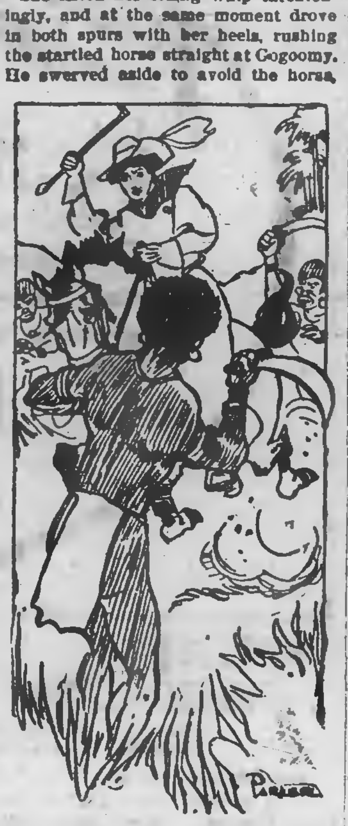
"To much talk along you fella boy," she said severely. "Too much talk, too little work. Savvee?"

Gogoomy made no reply, but, apparently shifting weight, he slid one foot forward. The other boys, spread fanwise about her, were also sliding forward, the cruel cane knives in their hands advertising their intention.

"You cut 'm grass!" she commanded imperatively.

But Gogoomy slid his other foot forward. She measured the distance with her eye. It would be impossible to whirl her horse around and get away. She would be chopped down from behind.

She lifted her riding whip threateningly, and at the same moment drove in both spurs with her heels, rushing the startled horse straight at Gogoomy. He swerved aside to avoid the horse, at the same time swinging his cane knife in a slicing blow that would have cut her in twain. She leaned forward under the flying steel, which cut through her riding skirt, through the edge of the saddle, through the saddle cloth, and even slightly into the horse itself. Her right hand, still raised, came down, the thin whip whishing through the air. She saw the white, crooked mark of the weal clear across the sullen, handsome face, and still what was practically in the same instant she saw another member of the band, over ridden, go down before her, and she heard his snarling and grimacing chatter—for all the world like an angry monkey. Then she was free and away, heading the horse at top speed for the house.



SHE RUSHED THE STARTLED HORSE STRAIGHT AT GOGOOMY.

Out of her sea training she was able to appreciate Sheldon's executiveness when she burst in on him with her news. Springing from the steamer chair in which he had been lounging while waiting for breakfast, he clapped his hands for the house boys; and, while listening to her, he was buckling on his cartridge belt and running the mechanism of his automatic pistol.

"Ornfiri," he snapped out his orders, "you fella ring big fella bell strong fella plenty. You finish 'm bell, you put 'm saddle on horse. Viaburi, you go quick house belong Seelee he stop, tell 'm plenty black fella run away—ten fella two fella black fella boy." He scribbled a note and handed it to Lalaperu. "Lalaperu, you go quick house belong white fella marster Boucher.

"That will head them back from the coast on both sides," he explained to Joan. "And old Seelee will turn his whole village loose on their track as well."

In response to the summons of the big bell Joan's Tahitians were the first to arrive, by their glistening bodies and panting chests showing that they had run all the way.

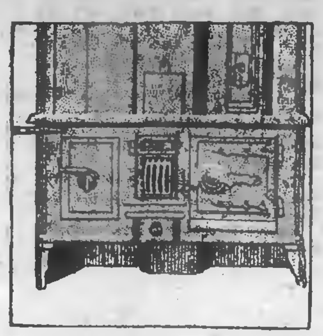
STOVE INVENTED BY KING GEORGE

Altogether New Ideas in It too—Used as Cook Stove and as Open Fire-place

It is perfectly reasonable to suppose that a king may at times desire to turn aside from the affairs of state and turn his attention to the things of lesser moment.

It is also perfectly reasonable to suppose that if King George wanted to invent something he should turn his attention to the needs of the kitchen and apply his genius to a cook stove. He has most illustrious precedent for it, for did not King Alfred the Great on a certain memorable occasion busy himself turning flapjacks?

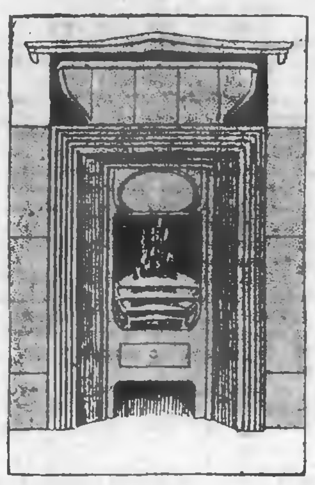


KITCHEN RANGE PART OF KING GEORGE'S COOK STOVE.

One would think that all the changes that could be made in stoves had been done long before King George was born. But he proved that they had not. The stove he invented and which the Crown Prince of Germany patented is a combination affa'r with a sliding firebox.

The stove is placed in the wall between the kitchen and the dining room and the fire is first made in the kitchen where the cooking is done. When dinner has been prepared the cook simply pushes the fire box through the wall and it slides into a place arranged for it and becomes an open grate to heat the dining room.

Its advantages lie in the fact that not only does one fire do double duty, but it accomplishes this with the utmost economy of fuel.



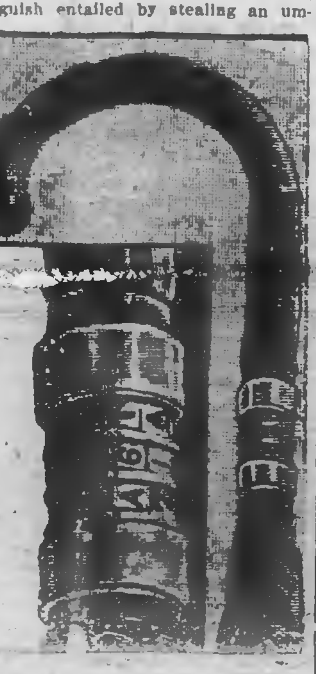
FIREPLACE PART, IN DINING OR LIVING ROOM.

The stove is regarded as a very good thing, and an English company is seriously thinking of taking the matter up and manufacturing the stoves.

UNSTEALABLE UMBRELLA

No One But the Owner Knows the Combination of the Lock

Here is a "combination" umbrella device sure to baffle the umbrella thief. Perhaps. Perhaps not. Certainly it would annoy him. After having gone to all the risk and mental anguish entailed by stealing an umbrella, anyone would be annoyed to find the thing locked shut with a combination lock around its neck as mysterious as the time lock on a bank vault. But baffled altogether? One could still use it for a cane.



Dressing Table Hint

Gold and silver necklaces or bracelets left on the dressing table near any hard rubber objects, such as combs, etc., will be coated with sufficient sulphur from the rubber to leave a black mark on the skin of the person who wears them.

Single File.

When the Indians traveled together they seldom walked or rode two or more abreast, but followed one another in single file. It has been thought by some that this practice resulted from the lack of roads, which compelled them to make their way through woods and around rocks by narrow paths. If this were the real reason for the practice, then we should expect to find that the tribes who lived in open countries traveled in company, as do whites. The true reason for journeying as the Indians did in single file seems to be a feeling of caste. This feeling was at the bottom of other customs of the Indians. It made their women slaves and rendered the men silent and unsocial. This peculiarity is Asiatic. How it has warped and disfigured Hindu life is well known. Home is scarcely possible where it prevails. To the women and children domestic life is bondage. The women of a Chinese household are seldom seen in the street. The children, when accompanying their father, follow him at a respectful distance, in single file and in the order of their ages.—Harper's Weekly.

Don't Be a Chatterer.

Do you chatter? If you feel you do, don't! Get rid of the habit as quickly as maybe. There is nothing so irritating or more dangerous. His chief asks the clerk a question which requires a brief answer. Instead of replying in a word, he irritates his superior by inconsequent meanderings, and he is surprised and hurt to be curtly cut short. His astonishment, however, would be greater could be but overhear a subsequent conversation. "Shall we send Jones on this special commission?" asks the head clerk. "No," replies the chief; "he chatters too much."

It has always been so. Famous generals have ever intrusted important messages to the man who would rather be shot than speak. Then, too, a chatterer has few friends, whether business or otherwise. Who can feel at ease with a man who babbles all you tell him in confidence to the next comer?—Pearson's Weekly.

Try a Single Rose.

"We read," said Lucinda, "about how Adolphus brought to Luella a great bunch of roses, and we can imagine their beauty. We are left to guess at their cost. But do you know it isn't really necessary in order to make home beautiful to have a bunch of roses as big around as a barrel; that a single lovely rose will do?

"Try this: If you have spent all your money for hats and gloves and Adolphus hasn't come—my brother Claude would say hasn't come to the bat—stop at the florist's and buy a single rose—it will cost very little—and take that home and set it in the proper vase, its red petals and green leaves to please the eye and its fragrance to fill the room, an individual flower of grace and beauty and joy. If you can't have a bunch try a single rose."—New York Sun.

The Everglades.

The region known as the Everglades of Florida is about sixty miles long by some fifty-five miles broad and is one vast swamp, studded with islands of from a quarter of an acre to hundreds of acres in extent. These islands are generally covered with dense thickets of shrubbery or vines and occasionally with lofty pines and palmettos. The water is from one to six feet deep, the bottom, as a rule, covered with a growth of rank grass. During the rainy season, from July to October, the district comprised in the Everglades is practically impenetrable. The vegetable deposit of the Everglades is considered well adapted to the growth of the banana and other fruits, and when properly drained the region will undoubtedly be one of the most fertile on earth.—New York American.

Struggle of the Rivers.

The discovery that there is a kind of struggle for existence and survival of the fittest among rivers is one of the most interesting results of the modern study of physiography. A notable example of this contest is exhibited by England's two biggest rivers, the Thames and the Severn. Between their valleys lie the Cotswold hills, and exploration shows that the Severn by eating backward among these hills where softer strata underlie them has diverted to itself some of the headwaters which formerly flowed into the Thames.

She Made a Mistake.

Two girls, the story ran, were drinking tea and eating scones at a fashionable New York restaurant. The first girl said:

"Maud is so sorry she took Reggie's ring back to Dymon's to be valued."

"Why?" asked the other girl as she opened a fresh scone.

"Dymon kept it. He said Reggie hadn't been in to settle for it, according to his promise."

An Employer's Liability Policy

MIGHT SAVE YOU HEAVY DAMAGES

While an accident may be due to an employee's own carelessness, still there's no certainty that the employer will not have to pay heavy damages. New legislation too is steadily increasing the responsibility of the employer. But an Employer's Liability Policy in the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would protect you against financial loss through injuries to an employee while on duty. The General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would deal justly with your employee too. It is noted for fairness and broadmindedness. It is one of the oldest and strongest Insurance Companies in the world. Do not delay to write for further particulars.

Injuries in the industrial world are frequent. In the building, metal and woodworking trades alone there were 294 people killed and 1.421 injured in Canada during 1910 and 1911. Our business is to relieve the employer of all financial responsibility resulting from accident.

ALD. BROWN BACK FROM THE WEST

Ald. James Brown returned on Wednesday from his trip through the West, and is ready to go into municipal harness again. He states that in spite of the unfavorable weather this year, the West will harvest an exceptionally large crop. The grain was also sowed very late this year which caused the season for harvesting to be very late.

Ald. Brown is much benefited in every way by the trip.

The West Calls for Help
Twenty Thousand Harvesters Wanted

The crops in Western Canada have been so heavy this year that it has been necessary for the farmers of the West to make another appeal for help. The demand for help is now more urgent than ever, and it will require at least twenty thousand additional men to complete the harvesting.

In order to relieve the situation the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run a Harvesters' Excursion, Monday, Oct. 14th, $10.00 to Winnipeg, return fare from Winnipeg, $18.00.

CITY COUNCIL WILL MEET THE SEYMOUR POWER COMPANY REPRESENTATIVES

Decision was Not Unanimous and Mayor Bradburn Decided a Tie Vote

meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council on Saturday night to consider a letter received from the Seymour Power Company, in which the company requested a consultation between the directors of their company and the City Council at an early date

Mayor Bradburn wished to ascertain the feeling of the Council on the proposal and if they were willing to have a letter sent to the Seymour Power Company, asking if the company was agreeable to selling out their plant and also to meet the Council and talk the question over.

Ald Brown expressed himself in favor of the consultation and felt that it was a wise move to meet and discuss the matter.

Ald Gillespie couldn't see any harm in the meeting. "If we can come to any mutual agreement with the Seymour Power Company," he remarked, "it is better than expropriating."

The proposal, however, was vigorously opposed by the chairman of the Property Committee, Alderman Duncan.

"I don't believe in meeting these people," he said, "and furthermore I won't attend the meeting if it is held." Later Alderman Duncan said he was going to stay with the Hydro-Electric and municipal ownership. His determination was ably backed by Ald. Graham.

Ald Johnston asked what was the use of dickering with the Seymour Power Company now, and drawing back from the original agreement.

Ald. Johnston also took strong objection to the persistent manner in which he considered Alderman Gordon had opposed the introduction of Hydro-Electric to Peterborough before the Seymour Company were given an opportunity to quote prices.

Ald Gordon brought up the question of prices, and claimed that St. Thomas and another city had not found Hydro power cheaper.

"What is the use of you, Ald. Gordon, always drawing attention to those lonely cases when there are twenty-five or more other cities that have found it cheaper?" queried Ald Johnston.

PLAYING THE GALLERY.

The conversation between the two aldermen assumed a rather warm attitude, and each suggested that considerable playing to the gallery was going on.

Ald. Gillespie again favored a meeting with the directors and a discussion, if only for one reason, namely that it might eliminate competition.

He therefore recommended that a letter be drafted and sent to the Seymour Power Company's directors saying that the Council were disposed to meet them.

Mayor Bradburn suggested calling up Hon Adam Beck before taking any action

Alderman Gordon thought that would appear rather childish.

Moved.—

"That the Seymour Power Company consultation be held on Monday, October 21st, or some evening early that week when the directors will be asked to furnish the Council with the price for which they will sell out their distribution plant in Peterborough."

Ald Duncan moved an amendment, opposed to meeting them.

The amendment was supported by Ald. Duncan, Brown, Graham and Johnston.

The motion was favored by Ald. Gordon, Duffus, Gillespie and Anderson.

Mayor Bradburn broke the tie and declared the motion carried.

LACK OF FEELING AND ENTHUSIASM OF THE PEOPLE IS DEPLORED

Canon Davidson Deals with Subject of "A Reponsive Attitude" in Which He Introduces Political Meetings, National Holidays and the Visit of a Cabinet Minister to Illustrate the General Apathy of the Citizens

Before a large congregation yesterday at St. John's, Rev. Canon Davidson made patriotic references, both morning and evening, to the fact of the day being the exact centennial of the heroic death of General Brock at Queenston Heights, and special thanksgivings were offered for the one hundred years of peace. "O Canada" and the "National Anthem" were sung with enthusiasm.

THE SPECIAL SERVICES.

Announcements were made in regard to the forthcoming evangelistic services, to be held by Rev. B. J. Moore and Rev. J. Russel MacLean, of Toronto, and a strongly worded letter was read, addressed to the congregation, by Bishop Sweeney, in which he expressed delight at the holding of the special services and the conviction that much good would result through them. His Lordship directly called upon all members of the congregation to throw themselves with enthusiasm into the effort, and to give hearty co-operation.

SOMETHING NEW.

At the evening service the sermon by Canon Davidson was one decidedly out of the ordinary and which made members of the congregation prick up their ears; at several points giving visible expression to their feelings.

His subject was the "Value of a Responsive Attitude." A treatment of this subject was, the speaker held, especially necessary in the City of Peterborough, whose citizens, along with many good qualities, seemed to be generally infected with an unresponsive attitude which was deplorable and injurious to the city's best interests. He gave pictorial sketches of political meetings of both parties, where broad national sentiments evoked little or weak response.

Three regiments of soldiers had marched through the streets on a national holiday, bringing the country in concrete form before thousands of citizens who looked on with a stolid stare and without uttering a single cheer.

The speaker had tried to get up a cheer for a passing on the street of a Cabinet Minister, but it was a dismal failure. A prominent citizen had drawn this attention to the expressionless countenances of the crowds on a national holiday. They were indeed, sober, industrious and honest in appearance, "but," the citizen had remarked, "they seemed entirely lacking in feeling and enthusiasm." "Should not," said this citizen, "the churches put more heart and warmth into our people?"

Canon Davidson agreed that this was a definite part of the church's business and the clergy were anxious to forward it, but their people seemed disinclined to support their efforts.

It was the object of the coming evangelistic meetings, he said, to promote the spreading of life, love and warmth throughout the congregation and thus to help the city's need. But this could only be effected if a general and thorough-going co-operation were given. Informal services had, with the Bishop's approval, been arranged for, with this definite object in view.

PUBLIC LEADERSHIP.

Several other points were taken up in the course of a striking address, one of them being the difficulties of public leadership in the face of public unresponsive apathy.

A public leader should, the speaker said, be rightfully able to claim public support, at times, at least, openly expressed.

PETERBOROUGH DEFICIENT.

Unfortunately the general lack of support and responsive appreciation deterred able and sensitive men from venturing to give public services. Peterborough was strikingly deficient in leaders to-day, and was likely to remain so unless some change could be effected.

In the course of his remarks Canon Davidson explained that he would listen to no criticism of the city from outside, but as a citizen he felt he had the place and duty to draw attention to a public deficiency with a view to improvement.

ST. GEORGE'S CHORAL SOCIETY START ELEMENTARY SINGING CLASS

There are a large number of people in Peterborough who are fond of singing and possess good voices, but have not had the opportunity of studying music. The executive committee of the St. George's Choral Society have decided to provide an opportunity for everyone who wishes to improve their sight singing, and are commencing an elementary singing class on Tuesday, Oct. 15, from 7.30 p.m. to 8 o'clock, before the regular choral rehearsal. This is a class that should appeal to all, as the fee will be nominal. The main object is to train singers to be good sight readers. This should appeal to all choirleaders and the committee are hoping to receive their support in advising their choir members to join, as by having their members become better readers, it will assist them in their efforts to provide the best of music for their various churches.

The singing class will be under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey, the musical director of the society. It may not be generally known, but one of the objects of the Society is to assist the various church choirs at any special services where their assistance may be desired, and any requests of this nature may be addressed to the Secretary, Mr. R. Reed, 139 Rubidge street. Any ladies or gentlemen desirous of joining either the singing class or the Choral Society, will be heartily welcomed at the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday evening.

WORK BEING RUSHED ALONG TRENT CANAL

The repairs to Scott's Mills dam on the Massassaugua River are being pushed along. A large gang of men are at work there. As soon as this dam is completed this gang will move to Lottie Lake. The work on Gull Lake dam is finished.

A gang of men under Robert Miller, foreman, go into Eel's Lake dam 12 miles north of Apsley on Eel's Creek, on Tuesday next. Quite a large repair job is required to be done to this dam.

The new concrete dam at Moore's Falls, Gull River, is progressing well under John Hayes, foreman. This is one of the most important dams on the conservation chain of lakes. It will give control of the water between Coboconk and Minden. The Minister of Railways and Canals, Honourable Frank Cochrane, certainly deserves credit for the interest he has taken and the good work he is doing on the Trent water in the interest of navigation, power users, and the lumbermen.

OBITUARY

The Late John Robson

John Robson, a well-known and highly respected citizen of Peterborough passed away in Toronto on Saturday night at the age of 60 years

The late Mr. Robson was born on Dublin street of this city, where he had always lived. He was a life-long member of St. Paul's church.

He leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing wife, a son, Irwin, and a daughter, Daisy, at home, a brother William, of North Monaghan, and three sisters, Misses Lily, Mabel and Emma, of 176 Dublin street.

The funeral will take place at 2.30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, from the family residence, 170 Dublin street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

Parents Bereaved

The three weeks' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lemay passed away early this morning, at the home of Mr. H. A. Yenney 32 Benson Ave.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning to the Lakefield cemetery.

Nominigan Camp

An innovation in connection with the accommodation that will be provided for visitors to the Algonquin National Park of Ontario next year is being made by the Grand Trunk Railway System in connection with a series of log cabin camps that they propose building in different parts of the Park. The first of these camps is on Smoke Lake and is now under construction. It comprises a central lodge and a series of log cabins, all built of cedar logs, plainly though comfortably furnished, and with modern conveniences installed. The name for this camp has been chosen, and it will be known as Nominigan Camp. The word "Nominigan" is derived from the Ojibway language, and which is a dialect of the Algonquin Indian stock and means a Balsam tree or any ointment possessing medicinal and healing virtues. The Balsam tree is known among the Ojibways as the Great Spirit's medicine tree on account of its possessing such a large quantity of gum, which is so highly thought of as of great medicinal value, and they believe that the tree is so esteemed by the Great Spirit (Gitchi Manitou) that the bolts of the thunder will never strike it.

The reason of choosing this name is on account of the large number of Balsam trees that cover the point on which the camp is built and the name is a very appropriate one. The pronunciation of the word is as follows: Naw-mi-ni-kan, the accent being on the third syllable.

The camp will accommodate about 50 people, and will no doubt be one of the great attractions of Algonquin Park next year.

Richard McGeein of Kingston was accidentally shot in the hand while duck hunting with a friend.

REV. MR. KENNY AT MARK STREET

Interesting Services to Mark the Anniversary of the Church

The anniversary of the Mark street Methodist church was held yesterday. Rev. Mr. Kenny preached morning and evening to two large congregations, which crowded the church to the doors. Special music was excellently rendered in the morning by Mrs (Dr.) Middleton and in the evening by Mr. Vernon Morphet. The choir wore their new gowns for the first time. Mr. Kenny will give a lecture to-night on the old and the new woman, which no doubt will be largely attended.

ART STUDY CLASS

Meeting To-morrow Night at Studio in Public Library

The Art Study Class in connection with the Women's Art Association of Peterborough, will meet in their studio in the Public Library, to-morrow evening at 7.45 o'clock to arrange for the work of the coming winter. The subject which has been chosen is, "How to Study Pictures." All who are interested are asked to attend.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To The Editor of The Review.

I notice in the Toronto weeklies, the wonderful support given to the Musical Festival held in that city during the last week. The receipts for the week were fifty thousand dollars. Peterborough will have the pleasure of hearing one of the world renowned artists in a few days, through the enterprise of three local gentlemen in giving the guarantee of $1,300.

We can look forward to a genuine musical treat; to hear an artist like NORDICA is a chance in a life time Let all interested in good music try and help this concert along.

THE BARNARDO DEPUTATION TO PETERBORO

The public of Peterborough will be the first to sample the quality of the Barnado Musical Boys in Canada for they and their leader, Rev. W. J. Mayers, will be at the Opera House on Tuesday night. Reports from England testify to the great popularity of both the lecturer and the boys. The former will tell the story of the famous Doctor's great work, in rescuing and training the children, and the latter will give a program of music exceptionally attractive and clever. In Australia, recently, many thousands flocked to the meetings and were delighted with the yard long program. The Sunday services which were to be held on the 13th. have been postponed to the 20th. They will be duly announced and will be found to be most interesting.

Dressmaking Classes at Y W.C.A. open Tuesday, 15th 3 classes a day—10-12 a m., 2-4 p m., 7:30-9:30 p m. Come and enroll for Millinery Class, one night per week. 1d

BACK FROM WESTERN TRIP

Mr. Albert C. Herridge, 755 George street, has returned from an extended tour of Western Canada and speaks in an enthusiastic manner of prevailing conditions and particularly the crop yield. The climate when Mr. Herridge left was ideal.

Vancouver, says Mr. Herridge is bound to be the leading city in the West. The growth of the city has been steady and assured.

Rents are very high in Vancouver just at present. He was in the city on the occasion of the Duke of Connaught's visit.

PERSONAL

Mrs. S. Adlam of 517 Bolivar st. is visiting friends in Toronto.

Rev. W. C. and Mrs. Riddiford left to-day to attend the Baptist Convention in Brantford.

Mr. Nagle Phelan left on the 4.19 C. P. R. this afternoon for Toronto, to attend St. Michael's College.

Mr. G. C. Wainwright, manager of the Bank of Ottawa will leave on Wednesday for a month's trip to the Pacific Coast.

Misses Emily Ballard and Helen Bristol, of Madoc, formerly teachers in training at the Normal school, were in the city over Sunday.

Mrs. A. H. Melville leaves to-day for Regina, Sask., where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. Millson Blewett.

Dr. G. Leslie Williamson, who left for Edmonton a month ago to try the Alberta Medical Council, has been successful in passing the examination.

Mrs. Roland Merrill, who has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. Hunter, 467 Water street, leaves for her home in Vernon B. C., this evening. Her little son, Winston, accompanies his mother.

Mrs. Alfred A. Smith will receive for the first time since her marriage at 529 Homewood Avenue, on Thursday afternoon, and afterwards on the first Tuesday of the month.—2d.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus McCrimmon St. Thomas, announce the engagement of their daughter, Isabel, to Mr. Dickson Davidson, of Peterborough, Ont. The marriage will take place very quietly in St. Thomas on Saturday, Oct. 19th.

RASPBERRIES AT NASSAU

Several Sunday strollers found their way to Nassau yesterday afternoon, and enjoyed a very substantial feast of raspberries, found to be growing along the river bank near the power house.

It is said that one lady, Miss Lockington by name, picked two quarts of the luscious fruit on Saturday.

OPEN LETTER TO MAYOR BRADBURN

One Phase of the Power Situation Here.

W. H. Bradburn, Esq.,
Mayor of Peterborough.

Sir,—

I have been substantially interested in the Otonabee Power Company Limited since its organization, and I find that of the $112,000.00 of Preferred stock that is outstanding by far the largest percentage of it is held by people residing in this City and County, hence I think you will agree with me that we, as Preferred stockholders, have a substantial financial interest in your proposed power scheme.

You and the City Council propose in carrying out your power scheme to notify the Otonabee Power Company that you will not renew their rights to maintain their poles and wires upon the Streets of Peterborough, and that you propose to notify the Company to remove all its poles and wires from the streets at the expiration of its franchise. If such drastic action is taken by you and the City Council it will have the effect of destroying the investment and property of the shareholders of the Otonabee Power Company.

I have also learned with a great deal of surprise that you and the City Council propose to destroy the Company's expensive investment in its pole line in Peterborough for the very purpose of depreciating the value of the Company's assets and in order that you may the cheaper expropriate its power plant at Dam No. 5. Surely such a proposition must appeal to you as being most arbitrary and unjust, and especially so when you consider the circumstances under which the Otonabee Power Company was organized.

You will remember at the time of the organization of the Company ten years ago that commercial lighting cost our merchants $6.00 per lamp, and domestic lighting cost about $3.00 per light and in fact electric lighting was such a luxury that there were not more than 500 householders in the City or Peterborough who used electric light. The Otonabee Power Company was not in business more than one month before commercial lighting was reduced to $3.00 a lamp, and house lighting was reduced $1.50 per light. In fact the prices were reduced over 100%, and Peterborough enjoyed the unique position of having the cheapest commercial and domestic light of any City in the Dominion of Canada, and even to-day the ratepayers of Peterborough enjoy the privilege of having cheaper electric light than 95% cf the Cities, Towns and Villages in the Dominion of Canada. In addition to that I have learned on the best of authority that there are more householders using electric light in the City of Peterborough, considering its population, than in any City or Town on the North American Continent.

When the Otonabee Power Company incurred the great expense of placing its poles and wires on the Streets, it never was contemplated that at the expiration of ten years the Company would be forced to remove its poles and wires from the streets, and that its investment in them would be wholly destroyed. Had such an arbitrary course been even suggested at the time or had the shareholders of the Otonabee Power Company dreamed that the spirit of injustice and tyranny would so possess the minds of the Mayor and City Council at the expiration of their short franchise, then the Company would have provided a sinking fund to meet such an unlooked for contingency. This sinking fund could have been provided by maintaining the price of light at the old high current rates.

Under the circumstances therefore I appeal to you and the City Council not to perpetrate such a proposed injustice upon the shareholders of the Otonabee Power Company. If the City of Peterborough desires to take over the power plant and pole line of the Otonabee Power Company and pay what it is reasonably worth, then no one would have any just cause cf complaint.

I therefore on behalf of myself and other shareholders of the Otonabee Power Company beg leave to enter my solem protest against your unjust and arbitrary proposition which could only meet with approval at the hands of the old Buccaneers of the West Indies or the old Pirates that infested the Chinese Coast.

I appeal to you and to the members of the City Council that it is not in the interest of the City of Peterborough to have its honor and its good name dragged in the mud and to have the City advertised abroad among intending investors that the people of this City are prepared to plunder and rob them if some one has ingenuity enough to invent the means whereby it may be legally done.

Yours Truly,
October 14th, 1912. JOHN A. CAMERON.

THE RESULT IN MACDONALD

To a Review reporter Mr. Burnham, M.P., said to-day, respecting the election in Macdonald: "The majority is larger than we expected, but the fact is if the farmers of this country are not protected, the bringing of larger areas under cultivation in the United States, and the new methods of dry farming and extensive farming will rob them of hte home market which Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself admits is the best market for the farmer in Ontario, and if in Ontario, why not elsewhere? The higher price of agricultural produce in Canada would necessarily be fatal to any talk of an Americna market for our farmers."

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

Subject of Illustrated Address at Open Meeting of Peterboro' Teachers' Institute in Collegiate Institute Hall.

The Teachers' Institute for the city of Peterborough will convene in the Collegiate Institute Hall on Thursday evening, Friday and Saturday of this week.

On Thursday evening, O. T. Stevenson, M. A. Paed., of Toronto University will give an illustrated address on the life of Robert Louis Stevenson, and to this meeting the public are cordially invited. In a short musical program, Miss D. Allan, and Mr. W. Wilson will assist.

Regular business will commence on Friday morning with the address by the president, Mr. H. R. H. Kenner.

Dr. Stevenson will also address the morning and afternoon session. On Saturday morning, Mr. A. J. Grant, superintending engineer, of the Trent Canal, will address the teachers, taking for his subject, "The Panama Canal."

NO PEARLY GATES FOR THE PARTY NEWSPAPER EDITORS

"He was a man of unsullied character. We do well in honoring his memory, not only to-night, but for all time." In these and other words Rev. Isaac Couch, referred to Sir Isaac Brock, at the beginning of his sermon in George street church, last night. His subject was, "Patriotism" and his text; For he loveth our nation and he hath built us a synagogue.

During the course of his sermon, as he touched on the question of local option, Rev. Mr. Couch undertook to give his opinion of party newspaper editors, which, by the way was not flattering to the editors, as he inferred that they would have a hard time finding their way through the pearly gates.

Rev. Mr. Couch believed that a man could leave his party on a moral issue, without being guilty of deserting his party, and held that if every man did his duty, the fight for local option in Peterboro would be won.

The man who was arrested in connection with the attempted robbery at Barrie's Regina branch, was committed for trial.

IMPROVEMENTS ON LITTLE LAKE LOCK COMPLETED

The canoe slides at the Little Lake Locks which the canoeists have been complaining about for years, have been put in order, a new slide having been built. The electric lights have been improved. The storehouse, lockmaster's dwelling, office and bridgemaster's house have all been painted, in fact the whole surroundings have been put in first class condition which does credit to the government.

THE AD CLUB DINNER TO-NIGHT

Better Late Than Never, the Las Word to Business Men

It may be that a number of interested Peterboro business men have not been called upon personally, and invited to hear Mr. McDiarmid, of Ryrie Bros., Limited, Toronto, to-night at the Ad Club dinner, commencing promptly at 8.30 in Hooper's Palm Parlors. The executive having the arrangements in charge have found it impossible to devote time enough to personal canvass, but practically the whole of the accommodation provided has been taken. Effort will be made, however, to provide plates for a few who have not, up to noon to-day, reserved tickets.

Other engagements have been in the way of some local business men devoting the evening entirely to the Ad Club event. These men are planning to come in after the dinner and hear Mr. McDiarmid's address, which will commence about 9.20. Others who find it impossible to take in the entire evening are invited to come to hear Mr. McDiarmid, even though they come late, thereby profiting from the address and encouraging the Ad Club executive to go ahead and develop its possibilities for usefulness in connection with the business interest and the general welfare of Peterboro.

In the minds of a very few local citizens who should be interested in the work of the Ad. Club, there exists a doubt as to the purpose of the Peterborough Ad. Club. These are invited to attend this evening, hear the lecture and discussions, and gain an adequate appreciation of at least a few of the possibilities for self development and helping "the other fellow," that are available in connection with the Peterboro Ad. Club.

FATHER HOGAN AT ST. PETER'S

Redemptorist Priest Gave Sermon on Temperance

Father Hogan, a Redemtorist Priest, of Toronto, delivered an eloquent sermon in St. Peter's Cathedral last evening on the temperance question. Two Redemptorist Fathers are conducting a mission in Ennemore township this week, Father Hogan being one of the officiating clergy.

At the morning service the Total Abstinence Society attended church in a body and received communion.

Rev. Father O'Sullivan, of Port Hope gave the sermon in Sacred Heart Church last night.

Penance

A Man Decides to Steal and Suffers For the Theft

By HENRY MELLABY

Here I am in prison for a crime I have confessed, but have not committed. And yet the most difficult task I have is to keep the one who would suffer by exonerating me from doing so. I have been sent up for seven years and shall probably serve all of the term except what I may get off by good behavior—that is, unless the true story is divulged.

It came about in this way: I met Marcia at a barn dance. I was a farm hand and she the daughter of the wealthiest farmer in the county. There was that between us when we first saw each other to make us great happiness or great trouble, and whether it was in this or in that or what it was I can't say. I only know that we were like the poles of the magnet—drawn together by a power far beyond that of the greatest magnet—for it was not a senseless but a living force.

We danced together many times, and when the dawn was breaking I was her escort to her home. As I went with her up the walk to the house, a great white structure with an L for the many things a farmer needs and noticed the huge barn full of grain, a chill came upon my heart, for I saw that they were a barrier between me and the girl who would inherit them after her father's death.

I WAS CAUGHT WITH THE ARTICLES ON ME.

When I parted from her I think we were both dwelling on this, for a cloud passed over her young brow as well as over mine. Nevertheless a thrill ran through our clasped hands, overpowering our fears.

Marcia did not invite me to the house, knowing that her father, who at least intended to guard her from such as I, would not permit me to come there. But she met me on the bridge, which was midway between her home and the village, where she often went. Down the river bank was a secluded path on which we could walk without fear of detection. Though pricked by conscience, I was not strong enough to conquer myself or her and go away from her, for I had not even a good suit of clothes, and was she not an heiress?

For awhile, despite the wrong of it, there were flashes of zest in this forbidden fruit and times when all but our dominant love faded for the moment and left us exquisite happiness. But there came a time when those periods during which we were apart were unbearable. We were drawing near that condition when pentup love must burst its barriers. It was Marcia who first proposed flight, though I had been thinking of it. The conditions could not remain as they were. Some one who knew would tell; Marcia would be shut up; our communication would be broken. And so at last we came to the inevitable conclusion that we must go away together, be married and when the knot had been tied would ask forgiveness.

Looking back on this period, it seems to me that I must have been demented. I, a pauper, had no right to woo the daughter of a rich man, certainly no right to consent to an elopement to gain that which I could not gain honorably. I was a thief as much as or more than one who starves and steals bread or the wherewithal to buy bread. I was hungry for love, while the starving thief needs that which keeps the life in his body. But I yielded, and now I am paying the penalty.

And yet am I paying a penalty? There is in me a pleasing sense of doing penance for my sin. Is it for the sin? No; it is for her I love. I glory in my suffering, since I know that I have saved her from what I could not bear to have brought upon her.

If we were to go away together we should have gone sooner. Farmer Hosmer got wind of something wrong and shut Marcia up. He did not know where the danger lay and had never seen me. Indeed, I had purposely kept out of his way, for I dreaded to meet him. Marcia's imprisonment made me desperate, and then—and then—

One night when all was still and dark, carrying a ladder, I went to the Hosmer farm, stood under Marcia's window and threw gravel lightly against the panes. Softly she raised the sash and looked out. I ran up the ladder and was about to ask her if she would go with me when she said:

"Heavens! What are you doing? Father drove to the county seat today and is expected home every minute!"

As she spoke there was a sound of wheels crunching on gravel almost under the window. Marcia, frantic, pulled me in.

"The ladder!" I exclaimed. "He will see it."

He did see it, for I heard the wagon stop directly under the window, and certain mutterings that told me I would be caught in Marcia's room.

Then a certain coolness came to me, from where I know not, and a resolution was taken to save Marcia from a stain.

"Get into bed," I said, "and pretend to sleep."

She obeyed me, and, gathering up a few trinkets on the bureau, a bracelet, two or three rings and some gold pins, I stuffed them in my pocket, opened the bedroom door and went downstairs. Ten minutes later I was caught with the articles on me and confessed myself a sneak thief.

I was placed in the wagon that had just come from the county seat and at once driven there and lodged in jail. I was a newcomer in that region, and none of the Hosmer family except Marcia had ever seen me. Even had I been seen it would not have mattered.

The local newspaper at the end of the week published a short item as to the capture of a thief who had boldly climbed to the window of Miss Hosmer's room, stolen some articles from her bureau without awaking her and, retreat being cut off by Mr. Hosmer, who opportunely arrived in time, tried to escape through the house. He was caught red handed, confessed and was lodged in jail. The item added a warning to farmers against the practice of employing itinerant farm hands during the harvest season lest they harbor crooks. "Miss Hosmer," the article said in closing, "on learning of the danger she had incurred, became hysterical and has not yet recovered from her fright."

For several days Marcia gave me no news of herself, and when she did she came to me. Then I knew that she had neither the physical strength nor self control to have come before. But at last, manifesting an interest in the welfare of the man who was supposed to have robbed her, she declared that she would see him, and if he were penitent she would forgive him and do all she could to save him from the consequences of his theft. She insisted on coming alone and was permitted to see me without others being present.

She begged me to consent to her confessing the truth, but I forbade her. In the first place, it would wreck her good name and I would have the sin upon my conscience. I persuaded her to let the matter proceed as it had begun, encouraging her to hope that some guardian angel would bring all right in good time.

I was soon tried, and, since I had not only confessed, but had been caught with stolen articles on my person, I pleaded guilty, and the court gave me a comparatively light sentence. And now I am in stripes at what is called hard labor. But my heart is not heavy since what I bear has been instrumental in saving my love from an obloquy that would have resulted from my own recklessness. My suffering is that she suffers. She comes to see me, sometimes with the knowledge of her parents, but oftener when they know nothing of her visits. Every time she comes she begs me to consent to her making a confession, and every time I persuade her to wait for some other means of giving me my freedom.

Six years later. I have done a great work. For five years I succeeded in persuading Marcia to refrain from telling the truth concerning me and by good behavior reduced my sentence, so that a year ago I stepped forth a free man. A few months before the expiration of my term Farmer Hosmer died, his wife having died soon after my incarceration, and Marcia became mistress of the fortune she inherited as sole heir. After her father's death she came openly to the prison to see me and gave out that as soon as I had served my term she would marry me. In this she would not yield, saying that, since I had become a convict to shield her, it was but little for her to have the name of wedding a convict.

And so on the day I regained my freedom after putting off my stripes and putting on good clothes sent me by Marcia I stepped from the prison door into a carriage beside my bride and was driven to a church, where we were made one.

I wish that for my wife's sake I could remove the stain resting upon me without putting a stain upon her. This cannot be, but I feel that Providence has enabled me to become an example to other convicts, showing how one may live, maintain his self respect and prosper in spite of having worn stripes. They do not know that I am innocent of the crime for which I was convicted, so my example has its full force. And have I not said that in attempting to steal Farmer Hosmer's daughter my crime was far greater than in stealing the trinkets for which I was convicted?

And so, though she and I live under a cloud, we feel that we are encouraging hosts of others who have fallen to stand again and push forward. When they hear of us their burden is lighter, and they have a better chance to succeed. Why should they look back and why should they not look forward? Many of them, starting innocent, were driven by a merciless fate to commit a crime so light that it is scarcely worthy to be called a sin.

Treasure Trove Found.

There has been found near Smith's Falls a quantity of French and American silver coin dating back to the year 1700. One French coin dated 1812 and a five-franc piece has the head of Emperor Napoleon on one side. The coins were all set on edge in rows in the shape of a V. There were in all 148 coins and the value cannot at present be estimated. The money was placed in the care of Chief Phillips of Smith's Falls and he and Magistrate Sparham are the only ones other than the finders who know where the coins were found. They refuse to give any further particulars until they have heard from the authorities at Ottawa to whom a report of the valuable discovery was made. It is thought that much more coin is secreted in the same vicinity and it is expected that when the location is made known there will be a regular rush of treasure hunters to the farm.

An Odd Bequest.

The following is one of the oddest bequests ever recorded in a last testament. It appeared in the will of a Bristol mariner proved in 1795. The old gentleman ordered his executors to "pay out of the first moneys collected, to my beloved wife, if living, one shilling, which I have given as a token of my love, that she may buy hazelnuts, as I know that she is better pleased with cracking them than she is with mending the holes in her stockings."

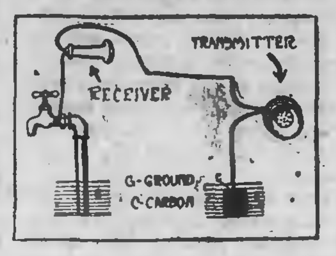
WATER PIPES RUN THIS TELEPHONE

It Takes the Place of Back Fence Gossip and Is Easily and Cheaply Made

The mysteries of nature are the least mysterious of any of the wonderful things of the world, but occasionally even scientists get a shock when some particularly elemental truth is forced upon them in an odd moment.

Just as Newton must have trembled at the enormity of the discovery of gravitation on the fateful day he fell asleep under an apple tree and received the never-to-be-forgotten bump on the head—so must one of our later day scientists have felt when he found himself able to construct and operate a telephone line without an electric battery.

In this instance there were several wires used, but they did not connect the telephone instruments in the usual sense, since practically all of the connection was with one wire only, and no batteries were used other than what Nature herself supplied.



An ordinary telephone receiver was equipped with the usual wires. One of these was run to a neighbor's house and the other was attached to a water pipe that ran on into the ground. The end running into the neighbor's house was attached to an ordinary telephone transmitter and another wire was run from the transmitter outside the house and into the ground, two or three pieces of carbon, such as are used on arc lights, being attached to the end before it was buried beneath the sod.

The line was complete with these simple operations, and conversation could be carried on with as much clearness as though a complete line with batteries, etc., was used.

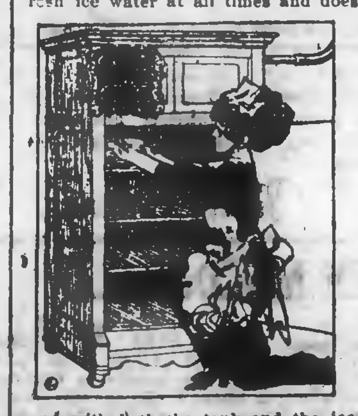
A profound student could probably explain the reason—but to the average layman the fact is sufficient of itself. Anyone who doubts the fact can try the experiment by following these simple directions, as shown in the illustration.

ICE WATER ON TAP

Not Necessary to Chop Ice to Put In the Pitcher or Glasses

The average housekeeper dislikes the ice box with water tank attachment, because the tank must be constantly cleaned. Taking ice from the box to make ice water has a number of disadvantages, the most important being the reduction of the size of the ice cake in the box and the expense of providing ice for both water and box.

There is a way, however, that permits the household to have sweet, fresh ice water at all times and does away with both the tank and the ice in the pitcher or glass. It consists simply of having the tinsmith or plumber line the inside of the ice chamber of the refrigerator with heavy tin piping in a single coil.



Each end of the coil should be carried out of the refrigerator at opposite sides. One of these ends should be equipped with a faucet and the other with a rubber hose long enough to reach to the nearest water tap.

GOOD SHOWER BATH

Quickly Made From Piece of Rubber Hose and Easily Adjusted

It is a simple thing to make a shower-bath with a section of garden hose. All that is needed is enough hose to stretch from the bath tub to the shoulders of the bather and around them.

A cork is inserted in one end of the hose, and a ring is formed large enough to go over the head and rest on the shoulders. With a sharp knife gashes are cut in the hose on the inside of the ring about an inch apart and the bath is all ready. Or, if preferred, holes may be punched, to give the needed shower effect. Attach the other end of the hose to the faucet and turn on the water.

NUMBERS IN A PARADE.

Easy to Estimate Them According to United States Army Rules.

It is remarkable how the average civilian overestimates the number of persons in a parade. Take, for example, the recent suffragist parade in New York. It was said that there were 15,000 women in line, and some enthusiasts put it even at 20,000. But it is easy to estimate such numbers approximately. Here is the rule as laid down in the "Field Service Regulations" of the United States army:

"The strength of a body of troops may be estimated from the length of time it takes to pass a given point. Assuming that infantry in column of fours occupies half a yard per man, cavalry one yard per trooper and artillery in single column per gun or caisson, a given point would be passed in one minute by about 175 infantry, 110 cavalry at a walk, 200 cavalry at a trot and five guns or caissons."

Allowing for spacing between companies, battalions and regiments, all of which is according to mathematical rule, it takes a regiment of 1,000 men divided into battalions just ten minutes to pass, or at the rate of 6,000 an hour. And this supposes no breaks in the line.

These rules, it must be remembered, are for trained soldiers used to a long step and to keeping up without straggling. No civilians, even militant suffragettes, ever have kept up or could keep up this pace, and in the women's parade many of the organizations walked in column of twos. This parade took an hour and a half to pass.—New York World.

SOCIETY AS SHE SEES IT.

Hetty Green's Caustic Comments on Present Day Conditions.

Mrs. Hetty Green, New York's woman financier, has never grown accustomed to modern manners.

"Girls and young matrons in my young day," said Mrs. Green recently, "enjoyed balls and parties where gentle folk mingled. Nowadays such affairs are but scrambles for men who have made fortunes in stock gambling in order to parade their bejeweled wives and daughters before each other.

"Some of them wear so few clothes that it makes me blush. I went to the opera once. I saw one woman there whose frock was cut so low I could count the joints in her backbone. I am almost tempted to say I could count her ribs.

"I don't know what society is coming to. The men are about as well mannered as the average horse jockey, while the women are mannish and boydenish and altogether the reverse of what their grandmothers should have desired them to be.

"These days, too, women are forever gadding about instead of remaining at home and making things comfortable and attractive for their husbands and children. There's no home life."—Ohio Journal.

Gold Beaters' Skin.

A cheap substitute is much desired for goldbeaters' skin, which is prepared from the outside membrane of the large intestine of the ox. It is said that goldbeaters first tried paper for inclosing the metal, and mulberry fiber paper is still used in China and Japan, but animal parchment has been mostly employed for two or three centuries at least. While a thinner leaf can be beaten out between paper parchment sheets, it is damaged by adhesion. A special German paper is coated with isinglass or albumen, and paper parchment of some kind is much used in the first stages, but goldbeaters finish their product between goldbeaters' skins, still pounding an ounce of gold into 200 square inches of leaf.—New York Tribune.

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

THE BROCK CENTENARY

Gallant Soldier's Memory Honored by Whole Dominion

HIS LAST GREAT FIGHT

Battle of Queenston Heights a Desperate Struggle Against Great Odds

Brock's Life in Brief

Born—St. Peter's Port, Island of Guernsey, Oct. 14, 1769.
Entered Army—March 2, 1785.
Purchased Lieutenancy—1790.
Gazetted Captain 1791, and ordered to West Indies.
1791-1793—Quartered Barbadoes and Jamaica.
Obtained Commission as Major while on sick leave.
1797—Became senior Lieut.-Colonel of 49th Regiment.
1802—Ordered to Canada.
1805—Made full Colonel.
1808—Created Brigadier General.
1811—Made Major-General of the staff of North America.
1811—Appointed President and Administrator of the Government of Upper Canada.
Aug. 16, 1812—Captured Detroit.
Oct. 10, 1812—Knighted.
Oct. 13, 1812—Killed at Queenston Heights.

To the efforts of the United Empire Loyalists and other patriotic societies must be given, in large measure, the credit for the Dominion-wide observance of the Brock centenary. Through the work of these societies which included the Canadian Defence League, Canadian Club, Empire Club, Ontario Historical Society, Six Nation Indians, Governor-General's Body Guard, Sons of Scotland, Niagara Historical Society, Women's Wentworth Historical Society, Imperial Daughters of the Empire, Lundy's Lane Historical Society, 1887 Veterans' Association, and the 1866 Veterans' Association, the sympathies of the various government departments were enlisted, and to their zeal Canada owes the fitting observance of an anniversary second to none in importance in her history.

By his contemporaries Sir Isaac Brock was looked upon as the saviour of Canada, and time has not tarnished the lustre of his fame. Of his life and achievements there is, perhaps, no better record than Lady Edgar's "General Brock."

Isaac Brock was born at St. Peter's Port, Island of Guernsey, on Oct. 6th, 1769; one of the fourteen children, and the eighth son of John Brock and Elisabeth De Lisle, daughter of the Bailiff of the island, and a descendant of Sir John De Lisle, who was Governor of Guernsey in the reign of Henry IV. Young Brock enjoyed the educational advantages common to the better-off class of the stern little island, first attending Queen Elizabeth's school in Guernsey, and afterwards going to Southampton and Rotterdam for a short time.

A Soldier at Fifteen

At the age of fifteen Isaac followed the example of his two elder brothers and joined the Army on March 2nd, 1785, obtaining a commission, by purchase, in the 8th Regiment, in which his oldest brother had just purchased a captaincy, after ten years' service in America.

When Brock entered the army England was at peace; in 1790 he purchased his lieutenancy and for a time was quartered in Guernsey and the neighboring island of Jersey; in 1791 he was gazetted as captain of the 49th Regiment and ordered to the West Indies. After two years in the West Indies Brock went home on sick leave, and for a time was employed in the recruiting service in England, attaining the rank of Major in 1795 and becoming senior Lieutenant Colonel of the 49th two years later.

Brock's first thirteen years in the army were marked by a series of rapid promotions, but he saw very little of active service. In 1799, however, he served in Holland against the French, and was present at the battle of Copenhagen, after which the 49th returned to England, being stationed for a time at Colchester. In the spring of 1802 the regiment was ordered to Canada where it was destined to remain many years.

Colonel Brock was first stationed at Quebec, but very soon his regiment was ordered to the Upper Province where the greater part of it was stationed at Fort George under Lieut.-Colonel Sheaffe, while Brock himself remained at headquarters at York.

Improved Conditions

Shortly after Brock's arrival in Upper Canada, he stamped out an incipient mutiny at Fort George by causing the arrest of seven disaffected soldiers, who were sent for trial to Quebec, found guilty and shot. After this melancholy affair Brock assumed command at Fort George, and all complaints and desertions instantly ceased as he put into practice the more humane methods of treating the private soldier.

In 1805 Brock was again quartered at Quebec, having attained to the rank of full Colonel. The same year he returned to England, but the news from America was so threatening that he determined to go back to Canada before the expiration of his leave. He left London never to return, on June 26th, 1806. His sister wrote on the 27th, "Isaac left town last evening.

Dear fellow; Heaven knows when we shall see him again."

Upon his arrival in Canada Brock succeeded to the command of the troops in both the Upper and Lower provinces. He immediately ordered the building and outfitting of vessels and bateaux for the rivers and lakes of the provinces and directed that an assistant quartermaster-general be stationed at Amherstburg and Kingston. It was to Brock's foresight that Great Britain owed her supremacy on the lakes when the war of 1812 broke out. With the advent of hostilities Brock was prepared to strike.

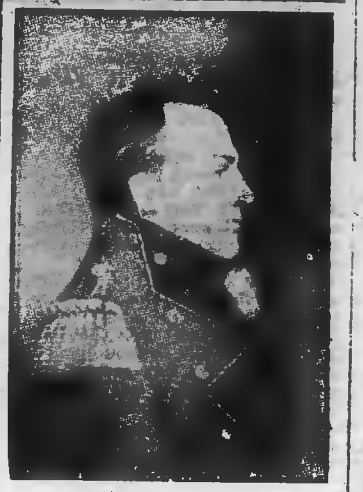
Outbreak of War

The capture of Mackinaw Island by Captain Roberts was the first operation of the war and a most important one, as by it the wavering tribes of Indians were confirmed in their allegiance to Britain. On August 6th General Brock left York for Amherstburg which he reached on Aug. 13th. Then came the engagements at Amherstburg, Brownstown and Maguaga, in which Brock's soldiers were assisted by the Indians under the great Tecumseh, whom Brock now met for the first time. The morning of August 15th found Brock and his Indian allies at Sandwich, prepared to attack Detroit the following morning, General Hull, the American commander of the fort having refused Brock's bold demand that he surrender. Scarcely had the engagement commenced, when Hull changed his mind and capitulated his twenty-five hundred troops becoming prisoners to the vastly inferior British force.

Both in Canada and in England Brock's achievement caused the greatest rejoicing, and on Oct. 10th he was gazetted a Knight of the Order of the Bath—an honor which he was to bear for but a few days.

On Niagara Frontier

While England was ringing with his praise, General Brock was passing anxious days and nights. It was apparent that an attack on the frontier was coming, but at what point on the line it was impossible to determine. On the night of Oct. 12th which was cold and stormy General Brock sat at his desk at Niagara, writing despatches and instructions for his officers at various points along the river. It was past midnight when the General retired and before dawn, about four a.m. the sound of distant firing aroused him. In a few moments he was in his saddle, and not even waiting for his aide-de-camp to accompany him, he galloped off by the road to Queenston, seven miles away, whence the ominous sound came. It was about half an hour before daylight, in the midst of a violent storm of wind and rain, that, under cover of darkness, the Americans began crossing the river. They were seen by the sentinel on guard at Queenston and the alarm was given. The grenadier company of the 49th, and the militia company stationed there began firing on them, using two 3-pounders with good effect. Colonel Van Rensselaer who had charge of the troops crossing was severely wounded. The gun at Vrooman's Point, which commanded the landing at Lewiston, also joined in, and many of the boats were driven back, whilst others in a battered condition drifted down the river and ran ashore near Vrooman's Point. Those on board, many of them wounded, were made prisoners. In spite of the constant fire, however, some boats succeeded in affecting a landing.

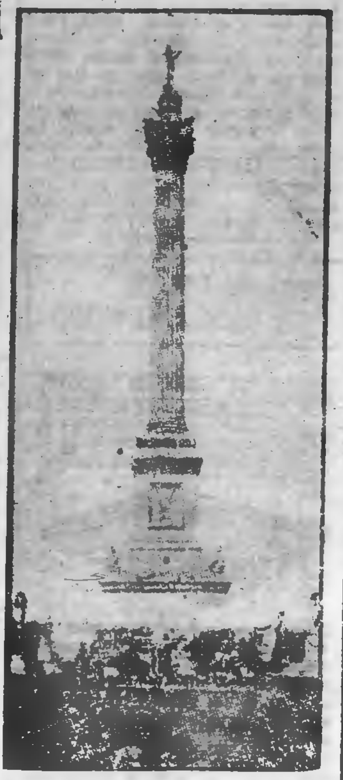


GENERAL BROCK
From a painting by J. W. L. Forster, by permission of Wm. Briggs.

"Press on, Volunteers!"

Captain Cameron in Command of the York Volunteers at Brown's Point had just started his march towards Queenston when Brock dashed past alone. He waved his hand as he flew by, bidding the little troop press on. General Brock, on his approach to Queenston, was greeted with the news that the greater part of the boats had been destroyed or taken. Another brigade of four boats was just then setting off from Lewiston, and the 49th Light Company, which had been stationed at the redan battery on the mountain, was ordered down to assist in preventing them landing. General Brock had ridden forward to inspect this battery and had just dismounted to enter the enclosure, when shots from above warned him that the enemy had gained the crest of the hill. Captain Wool had conducted a party up the river, landed and followed a fisherman's path up the south side of the mountain—a path so steep and narrow that it had been left unguarded. They had succeeded in reaching the height unobserved. It was now about seven in the morning.

In the exposed position in which General Brock found himself there was nothing to be done but evacuate the battery as speedily as possible He led his horse down the hill and entered the village to reform his troops and gather them for an assault on the enemy above. There were but two hundred men available for the work, but regardless of danger, General Brock, on foot, led his men to the charge up the hill. In vain was the attempt. The enemy above were so advantageously placed, and kept up such a tremendous fire, that the small number ascending were driven back. Again Brock rallied them, and proceeded by the right of the mountain, meaning to attack them in flank. His tall form and prominent position as leader made him too easy a mark. Scarcely had he ascended a few paces when the fatal bullet struck him in the breast, and he fell. They bore him from the place where he fell to a house at the foot of the hill, where his comrades covered his lifeless form, and then went back to the work he had left them to do.



Brock's monument, Queenston Heights by permission of Wm. Briggs.

A Forlorn Hope

The handful of troops had retreated to the village, where they were joined by the two companies of York Volunteers. About half past nine Lieut.-Colonel Macdonell, aide-de-camp, formed them in line again for an advance up the hill to dislodge the enemy. About fifty men scrambled to the top of the hill, where they found the enemy, three or four hundred in number were concealed. Lieut.-Colonel Macdonell formed the little band in line for a charge. As he called upon his troops to advance he received a shot in the body. His men went forward a few paces, discharged their muskets, and then retired down the mountain, Captain Cameron carrying Colonel Macdonell.

Major-General Sheaffe had, early in the morning, prepared to march to Queenston with about four companies of the 41st, three hundred and eighty rank and file, and nearly the same number of militia. This force arrived at Vrooman's Point about eleven o'clock and found there the handful of troops who had retreated to that place.

Sheaffe decided that it was useless to attempt a charge up the hill, and determined rather to make a long detour through the fields and woods behind Queenston. His force was strengthened by the arrival of 150 Mohawk Indians, under Chief Norton, who moved silently through the forest and hemmed the Americans in. About two o'clock Major Merritt's troop of cavalry appeared on the scene, and later still, a detachment of the 41st and two companies of militia arrived from Chippawa.

Real Battle Begins

It was three o'clock in the afternoon when the real battle of Queenston Heights began. General Sheaffe had gradually advanced towards the battery on the mountain held by the enemy, his force mustering a little over a thousand men, of whom half were regulars, the left consisting of Mohawk Indians and a company of colored troops, refugee slaves from the United States. The Indians were the first to advance, and the Americans, who were expecting an attack from quite another direction, were completely taken by surprise. General Sheaffe had succeeded in reaching their rear unseen, and there was scarcely time for them to change their front, when a fierce onslaught was made on them from all sides.

In vain did the American officers try to rally their men. A panic seized them in the face of the determined fire that was poured upon them, scarcely waiting to fire a volley, they fled by hundreds down the mountain, only to meet more of their enemies below. There was no retreat possible for them. It was indeed a furious and avenging force that pressed upon them, and drove them to the brink of the river, whose deep waters seemed to offer a more merciful death than that which awaited them above. The river was quickly dotted with heads of swimming men; many others leaped from the side of the mountain and were dashed to pieces on the rocks below.

Americans Surrender

The battle was over in one short hour and Brock was avenged. Two officers advanced bearing a white flag and General Sheaffe with difficulty stopped the slaughter. By the surrender General Wadsworth and over nine hundred men, including sixty officers, were made prisoners of war. It was a complete victory, but dimmed by national loss.

The grey shaft on Queenston Heights dominates a wide expanse of land and lake. Deep and strong is the current of the river that flows at its base, but not deeper and stronger than the memory of the man who sleeps below.

To Wash Blankets.

When washing blankets put two large tablespoonfuls of borax and one pint bowl of soft soap into a tub of cold water. When dissolved put in a pair of blankets and let them remain there overnight. Next rub them out and rinse thoroughly in two waters and then hang them out to dry. Do not wring them.

In Case of Fire.

The gas jets of small city rooms are often placed near a window, and fires have been started through the curtains being blown toward them. To obviate this danger sew several small weights in the lower seam of such curtains to hold them down or at least to prevent them from flying high with every breeze.

Wealth Underground.

Captain Janes, of the Canadian exploration party aboard Captain Bernier's "Arctic," tells of virgin forests beneath ground in Baffin's Land—the richest coal areas in the world, and fuel can be dug up with a shovel.

Captain Janes is of the belief that the two largest coal fields in the world have been discovered on Canadian soil, located in Baffin's Land. The two are about one hundred miles apart. In spite of their high altitude, he says that they will be workable all the year round. The coal is so easily secured that it can be dug from the surface with the shovel.

"This northern part of Canada will be the greatest country in the world," says Captain Janes. "I believe that the report of the Arctic's last voyage, when it is made public, will be of great value."

DRY FARMING

What is dry farming? That is the question that presents itself to the general public, and which, strange to say, has not been answered. It consists in working land in rainless districts so that it produces, without the frequent showers that favor other places. There is a rainy season, no matter how dry the place may be, and previous to the rainy season the dry farmer ploughs his land and ploughs it at seven or eight inches deep, and then waits for the rain-fall. As soon as the rainy season is over he takes a very heavy roller and rolls this land so that the moisture has no chance to evaporate and remains bottled up. When he is ready to put in his crop he ploughs the surface of the land with a sharp instrument to the depth of from two to three inches and then sows. The stored-up moisture slowly steams up and feeds the grain, so that by the time it is fully grown there is a full crop of well developed grain. Unless there has been an unusual rainfall the harvest is easy. This recent discovery has doubled, if not more than doubled, the productive power of the grain-growing world. It is not yet, of course, by any means in general use, but it will be in a few years, and then we may expect South America, Mexico, California and the Western States, as well as portions of our own Canadian West, and Southern Russia, &c., to send vast quantities of food-producing grain into the markets of the world. A great Congress is about to be held at Lethbridge, Alta., and delegates are coming from all parts of the world. News of the success of dry farming has reached the uttermost parts of the earth, and the inhabitants of Palestine look forward to restoring to that country and Persia and to the Valley of the Tigris the fertility which it possessed before it lost its rainfall. It is doubtful if there ever was such a far-reaching improvement in the productivity of farming land. It will unquestionably cause a reconstruction of the whole system of marketing and of trading. If farm lands in arid belts of countries where labor is cheap and where there is no danger of frost can be made to produce enormous quantities of grain where now none is grown, it will mean that the importing of grain into countries where it is now comparatively dear will reduce it and make it much cheaper. This means that the home market will be more than ever a source of anxiety to the farmer, and it is a question if in the future it will not be just as it is now in England, a question of protecting the farmers' home market in order that he may continue to live and produce according to the high standard of farm life. Sir Wilfrid Laurier evidently sees this, because the other day at Mount Forest, as reported in the Globe, he said that the farmer's best market in Ontario was the home market.

P. C. I. RUGBYISTS BEHIND IN GAME WITH PORT HOPE FOURTEEN

The Peterborough Collegiate Institute senior team played the second team of the Trinity College school, at Port Hope on Saturday and were beaten by the score of 24-11. Hill played a star game for the P. C. I. team, which was handicapped by being a very much lighter team than the T. C. S. It is likely that the T. C. S. team will play P. C. I. in Peterborough next Saturday.

MUSICALE AT CONSERVATORY

The first of a series of Twilight Musicales was given in the Conservatory Music Hall on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. There were upwards of three hundred present, and the apparent appreciation of the various numbers looked well for the success of the season.

The Conservatory Orchestra opened the program with a brilliant and masterly execution of Von Webber's overture to "Der Freitschultz." During the program the combination also rendered the popular selection from De Koven's "Robin Hood." Mr. Asa Huyoke sang, in his usual pleasing style, the bass solo, "In the Shadows"—Finck, for which he was twice recalled. He also rendered Tolsti's favorite "Good-Bye," with great feeling and expression.

Miss Rochester delighted her audience with readings in which were intermingled humor and pathos. Her articulation was superb, and the manner in which she adapted her style to the various works was, in a large measure, the means of her contributions being heartily applauded.

This is the first of a series of six twilight musicales, which will be rendered at 4 o'clock on the first Saturday in each month. The next will take place on Saturday, November 2nd.

A Lion's Vanity.

The intricacies of a great man's character are often simplicities to his wife. Once, when the present poet laureate had paid a visit to Tennyson, his immediate predecessor, Tennyson walked with him as far as the gate which led to the highway. There, says Mr. Alfred Austin in his recent autobiography, while the elder poet stood leaning on the gate, a party of wide eyed sightseers appeared.

"What a vulgar people the English are!" Tennyson exclaimed. "They come here to watch for me, and when they see me they say, quite loudly, 'There's Tennyson!'"

Mr. Austin afterward repeated this to Lady Tennyson, who smiled tenderly, but archly.

"My husband would be much more annoyed if the people didn't come," she said.

Nothing Like Optimism.

There's nothing like optimism. Armed with its breastplate, fitted with its rose colored spectacles, you can withstand any pessimistic foe, see any rainbow of hope. These thoughts were forced upon a friend of ours who was waiting on the corner for his wife the other afternoon. [illegible] passed and she came not. An optimistic friend joined him and cheered his vigil.

"Look again and see if Theodora isn't coming," begged the husband.

"No. I don't see her yet," answered the optimist cheerily. "But have courage. The women who are coming along the street look more and more like her every minute."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A CHEAP FILTER

A Good Sized Lamp Chimney the Chief Essential for Making One.

When filtration is necessary in order to set one's mind at ease as to the purity of one's drinking water it is not necessary to spend large sums of money for patented devices to do the purifying. An old lamp chimney and a small quantity of absorbent cotton will do the trick.

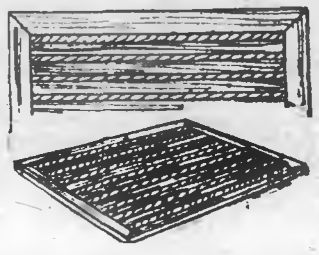
Tie a piece of cheese cloth over the small end of a chimney and then press a bit of absorbent cotton down on the cheese cloth cover on the inside. Any sort of a stand can be made to hold the filter—a board with a hole in it is enough. There should be enough cotton to fill the end of the chimney for about three inches. Water passing through it will be pure and clean, the impurities being in the cotton.

DOOR MAT MADE OF ROPE AND WOOD



There is a sort of door mat that is much in use in some sections of the country which is said to be an excellent substitute for the expensive rubber or metal affairs. It is made simply of alternate strips of wood and rope and can be fashioned at home.

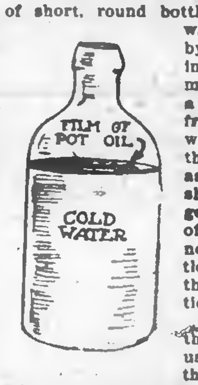
A frame is made of ⅜ in. lumber 1 inch thick. The frame can be any size desired. Alternate strips of rope and wood are then filled in. The best way to complete the mat is to leave one side of the frame open until the strips of rope and wood are in place. Make the wooden strips of 1 inch lumber as thick as the frame.

First nail the length of rope to the frame and then a strip of wood. Then another length of rope and another strip of wood and so on until the frame is filled. Then put on the other side of the frame and the mat is finished and ready for business.

USES FOR OLD BOTTLES

It's Easy to Cut the Necks off to Make Jelly Glasses

A bride who had a large number of short, round bottles thought she was economising by putting jelly into them and was made extremely angry by her friends' laughter when they saw the result, and asked her how she expected to get the jelly out of the narrow necks of the bottles—even though the bottom section was wide.



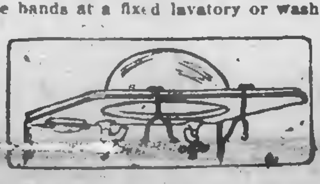
But bottles of this sort can be used for jelly, if the housewife will take the precaution to make jelly glasses of them before she pours in the sweet syrup. This can be done easily. The bottle is filled with cold water to the height desired for the glass and on top of this is poured a thin film of boiling oil. If cold water is dashed over the outside of the bottle opposite the oil film while the oil is still very hot it will be found that the bottle will break along a line that will be exactly even with the line of the oil.

Hundreds of bottles that are now thrown away or sold for little or nothing can be made into useful jelly glasses in this way.

FOR THE WASH BASIN

Little Wire Attachment Does Away With Wet Sleeve Annoyance

One of the annoyances of washing the hands at a fixed lavatory or wash basin is the tendency of the sleeves to drop down, after they have been rolled up, and come in contact with the water. This can be entirely done away with by the fixing of two wire guards to the side of the basin, as shown in the sketch. The guards can be made of wire bent to the proper shape and can be so fixed that when not in use they drop under the basin. If the arms are inserted in the crotches of the wire it will be found that the sleeves can be kept away from the water easily and there will be no interference with comparative freedom of movement.



The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon to St. St. Peter's Cemetery.

Stock Markets Suffer.

London, Oct. 14.—All the stock markets suffered a demoralized day. Berlin appears to have been the most distressed. British consols reached the lowest point in history. The Rossia of St. Petersburg says that the fall in prices was due less to the Balkan situation than to the operations of a well-known clique of bear speculators anxious to enrich themselves at public expense.

The British Chancellor of the Exchequer, David Lloyd-George, in an address Saturday night, said:

"The prospect seems to be that in a very short time the eastern horizon will be ablaze. We may express two hopes—that the area of conflagration will be limited, and that, whatever may be the issue of the conflict between the combatants, one result will ensue, that the boundaries of freedom and good government will be extended."

The British Red Cross Society is preparing to send large contingents to the front.

Persia's Great Superstition.

The greatest superstition in Persia is what is known as the "evil eye." You must not say to some one whom you meet, "How well you are looking!" for if you do and that person is taken ill it will be because you gave him the evil eye. You must not say to a mother, "What a pretty baby!" "What a bright child!" for if you do and anything unfortunate happens to the child you will be considered responsible. Many mothers let their children go dirty and poorly clothed in order that they may not attract favorable attention. The sign which is thought to have some power to avert the evil eye consists in holding the second and third fingers of both hands close to the palms with the thumbs, while the other fingers are extended straight out. Then with the hands behind you you make a downward movement three times.—Los Angeles Times.

What Is Fun?

"I don't see what fun it can be for you to go on these fishing expeditions with your husband," said her best friend.

"That's because you don't know anything about fishing," she replied.

"Do you?"

"Indeed I do. I can sit in the stern of the boat and give advice to the best of them. And when a big fish gets away nobody can beat me telling how it ought to have been or might have been landed."

"I shouldn't think that would be much fun for you."

"Shouldn't you? Well, that's because you don't know how mad it makes my husband. Kid, you don't know what fun is."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Spanish Meat Balls.

Spanish meat balls are as palatable as they are rare, and made thus: One can of tomatoes, one onion chopped fine, garlic or cayenne to taste. This forms the "Spanish." Two Men Drown.

Hamilton, Oct. 14.—George Forbes, 87 Catherine street north, and Charles Smith, 17 Tuckett street, each 29 years old, were drowned from a rowboat in the bay yesterday evening, shortly after six o'clock.

The men rented the boat from Askew's boathouse about five o'clock yesterday afternoon. After rowing around for an hour they headed for the boathouse. When about 400 yards out in the bay they were seen to engage in a scuffle. The boat was quickly upset and before the spectators on shore could reach the capsized craft the men sank.

Seek 1,000 Majority.

Berlin, Ont., Oct. 14.—One thousand majority is the slogan which the Conservative party workers have adopted for the present campaign which opened here last night following the convention which nominated C. H. Mills as the Conservative standard-bearer. The meeting last night was a successful one, and was addressed by the candidates, Richard Reid and others, and the consensus of opinion was that, while victory looked certain, the workers must not be over sure of this, but should get together and roll up a thousand majority.

Wall Fell on Workmen.

Belleville, Oct. 14.—Two workmen named Harry Spikland and James Frawley were on Saturday afternoon rather seriously injured owing to the collapsing of a brick wall at the machine shop of the new foundry premises being erected in this city for Marsh and Henderson. Othere workmen had a narrow escape from being buried by the debris.

Spikland and Frawley were severely cut about the head by falling brick and bruised about the body. A considerable portion of the wall fell, but from what cause is not known.

DARING HOLD-UP MEN COMMIT SENSATIONAL CRIME IN TORONTO

Tall Stranger Repeats His Robbery of Same Liquor Stores as a Few Days Ago and Twits Men Who Identified ex-Policeman as the Offender In Other Cases—One Clerk Is Shot In Cheek—Had an Accomplice.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—An armed highwayman last night held up three liquor stores, rifled the tills, shot point blank at two people who tried to interfere, and, with a posse of detectives in his wake, made good his escape. During his flight the robber was fired upon five times by a constable on Tecumseth street and the G.T.R. tracks, but was uninjured. The police lost track of him in the exhibition grounds on Dufferin street. From descriptions furnished the detectives, the bold marauder is thought to be a close relation of O. H. Latremouille, who is in jail on a charge of robbing three liquor stores last week. An arrest may be made at any time. In the three hold-ups the robber got close on to $250.

The stores were S. R. Dandy's, at 360 Gerrard street; J. H. Wallace, 608 Yonge street, and M. Wade, at the corner of King and Tecumseth streets.

Charles Howard, a clerk at Wallace's store, had his cheek seared by a bullet when he refused to yield to the demands of the highwayman. Mrs. Wade and her neice also had a narrow escape from being shot.

The first place to be visited was Dandy's. Charles, brother of the proprietor, was standing behind the counter, when a man entered and purchased some whisky. The customer asked permission to use the 'phone. Although they generally refused at other times, Mr. Dandy consented on this occasion. The man got his connection and was carrying on a conversation in the little office behind the partition, when another man entered. He asked for a couple of bottles of ale.

Mr. Dandy reached below the shelf, secured the bottles and placed them on the counter.

"Up with your hands!" was the command. The clerk looked up, to find the customer covering him with a revolver. The robber then ordered Dandy to stand back. The latter did so, hoping to get into the little office and secure a loaded gun, kept there since the proprietor was held up last week in much the same manner as last night.

The hold-up man perceived this move at once, and with a wave of the revolver told Dandy to come nearer. Placing his left hand on the keys of the till, he attempted to open it. Failing in his purpose, he ordered the clerk to open the register for him. When this was done the hold-up man slowly gathered up the bills and stuffed them in his pocket.

While he was doing this the man who had been telephoning walked right by, showing not the least surprise. Nor did the robber molest him. The two glanced at each other, and the previous customer passed out to the street.

"The next time you go down to identify a man, you'll know him," remarked the man with the gun to Dandy in a sarcastic way.

Dandy identified O. H. Latremouille a few days ago as the man who held him up last week.

"Have you got any 'kayo' on you?" he asked. When the clerk replied that he had not, the robber sneeringly said that he (Dandy) was only a workingman.

After pocketing about $41 the caller walked to the door.

"Good night, my friend," said he, "I may call again."

Dandy rushed to the phone and called the police. He described the man who used the telephone as about 40 years old, black moustache, dark clothes and black christie.

The robber was about 5 feet 10 or 11 inches in height, clean shaven, with sharp features, and wore a brownish cap with a pepper and salt suit.

Within a few minutes after the crime had been committed, Detectives Cronin, Miller and Armstrong were on the scene.

BURGLAR MADE DARING ESCAPE

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Oct. 15.—W. L. Phillips, awaiting trial for burglary, put a dummy in his bed and deceived the guard so that he was able to evade the guard and reach the basement of the jail. There he cut off the lights and opened a door with a key made from an aluminum comb, making his exit via an unbarred window. He walked into the city, entered a hotel and ate a lunch prepared for a boarder, stole a horse from the barn and is still free.

Youthful Burglars In Galt.

Galt, Oct. 15.—A series of petty thefts has been bothering the police lately, and as a result of good detective work, six boys were before the juvenile court yesterday, charged with forcible entry and stealing. They were convicted and cases referred to the Children's Aid Society. The magistrate deplored the prevalence of vice among the youths of the town and declared repressive steps must be taken.

Dirigible Flew for Thirty-One Hours.

Berlin, Oct. 15.—A successful 31-hour flight by a dirigible balloon was completed yesterday by the new German naval airship. The balloon landed here after flying across Germany from Friedrichshafen to the north coast and then across the North Sea to the island of Heligoland, where she afterward headed for Danzig in the Baltic Sea and Berlin. She carried twenty-one passengers.

Went Naked 35 Years.

Myton, Utah, Oct. 15.—Inepegut, a Ute Indian, who for almost 35 years has done penance for the murder of his mother, by going naked and refusing to mingle with other members of his tribe, was found dead in his lonely tepee near here Sunday. He had been supplied with food by his tribesmen, who considered him sacred.

Spark Caused Youth's Death.

Haileybury, Oct. 15.—George Hamilton, aged 18, is dead, from burns received when a spark from a kitchen stove lit on his chloride-soaked clothes. Hamilton was an employe of a powder factory.

HIS STORY IS CORROBORATED

Rose's Evidence Upheld by Webber and Vallon.

New York, Oct. 15.—"Bald Jack" Rose's story of how Police Lieut. Chas. Becker plotted the murder of Herman Rosenthal was corroborated on the witness stand yesterday by "Bridgie" Webber and Harry Vallon, self-confessed accomplices in the crime. Bridgie Webber went further. He swore that the police lieutenant had told him that on the night of the murder he would have killed Rosenthal himself if he had seen him. Becker had told him, Webber said, that he had slowed down his automobile while passing the Hotel Cadillac on Broadway, in case Rosenthal might be loitering there.

"If I had seen him, I would have backed him up against the wall and shot him," Becker said, according to Webber.

Rose's testimony that Becker had demanded that Rosenthal be "croaked," that he had given the gunmen assurances of protection, and that he had said that he would have liked to cut Rosenthal's tongue out and hang it up as a warning to future squealers, was corroborated by Webber, almost word for word, and Vallon supported him like an echo.

Attorney McIntyre, Becker's chief counsel, tried vainly to get them to admit that they had a motive of their own for doing away with Rosenthal, but each stuck to his story that they had taken part in the murder plot at Becker's behest. Both were accused of and denied that they were shielding Sam Schepps.

That the attention of Mayor Gaynor had been called as early as last March to Becker's alleged partnership in Rosenthal's gambling house was one of the features of the day's testimony. Memoranda were produced by a clerk of the police department.

CLASH OVER HYDRO POWER

Toronto, Oct. 15.—City Auditor Sterling and Mayor Geary clashed sharply yesterday over the former's report on the conduct of the city hydro-electric business as presented to the council. The report is severe. It finds that the business of the Toronto hydro-electric is not conducted on proper lines, that the system of bookkeeping employed is cumbersome and smothered in detail, the business over-staffed and the electric current purchased on a wrong basis.

With these findings Mayor Geary takes direct issue. On the presentation of the auditor's report his worship read the council a vigorous counter-statement, denying the criticisms made and scoring the auditor on all points. He defends the system of bookkeeping as one of the best known, and points out that not one man more than is necessary is employed in the business.

Mormon Temple for Alberta.

Lethbridge, Alta., Oct. 15.—Great excitement prevailed throughout all the Latter Day Saints colonies in Alberta over the announcement by President Jos. F. Smith of the Mormon Church at the general conference held at Salt Lake City that a temple would be built in one of the settlements near Raymond, Alberta.

The temple will be similar to those in Utah, and all the rites and ordinances of the church will be administered within its precincts. It will probably cost about one to two hundred thousand dollars.

SHOOTS WIFE AND HIMSELF

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 15—Killing his wife accidentally in the bush yesterday afternoon while hunting partridge, Thomas Leishman, farmer, 60 years of age, residing near Iron Bridge, committed suicide, and the bodies of both were found in the woods by those who became alarmed by their absence and made search.

Coroner Spence of Thessalon viewed the remains in the bush and came to the decision that the death of Mrs. Leishman as accidental and that the husband committed suicide.

ROOSEVELT IS SERIOUSLY WOUNDED BY A LUNATIC

John Schrank, a Deranged New Yorker, Stands Near Automobile and Fires Point Blank at Progressive Leader—The Col. Delivered His Speech Before Going to Hospital.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 15.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was shot and wounded last night as he was leaving the Gilpatrick Hotel for the Auditorium to make a speech. The colonel went on to the hall and began his speech, after he had seen the assailant arrested and taken to the police station.

The man was seized and held until policemen came up. A mob surged around the prisoner, who apparently is mentally upset on the subject of Roosevelt's running for another term as President.

The man, who is small of stature, admitted firing the shot, and said that "Any man looking for a third term ought to be shot."

In notes found in the man's pockets at the police station were statements that the man had been visited in a dream by the spirit of William McKinley, who said, indicating Roosevelt: "This is my murderer. Avenge my death!"

It was believed Roosevelt's injury was not serious. The colonel felt no pain at the time the shot was fired, and was not aware that he was shot until he was on his way to the Auditorium. His attention was then called to a hole in his overcoat, and he found that his shirt was soaked with blood. He insisted that he was not hurt badly. A superficial examination of the wound was made when he reached the Auditorium, and three physicians agreed that he was in no immediate danger.

Col. Roosevelt's life probably was saved by a manuscript of the speech which he delivered last night. The bullet struck the manuscript, which retarded its force as it passed through into the flesh.

His assailant was prevented from firing a second shot by Albert H. Martin, one of Col. Roosevelt's two secretaries. Col. Roosevelt had just stepped into an automobile when the would-be assassin pushed his way through the crowd in the street and fired. Martin, who was standing in the car with the colonel, leaped on to the man's shoulders and bore him to the ground.

Capt. A. O. Girard of Milwaukee, who was on the front seat, jumped almost at the same time, and in an instant the man was overpowered and disarmed.

A wild cry of "Lynch him!" went up. Col. Roosevelt spoke to the people and told them to spare the man, who then was taken into the hotel and held there until he was removed to the police station.

In spite of the entreaties of physicians, Col. Roosevelt insisted on delivering his address.

"I will make this speech or die, one or the other," he said.

Henry F. Cochems, one of the Wisconsin Progressive leaders, told the great crowd which had assembled in the auditorium that Col. Roosevelt had been shot, and asked the people to be calm. The crowd was thrown almost into a panic by the announcement, but Col. Roosevelt calmed the people by rising and assuring them that he was not badly hurt. Then he began his address. Several times he seemed to be growing weak and members of his party rose to help him. He motioned them to sit down.

"Let me alone. I'm all right," he said.

The shooting took place in the street in front of the Hotel Gilpatrick. Col. Roosevelt reached Milwaukee shortly after 5 o'clock, and making his way through the crowd which had gathered at the station, entered an automobile and was driven to the hotel. He took dinner in a private dining-room on the main floor with the members of the party on his private car.

After dinner Col. Roosevelt went to his room on the second floor of the hotel, and shortly before eight o'clock he started for the auditorium. His automobile stood in front of the door and about it was a big crowd, waiting to catch a glimpse of the colonel as he started off.

With the colonel was Philip Roosevelt, a young cousin; Mr. Cochems, Mr. Martin and Capt. Girard. The crowd pressed close about the colonel and gave a cheer as he appeared. As the party approached the automobile Col. Roosevelt's companions stood aside as he stepped into the car. Martin entered directly behind him and sat on the further side of the car.

Col. Roosevelt stood up, waving his hat in answer to the cheers of the crowd. The assassin was standing in the crowd, a foot from the automobile. He pushed his way to the side of the car, and, raising his gun, fired.

Martin caught the flash and leaped over the car a second after the bullet sped on its way.

Col. Roosevelt barely moved as the shot was fired. Before the crowd knew what had happened Martin, who is six feet tall and a former football player, had landed squarely on the would-be assassin's shoulders and had borne him to the ground. He threw his right arm about the man's neck with a death-like grip and with his left arm seized the hand that held the revolver. In another second he had disarmed him.

The doctors stated later at night that the bullet penetrated three inches of the abdominal wall and the wound is more serious than at first thought. This was shown by the X-ray photograph. Col. Roosevelt is still at the station in Milwaukee.

A special train has left with four surgeons. They are Drs. J. B. Murphy, Arthur Bevan, A. E. Ochsner and L. L. McArthur.

MANY CONVICTS MADE ESCAPE

Fierce Battle Raged all Sunday Between Guards and Prisoners

Rawlins, Wyoming, Oct. 15.—Quiet was restored last night in the penitentiary here, where a battle raged all Sunday between armed convicts and the prison guards, whose numbers had been depleted by the sending out of posses in search of prisoners freed by two successive deliveries.

All but two of the twenty convicts who escaped on Saturday have been recaptured.

The men who escaped were led by Antone Pazo, a life term murderer, who a few months ago, in the prison dining-room, seized a knife and almost disemboweled a fellow prisoner. The exact number of his followers is not yet known.

Walter A. Lawrence Dead.

Galt, Oct. 15.—The death occurred at Milton yesterday of Walter A. Lawrence, one of the best known horsemen of the province. The news will come as a shock to his many friends here. Mr. Lawrence had been a judge at the Galt Horse Show for several years, making many friends. He was in his 69th year, and was registrar of the surrogate court, County of Halton. The funeral will take place today from the residence of Rev. J. C. Willmott, with interment at Palermo.

BOY CHOOSES OWN CALLING

Montreal, Oct. 15.—An interesting judgment on parental authority has been given by Justice Mercier in Beauharnois county. Alexis Bail, a carpenter, sought an injunction against Theodore Lemieux, to prevent his son being employed as a blacksmith's apprentice, the father wanting the boy to become a carpenter. The judge, however, decided that the son should be allowed to choose his calling for himself.

Three Men Drowned.

Nicolet, Que., Oct. 15.—Three men were drowned in the river Godfroid, Sunday night, when a driver of a stage backed his rig over the end of a ferry. The dead are: Joseph Gouin, N. Vigneault and Ernest Landry.

The ferry was crossing in a terrific hailstorm and the driver, Joseph Caron was unable to see the end of the boat. When he backed up the vehicle overbalanced and its occupants, with the exception of the driver, were drowned like rats in a trap.

Strawberries at Galt.

Galt, Oct. 15.—Sid Pickard, a well-known farmer of East River road, brought to town a picking of ripe strawberries. He says if frost stays away for a couple of days, he will have for sale a quantity of berries, the first incident of the kind in local gardening annals.

Islands Tossed Up by Sea.

Valparaiso, Chile, Oct. 15.—Three new islands without vegetation, supposed to be the result of a recent marine upheaval, were discovered sixty miles to the southwest of Juan Ferdandez by the captain of the steamship Glenalvon, who reported them on his arrival here.

GRAND TRUNK MAKES CHANGES

U. E. Gillen, of Tronto, is Transferred to Montreal and H. E. Whitenburger Takes His Place.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—Announcement was made by the Grand Trunk Railway yesterday that U. E. Gillen, superintendent of the middle division of the G.T.R., whose headquarters are in Toronto, has been transferred to Montreal as superintendent of the eastern division, and that H. E. Whitenburdivision, 4|qzCa.. E,Iol-..5wym ,El78 ger, superintendent at Montreal, is to become superintendent of the middle division here, the change to come into effect at once. It is understood that the change is in accordance with a plan whereby three general superintendents are to be appointed, one in Montreal, one in Toronto, and one in Detroit. The men to be thus appointed are Messrs. Gillen, Whittenburger and Cunningham of Detroit. The title of general superintendent will not be given them until January, 1913. Each of these general superintendents will have full charge of their districts and report to Vice-President Kelly.

THOUSANDS COME OVER TO MARRY

Montreal, Oct. 15.—It is estimated in shipping circles that the number of prospective brides who have come to Canada this year is up in the thousands. The Lake Manitoba, which docked yesterday brought forty.

Most of the girls have gone to the northwest.

Accused of Embezzling $20,000.

Montreal, Oct. 15.—John H. Roper, the Montreal agent of John H. Shaw Sons, Limited, is under arrest, charged with embezling $20,000 in the last five years. He was remanded for trial on Oct. 17, bail being accepted in $10,000.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS IN BRIEF

John Davis of Windsor, former chief inspector of internal revenue, died at the age of 76.

John Burr of Sarnia, a Bell Telephone lineman, was killed by a fall as the result of a shock.

The funeral of the late Dominick Fallon took place at Kingston yesterday upon the arrival of the remains from Cornwall.

Germany has aimed a blow at the Standard Oil Co. in a Government bill for the formation of a national stock company.

The London Board of Education has decided to ask at once for $250,000 to build another public school and a second collegiate institute.

Mrs. Charles Gillard was burned to death at her home on Timothy street, Newmarket, yesterday, when she attempted to hurry the fire with coal oil.

The congregation of McLeod street Methodist Church, Ottawa, is considering inviting Rev. Dr. James Rankin, of Toronto, to assume the pastorate.

MONTENEGRINS CAPTURE TUSHI AT THE POINT OF THE BAYONET

Rowell at Kingston.

Kingston, Oct. 15.—N. W. Rowell, K.C., leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature, was a visitor in the city yesterday, and had a busy time. At noon he addressed the Canadian Club on "Workmen's Compensation," and in addition to attending a reception of local Liberals given him in the afternoon, he paid a visit to Queen's University, Royal Military College and Mowat Memorial Hospital. At 7 o'clock he was entertained at the Frontenac Club by prominent citizens, and at 8 o'clock spoke to the Queen's alumni on "Canadian Autonomy and Imperial Unity."

Mr. Rowell addressed the gathering of his supporters in the afternoon and enunciated the Liberal platform and its advantages, and promised to press for legislation. Already the enunciation of Liberal principles had awakened the Whitney Government, which had changed its position on various matters.

NEARLY LOST THE DYNAMITE

Witness in "Ironworkers" Trial Tells of Episode at San Francisco.

Indianapolis, Oct. 15.—While Jas. B McNamara and his accomplices were tossing about in a launch near San Francisco with the dynamite later used in explosions at Los Angeles, they came near losing the explosive in the ocean.

Paul J. Stuparich, owner of a cafe, seven miles from San Francisco, so testified at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday. He told of the first appearance of a gasoline launch near his cafe on Sept. 20, 1910, ten days before The Los Angeles Times' explosion, in which were three men answering the description of McNamara, F. A. Schmidt and David Caplan, and of the return of the launch several times.

"The first time she hove in," said the witness, "the launch bore the name 'Pastime.' The men came up to my place to eat and appeared to be getting the launch ready for some kind of a cruise. When they came back later, I noticed the launch's name had been changed to Peerless. The men asked me for some green paint, which I gave them. Later I noticed something about five feet long covered with canvas tipping at the end of the boat, and while they were turning around, I yelled 'Say, fellows, be careful or you will lose that package.' It appeared to be tipping into the water. They made it snug and that was the last I saw of them."

The canvas which the witness said he saw on the launch, was declared to be the same as that found later in a house which McNamara rented in San Francisco, and in which a quantity of nitro-gelatine was found.

The testimony of most of yesterday's witnesses was confined to identifying letters, the contents of which are to be made known later.

PASSPORTS ARE DEMANDED

Special To The Review.

London, Oct. 15.—The Chronicle's correspondent telegraphed just before midnight that the Balkan States had demanded passports from the Ottoman Government. Austria has issued an official communique that she will not interfere in Sanjak or Novipazar, but will not permit the Balkan States to annex any part of it which may lead to complications between Russia and Austria.

Heights Are Occupied by Prince Danilo's Force After a Fierce Battle and the Town Surrenders Unconditionally—Three Thousand Persons Taken — Servians Also Win an Engagement.

Podgoritsa, Oct. 15.—The Turkish town of Tushi surrendered to the Montenegrins yesterday afternoon. This opens the way to Scutari, where the Turkish forces are said to be concentrating and on which the Montenegrin troops are now advancing.

A division commanded by Crown Prince Danilo, after a fierce battle, occupied the fortifications and heights of Psitchanitch, Tushi and Paltnis. The final charge against Tushi and Psitchanitch was at the bayonet point and the Turks surrendered.

After a heavy bombardment the Montenegrin infantry prepared to assault Tushi under cover of the artillery. A Turkish officer bearing a white flag appeared and unconditionally surrendered the garrison to Crown Prince Danilo. Shortly afterwards a deputation of citizens came to Montenegrin headquarters praying for mercy.

Several guns were found in the defence works, all badly damaged by the Montenegrin fire. The spoils included eight machine guns and 7,000 Mauser rifles. The captured garrison numbered 3,000 regulars. The prisoners were brought to Podgoritsa.

The Montenegrins made a triumphal entry into Tushi, headed by the crown prince and his staff.

Turks Repulsed.

Belgrade, Oct. 15.—Fighting went on throughout the day along the frontier. The reports of cannon firing could be heard at Vranya coming from the direction of Ristovatz and Vitogoske.

A despatch from the frontier says the Servians were surprised, but succeeded in repulsing the Turkish attack.

Hands Off Says Porte.

Constantinople, Oct. 15.—In its reply to the powers yesterday, declining to allow any foreign intervention in the matter of reforms in Macedonia, the Turkish Government contends that one of the chief causes which has hindered the various attempts to ameliorate the internal situation in the Macedonia provinces is the state of insecurity brought about by "criminal outrages of all kinds committed by agitators."

Turkey's reply, which was handed to the Austro-Hungarian ambassador, thanks the European powers for their friendly interest, but declares that Turkey is determined to carry out the reforms without interference.

Turks Invade Servia.

London, Oct. 15.—Servia's note to Turkey, which contains the demands of the Balkan states for very radical reforms in the Turkish European provinces, has been speedily answered by the Porte in the most unambiguous language.

At five o'clock yesterday morning a considerable number of Turkish troops crossed the eSrvian frontier, between Ristovats Station, on the Nish Uskub Railway, and at Vertigask, 25 miles farther west. Though war has been considered unavoidable, the news of this invasion created a great impression.

Three Chinamen and a white man were instantly killed, and three white men were seriously wounded in a shooting affray in Chinatown, New York, yesterday.

Constructon of the Nipissing Central Electric Railway from Haileybury to New Liskeard is almost completed. The line will probably be opened on Oct. 24.

Upwards of $400,000 was expended in the efforts of Governor Woodrow Wilson, Governor Harmon and Representative O. W. Underwood, to secure the Democratic Presidential nomination this year, according to evidence given yesterday.

BULLET IS LOCATED BY X-RAY EXAMINATION

Is at Safe Distance From the Lung — Col. Roosevelt Will be Confined to Hospital for About Two Weeks— His Would-be Assassin is the Son of New York Saloon Keeper.

Special to the Review.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—The train carrying ex-President Roosevelt from Milwaukee, was halted outside Chicago station, and as the Colonel had slept peacefully all the way from Milwaukee the physicians decided it was best not to disturb him.

Dr. J. B. Murphy called to examine him at five o'clock and announced an immediate operation necessary, and ordered another X-ray examination to ascertain the extent of the wound before there was any further probing for the bullet. The Colonel was taken to Mercy Hospital, arriving there at 6.30 o'clock. Dr. Terrell stated that the wound was three inches deep just above the tenth rib and above the diaphram. There is positively no indication at present that the lung had been pierced, but the wound while simple is dangerous because of the possibility of blood poisoning. Owing to the phenomenal development of the Colonels chest the bullet of the assassin lodged in the muscles instead of piercing the lung, and this probably saved his life.

New York, Oct. 15.—John Schrank, Roosevelt's would-be assassin, is the son of a former saloon keeper and was in the insurance business here, but in poor circumstances previous to his leaving for the south in pursuit of the Colonel.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—X-ray examination locates the bullet deep in the tissues of Roosevelt's breast, but apparently at a safe distance from the lung.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Dr. Murphy announced Col. Roosevelt will be confined to the hospital for at least ten days. He will likely make no more set speeches during the campaign.

The P. N. Railway summer hotel, "The Bungalow," at Erieau, was burned.

Arthur Huntley, a West Oxford farmer, was attacked and badly hurt by a bull.

THE SUGAR BOUNTIES

Is Jamaica likely to be severed from the British Empire? The situation in the British West Indies promises to make this question one of peculiar interest within the next few years, unless the Unionists succeed in turning the Asquith Government out at Westminster. The action of the Asquith Ministry in repudiating the Brussels sugar convention in placing the Jamaica sugar industry in such jeopardy that a movement to join the United States would not be an illogical action by the Jamaica planters. The great prosperity of Porto Rico and Cuba under United States protection, compared to their previous condition, because of the American market for their sugar production is enough to make the Jamaicans consider whether the Asquith Government is not directly sacrificing them for the sake of free trade theories.

When Joseph Chamberlain became secretary in the Unionist Ministry, he took up the question of the paralysis of the sugar industry in the British Indies. All Europe had at one time depended on the West Indies for its sugar, but the introduction of beet sugar-making made European competition severe. The industry was fostered by bounties, and when the markets of England were thrown wide open as a result of the repeal of the preference given the British Colonies the European bounty sugar was well able to compete with the British Colonial product. The consequence was the prostration of the Jamaican sugar industry. Mr. Chamberlain threatened to place import duties on continental beet sugar if the bounties were not dropped on export sugar, so that the Jamaican sugar would not have to meet ruinous competition, and then the cane sugar industry revived. The proposal now to repudiate the Brussels sugar convention, in which the countries agreed to stop the bounty system, will meet with determined opposition. If it is carried out, Jamaica will again be reduced to commercial stagnation for the sake of its loyalty.

THE FEEBLE-MINDED

The provision of accommodation for the feeble-minded in Ontario is not what it ought to be. The Orillia Asylum for idiots and mental defectives has been much overcrowded for a long time; in fact, there has been a large waiting list for a year or more. Every now and then the weak-minded persons are placed in the jails, there being no place to send them. The provincial authorities do not always receive word of these cases, and so a material wrong is done to the unfortunates. The available reports show that beyond question the accommodation in Ontario for these weak-minded persons is insufficient. The matter will not be remedied by the enlargement of the present institutions. What ought to be done is the institution of a farm colony on the lines of the Guelph prison farm, the municipality from which the patient in each case comes to be charged a certain sum for maintenance. This would be better than leaving to the various municipalities the care of their own feeble-minded, because decentralised action in such cases is not the best in operation. The Whitney Government ought to take up the matter with energy. If it did, it would make a splendid hit with the people.

A ST. CLAIR SEQUEL

When Judge Denton found Rev. R. B. S. Clair guilty in the Toronto County Court Sessions, of having distributed obscene literature, when he sent broadcast to the members of a purity organization, a verbatim report of a dialogue in a burlesque theatre in Toronto, there was much comment. That the law should have been broken by the circulation of such matter, while the play lines themselves were openly permitted, was a contradiction that could not logically be defended. The police officers were strongly attacked for permitting such obscene language upon the stage, and the final result has been a decision to commence a prosecution of the management of the theatre for conducting what is alleged to have been an indecent show. We think that there will be general sympathy with the idea that the spite of the police force should not have been vented upon Rev. M. St. Clair alone. The prosecution was strictly in accord with the letter of the law, and there was justification for it, but the censorship that had been exercised evidently had failed to accomplish the desired effect, and to even up the matter it was at least desirable that some action should be taken against those who put on the show which Rev. Mr. St. Clair says he had reported. There should be prompt repression of any tendency to open the theatrical exhibitions in Canada to the same class of performance that is tolerated on the other side in the cheaper theatres. The moral reformers who go to such excess in their zeal as to transgress the law themselves, or who strive to infringe on the ordinary liberties of fellow-citizens might not harm by a gentle rebuke occasionally. But their zeal is no excuse for permitting that of which they have reason to complain.

THE MACDONALD LESSON

The comments on the Macdonald bye-election are just about what were expected. The jubilation of the Conservatives is naturally enthusiastic because the loss of Macdonald would have been interpreted as a direct sign that there was a real "return to Laurier." Fortunately the thorough canvassing of the 10,000 voters, enabled the Conservatives to put the reciprocity yowlings of the Richardson supporters in a true light to the electors, and the thud with which the pact was turned down has been heard all over the Dominion. The Toronto Globe admits that the majority of Alex. Morrison, the Conservative candidate, is too large for mere manipulation to have effected. It admits that the Roblin-Rogers combination could not have produced any such sweep in favor of the Conservative candidate if there had not been a strong sentiment among the farmers in favor of the repudiation of reciprocity. When the chief Liberal organ thus intimates its recognition of the unassailable fact, it is time for the Liberals in the east to consider what they are about The Globe declares that the policy of freer trade with the United States must prevail in the end, and that the fight will be kept up without ceasing. But it admits that Macdonald does not give ground to the hope that Manitoba at least is likely to arise in its might to battle for the Liberal cause.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Shocked at last into action by its terrible rate of infant mortality, Montreal is holding a child welfare exhibition. The large attendance is proving that mothers are anxious to learn how they may save their children from common complaints which every year cause the deaths of thousands of babies.

Do you know the "Reasons Why"
McCLARY'S SUNSHINE FURNACE

The Government victory is especially significant because Macdonald is in a peculiar degree representative of all Canada. It is part English and part French. It is part urban and part rural in character the electorate comprising farmers wage-earners, manufacturers and business men The agricultural element predominates and is noteworthy that the Conservative gains were even greater at the rural than at the urban polls

It is said that the Macdonald bye-election will result in a clean-up in the ranks of the Liberal party, between the reciprocity and anti-reciprocity sections. Most of the prominent Eastern Liberals have been anxious for some time to drop the reciprocity cry but were persuaded by Hon. Frank Oliver and Western Liberals they could sweep the West on this issue. As a result of the Macdonald election Eastern Liberals are inclined to drop reciprocity like a hot potato. The Western Liberals on the other hand, have committed themselves so strongly to reciprocity that they cannot retreat.

Bell Clappers of Opium.

The infinite patience of the Chinese is well illustrated in a smuggling story which I heard from an imperial maritime customs official at one of the "barriers" on the upper Yangtze. The incident occurred several years ago in an attempt to avoid duty on a small amount of Szechuan opium that was headed for Shanghai.

"An important article of down river trade," said the official in question, "is the little belled and spangled cap worn by the Chinese children from two to six years of age. In passing a number of boxes of these in the spring of 1906 I chanced to notice that the tinkle from the little bell in the center of the cap I was examining was rather muffled. Forcing it open purely out of curiosity, I was astonished to find a tiny pellet of opium hardly a quarter of an inch in diameter which had been substituted for the clapper. Of course we had to search the whole lot, and our aggregate haul from about 5,000 caps—a couple of days' work for us—was less than ten pounds of opium."—Wide World Magazine.

Gleaning In England.

There is a popular but quite erroneous belief that a common law right of gleaning exists in England. A legal obiter dictum that a man who enters a field for the purpose of gleaning cannot be prosecuted for trespass received the dubious support of Blackstone. But a majority of judges decided in a case which came before the old court of common pleas that to grant a general right to glean would be contrary to public policy, because it would "demoralize the poor" and "open a wide door to fraud." In many parts of England the privilege is confined to the wives and children of the harvesters. Yet the privilege of gleaning became so firmly established in England that the local custom has been recognized by many acts of parliament. In some country districts the "gleaning bell" is still regularly rung from the tower of the parish church during harvest tide twice a day to let the gleaners know when they may commence and when they must finish.—Westminster Gazette.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Oct. 14.—There was an active demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat and all the offerings made over the cable Saturday night, which amounted to 400,000 bushels were accepted at 1s per quarter advance, owing to the excitement over the Balkan war which, however, was not continued as cables this afternoon were quite tame and the prices bid were all the way from 2c to 4c per bushel under cost. The demand for barley was also good and sales of several loads were made to Glasgow at an advance of 1s per quarter. A fair local trade continues to be done in oats at firm prices. In new crop spring wheat flour a good business was done over the cable, including sales of 25,000 sacks at an advance of 1s per barrel. The local trade is fairly active and steady. Millfeed is active and firm. Demand for butter is fair at advanced prices. Cheese is more active with a stronger undertone. Exports for week 64,654 boxes, as against 58,731 a year ago. Demand for eggs good. Provisions steady.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 14.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Oct. 12 were 1500 cattle, 8000 sheep and lambs, 2300 hogs and 425 calves. The offerings on the market this morning for sale were 1150 cattle, 2625 sheep and lambs, 825 hogs and 200 calves.

A firmer feeling prevailed in the market this morning for cattle and prices for some grades ruled 15c to 25c per cwt. higher, owing to the lighter run. A feature of the trade since this day week has been the arrival of over 20 car loads of northwestern ranch cattle, of which the quality was generally good, but owing to the condition of the market the prices realized for them were below expectations. The gathering of buyers was large and the demand was fairly good on account of the cooler weather.

Supplies of sheep and lambs were fair, but owing to the recent advance in prices in the Toronto market and thruout the eastern townships a stronger feeling developed in the market and prices ruled 15c to 20c per cwt. higher than a week ago. The demand was good from butchers and packers and trade was active with sales of Ontario lambs at $5.85 to $6 and Quebec at $5.50 to $5.75, while ewes sold at $3.75 to $4 per cwt.

Calves were scarce and in good demand at 5c to 7c per lb. for milk-fed stock, while grass-fed sold at from $3 to $10 each, as to size and quality.

Owing to the recent advance in prices for hogs in the Toronto market and the smaller offerings here this morning a strong feeling prevailed in the market and prices advanced 15c to 25c per cwt., as they sold as low as $8.25 in some instances at the latter end of last week. Demand was good from packers. Selected lots sold at $8.65 to $8.75 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.25 to $6.50 per cwt.; medium, $4.50 to $5.25; common, $2.50 to $4; canners, $2.50 to $3; choice cows, $5 to $5.25; medium, $4.50 to $4.75; bulls, $3.25 to $4; milkers, choice, each, $80 to $90; common and medium, each, $50 to $70; springers, $45 to $55.

Sheep—Ewes, $3.75 to $4; bucks and culls, $3.25 to $3.50; lambs, $5.50 to $6.

Hogs, f.o.b., $8.65 to $8.75 per cwt.

Calves—$3 to $10.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Oct. 14.—Cattle—Receipts, 5600 head; steers and heifers slow and steady; cows and bulls active and 15c to 25c higher; prime steers, $9 to $9.50; butchers, $6 to $8.40; bulls, $4.50 to $6.50; stock heifers, $4.25 to $4.65; shipping, $7.50 to $8.50; heifers, $4.75 to $7.75; cows, $3.25 to $6.50; stockers and feeders, $4.50 to $6.75; fresh cows and springers active and firm, $35 to $75.

Hogs—Receipts, 19,200 head; slow and 15c to 25c lower; heavy, $9.25 to $9.35; mixed, $9.15 to $9.25; yorkers, $8.70 to $9.35; pigs, $7 to $7.25; roughs, $8.25 to $8.35; stags, $5 to $7; dairies and grassers, $8.75 to $9.15.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 18,000 head; active; sheep steady; lambs 5c lower; lambs, $4.50 to $7.10; yearlings, $5.25 to $5.50; wethers, $4.75 to $5; ewes, $2 to $4; sheep mixed, $3 to $4.50.

HAPPY THOUGHT

PERFECT BISCUIT BAKING NEED NOT BE DIFFICULT

It all depends on the heat your oven gives.

Ranges with slow ovens are all right for some kinds of biscuits. But an oven that is chronically slow simply ruins others, and it is useless for many purposes.

Other stoves bake beautifully on one side and not on the other. So you can never depend on them.

"Happy Thought" Ranges are perfect bakers.

If you want a slow oven, a slow fire will produce the desired result. If you want a very hot, quick oven, just build up the fire and keep it going strong for a little while.

This feature saves you money in two ways:

It saves fuel by making it unnecessary to use too much, and by giving you the full heat value of every ounce of fuel.

It saves the food material by ensuring just the right result, no matter what part of the oven you use.

More than a Quarter Million Canadian women use the "Happy Thought" every day.

Adventure

A Romance of The South Seas

BY JACK LONDON

Copyright, 1910, by Street & Smith
Copyright, 1911, by the Macmillan Company

Sheldon proceeded to arm Joan's sailors and deal out ammunition and handcuffs. Adamu Adam, with loaded rifle, he placed on guard over the whaleboats. Noa Noah, aided by Matapuu, was instructed to take charge of the working gangs as fast as they came in, to keep them amused, and to guard against their being stampeded into making a break for themselves. The five other Tahitians were to follow Joan and Sheldon on foot.

"I'm glad we unearthed that arsenal the other day," Sheldon remarked as they rode out of the compound gate.

A hundred yards away they encountered one of the clearing gangs coming in. It was Kwaque's gang, but Sheldon looked in vain for him.

"What name that fella Kwaque he no stop along you?" he demanded.

"Here, you fella Babatani, you talk 'm mouth belong you."

Babatani stepped forward in all the pride of one singled out from among his fellows.

"Gogoomy he finish along Kwaque altogether," was Babatani's explanation. "He take 'm head 'b'long him run like h—."

In brief words and with paucity of imagination he described the murder, and Sheldon and Joan rode on.

A mile farther on, where the runaways' trail led straight toward the bush, they encountered the body of Kwaque. The head had been hacked off and was missing, and Sheldon took it on faith that the body was Kwaque's. He had evidently put up a fight, for a bloody trail led away from the body.

CHAPTER XIX.

A MESSAGE FROM THE BUSH.

ONCE they were well into the thick bush, the horses had to be abandoned. Papehara was left in charge, while Joan and Sheldon and the remaining Tahitians pushed ahead on foot. An hour later, following along a wild pig trail, Sheldon suddenly halted. The bloody tracks had ceased. The Tahitians cast out in the bush on either side, and a cry from Utami apprised them of a find. Joan waited till Sheldon came back.

"It's Mauko," he said. "Kwaque did for him, and he crawled in there and died. That's two accounted for. There are ten more."

Crossing one of the quiet jungle spaces, where naught moved but a velvety twelve inch butterfly, they heard the sound of shots.

"Eight," Joan counted. "It was only one gun. It must be Papehara."

They hurried on, but when they reached the spot they were in doubt. The two horses stood quietly tethered, and Papehara, squatted on his hams, was having a peaceful smoke. Advancing toward him, Sheldon tripped on a body that lay in the grass, and as he saved himself from falling his eyes rested on a second. Joan recognised this one. It was Cosse, one of Gogoomy's tribesmen, the one who had promised to catch at sunset the pig that was to have baited the hook for Satan.

"No luck, missie," was Papehara's greeting, accompanied by a disconsolate shake of the head. "Catch only two boy. I have good shot at Gogoomy, only I miss."

"But you killed them," Joan chided. "You must catch them alive."

The Tahitian smiled.

"How?" he queried. "I am have a smoke. I think about Tahiti, and breadfruit, and jolly good time at Bora-Bora. Quick, just like that, ten boy he run out of bush for me. Each boy have long knife. Gogoomy have long knife one hand and Kwaque's head in other hand. I no stop to catch 'em alive. I shoot like h—. How you catch 'em alive, ten boy, ten long knife and Kwaque's head?"

The scattered paths of the different boys, where they broke back after the disastrous attempt to rush the Tahitian, soon led together. They traced it to the Berande, which the runaways had crossed with the clear intention of burying themselves in the huge mangrove swamp that lay beyond.

"There is no use our going any farther," Sheldon said. "Seelee will turn out his village and hunt them out of that."

Never had runaways from Berande been more zealously hunted. The deeds of Gogoomy and his fellows had been a bad example for the 150 new recruits. One by one the boys were captured. Gogoomy alone remained at large, and, as the pursuit closed in on him, he conquered his fear of the bushmen and headed straight in for the mountainous backbone of the island. Sheldon, with four Tahitians, and Seelee, with thirty of his hunters, followed Gogoomy's trail a dozen miles into the open grass lands, and then Seelee and his people lost heart. He confessed that neither he nor any of his tribe had ever ventured so far inland before, and he narrated for Sheldon's benefit most horrible tales of the bushmen.

"Gogoomy he finish along them fella bushmen," he assured Sheldon. "My word, he finish close up, kai-kai altogether."

So the expedition turned back. Nothing could persuade the coast natives to venture farther, and Sheldon, with his four Tahitians, knew that it was madness to go on alone.

That night, after dinner, Sheldon and Joan were playing billiards when Satan barked in the compound and Lalaperu, sent to see, brought back a tired and travel stained native who wanted to talk with the "big fella white marster." Sheldon went out on the veranda to see him.

"What name you come along house belong me sun he go down?"

"Me Charley," the man muttered apologetically and wearily. "Me stop along Binu."

"Ah, Binu Charley, eh? Well, what name you talk along me? What place big fella marster along white man he stop?"

Joan and Sheldon together listened to the tale Binu Charley had brought. He described Tudor's expedition up the Balesuna, the dragging of the boats up the rapids, the passage up the river where it threaded the grass lands, the innumerable washings of gravel by the white men in search of gold, the first rolling foothills, the man traps of spear staked pits in the jungle trails, the first meeting with the bushmen who had never seen tobacco and knew not the virtues of smoking, their friendliness, the deeper penetration of the interior around the flanks of the Lion's Head, the bush sores and the fevers of the white men, and their madness in trusting the bushmen. One morning Binu Charley noticed that the women and children had disappeared. Tudor, at the time, was lying in a stupor with fever in a late camp five miles away, the main camp having moved on those five miles in order to prospect an outcrop of likely quartz. Binu Charley was midway between the two camps when the absence of the women and children struck him as suspicious.

"My word," he said, "me savvee too much trouble close up. Me run. My word, me run."

Tudor, quite unconscious, was slung across his shoulder and carried a mile down the trail. Here, hiding new trail, Binu Charley had carried him for a quarter of a mile into the heart of the deepest jungle and hidden him in a big banyan tree. Here, and from the direction of the main camp, he had heard two rifle shots. And that was all. He had never seen the white men again.

"There is only one thing to do," Sheldon said to Joan. "I'll start the first thing in the morning."

MRS. SCOTT'S SUFFERING OVER

Doctors Advised An Operation. How She Escaped Told By Herself.

Buckner, Mo.—"For more than a year I suffered agonies from female troubles and the doctors at last decided there was no help for me unless I went to the hospital for an operation. I was awfully against that operation, and as a last resort wrote to you for special advice and I told you just what I suffered with bearing down pains, backache, shooting pains in my left side, and at times I could not touch my foot to the floor without screaming. I was short of breath, had smothered spells, felt dull and draggy all the time. I could not do any work, and oh how I dreaded to have an operation.

"I received a letter full of kind advice, which I followed, and if I had only written her a year ago I would have been saved so much suffering, for today I am a well woman. I am now keeping house again and do every bit of my own work. Every one in this part of the country knows it was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that has restored me to health, and everywhere I go I recommend it to suffering women."—Mrs. LIZZIE SCOTT, Buckner, Mo.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Expecting Too Much.

Customer (sarcastically)—I've managed to cut this steak, but I'm bothered if I can chew it.

Your Days.

Every day that is born into the world comes like a burst of music and rings itself all the day through, and thou shalt make it a dance, a dirge or a life march, as thou wilt.—Carlyle.

Felix Poutie was killed by lightning at Napierville, Que.

Cookery Points

Sweet Pickled Beets.

Lay the beets in boiling water to loosen the skins. Rub these off with a coarse cloth and let the beets get perfectly cold before cutting them. Then slice with a sharp knife and pack into stone jars.

To each quart of vinegar add a cupful of sugar and a tablespoonful of mixed whole spices—mace, stick cinnamon and allspice. Bring the vinegar to a boil, stir in sugar and spices, boil, covered, for three minutes and pour, scalding hot, upon the sliced beets, filling the jars to the top. Cover and set away in a dark, cool place for three days. Then drain off the vinegar carefully, so as not to break the beets, and scald again with the spices.

Do this three times within ten days after the beets are put into the jars and set away for a month before using them. They will keep well.

If you wish to pickle small young beets whole, boil, without peeling, for five minutes after the boiling begins; let them get cold, rub off the skin, put into the jars and proceed as with the sliced beets.

Sweet Pickled Cucumbers.

Select cucumbers of uniform size and not too large. The small cucumbers make the best and prettiest pickles. Reject all that are not perfect. Pack in a stone jar, laying salt by the handful between the layers. Cover the top layer out of sight with salt, then fill the jar with cold water and cover with a small saucer or plate of the right size to fit within the mouth of the jar and lay a clean stone upon the plate. This is to keep the cucumbers under the brine. Leave them there for a fortnight at least. A month would not hurt them. Every other day stir up the brine from the bottom. It should be strong enough to float a fresh egg if dropped into it.

You may add fresh cucumbers from the garden every day if more convenient than to put up all at once. When you are ready to put them through the last processes throw away the brine and examine the cucumbers carefully. If you find one that is pecked or soft do not let it go into the pickle. Lay those selected in cold fresh water and leave them there for twenty-four hours. Drain off the water, fill the jar with fresh water and leave for another day and night.

Now line a preserving kettle with vine leaves (green and clean) and pack in the cucumbers, scattering a teaspoonful of powdered alum over each layer. Cover with three thicknesses of vine leaves and pour in cold water enough to cover all. Cover the whole with a close lid and simmer over a slow fire for four hours, not letting it boil once in all that time, but keeping the contents scalding hot.

Fruit Sponge.

Put a pint packet of orange jelly into a basin and cover it with the required quantity of hot water, stirring it until it has melted. Then add a glassful of sherry and put it away to get cool. Pass sufficient stewed apricots through a sieve to produce half a pint of pulp (or any other soft fruit would do equally well) and leave in readiness to be added to the sponge. When the jelly is cold, but not set, whisk it patiently until it is quite frothy. Then stir in lightly the whites of three eggs, beaten to a firm froth, and the fruit pulp and continue to whisk the jelly until it begins to get spongy, when it should be turned into a china mold. The sponge can be turned out after a few hours and may be garnished with some of the same kind of fruit as that used to flavor it.

Stuffed Ham.

Select a freshly cured ham and have bone removed. Fill cavity with stuffing made of breadcrumbs, tie up securely and inclose ham in a paste of flour and water to keep juice from escaping. Tie in a pudding bag or cloth, have ready a pot of boiling water and let ham boil slowly about two hours. When boiled sufficiently remove the crust, pare skin off carefully so as not to injure the shape of the ham, put it in a roasting pan, sprinkle with breadcrumbs and set in a moderate oven to roast.

Take Every Precaution

Eyestrain sometimes comes on so gradually that the individual does not realize his trouble until it has reached a serious stage.

In fact there are many effects of eyestrain that only a physician would trace to their true source.

The man who does a great deal of work with his eyes, should be on the watch for the first indications of strain, and do everything possible to prevent it from occurring.

Sometimes the eyes are in such an irritable condition that the wearing of the ordinary "flat" lenses produces great discomfort. Light is reflected from the rear surfaces of the lenses and the eyes are wearied by unconsciously trying to focus on these reflections.

Then when looking to either side the edges of such lenses annoy the eyes

These irritations are avoided when you wear Toric Lenses. You are not taking every possible precaution against eyestrain if you do not get a pair of Torics.

All lenses ground on the premises

Special To The Review.

Ouchy, Oct. 15 — A preliminary peace treaty between Turkey and Italy was signed to-day by delegates of the two countries.

AUTUMN WEDDINGS

BRADY—WHITE

Two popular young people were wedded this morning at six o'clock at St. Peter's Cathedral when Mr Claude Brady was united in marriage to Miss Caroline White by the Rev. Dr. O'Brien. The bride was assisted by Miss Ethel Judge and Mr. Joe White, brother of the bride, acted as groomsman. Miss Doherty played the wedding march and Miss A. Simons sang Ave Maria. The bride wore a blue serge travelling suit with a white beaver hat.

After the ceremony the nuptial party drove to the residence of the bride 303 Rubidge street, where a very dainty wedding breakfast was served.

The happy couple left on a trip to Toronto Hamilton and Paris, after which they will reside at 14 Aylmer street

The best wishes of a host of friends will be extended to Mr. and Mrs Brady. Many beautiful gifts were received by the bride.

CACAVALLA—GIARDINO.

A very pretty wedding took place in the Church of the Sacred Heart at 7.30 o'clock this morning when Michael Cacavalla was united in marriage to Anna Giardino by the Rev. Father McCauley. The best man was Palmo Cotturo while Maria Di Carlonis assisted the bride.

AD. CLUB HEARD LIVE WIRE SPEAKERS DEAL WITH ADVERTISING GAME

Unbounded enthusiasm and the keenest interest were the distinguishing features of a most successful gathering of the Peterboro Ad Club last night in Hooper's Palm Parlors. Forty keen, progressive men, the majority of whom were members of the Club, assembled around the festive board and after disposing of a first class supper, listened with flattering attention to discourses on modern advertising that were literally crammed with valuable and thoroughly practical suggestions. Mr. McDiarmid of Ryrie Bros., Toronto, sacrificed valuable time by being present and delivering an eminently instructive address on "Analyzing the Demand for Your Goods."

Mr. McDiarmid is one of the live wires in the advertising world and he fairly bristles with points about the publicity game. He has probed to the very heart of the business and has reduced it to as much a science as seems possible. His opening remarks were characteristic of his temperament

"I am pleased to visit your live wire city of Peterborough, and I am filled with admiration for the dynamic spirit that characterizes your city."

Continuing, he urged the co-operation of advertisers, as exemplified in the Ad Club operations, in bringing advertisers together.

"The trouble with the majority of business men of to-day," he said, "is that they are contented with their own limited opinions of the advertising business. They overlook the great difficulty of ascertaining where their customers live and how to reach them. Those two things were just as in importance and more so, in fact, than putting out live copy.

Catalogues, for instance, should be distributed in an intelligent manner with the object always in mind, of placing them where the most liberal returns would be the reward, and where they would be most useful.'

Mr. McDiarmid has so systemized advertising that by means of a map of Toronto, he has been able to classify the newspapers to the extent of finding out what papers reach the various classes of people, and from which papers they get the most business by their advertising. He has divided the Toronto people into the rich, the middle class and the masses

In explaining his methods, he stated that too many advertisers chose publication for an advertising medium with their eyes shut. They go into it blindly,

The basic value of a newspaper reader from an advertiser's standpoint, is his purchasing power, and therefore it is of paramount importance to analyze the circulation of a paper. An advertiser should know, at least, eighty per cent of the class of a paper's readers, and advertising rates should be based upon so much per thousand of the circulation, the class of its readers, and its editorial policy, among other things.

Honesty is the main thing, and no advertiser should lower himself to be guilty of dishonest advertising. Neither should politics have any weight with him, for then, he is mixing his advertising with his prejudices.

Mr. McDiarmid's final message was—

"Advertising requires a more business like consideration."

Regarding attractive windows, he advocated a complete change in window displays at least, one a week. The color scheme was also wonderfully important. In Toronto his store discovered that red attracted four times as much attention as other more subdued and quieter colors.

MR. W. G. ROOK.

Mr. W. G. Rook, of the Canadian Home Journal, Toronto, referred to the period about one year ago, when he and Mr. [illegible] laid the foundation of the Peterborough Ad Club, and which to-day has enrolled, 90 of the city's most prominent citizens. He understood that the De Laval Dairy Supply Company were asking certain concessions from Peterborough and he urged the people to turn out and vote for the acquisition of the industry.

Mr. Rook was an ardent disciple of round table conferences and discussions, for advertising men. The evenings were the best time to hold these. Questions could be brought up that were disturbing advertisers and the expression of one man's opinion would certainly benefit another. The speaker didn't favor what he referred to as the "big gun" idea when soliciting men to deliver Ad Club addresses. A "big gun" advertiser usually is manager of a $1,000,000 corporation and hence does not talk of advertising problems common to the great bulk of advertisers. The Peterborough Ad Club needed speakers who were men of practical experience and would talk on things as they are.

The men who are most actively interested to-day are the busy men who are working ten and twelve hours a day and who are doing things.

Mr. Rook thought the first step the local Ad Club should take was to raise their dues to $5.00. The Toronto Ad Club members pay $20 per annum dues and an initiation fee of $10.00. The Ad Club should be the means of causing people to realize their opportunities.

It should teach people who were apparently indifferent, what a beautiful city we have. Referring to J. R. Stratton, who sat at his right hand, Mr. Rook indicated him as a shining example of what advertising has done.

Mr. F. C. Mills and J. R. Stratton were called upon for short addresses. The former stated that he would be pleased to speak to the Club at a later meeting, being a new comer to the city. Mr. Stratton, in a few appropriate words expressed himself in favor of the worthy objects of the Ad Club and joined in welcoming Mr. Mills to the city.

Mr. C. R. Nixon, of Farm and Dairy, presided at the gathering in a most efficient and able manner and referred to the capabilities of the various speakers and also emphasized the objects the Club had in view.

Some of those present were:

J. M. Greene, J. H. Vance, Robt. B. Ross, S. Dickson Hall, C. R. Cameron, Louis Mendel, John McIntyre, G. O. Cameron, H. B. Cowan, W. B. Meredith, J. R. Stratton, Chas. C. Nixon, A. W. Cressman, G. A. Gillespie, G. N. Gordon, J. G. Johns, J. A. McNabb, C. F. Hardy, M. Hardill, A. Letellier, S. G. Taylor, R. Williams, A. C. Perrins, Walter Stocker, C. Blewett, F. C. Mills, W. E. Conroy, W. J. Oke, F. H. Dobbin, W. Comstock, C. R. Coleman, H. D. Cressman, L. S. Sidney.

REMAINS OF THE LATE JOHN CROWLEY BROUGHT HERE FOR INTERMENT

The body of John Crowley, who was drowned in the Red River, in Winnipeg, last week, arrived in the city last evening on the 7.57 C.P.R. local, the remains having come from Winnipeg in charge of his brother-in-law, Mr. Harry O'Rourke.

The funeral will leave the residence of his brother, 56 Hunter street, east, at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning, proceeding to St. Joseph's Church and to St. Joseph's Cemetery, Douro.

At the time of the accident, the late Mr. Crowley was with a gang of employees of the Dominion Bridge Company at work on the C. P. R. bridge at Point Douglas. The men with whom he was immediately engaged were moving a piece of swing span on which Crowley stood for the purpose of guiding it to it's place. As the iron continued to rise, something apparently went wrong with the engine of the crane, for it gave a sudden jerk which caused Crowley to lose his balance and fall into the water below. He sank but rose again and grasped a boom, but, the current being very strong, he lost his grip and sank in the water which is very deep at that point. He was not seen again.

His brother, Mr. Morris Crowley, of East City, left for Winnipeg as soon as news of the fatality was received and will return home in a few days.

OTTAWA SEES "EVERYWOMAN"

Much interest has been aroused during the past two years by the production of a play in New York bearing the strange title "Everywoman." Added prominence has been given to "Everywoman" from the fact that its author Walter Browne, a New York newspaper man who had labored upon it for years died upon the morning of the day of the first performance of his play which would have realized for him the ambition of a life time. It ran continually in New York for nearly two years and only recently has made a sensational success in London at the Drury Lane Theatre. Brown's widow and her three children who were left penniless have been made affluent by the success of "Everywoman." Over three millions of people have already witnessed the performance. Henry W. Savage is bringing the original New York production and cast to the Russell Theatre, Ottawa, for four nights beginning Wednesday, October 23rd. There will be matinees on Thursday and Saturday. The company is undoubtedly the largest organization in a dramatic and musical line which has ever been toured. It consists of over one hundred and fifty people. The work is of such a character that it requires high class artists to give a finished performance such as Mr. Savage always assures his patrons. There are thirty-seven speaking characters in the spectacle and to properly interpret the musical score a symphony orchestra is carried by the organization. There are many scenic splendors one of the most startling of which is a representation of Broadway, New York, at midnight on New Year's Eve with all the frolic and fanfare with which the metropolis celebrates the passing away of the old year and welcomes the opening of the new. It is a triumph of stagecraft. The original New York cast of "Everywoman" will be seen.

SELECTION OF PETERBORO BY DE LAVAL COMPANY MAY MEAN ANOTHER CONCERN

Transactions Being Made With Property in the Vicinity of the De Laval Factory Site—Mr. Jas. Lynch Purchases 20 Acres of Land Near New West Ward School for $10,000

Good meetings were held last night in the interests of the De Laval factory by-law, and there appears to be no doubt, but, that efficient organization will be arranged to bring out the vote on Wednesday, October 30.

The feeling that Peterboro will secure a concern that will be a big factor in the city's industrial growth appears to be general. It is said too, that the selection of Peterborough by the De Laval Company, means more than their factory for the Electric city, as there is the possibility of another good concern coming this way. It is however, inadvisable to make further reference.

PROPERTY DEALS

Meanwhile, many exchanges in property are taking place in the vicinity of the De Laval Company's operation and those who were alive to the opportunity, and invested money in property, are already reaping remunerative returns.

SALE OF 20 ACRES

But the realty operations are not confined to the south end. The fact of the two new public schools being under erection has had an effect on property values in the east and west wards.

One big exchange is that of twenty acres of land lying between the Edwards property and Mount St. St. Joseph, on the west side of the Monaghan Road. Mr. James Lynch the Hunter street druggist, is the purchaser, the price being $10,000. It is the intention of Mr. Lynch to bring this property under the city limits and sub-divide for building purposes.

The purchase was made from R. A. Morrow.

SUPERB NORDICA

One of the world's greatest singers Mme. Lillian Nordica a queen of the operatic stage and the greatest Wagnerian singer in the world will be heard in concert here at the Grand on Monday, Oct. 21, assisted by William Morse Rummel violinist, and Romayne Simmons pianist.

According to the critics Mme. Nordica was never in finer voice than this season and her present tour bids fair to become a triumphal progress. Henry T. Finck the eminent New York critic in reviewing her concert at Carnegie Hall a few months ago says: "Mme. Nordica was in superb voice—there is only one voice of equal beauty at the Metropolitan to-day and that is Caruso's—and her singing aroused the greatest enthusiasm. She sang the love music in the first act of the "Walkure," followed by the parting scenes from the introduction to "Gotterdammerung," and in conclusion she delivered the immolation music at the close of that drama with a tragic grandeur of utterance which no artist except Lilli Lehmann has ever equalled." The seats are now on

The quartette sang the National Anthem and the concert concluded.

"THREE TWINS" IN THE CITY

Who was it that said "the three most important things in musical comedy are girls, more girls and still more girls." That worthy really should have had his picture in the Hall of Fame for his jest comes very near being philosophy. The musical comedy of to-day that cannot boast of a chorus of pretty young women is doomed no matter how catchy its music or how clever its lyrics, it is a condemned craft and unseaworthy. Choruses are the spice, the flavor of the musical pudding and success without them is impossible. In presenting "Three Twins" the musical comedy to be seen at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, Oct. 19th, matinee and night, the management seems to have realized this fully for it is safe to say that no other production on tour offers so many attractive girls. It was exceptionally hard to secure a chorus for "Three Twins," as, in addition to passing muster regarding appearance and their singing voices, each member had to prove herself a dancer of ability. "Three Twins" is called a dancing carnival, and every member of the company, both principals and chorus, must be able to dance and dance well. There is nothing that pleases the eye so much as a bevy of charming girls handsomely gowned, gliding gracefully through a dance number to the accompaniment of bright music and well trained voices. Ten men form the background on which the picture is painted in "Three Twins," so that the full rich tones of the male voices blend harmoniously with the higher notes of the feminine contingent, making a feast for the ear as well as the eye.

FUNNY SUITS IN YAMA YAMA

The Man who staged "The Three Twins" gets his idea from a toy. Very few people know how the famous "Yama Yama" song received it's name and how Mr. Gus Solke conceived the idea for the funny suits, that the girls wear in the musical number that has caused so much merriment throughout the entire country. The "Yama Yama" costume came about in an accidental way. Mr. Solke, who staged the "THREE TWINS," was passing a toy store, and seeing a doll with the funny costume in the window, thought it would be a great idea for a costume for a number in the "THREE TWINS." He bought the doll for ten cents and took it to the Whitney Theatre, where rehearsals were in progress and showed it to Mr. Hoschna, and told him he wanted him to write a song to go with the funny costume. Mr. Solke is a German, and speaks broken English and in trying to tell Mr. Hoschna that he wanted a pajama song, was misunderstood, and was surprised the next day to receive the song reading "Yama. So they just added the word "Yama" once more, and made it "Yama Yama." This musical number has become so famous that in the East that have Yama hats, Yama Yama ties, and even the cafes have drinks named after the song. Miss Grace Duffie Boylan and Edgar Kellar have written an illustrative book and called it "Yama Yama Land."

"THREE TWINS" with it's famous "Yama Yama Girls" will be the attraction at the Grand, next Saturday, October 19, for matinee and evening.

How the Cat "Won Out"

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"There's more than one way to kill a cat!" remarked Hildreth darkly.

"They say 'care once killed a cat,'" quoted Mrs. Hildreth flippantly.

"I can dispose of this one with a well aimed bullet," Hildreth retorted. "It's all very well for you to make light of the matter, Linda. You didn't lose a night's rest because of the yowlings of that infernal cat. I'm fagged out this morning."

"Have another cup of coffee, dear," soothed Linda, smoothing away the amused smile from her face as she realized that her usually good tempered husband was actually grouchy over the matter. "I'm sure I can get rid of the cat before you come home tonight."

"How?" Frank was mollified and accepted a fresh cup of coffee.

"Mrs. Bliss wants one."

"Well?"

"She has often admired Blessums. I will give him to Mrs. Bliss."

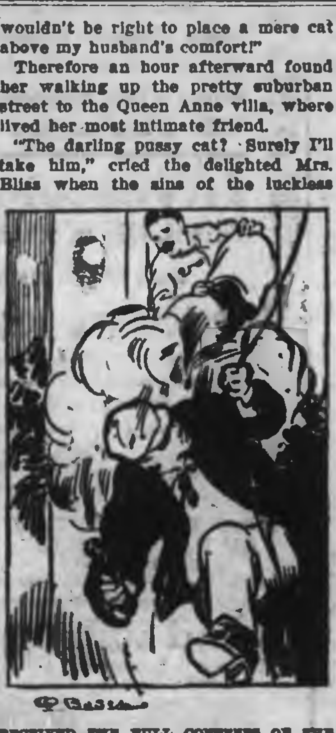
"She won't want him after he's serenaded her once or twice," murmured Mr. Hildreth as he kissed his wife, clapped on his hat and reached for his newspaper in one breath.

When his flying form had disappeared in the direction of the station Mrs. Hildreth sighed and poured herself another cup of tea.

"I just hate to give Blessums away," she said mutinously. "He has always been the dearest cat in the world, and to think Frank objects to him at this late day! I can't understand it, anyway, why Blessums should take it into his blessed old head to yowl under Frank's window every night. I suppose I've got to go over and tell May Bliss. It will break my heart to give away my lovely cat, but it certainly wouldn't be right to place a mere cat above my husband's comfort!"

Therefore an hour afterward found her walking up the pretty suburban street to the Queen Anne villa, where lived her most intimate friend.

"The darling pussy cat? Surely I'll take him," cried the delighted Mrs. Bliss when the sins of the luckless Blessums were related to her unbelieving ears. "Poor thing! Of course one expects cats to exercise their voices, and I'm thankful that both George and I are sound sleepers and so shall not mind how much noise Blessums makes. Don't you really believe that Frank's nerves must be upset to mind it?"



RECEIVED THE FULL CONTENTS OF THE SOOT BAG.

"I don't know," said practical Linda. "He seems to be pretty well, but naturally no one likes to lose his rest night after night."

"And hereafter he will be known as Blessums Bliss," chirruped Mrs. Bliss as she waved a farewell to her friend.

Thus was accomplished the adoption of Blessums, the beautiful tortoise shell cat that had been Linda Hildreth's pride and delight.

"What did you do about the cat?" asked her husband at dinner that night.

"Gave him to May Bliss," said Linda with affected cheerfulness. "She was delighted."

"Doesn't know him as well as I do," observed Frank resentfully, and then, because he knew that his wife had been fond of the animal, he launched forth into a detailed description of all the horrors he had suffered through the vocal clamor of the tortoise shell cat. "I'm sorry, Linda," he said apologetically when he could find no more epithets to bestow upon the absent Blessums, "but the cat may get over the habit, and then I shall be glad to see him grace our fireside once more."

"He never will," said Linda sorrowfully.

"Why not?"

"May Bliss wouldn't give him up now."

"Well, I'll get you another cat—a Persian," promised Hildreth recklessly for he was a kind hearted fellow and hated to see his pretty wife distressed.

"No, thank you, Frank. I'd rather not have any." And because Linda believed in making her sacrifices as cheerfully as human nature would permit she changed the subject by inquiring what had happened during his day in the city.

It was long after midnight when a familiar sound broke the peaceful slumbers of Frank Hildreth. He started up and turned his head toward the closed south window of his room. The west windows were wide open.

"Me-e-e-e-row!"

There was no mistaking the mellifluous voice of Blessums, the tortoise shell cat.

The cat had come back.

Frank thumped out of bed and threw up the south window. Below, on the moonlit path at the foot of the rose trellis, sat Blessums, gazing up at his erstwhile master.

"Me-e-e-e-row!" he repeated mournfully.

"There will be a row!" yelled Frank wrathfully, and, picking up a small chair, he tossed it through the window straight at the unsuspecting feline.

When the chair struck the path with a thud Blessums had vanished—simply melted from view. But the chair was there, by some magic of circumstance standing on its four legs in the middle of the path.

Frank went back to bed and to sleep dreamlessly till morning.

"Oh, Frank, the queerest thing has happened!" fluttered Linda when he appeared at the breakfast table.

"What is it?" he asked curiously.

"Why, when I looked out of my window at 7 o'clock this morning what should I see but Blessums sitting on one of our bedroom chairs in the middle of the path! He looked too cute for anything, Frank, but how do you suppose the chair ever got out there?" Linda's blue eyes were innocently wide.

"Blanked if I know," lied Frank crossly.

"Why, Frank Hildreth! I think it's perfectly awful for you to sw-swear at me-e like tha-t!" cried Linda, suddenly tearfully indignant.

It required a half hour to properly apologize to his wife, and in the end he felt like a criminal. "I told you, my dear, that nothing short of sudden death would ever terminate his serenades," he said moodily.

"I don't care how or when he dies if I don't have to hear any of the details," said Linda dejectedly. "It does seem as though Blessums was determined to come back here and disturb your peace."

"Perhaps I can think of some remedy during the day," said Frank, and once more he set forth on his morning sprint for the 8:08 train.

The result of a whole day's cogitation on the part of Mr. Hildreth was that he brought home that night a large paper bag filled with soot—black chimney soot secured from some unknown place by his office boy.

He smuggled the bag up into his own room and hid it under his bed. He did not wish to shock his wife's tender sensibilities with the details of the horrible way in which he was to end the nightly serenades of Blessums, the tortoise shell cat. How could he tell Linda that it was his intention to listen for the first signal from the marauder and then, creeping softly to the window, which he would leave wide open, he would decoy the unsuspecting Blessums up the rose trellis, and when the cat was almost up to the window he would empty the bag of black, smothering, choking soot full into his face. Result—a hurried and permanent exit on the part of Blessums and possibly the extermination of his whole nine lives at once.

"That's one way to get rid of a cat," he thought gleefully as he went to bed.

Frank left the window wide open. He opened the bag of soot and placed it in a convenient place. He went to bed determined to remain awake until Blessums turned up.

He went to sleep at once and slept soundly until he was awakened by the signal voice of Blessums.

"Me-e-e-e-row!"

"Aha!" grunted Frank sleepily and slipped out of bed.

He reached for the bag of soot and tiptoed to the window. He leaned out noiselessly, the bag poised for business. He looked down at the rose trellis and for an instant was paralysed with surprise.

A dark, bulky human form was stealthily creeping up to the temptingly open window. Frank had a brief vision of the form of Blessums sitting as of yore in the middle of the garden path.

Immediate action was necessary, for the approaching burglar turned a masked face upward—and received the full contents of the soot bag in nose and eyes and mouth.

There followed a choking growl and a floundering, crashing descent to the ground. Frank leaned from the window and saw the burglar leap the fence and dash across an open lot into black shadow. He saw the frightened Blessums perched nervously on the gate post.

"Here, Blessums! Here kitty, kitty, kitty!" coaxed Frank gently.

Just as Blessums leaped from the tottering rose trellis into his arms Linda's white robed form appeared beside him.

"Oh, Frank, what has happened?" she whispered anxiously. "I thought I heard footsteps outside."

He told her briefly and advised her to cherish the astonished Blessums, whose voice had awakened him in time to rout the burglar and thus save their valuables and perhaps their lives.

"He can't go back to Mrs. Bliss," declared Frank firmly. "I'll buy her a cat if necessary, but Blessums shall sleep in my room every night so that serenades will be out of the question. Perhaps he's hungry, Linda. I wonder if there's any of that chicken left. I don't believe Nora gives him enough to eat, anyway."

"Frank Hildreth," cried his wife hysterically, "I've heard of all sorts of ways of trying to kill a cat, but I believe you're trying to kill him with kindness now."

A Hundred Million Suns.

A peep into the heavens through a modern telescope is a peep into the very depths of mystery. With such an instrument one may gaze upon 100,000,000 stars, each of them a burning, blazing sun. From what little we know of creation we cannot but believe that each of those suns is giving light and heat to a train of planets, just in the same manner that our sun gives light and life to his little flock of worlds. Beyond those 100,000,000 suns there may be hundreds of millions more. Thus they may continue "system after system and worlds without end."

The Same Idea.

It is recorded that Napoleon, when asked to summarize the art of war, answered briefly, "The art of war consists in being strongest at a given point at a given time." This answer was terse and true, but that born but untaught fighter, General Forrest, expressed the same idea, yet more briefly and forcefully. When the grim old Confederate was asked how to win in battle he replied, "Get thar fust with the mostest men."

WELL PLACED PRIZES.

Trophies That Have Been Justified by Their Recipients.

That famous journalist, Mr. W. T. Stead, began his career as an author by winning a prize in a competition organized by a boys' paper.

It was in the 'sixties that a boys' journal, of which young Stead was a regular reader, offered a prize of a guinea, to be spent in books approved by the editor, for the best effort in a literary competition. The winner was announced as "W. T. Stead," and the books he chose were several volumes of the poets. It was this success which made Stead resolve to be a great writer and editor himself.

That prolific and most successful authoress, Mrs. Henry Wood, whose novels are said to have sold to the extent of over 4,000,000 copies up to now, began her career with winning the prize of $500 offered by a Band of Hope organization for a temperance tale. Mrs. Wood's prize story was entitled "Danesbury House," and at the time the large amount given for the prize was regarded as wonderful. Delighted with this initial success, Mrs. Wood immediately began a second long story, which Messrs. Bentley purchased at once, for the authoress' name was then known far and wide as the winner of that notable prize. This new story proved to be "East Lynne," and thus commenced a wonderful run of success which lasted right away till the lamented death of Mrs. Wood a few years ago.

One day in the 'eighties of last century a young Jewish school teacher in London chanced to pick up a popular weekly, and saw that it was offering a prize for the best short story. Thinking how useful this prize would be to him, and imagining he had a good story to tell, that young Jew wrote a tale, and duly despatched it to the paper in question. A little while afterwards he had the satisfaction of seeing his effort announced as the prizewinner, and when a bigger prize of $25 was similarly offered for a story he again had a shot at it.

Success once more crowned his effort, and henceforth Israel Zangwill made up his mind that writing tales, and not school-teaching, was his forte. So, in due time, he earned more and more by his stories, till he at length left teaching altogether, for "The Master" and other noted novels had brought him world-wide fame.

A recent instance of a lady becoming famous as a novelist through winning a prize is Mrs. Bailie-Saunders. She won the $500 offered by Mr. Fisher Unwin for the best story of a certain length sent in to him by a new writer. The winning story was "Saints in Society," and this was discovered, from the sealed envelope accompanying each-tale entered, to be by Mrs. Margaret Bailie-Saunders. Since that time this clever lady has rapidly made her way to the front rank of present-day novelists.

A Cattle King.

Mr. Sydney Kidman, the Queensland Cattle King, holds more land than anyone else in Australia, probably more than any other individual in the world, his runs aggregating something like 50,000 square miles, which is, he confesses, "far too much for any one man to have."

Leaving his parents' home, near Adelaide, forty-two years ago, at the age of thirteen, to seek his fortune, he secured employment as a cowboy on the Gipps Station at $2.50 a week. Then he carted wood and drove bullocks on the Darling, and was one of the first at the Cobar rush.

With his brother George he went in for cattle and horse dealing, and, in partnership with others, took "outback" mail contracts in various states of Australia. There was a lot of money made in those days, and Mr. Kidman got his share of it. He is a very rich man to-day.

He finds the atmosphere of cities hard to breathe, and dislikes their roar and rattle. He is never so happy as when traveling in a buggy across the huge tracts in Queensland, where he is monarch of all he surveys.

Most millionaires talk disparagingly of riches, but go on acquiring them all the same. Mr. Kidman is not different from Carnegie, or any of the other money kings. "Get health, my friend; wealth will only bring you trouble," he is fond of saying.

A Famous Old Clock.

The redecoration of the famous clock by Vuillamy in the Prime Minister's house in Downing Street, London, is a reminder that many Government departments are the possessors of grandfather clocks of considerable value. Perhaps the most interesting of all is one at the Admiralty which has a double dial, with two sets of numbers from I. to XII. It is believed to have been a gift from Queen Anne, who, like her husband, Prince George of Denmark, held the office of Lord High Admiral. It only requires winding up once in the course of the year, and is the work of the incomparable Tompion. It is stated that in 1700 he actually started on the construction of a clock for St. Paul's Cathedral which was to go for a hundred years without winding.

It Couldn't Be Turned.

There is in London a gentleman who has given up several years of his life to a crusade against the ordinary sheet. He has invented a sheet which cannot be turned by the maker of the bed, so that the sleeper is always sure of being between the same surfaces. He holds that very few hotels give to each boarder a clean pair of sheets, and that the proprietors have an unpleasant habit of turning them, or ironing them, and then calling them clean. "Few people realize," says the inventor, "that an ordinary pair of sheets can be put on a bed in 32 different positions. It is an appalling thought that one may be the thirty-second person to sleep between those sheets.

Egypt's Wealth.

The prosperity of Egypt lies almost entirely in its cotton crop, which approximates a value of $100,000,000 a year. Last year's yield from 1,603,266 acres was 650,000,000 pounds.

A Riddle.

Have you a sore place? Have you any skin disease, old sore or obstinate wound, that has defied all efforts at healing? If so, apply Zam-Buk and prove its merits.

A Woman's Message to Women.

Mrs. James Elsworth, 992 Selkirk Ave., Winnipeg, Man., says:—"Four and a half years ago ulcers started on my left ankle, and spread until the top of my foot and limb, to the knee, was well-nigh covered. I used ointment after ointment, until everything I knew of had been tried, but I received little or no benefit. I was laid up in bed for a long time, and had no rest or sleep, night after night, from the acute pain and irritation.

"I consulted doctors, until I had taken treatment from at least five. After using their ointments and preparations until I was positive I could get no cure, I almost gave up in despair. I was next persuaded to try a course of treatment supplied by a company operating in this city, paying as much as thirteen dollars and a half in one week for ointments, which proved of no use whatever.

"One day a sample of Zam-Buk was left at the house. This seemed to soothe the pain almost instantly, and encouraged me to get a supply from the druggist and give it a fair trial. Zam-Buk had a wonderful effect in a very short time. The irritation and the pain were quickly relieved, and gradually the ulcers were cleansed of all poisonous matter. The discharging then ceased, and the ulcers began to show signs of healing. I kept on using Zam-Buk until every ulcer had been completely healed."

An Employer's Liability Policy

MIGHT SAVE YOU HEAVY DAMAGES

While an accident may be due to an employee's own carelessness, still there's no certainty that the employer will not have to pay heavy damages. New legislation too is steadily increasing the responsibility of the employer. But an Employer's Liability Policy in the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would protect you against financial loss through injuries to an employee while on duty. The General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would deal justly with your employee too. It is noted for fairness and broadmindedness. It is one of the oldest and strongest Insurance Companies in the world. Do not delay to write for further particulars.

Injuries in the industrial world are frequent. In the building, metal and woodworking trades alone there were 294 people killed and 1,421 injured in Canada during 1910 and 1911. Our business is to relieve the employer of all financial responsibility resulting from accident.

THE NEW COMMANDER

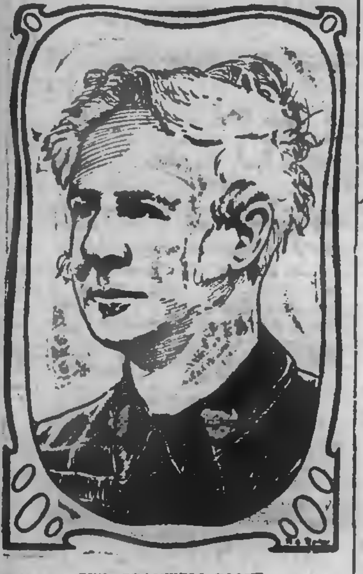
BAMWELL BOOTH HAS SPENT ALL HIS LIFE IN THE ARMY.

At Sixteen Years of Age the Late General Booth's Favorite Son Was Scrubbing Floors In the Headquarters Building For $1.25 a Week—He Is 56 Years Old and Is a Man of Exceptional Attainments.

Bramwell Booth, who is the new commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, has been the chief-of-staff of the Army since 1880. When he was sixteen years old he was scrubbing floors, cleaning inkwells, and filling other menial offices at a wage of $1.25 a week at the old Army headquarters in Whitechapel. He worked his way up through the ranks in various parts of the country, living and laboring in the same way as other officers.

Bramwell has a tremendous capacity for work, a wonderful grasp of detail, a broad and sound scholarship, magnetism and conviction in public speech, and rare charm of presence. More than all these he inherited a consuming passion for advancing the general interests of religion and humanity.

Born in Halifax, England, on March 8, 1856, all of his life practically has been indissolubly connected with the work of the Salvation Army. When only twelve years of age he took charge of children's meetings, and at fifteen years of age he became actively engaged in public life. For the past forty years he has been his father's right hand man. Since 1880 he has been chief of the staff and "the man behind the gun." He has never been in charge outside of England, though he has traveled extensively in Europe. He never visited Canada.



GEN. BRAMWELL BOOTH.

In 1882 he married a daughter of the late Dr. Soper, of Plymouth, England. Mrs. Bramwell Booth has been head of the women's social work of the Salvation Army for thirty years, and many Canadians heard her speak in Toronto last year. There are five daughters and two sons in the family. Three of the daughters and one son are already officers in the Army and the others in all probability will be when they are old enough.

Bramwell Booth stands six feet high and possesses striking facial characteristics. He has surpassing ability as a public speaker and a public writer, for he has written many books, widely read and entirely convincing. His mind is of the cool, logical, far-seeing type, and he would have distinguished himself as a lawyer and politician. It is said that many prominent politicians in London repeatedly urged Bramwell Booth to devote himself to the Bar, and one Londoner offered to pay all the expenses of academic preparation.

Amongst his better known publications are: "Books That Bless," "Our Master," "Servants of All," "Social Reparation," "On the Banks of the River," and "Bible Battle-Axes."

A Pugnacious Admiral.

Lord Charles Beresford is still prophesying the crack of doom, and is as firmly convinced as ever that there is no hope for the navy unless things are done exactly as he desires.

Lord Charles is the second son of the Marquis of Waterford, and his earliest ambitions were directed towards the navy. On the boy's thirteenth birthday, the marquis called his son into his study, and asked him whether he had any desire to enter a profession.

"I'm going into the navy!" he replied.

"And why the navy?' inquired the marquis.

"Because I'd like to be an admiral like Nelson."

"Pshaw! like Nelson," exclaimed his father. "But even if you join the navy, why do you think you'll become an admiral?"

"Because I mean to!" replied young Beresford.

Hard Labor Explained.

Hard labor in a prison in Great Britain, points out The Times, is not the same in the case of a woman as in that of a man. The prison rules prescribed that a man shall, for 28 days or for whole of his sentence if it is less than 28 days, be employed in the strict separation on hard bodily or manual labor for not more than ten or less than six hours a day, exclusive of meals. After 28 days, a good prisoner is employed on labor of a less hard description, in association with others if practicable, and is eligible for all the privileges of the progressive stage system. Men between 16 and 60 are required to sleep on a plank bed without a mattress for the first 14 days of their sentence, unless the medical officer shall order otherwise.

JOE WOOD IS BATTED FROM THE MOUND IN THE FIRST BY NEW YORK GIANTS

The Pride of Boston is Wafted to the Extent of Six Runs and Hall is Sent to the Rescue — Red Sox Break Even With New Yorkers in the Second.

Fenway Park, Boston, October 15—Boston's hopes of finishing the world's series with a win from the Giants to-day, were rudely disturbed, when McGraw's men landed on Joe Wood in the first innings of the game this afternoon, and scored six runs.

Meyers is catching Tesreau and Cady is working for Boston.

Hall took the box in the second and held the on-rushing Giants to one run and the Red Sox broke into the scoring with a tally in their half. Both pitchers settled down for the next three rounds, after which the National League champions scored two more runs.

Dick Sheehy again starred for Ottawa College against Varsity on Saturday. He was at all times the mainstay of the college team, says an Ottawa exchange.

One hundred thousand people witnessed the soccer game between the Rangers and Celtics, in Glasgow, on Saturday, when the former won the Glasgow Cup by 3-1.

Jack Johnson announced that he had accepted the offer of $55,000 to fight Sam Langford and Sam McVey in Australia, made by Hugh D. McIntosh. He will leave Chicago on October 25 for Australia and will train there. He will fight Langford on December 26.

Ross Craig, as usual, was the star of the wing line. The big fellow was never in better form since he donned football togs, and every time he crashed into the Toronto line, he hit it at express speed for big gains. His end runs were always big ground gainers, and it never took less than three or four men to stop him. In the last quarter he brought the crowd cheering to its feet when he smashed through for forty yards evading tackle after tackle and tossing Adams, who stood on the line in an effort to bring him up aside like a cork—Hamilton Spectator.

The Lindsay Curling Club, at a meeting held Saturday night, decided to hold a big ball on the night of Wednesday, October 23rd. Big preparations are being made for this social event.

MAY BE SENT TO ORILLIA

Case of Denham Jones Heard in Police Court

Blacklisters Tell Magistrate How They Procured Liquor

Denham Jones, commonly known as "Casey," the young lad who has been a source of annoyance to merchants trainmen and others, will in all liklihood be sent to the Orillia Asylum within a week or so. Magistrate Dumble gave an order this morning for a physician's examination of the lad for the purpose of ascertaining whether he is a fit subject for confinement in the Asylum. His father was in court and stated that the young lad was too smart for him. When very young he had a severe illness which left his mind in a weak condition. Ever since he has been practically irresponsible for what he does.

His favorite pastime is jumping on the engine at the railway station and riding out in the country.

Until examined he will be held at the Children's Shelter.

In reference to cases of like nature Solicitor E. L. Goodwill for the Children's Shelter, stated that it was too bad that no provision was made for the feeble-minded, especially the juvenile deficient mind, by a proper refuge for them.

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

Once more a blacklister unfolded the time-worn yarn of meeting a stranger on the street who bought a bottle of whiskey for him. This morning John Swanson was the author of the "veracious" narrative. Upon his oath Swanson swore that yesterday afternoon he met a man on Charlotte street to whom he gave 75 cents to purchase whiskey for him. They drank the stuff in Wolstenholm's wood yard. Swanson was detected in an intoxicated condition later on the street and spent last night in the police station.

Magistrate Dumble remanded him to jail for a week in the hope that his memory might improve.

WENT TO LINDSAY.

Hector Baker, who was charged with the same offence, chooses the expensive plan of journeying to Lindsay for this supply of booze. At least he tried to convince the Magistrate and Chief Thompson that that was where he secured his last allotment. Baker is earning $4 a day as brick layer at the new West Ward School. He claimed that he bought two bottles of Irish whiskey from the Union Hotel, Lindsay, one at a time. He went up on the 6.30 G.T.R., returning at nine o'clock. Evidently he secured a cheap rate as he stated his ticket fare was 95 cents.

Magistrate Dumble fined him $10 to be paid in ten days, not wishing to remind him thereby relieving him him of his week's earnings.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

THOSE LECTURES.

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir,—The letter appearing in another paper objecting to the Rev. Canon Davidson undertaking to lecture the people of Peterborough every little while is timely. Some ministers seem to forget that their chief duty is to set a good example, and I cannot impress upon some of the chief wiggers this point too strongly. Many people are thoroughly disgusted with the attempts that are made to lecture the people from a lofty standpoint which the lecturers have no hesitation in leaving when it suits their purpose. This has to reference to the distinguished gentlemen whom it does not apply to and whose example it will always be the pleasure of the people of Peterborough to admire, if they are not able to follow.

Yours &c.,
CONSISTENCY

TOUGH LUCK.

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir,—The poor little Examiner tries to account for the slaughter of Macdonald by shouting "Thieves! Robbers!" Now, the only thieves and robbers that pleaded guilty were Liberal workers arrested by Conservative vigilance committees. What about their pleading guilty? Is that another beastly Tory trick?

Yours &c.,
EH! WHAT?

HE WANTS TO KNOW.

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir,—"I don't believe in meeting these people (meaning the Seymour Power Company) and furthermore, I won't attend the meeting if it is held."

This is the declaration of Alderman Duncan of the City Council, who has been elected by the ratepayers of this intelligent city to represent them in the City Council. The attitude of other members of the City Council is equally as singular, because they were only willing to meet the Seymour Power Company for the purpose of buying out its pole line and not to obtain its best price for power. The question of obtaining cheap power and cheap light for the ratepayers of Peterborough does not enter into the minds of the majority of the members of the City Council. It is municipal ownership they want and not cheap power and cheap light. The majority of the members of the City Council apparently are afraid to invite tenders from the Seymour Power Company for a supply of power or even to discuss the question of a supply of power because they apparently dread that their pet scheme of municipal ownership will receive a black eye when the price for power and light to be tendered by the Seymour Power Company will demonstrate it to be cheaper than can be furnished under Municipal Ownership.

What this city needs is cheap light and cheap power no matter from what source it comes whether from municipal ownership or from private ownership.

To ascertain whether the proposition of the Hydro-Electric or the Seymour Power Company will be the most beneficial to Peterborough can only be obtained by our City Council obtaining from both sources the very best proposition for the supply of power that each is prepared to make and lay the facts clearly and impartially before the ratepayers for their approval.

Can you tell me, Mr. Editor, way the City Council apparently are unwilling to discuss the obtaining of a supply of power from the Seymour Power Company?

Can you tell Mr. Editor why it is that the City Council prefer municipal ownership to having a cheap and abundant supply of power from the Seymour Power Company without the expenditure of a single dollar by the ratepayers with all its attendant risks and mismanagement at the hands of some future incompetent Council?

ENQUIRER.

Note—Our correspondent asks the question, why the City Council prefers municipal ownership. He will recollect that the people as a whole gave assent, by a very and most substantial majority, that the Council should set about the inception of some such scheme.

As the mandate to do so comes from the people to the Council, that body are following directions.

Our citizens, as a whole, are inclined to be largely in favor of municipal ownership, and when the by-law is submitted, the polling will tell the tale.

The public also believes that every effort that is made to sidetrack municipal ownership should be looked upon as an evidence that municipal ownership is desirable and the right thing for this city.

On the other hand there is a fair disposition to take the facts and consider where power and light may be had, the best service for the least money.

Our correspondent asks, why not get these things from the Seymour Power Company. May we say to him and to others, that there is a deep seated impression that no matter what sort of a contract or arrangement is offered, there is no power to bind any public service company, no conditions that may not be wriggled out of at some convenient time in the future. That in any case there will be some nigger concealed under the pile, to come up five or ten or fifteen years from now. The ratepayers believe that the only definite and sure way for the future is municipal ownership, or the next thing to it.

Nervousness And Dyspepsia Cured By "Fruit-a-tives"

WALKERTON, ONT., MAY 9TH 1911

"My trouble was extreme Nervousness, brought on by Indigestion or Dyspepsia, from which I suffered in its worst form.

I asked Mr. Hunter, my druggist, about "Fruit-a-tives" and he advised me to try them.

I took several boxes and am pleased to say I am now enjoying fine health.

I honestly believe I owe my health to "Fruit-a-tives" and strongly advise anyone suffering from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Nervousness or Sleeplessness, to commence using "Fruit-a-tives" and continue this remedy until a cure is accomplished".

TURCO-ITALIAN PROTOCOL NOW AN ACCOMPLISHED FACT

Hostilities Cease With the Signing of Provisional Treaty and Turkey Is Free to Face the Balkan Affair—Porte's Long Struggle for Better Terms Fails—Italy to Have Complete Control In Lybia.

Ouchy, Switzerland, Oct. 16.—After months of diplomatic strife for better terms, Turkey surrendered last evening and the Ottoman and Italian plenipotentiaries signed the protocol of a peace treaty, which puts an end to the war between Italy and Turkey, and, incidentally, relieves the Ottoman empire of a crushing handicap in the forthcoming struggle in the Balkans.

The precise terms will not be available until a definite treaty is signed at the end of the week, probably at Lausanne. Their tenor, however, is well known. The treaty will provide for absolute sovereignty of Italy in Lybia, without formal recognition there of Italy by Turkey; free exercise of religious authority by the khalif; Turkey to withdraw her regular troops from Lybia; Italy to pay an indemnity equivalent to Lybia's contributions to the Ottoman treasury; restitution of the captured islands to Turkey, with guarantee for the Christian peoples; no indemnity payable by either side toward the cost of the war and re-establishment of former diplomatic and commercial relations.

Italy declared war against Turkey on Sept. 29, 1911, and promply invaded Tripoli. A blockade of the coast of Tripoli and Cyrenaica was begun by the Italian fleet. Various coast towns were bombarded and in a naval battle many of the Turkish ships were crippled. Severe engagements have occurred between the Italian troops and the Turks and their Arab allies, with large losses on both sides. The coast is now held by Italy, while the Turks and Arabs occupy the interior.

Rejoicing In Paris.

Paris, Oct. 16.—Elation is general in the chancelleries of Europe over the success of their efforts to induce Turkey to conclude peace with Italy. Pressure has been applied at Constantinople by all the great powers with the exception of Italy, for it was realized that the end of the conflict would greatly improve the chances of localising the war in the Balkans. It eliminated complications which were almost certan to arise had Italy carried the war into Europe.

Italian Opinion Divided.

Rome, Oct. 16.—The news of the signing of a peace proctocol has been received here with varying emotions. While the people rejoice that the war is over, there is a certan regret that Turkey now has a free hand against Montenegro—the home land of the Italian Queen.

ROYAL ARSENAL GETTING BUSY

London, Oct. 16.—Not since the time of the South Africa war, says a Woolwich correspondent, has there been such exceptional activity in the royal arsenal in the department for the manufacture of gun explosives and in the gun factory, which provides guns for the navy, as well as field guns for artillery. The impetus is particularly noticeable in practically all branches of arsenal work. The existing staff of eight thousand men has been called upon to put in extra time, and it is worthy of note, adds the correspondent, that the highest pressure is found in the naval work.

Not True, Says Cochrane.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—A report published yesterday by Opposition newspapers that the Government would arrange running rights for the I.C.R. from Montreal to Winnipeg, or to the coast, the Grand Trunk refusing to lease or operate the National Transcontinental Railway east of Cochrane, is denied officially.

"There is nothing in it," said Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways. "I never heard of it. It isn't true."

LAVERGNE GOES TO THE BALKANS

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence, will grant the request of Armand Lavergne that he be sent as a Canadian attache to the army of the Balkan confederacy, and the young Nationalist will leave for the scene of hostilities probably within the next few days. While not an Imperialist, in the generally accepted sense of the word, Bourassa's admittedly clever young lieutenant is a soldier and is captain and adjutant of the well-known 61st Montmagny Regiment. He is a strong personal friend of Col. Hughes.

The Minister of Militia will likely send an English-speaking officer to accompany Capt. Lavergne to observe the military tactics employed by the excellently drilled and equipped armies of the Balkan states, and to assist in securing other knowledge of a real war game for the Canadian Department of Defence.

Haultain Chief Justice?

Regina, Sask., Oct. 16.—It was said late yesterday that while the appointment of F. W. G. Haultain, K.C., as successor to Chief Justice Wetmore had not been gazetted, it was practically certain that it had been unofficially made.

The resignation of Chief Justice E. L. Wetmore, of the Supreme Court of Saskatchewan, was yesterday accepted by the Department of Justice at Ottawa, according to an announcement made here yesterday morning. [illegible]

Marconi's Sight In Danger.

Rome, Oct. 16.—Another consultation was held on Signor Marconi's eyesight between Prof. Bayardi, from Turin, officials from the Military Hospital, and Dr. Pastega. Mrs. Marconi and Marquis Solari were present at the examination, which lasted several hours, and resulted in a bulletin causing serious anxiety regarding the sight of the patient. The bulletin said: "The examination held this morning demonstrates that the diminution of the visual faculty of the injured eye, observed on Oct. 10, is increasing, accompanied by shrinking from light neuralgic pains, rendering diagnosis always more doubtful. General state is excellent."

WILL HON. MR. MONK RESIGN?

Bourassa Professes to Known That the Minister Will Leave Jabinet.

Montreal, Oct. 6.—Le Devoir in an article last evening signed Henri Bourassa, is to the effect that Hon. Mr. Monk will resign as soon as the Borden naval policy is announced. Mr. Bourassa says he learns that an urgent contribution of $30,000,000 will be made and the promise of a plebiscite before a permanent policy is adopted.

"Hon. Mr. Monk will retire," adds Le Devoir, "if he does not obtain a plebiscite on the urgency vote. The real friends of the Minister of Public Works," the Nationalist leader says, "and we are amongst them, hope that he will maintain this attitude, although a strong pressure is being brought to bear upon him to retain his portfolio."

"Mr. Monk is bound by his honor and conscience to demand a plebiscite on any policy of Imperial contribution, and Mr. Monk is not alone. The resolutions at St. Eustache, prepared under Mr. Monks' eyes, were approved of by the Hon. Mr. Nantel, condemned the Borden policy of $20,000,000 contribution, consequently we refuse to believe that the Minister of Inland Revenue will approve of $30,000,000 when he condemned the idea of giving $20,000,000."

News from Ottawa confirms the report of the coming resignation of the Minister of Public Works. To those who go to Ottawa asking Monk to hold on, he invariably replies that after seeing the documents brought from England by the Prime Minister, he is convinced of the absolute necessity of an urgency vote, but having pledged himself to the people in a contrary sense, to resign is the only thing for him to do. It is now quite probable that Mr. L. Coderre, M.P. for Hochelaga, will be appointed to succeed Judge Loreaudeau on the superor court bench, and Mr. L. T. Marechal, K.C., will contest that seat and enter the Ministry.

DON'T WORRY SAID BECKER

Widow of Murdered Gambler Gives Evidence.

Special To The Review.

New York, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Rosenthal the widow of the murdered gambler took the stand this morning on the resumption of the trial of Police Lieut. Becker for the murder and testified to Becker's coming over to a table where she and her husband were seated in Elks Club on New Years evening. Becker put his arm around Rosenthal's neck and asked him how things were. On being told they were not very well he answered "Don't worry, everything will be all right."

THE COLONEL FEELING FINE SO HE SAYS

Special To The Review.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 16.—Col. Roosevelt awoke this morning at six twenty after over three hours' unbroken sleep and said he was feeling fine. His condition shows marked improvement over that of last night.

Typhoid In Asylum.

Hamilton, Oct. 16.—There is said to be an [illegible]. Dr. Jefferies, one of those in charge is reported so ill that his relatives have been summoned from London, Ont.

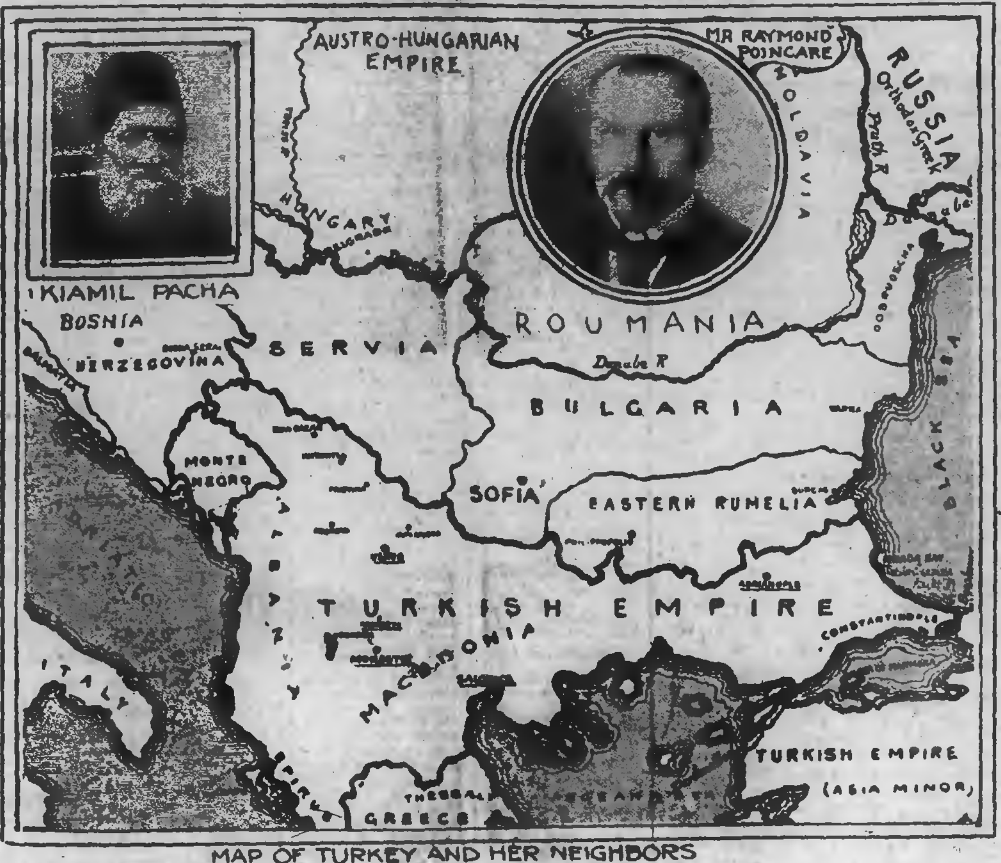
Dr. English, the medical superintendent, is in Toronto and it is stated that he went there to urge upon the Government the necessity of giving him more medical men and nurses. In one small building, under the charge of one doctor more than a dozen cases are reported.

More Fire Protection.

Galt, Oct. 16.—The recent $150,000 fire has aroused the town council to a sense of the inadequacy of fire protection. A special meeting was held at which the chief reported that the fire-fighting equipment is not up to the standard. He thinks Galt should have a steam fire engine.

The fire committee will report on the recommendations without delay, and it is likely all will be adopted.

EAGER FOR BATTLE, BALKAN STATES AWAIT DECLARATION OF WAR



MAP OF TURKEY AND HER NEIGHBORS

Only a miracle, it is believed in foreign circles, can prevent war between Turkey and the Balkan States. The Bulgarian population is retiring into the mountains, taking away everything possible and destroying the rest. Nearly double the number of men called to the front have volunteered. The Turks refuse to give in and appear anxious for war also. Kiamil Pacha and the Turkish Cabinet can prevent war, it is believed, only by agreeing to the demands of the Balkan population.

Mr. Raymond Poincare, the French Premier, is making every effort to bring about peace between Turkey and the Balkan States.

TURKEY HAS BROKEN OFF RELATIONS WITH BALKANS

Little News Has Come From the Front Except That the Montenagrin Forces Are Still Victorious and Have Captured the Fortress of Houms.

London, Oct. 16.—Turkey's refusal to reply to the note of the Balkan states will in all probability impel these states to address an actual ultimatum to the Porte to-day before commencing hostilities.

The Ministers of Bulgaria, Servia and Greece are still waiting in Constantinople, although diplomatic relations are virtually ended, because of the recall of the Turkish Ministers from Sofia, Belgrade and Athens.

The conclusion of peace between Italy and Turkey removes much of the uneasiness felt in Europe as to the consequences of the Balkan war. The German Foreign Secretary, referring to this at Berlin yesterday, said that it would facilitate the localising of the war—a matter upon which the powers had had ample time to arrive at an agreement.

The only additional military news reaching here yesterday told of the capture of the fortress of Houms by the Montenegrins.

Premier Venesilos in the Greek Chamber announced that the Greek fleet was equipped for a war lasting a year.

News from the theatre of war is still withheld, for correspondents as yet are not allowed to proceed to the front. The Bulgarian army, however, is believed to be ready to strike at Adrianople, while the Servian army is divided into three forces, one of which will march on Uskub in Macedonia by the Moravia Valley, while the second, after getting in touch with the Bulgarian forces in the neighborhood of Kustendil, will move on Uskub from the east through the Egri Palanka Pass and Kuminova. The third Servian force is expected to unite with the Montenegrin forces in the Albanian Alps and the Novi Bazar district.

The Bulgarian main army, massed on the upper Maritza with the object of invading Thrace, is estimated at 250,000 men.

Europe is now completely resigned to a war in the Balkans and is beginning to gain some increase of confidence that the hostilities will be localised. This better feeling is shown in the general improvement in the European Bourses.

The recoveries, however, are small compared with last weeks' depreciation in stocks.

Fortress Surrendered.

Podgoritza, Montenegro, Oct. 16.—The fortress of Houms, the last between Tushi and Scutari, surrendered yesterday to the Montenegrins. Among the Turkish prisoners already captured are 62 officers, including a colonel, and the commandant at Tushi.

Addressing the war correspondents at a reception yesterday afternoon, King Nicholas said that he regretted the bloodshed, but hoped that it would result in a new and better era of freedom and civilization.

To Buy Aeroplanes.

Berlin, Oct. 16.—Turkey is negotiating with German manufacturers for the purchase of aeroplanes, and has also engaged military aviators as trainers. Both Turkey and the Balkan States are making endeavors to buy war automobiles in Germany.

SAYS GAMBLERS WERE INSTIGATORS

New York, Oct. 16.—Gamblers, and not Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, instigated the murder of Herman Rosenthal. A large sum of money, raised by gamblers, was paid to get Rosenthal out of New York when he began to "squeal" on the subject of police protection, and when he took the money and then refused to go the gamblers, threatened with the loss of their protection, plotted and executed his murder through agency of the four gunmen.

Such was the line of defence implied in questions put by J. F. McIntyre, Becker's counsel, to Sam Schepps on the witness stand yesterday.

St. Kitts Wants Hydro Power.

St. Catharines, Oct. 16.—A petition signed by one hundred citizens asking for an estimate of the cost of Hydro-electric lights and power in St. Catharines, was presented to the City Council. The petition will be granted.

Made Error In the Date.

Winnipeg, Oct. 16.—The Free Press (Lib.) says yesterday that the information on which a warrant was issued for the arrest of Capt. W. B. Sifton of Minitoras, charged with violation of the election act in the Macdonald campaign was dated Oct. 7, while the alleged offence was not committed until Oct. 10. Magistrate McMicken states that the case has been withdrawn. [illegible]

LYMAN FAILURE OVER $300,000

Buffalo, Oct. 16.—Creditors of the suspended stock brokerage firm of R. B. Lyman & Co., met the members of the firm yesterday afternoon to consider terms of settlement. The company suspended Oct. 3, closing its branch offices in Toronto, Hamilton, Syracuse, Erie and Niagara Falls, along with its main office in this city. Harry D. Williams, of the brokerage firm, said yesterday:

"The extent of the failure is between $300,000 and $400,000 as far as I can now discover. The offer of settlement is made to save the creditors the expense of a bankruptcy. It will be an offer, I believe, of 25 per cent. The books show that is what can be made."

Fine Clubhouse Burned.

Winnieg, Oct. 16.—The St. Charles Country Club was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning, with a loss estimated at over $100,000. The building was completed only last May, and was opened in July by the Duke of Connaught. The burned building replaced one burned last year.

Two Aviators Killed.

Beene, Switzerland, Oct. 16.—A double flying fatality occurred yesterday at Chaux-De-Fonds.

A Swiss airman named Cobioni was making an aeroplane flight carrying a newspaper man named Bippert, when the machine collapsed from a height of 60 feet.

Sues Reporter for $15,000.

Montreal, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Elizabeth McPartland Cullen has taken an action against Mr. Austin Mosher, journalist, for the sum of $15,000, covering alleged damages on account of correspondence sent to Halifax and Toronto papers announcing a $20,000 suit entered some months ago by Mrs. Cullen against David Russell.

New Class of Civil Servants.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—Among the contemplated civil service reforms is the placing of skilled mechanics under the control of the Civil Service Commission. They are now classed as laborers.

SEVENTY-FOUR MINERS ENTOMED

Hobart, Tasmania, Oct. 15.—Hundreds of rescuers are battling against flames and smoke to save seventy-four entombed miners at the North Mt. Lyell mine. The fire started through the blowing out of a motor fuse last Saturday. In a few minutes clouds of smoke began to pour from the mouth of the main shaft where 150 men were known to be working. Seventy-six men reached the surface. One died after he got out.

E. A. Lancaster, M.P., Injured.

St. Catharines, Oct. 16.—E. A. Lancaster, M.P. for Lincoln, who became prominent as the author of the marriage bill, will be obliged to use a crutch for several days on account of having stepped upon a nail which penetrated the sole of his shoe and entered his foot. His physicians entertain little fear of blood poisoning.

Raffelo To Be Hanged.

Sherbrooke, Que., Oct. 16.—Justice Hutchison last night sentenced Frank Raffelo to be hanged on Jan. 15 next for the murder of Camello Cherubino at Lime Ridge on Wednesday, Sept. 25. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty at 8 o'clock, and sentence was immediately passed.

Canada Quits Mexico.

Ottawa, Oct. 16—The Department of Trade has withdrawn the trade commissioner stationed for years in Mexico City. A. W. Donly, the commissioner, was in Ottawa lately and reported a general trade slump as a result of the continued political disturbances. The subsidized steamship service between Vancouver and Mexico has been discontinued. Canada's interests in Mexico will be looked after by the British agents.

Ended Life on Wife's Grave.

St. Stephen, N.B., Oct. 16.—William Gillespie, civil engineer, was found dead lying on the grave of his wife, who died some years ago, in Moore's Mills Cemetery, eight miles from here, with a bullet wound in his head and a revolver in his hand.

This Year's Whale Catch.

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 16.—A whaling fleet, consisting of five vessels, has returned from the West coast of Vancouver Island, and reports a catch of 566 mammals during the season just closed. The value is upwards of $500,000.

ROOSEVELT MUST STAY IN BED FOR SEVERAL DAYS

"Bull Moose" Leader's Campaign Tour Is Being Cancelled and He Has Been Ordered to Take a Complete Rest, But His Life Is In No Danger Unless Blood Poisoning or Tetanus Sets In.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Theodore Roosevelt was not merely superficially wounded by the bullet fired into his breast Monday in Milwaukee by John Schrank, it was determined last night by surgeons after all-day examinations and consultations; and the colonel must not see or speak to anyone for several days without permission of the doctors.

The wound was definitely described as a "serious wound in the chest," and "not a mere flesh wound." The late bulletin, which prohibited communication between the colonel and others than his attendants, declared that "quietude is absolutely essential."

The surgeons asserted, however, that it was not yet necessary to probe for the bullet, and the patient probably will be kept as calm as his nature will allow him for several days.

The patient slept well at intervals during the day, ate ravenously of articles customarily making up his bill of fare, read lenghty extracts from Macaulay, and hinted to his physicians that he would not object to a ride in the fresh air.

Finally, learning that the correspondents accompanying him on his speaking tour, who had left him after the assault in Milwaukee to file their articles, had rejoined his entourage at the hospital, Col. Roosevelt insisted that the edict of his physicians against communication with him be ignored for the time.

He received the newspaper men with an apology for not arising, jested with them about his condition, and told them: "I'll hurry up and get out of here, so I can keep you busy again."

In opening the door to his room to admit the correspondents, the heavy odor of heaps of flowers banked high in the anteroom, flooded the colonel's apartment and he inhaled deeply several times. The extra effort caused a little pain, however, and when the doors were shut again he instructed his nurse to present part of the flowers to other patients in the hospital. This was done.

His doctors, however, did not feel inclined yesterday to allow him to leave inside of ten days so that they might have no break in their minute-by-minute watch for possible infection from the bullet.

Unofficially it was made known yesterday that the physicians do not consider it necessary to probe for or operate to remove the bullet. It lies, as shown by the X-ray photographs brought from Milwaukee by Dr. J. D. Janssen, and corroborated by others taken in Mercy Hospital, near the breastbone, on the right side, and probably five inches below the collarbone. The missile did not get inside the ribs, but plowed upward and inward for a distance of some five inches from where it entered.

The flesh along the course of the bullet showed no discoloration yesterday and there appeared to the physicians no cause for concern from any feature of the assault.

Even in the event of Col. Roosevelt's rapid recovery it is stated positively that he will not be able to do any more campaigning this year.

It is planned to remove him to Oyster Bay as soon as he is able to leave Chicago.

The fact that his injury was such that it would force him into retirement for some time was pointed out to the colonel by the surgeons at the hospital. They were emphatic in telling him that to assure his complete recovery he would have to remain quiet for several weeks, and the colonel reluctantly agreed, though insisting at the same time that he felt "perfectly fit" and could make a public speech today.

Roosevelt Supporter Shot.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 16.—Charles Brown, a Roosevelt supporter, was shot in the hip late Monday night by a fanatic, who was apparently celebrating the shooting of Col. Roosevelt.

Brown had purchased a paper from a newsboy, when a man, standing a few feet distant, drew a revolver and shouting "hurrah," fired two shots, one of which struck Brown. Brown collapsed and the shooter escaped.

Trial Must Wait.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 16.—States Attorney W. C. Zabel of Milwaukee County last night definitely announced that John Schrank, Col. Roosevelt's assailant, would not be brought to trial until after the national election, Nov. 6.

"If we went to trial before election day," he said, "it is almost certain that the matter would be dragged into the campaign by one or another of the big political parties."

To Cut Campaign Short.

Princeton, N.J., Oct. 16.—Governor Woodrow Wilson is going to cut short his active campaigning as a result of the injuries sustained by Colonel Roosevelt. The go[illegible] will go into Delaware, West [illegible]ia and Pennsylvania, starting [illegible]ght as scheduled. His trip will then be brought to an end unless Col. Roosevelt is able to get out on the stump again.

"Mr. Taft has at no time taken an active part in the campaign and I have no desire to be the single candidate on the stump engaged against no active antagonist," said Mr. Wilson.

J. W. Taylor, who, with his wife and 10-year-old daughter, reached Lansing, Mich., on Friday from Olinda near Windsor, has disappeared. [illegible]

Woman Faked Story.

New York, Oct. 16.—A remarkable story told by "Mrs. Rose Guerra" of dealings with Burton W. Gibson, the lawyer accused of the murder of Mrs. Rose Menschik Szabo, has broken down.

According to a statement by Assistant District Attorney Wasservogel, the prospective witness against Gibson has admitted that her story was untrue, and that she told it at the instance of a "New Jersey lawyer" whose identity she has not made clear, to get information from the prosecution in the Gibson case.

Senator Melvin Jones and Navy.

Edmonton, Alta., Oct. 16.—That Canada should contribute at once from $25,000,000 to $40,000,000 to the British Admiralty, to be used in building battleships, to be turned over to Canada when this country shall have evolved a naval system, is Senator Sir Lyman Melvin Jones' idea.

THE PRICE OF COAL

Special To The Review,

Wilkesbarre, Penna, Oct. 16 — Nut and stove coal sold here to-day by Independent operators for $5.25 per ton on the cars at the mines. This is one dollar above what heretofore was considered a good price except in times of strike or actual famine.

SMITH FOUND NOT GUILTY

Owen Sound, Oct. 16.—After being out for forty-four minutes, the jury last night brought in a verdict of not guilty in the case at the Fall Assizes against William Smith on a charge of murder. The judge at once discharged the prisoner. The case for the crown was conducted by R. L. White of Pembroke, while the defence was in the hands of W. H. Wright of Owen Sound.

On the evening of Thursday, Sept. 12, George Green, aged 65 years, a Fenian Raid veteran, was found lying unconscious on the floor of the dining-room of his home on Eleventh street east; his face was bloody, and on his head was a contusion several inches in length. The man was at once removed to the General and Marine Hospital, where death ensued on the Tuesday following, he not having regained consciousness.

TURKEY ASKS FOR APOLOGY

Special to the Review.

Berlin Oct. 16.—According to a special despatch from Constantinople a limit of twenty-four hours has been fixed by Turkey for the Balkan States and Greece to apologise for the sending of "their insolent" note to Porte.

Ouchy Oct. 16.—The peace treaty between Italy and Turkey provides that the Sultan shall issue a decree proclaiming autonomy of the Tripolitan province of Libya. After this is done Italy shall issue a decree establishing in Libya a system of government based to Italian sovereignity. Turkey also to grant amnesty to the population of the islands of the Aegean sea who revolted during the war against Turkish rule.

BANQUET IN RED DEER

In Honor of Achievement of Jersey Cow

Special Correspondence.

Calgary, Oct. 16 — Distinguished men from all over Alberta will attend a banquet in Red Deer tonight, in honor of the achievement of Rosalind, a Jersey cow. In one year she produced fifteen thousand seven hundred pounds of milk, an average test of which was 5.17, and gave birth to three calves for which her owner received three thousand dollars.

Across Canada by Auto.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 16.—Thomas W. Wilby, on his ocean to ocean automobile tour, under the auspices of the Canadian Highway Association, reached Vancouver from Halifax Monday afternoon.

Every mile, he declares, was traveled under the car's own power, with the exception of twenty miles near Lillooet over which the car was shipped by railway. Of the four tires he had when he left Halifax, one still remains. Only two delays were necessary to effect repair—one at North Bay to straighten the driving shaft, and the other at Winnipeg for a general overhauling.

Acute Dyspepsia

Restoration of Stomach Power Comes Quickly With the Right Medicine.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend, who had been cured of a similar condition, advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvellous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon glowed within me. I can now eat, sleep, and live like a live man."

Be advised—Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

THE N.T.R. AND CROP MOVING

Sir Donald Mann is authority for the statement that the congesion in moving the western harvest will be greater than ever. The reason for this is not that the railways have been backward in preparing for the movement, but that the long rains have so retarded harvesting that the grain will come forward in such a rush that it cannot all be handled expeditiously. The month of delay in harvesting owing to the bad weather, will be the means of upsetting all the carefully laid arrangements of the railways for preventing a blockade.

The stories going the rounds about the government having to operate the section of the National Transcontinental, east of Cochrane, because the Grand Trunk Pacific does not want to lease it, have a peculiar bearing on the crop movement question. They also serve to show that the errors of the Laurier Government in building the Transcontinental have been monumental. In the first place, to build the eastern section from Levis to Moncton, paralleling the Intercolonial, was the heighth of folly. The Grand Trunk did not want that piece of road. The Intercolonial was in no position to fight a close competitor. In fact from Cochrane east, it was almost certain that the Grand Trunk would not require the new line when it had an opportunity to connect with its old Ontario system by running over the Ontario Government railroad to North Bay. The stupidity of the method of making the country pay all the piper, while saddling the bargain with the Grand Trunk with conditions that made a reduction in rates practically impossible, was so apparent at the time that everyone wondered. At any rate, the Borden Government has inherited a nice tangle to straighten out. If it consents to lease the National Transcontinental as far east as Cochrane to the Grand Trunk Pacific, and to connect the Intercolonial with the N. T. R. section, and operate the latter as part of the Intercolonial, the change from the original program will be rather startling. Mr. Borden contended when the measure was first brought before the country, that the whole line ought to be operated by the government, rather than handed over to any railway company upon such ridiculous terms. It was finally provided that the National Transcontinental might be used by government trains as far west as the Pacific coast—that is, running rights must be granted if required. The intentions of the gov- The N. T. R. and crop moving. ernment are not revealed yet, but there is no doubt that some radical change in respect of the operation of the Transcontinental is in prospect. Luckily for the movement of the west crop this year, Mayor Leonard has hurried the construction of the N. T. R. from Superior Junction to Cochrane, so that grain can be moved over it to the T. and N. O. this winter, thus giving two rail outlets.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF ROOSEVELT

The attempted assassination of Ex-President Roosevelt will probably cause some remarks that it was a clever political move, in giving the lion-hunter a fresh opportunity to display his personal bravery and endurance. But any such sordid suggestion will not enter the minds of right-thinking people, even though they may be disposed to admit that the popular attention thus concentrated upon Roosevelt may be so powerful as to ensure his election to the presidency. The bullet of the assassin penetrated three or four inches into the chest, lodging beside one of the ribs. Had not Roosevelt been an exceptionally powerful man physically, had he not possessed an extraordinary chest development, he would have been killed. There is probably not a person on the continent who knows anything about Roosevelt, and his career, who will not feel greatly rejoiced that he is not likely to succumb to the wound. His career has been a most wonderful one. He to-day is the most powerful political personality on the continent. From one wonder, he goes to another, like a Caesar whom nothing daunts.

The exhibition of endurance and courage by Col. Roosevelt in making a speech of an hour and a half with the blood oozing from a three inch hole in his chest, when he did not know whether the wound would be fatal or not, catches the fancy of the country. It is spectacular, it wins the aplaudits of the multitude. It is magnificent, but it was not good sense. However, it was done, and whatever they may think about his politics and about his method of dealing with political opponents on the stump, there is no doubt that those who dislike him must admit the supreme personal power of the man. He embodies, more than any one other person, the American ideal of a vigorous man. The progress of his recovery will be watched with breathless interest, though in all probability this speaking tour is at an end for the present campaign.

AN AIRSHIP FEAT

The new dirigible balloon belonging to the German navy made a remarkable flight a few days ago, when it carried 21 persons and made a sustained flight of 31 hours, crossing and re-crossing the North Sea. The dirigible balloons are much favored by the Germans, and it has sometimes been thought that they would offer an exceptionally fine medium for invading Britain. Not enough of them could be used, however, to land any considerable force on the British soil, and any invasion by this means is out of the range of possibility for the present. But the development of aviation, or rather of military aeronautics, has been so rapid of late years that it is hard to say to what use they might not ultimately be put in the science of war. Col. Sam Hughes says that he favors the dirigible, rather than the aeroplane, but the experience of the British and French army officers has seemingly been such as to recommend the aeroplane in preference to the dirigible. Such trips as that of the new German airship, are a potent argument in favor of the dirigible, for no aeroplane could keep in the air any such length of time.

A GRIT CONTRADICTION

The Toronto Star is harping on a declaration by the Montreal Star that if the Borden Government's naval proposals are not at once accepted by parliament, there will be dissolution and an appeal to the country. Something that Premier Borden said is also construed to mean that and thus the Toronto Star has what it esteems a beautiful shovel to tear up the grass over a threatened invasion of the independence of parliament. The remarks on this subject it has made every day or every other day, are apparently designed to create the impression that the Borden Government is afraid that parliament will not agree to the naval proposals. In fact it seems that the Star is apprehensive lest the government naval plan for meeting the emergency be too strong and popular for parliament to accept. If that is the case the Star ought to feel quite assured that it is not likely the Borden Government will be unable to obtain the support of its followers and perhaps of quite a number of Liberals. The policy will be quite adequate to the occasion and there will be no need for a dissolution unless the Star's Grit friends try to block help to the Motherland.

On one day the Globe and Star accuse the Borden Government of having no naval policy, of not knowing what is to be done. Sandwiched in between their diatribes against the government on this matter are the complaints that parliament ought to be left free and independent in the treatment of the proposals. The question then occurs if the Borden Government has no proposals has no plan what is the fear about parliament not being given a chance to consider them fairly, all about? The two plans of trying to attack the government contradict each other. But of course it is not to be expected that there will be any attempt to produce a real issue. Until the Borden Government makes the announcement no one is in a position to tell just what will be done, and all the jibes, and thrusts and mutterings from the Liberal camp are not worth the paper they occupy or the wind that gives them expression.

Kidneys Wrong?—

If they are you are in danger. When through weakness or disease the kidneys fail to filter the impurities from the blood, trouble comes at once. Backache, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gravel, Diabetes, Gall Stones and the deadly Bright's Disease are some of the results of neglected kidneys. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills contain a most effective diuretic which strengthens and stimulates the kidneys so that they do their work thoroughly and well. Try Aged Nova Scotia Woman.

The annual report of the Deputy Registrar-General giving the vital statistics of Nova Scotia has just been published. This report furnishes remarkable evidence of longevity. 1,219 persons reached an age of 80 or over an increase of 202 over the previous year. This amounts to 14.8 per cent of those who died. One woman in Antigonish County died at the age of 104 and another woman in the same county reached the remarkable age of 120. This is the most advanced age yet recorded in Nova Scotia and a special enquiry by the Department of Vital Statistics substantiated its authenticity. Two men died at 102; one in Cape Breton county the other in Halifax county. A man in Hants county died at the same age. A woman in Pictou county reached the age of 100 years and five months. One man in Guysboro county and one woman in Victoria county completed lives which filled a century.

The Moral of the Story.

Professor John Spencer Bassett, author of "A Life of Andrew Jackson," in one of his lectures at Smith college, repeated a well known story in regard to Stephen A. Douglas, closing with a moral which aroused peculiar interest.

Douglas, as the narrative runs, was once sitting in a profound sleep in the corridor of the capitol when Adeline Cutts, a Washington belle, passed by. She did not know the sleeper, but was struck with compassion on seeing such a splendidly intellectual face under such conditions, and stooping down laid her handkerchief over it to protect it from the flies. Douglas on awakening found the handkerchief, sought the owner and eventually married her. There was a pause, and then the professor added: "Young ladies, the moral of this story is, have your pocket handkerchief marked."

True Art.

"Critics had praised me, academies had granted me exhibition space," said the artist; "still I was modest enough to think that I wasn't any great shakes as a painter. The thing that finally convinced me that maybe I was no dub, after all, was the remark of a woman who knew a good deal more about bargain counters than she knew about art. She studied a picture that had made critics overwork their vocabulary in praising it, and her only comment was: 'My! I'll bet the cloth in that woman's tea gown cost every cent of $2.50 a yard.' Just as a matter of curiosity I looked up my model and found that the dress she wore had cost just that a yard. Then I knew that I had been gifted with the divine fire. To depict values so faithfully that experienced shoppers can tell the cost of the cloth you paint seems to be hitting old art up at a pretty lively gait."—New York Press.

"We'll start," she corrected. "I can get twice as much out of my Tahitians as you can, and, besides, one white should never be alone under such circumstances."

Sheldon sent for a gang boss and told him to bring ten of the biggest, best and strongest Poonga-Poonga men.

"Not salt water boys," Sheldon cautioned, "but bush boys—leg belong him strong fella leg. Boy no savvee musket, no good. You bring 'm shoot musket strong fella."

They were ten picked men that filed up on the veranda and stood in the glare of the lanterns. Their heavy, muscular legs advertised that they were bushmen. Killing was their natural vocation, not weed cutting; and, while they would not have ventured the Guadalcanar bush alone, with a white man like Sheldon behind them, and a white Mary such as they knew Joan to be, they could expect a safe and delightful time. Besides, the great master had told them that the eight gigantic Tahitians were going along.

"Plenty strong fella fight," Sheldon warned them in conclusion.

They grinned and shifted delightedly.

"S'pose bushmen kai-kai along you?" he queried.

"No fear," answered their spokesman, or a Koogoo, a strapping, thick-lipped Ethiopian looking man. "S'pose Poonga-Poonga boy kai-kai bush boy?"

Sheldon shook his head, laughing, and dismissed them and went to overhaul the dunnage room for a small shelter tent for Joan's use.

It was quite a formidable expedition that departed from Berande at break of day next morning in a fleet of canoes and dingeys. There were Joan and Sheldon, with Binu Charley and Lalaperu, the eight Tahitians and the ten Poonga-Poonga men, each proud in the possession of a bright and shining modern rifle.

Binu Charley led the way onward into the rolling foothills, following the trail made by Tudor and his men weeks before. That night they camped well into the hills and deep in the tropic jungle. The third day found them on the runways of the bushmen—narrow paths that compelled single file and that turned and twisted with endless convolutions through the dense undergrowth.

Here, in the midmorning, the first casualty occurred. Binu Charley had dropped behind for a time and Koogoo, the Poonga-Poonga man who had boasted that he would eat the bushmen, was in the lead. Joan and Sheldon heard the twanging thrum and saw Koogoo throw out his arms, at the same time dropping his rifle, stumble forward and sink down on his hands and knees. Between his naked shoulders, low down and to the left, appeared the bone barbed head of an arrow. He had been shot through and through. Cocked rifles swept the bush with nervous apprehension, but there was no rustle, no movement; nothing but the humid, oppressive silence.

"Bushmen he no stop," Binu Charley called out, the sound of his voice startling more than one of them.

"My word! Look 'm that fella," he continued, brushing aside the leafy wall of the runway, and exposing a bow so massive that no one bushman could have bent it.

The Binu man traced out the mechanics of the trap and exposed the hidden fiber in the tangled undergrowth that at contact with Koogoo's foot had released the taut bow.

They were deep in the primeval forest. Binu Charley took the lead as they pushed on, and trap after trap yielded its secret lurking place to his keen scrutiny. The way was beset with a thousand annoyances, chiefest among which were thorns, cunningly concealed, that penetrated the bare feet of the invaders. Once, during the afternoon, Binu Charley barely missed being impaled in a staked pit that undermined the trail. There were times when all stood still and waited for half an hour or more, while Binu Charley prospected suspicious parts of the trail.

Where a slight runway entered the main one Sheldon paused and asked Binu Charley if he knew where it led.

"Plenty bush fella garden he stop along there short way little bit," was the answer. "All right you like 'm go look 'm along. Walk 'm easy," he cautioned a few minutes later. "Close up, that fella garden. S'pose some bush fella he stop, we catch 'm."

Creeping ahead and peering into the clearing for a moment, Binu Charley beckoned Sheldon to come on cautiously. Joan crouched beside him and together they peeped out. On one edge of the clearing was a small grass house, open sided, a mere rain shelter. In front of it, crouched on his hams before a fire, was a gaunt and bearded bushman. The fire seemed to smoke excessively, and in the thick of the smoke a round dark object hung suspended. The bushman seemed absorbed in contemplation of this object.

Warning them not to shoot unless the man was successfully escaping, Sheldon beckoned the Poonga-Poonga men forward. Before the bushman could shoot his swift enemies were upon him. He was rolled over and over and dragged to his feet, disarmed and helpless.

"Why, he's an ancient Babylonian!" Joan cried, regarding him. "He's an Assyrian, a Phoenician! Look at that straight nose, that narrow face, those high cheek bones and that slanting, oval forehead and the beard and the eyes too."

"And the snaky locks," Sheldon laughed.

"My word, bush fella kai-kai along that fella boy," Binu Charley remarked.

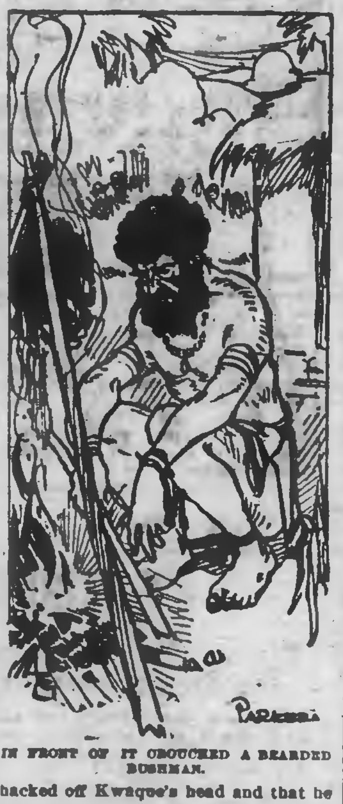
So stolid was his manner of utterance that Joan turned carelessly to see what had attracted his attention and found herself face to face with Gogoomy. At least it was the head of Gogoomy—the dark object they had seen hanging in the smoke.

Nor was Joan's horror lessened by the conduct of the Poonga-Poonga boys. On the instant they recognized the head, and on the instant rose their wild hearty laughter as they explained to one another in shrill falsetto voices. Gogoomy's end was a joke. He had been foiled in his attempt to escape. He had played the game and lost. And what greater joke could there be than that the bushmen should have eaten him?

The Poonga-Poonga men's laughter died down, and they regarded the spectacle with glittering eyes and gluttonous expressions. The Tahitians, on the other hand, were shocked, and Adamu Adam was shaking his head slowly and grunting forth his disgust. Joan was angry. Her face was white, but in each cheek was a vivid spray of red. Disgust had been displaced by wrath, and her mood was clearly vengeful.

Sheldon laughed.

"It's nothing to be angry over," he said. "You mustn't forget that he backed off Kwaque's head and that he ate one of his own comrades that ran away with him.



IN FRONT OF IT CROUCHED A BEARDED BUSHMAN.

"And don't forget," Sheldon added, "that he is the son of a chief and that as sure as fate his Port Adams tribesmen will take a white man's head in payment."

"It is all so ghastly ridiculous," Joan finally said.

"And—er—romantic," he suggested slyly.

She did not answer and turned away, but Sheldon knew that the shaft had gone home.

CHAPTER XX.

THE HEAD HUNTERS.

"THAT fella boy he sick," Binu Charley said, pointing to a Poonga-Poonga man whose shoulder had been scratched by an arrow an hour before.

The boy was sitting down and groaning, his arms clasping his bent knees, his head drooped forward and rolling painfully back and forth. For fear of poison, Sheldon had immediately scarified the wound and injected permanganate of potash; but in spite of the precaution the shoulder was swelling rapidly.

"We'll take him on to where Tudor is lying," Joan said. "The walking will help to keep up his circulation and scatter the poison. Adamu Adam, you take hold that boy. Maybe he will want to sleep. Shake him up. If he sleep he die."

The advance was more rapid now, for Binu Charley placed the captive bushman in front of him and made him clear the runway of traps. Once, at a sharp turn where a man's shoulder would unavoidably brush against a screen of leaves, the bushman displayed great caution as he spread the leaves aside and exposed the head of a sharp pointed spear, so set that the casual passerby would receive at the least a nasty scratch.

The sun sinking behind a lofty western peak brought on an early but lingering twilight, and the expedition plodded on through the evil forest—the place of mystery and fear, of death swift and silent and horrible, of brutish appetite and degraded instinct, of human life that still wallowed in the primeval slime, of savagery degenerate and abysmal.

DALTON'S COFFEE

Never sold in Bulk

No Chicory

It is almost impossible to get bulk Coffee without Chicory. You cannot detect the difference in ordinary Coffee but if you once try

Dalton's French Drip Coffee

you will know one of the reasons why it is so different. 14R

Dalton's French Drip Coffee contains no Chicory—no chaff or harsh outer shell. It is pure Coffee of the highest grade and because it is all Coffee and nothing but Coffee, two pounds goes further than three pounds of any other kind.

Mild and Strong Blends in 13, 25 and 50c tins. Never sold in Bulk.

Peach Betty.

Chop fine two cupfuls of not too ripe peaches. Butter a baking dish and place on it a layer of peaches, sprinkling with cinnamon, sugar and butter. Place on this a layer of the crumbs, alternating with the peaches until the dish is three-quarters full, leaving breadcrumbs on the top. Add no water, but cover tight and steam three-quarters of an hour in moderate oven. Remove, cover and brown quickly. Serve with milk or sauce.

Chiffonade Dressing.

This is extremely good to serve on lettuce, romaine or any green salad. Into a glass jar put one hard boiled egg finely chopped, a teaspoonful of finely cut chives, a teaspoonful each of chopped red and green peppers, a teaspoonful of salt, a fourth of a teaspoonful of paprika and an eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper, half a cupful of olive oil, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar and a teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar. Allow it to become very cold and just before serving shake the contents of the jar thoroughly.

MONKS WERE ROBBED.

Ginsing Worth $500 Pillaged at Oka Monastery.

The caterpillar pest has ruined the apple crop in the Two Mountain district save in the Trappists orchards. In St. Joseph's and other surrounding villages the apple trees have suffered immensely from the deadly slug.

The Trappist Monks, through the work of one of their members, Rev. Father Leopold, the horticulturist, and one of the youngest and most distinguished Fathers of that austere order after visiting many of the leading orchards in Europe last year discovered a remedy for the many deadly enemies which have been playing great havoc among the various class of fruit trees of late years.

"It was a hard fight to keep ahead of the enemy this year," said one of the veteran monks who has spent nearly forty years in the cloister, speaking to a Montreal Standard representative, "but we had to work hard and we have succeeded in saving our fruit trees. While the crop will not be as large as last year, still it will be an average one."

The vegetable crops will be in the same proportion.

The ginsing plant of a famous medicinal plant prized by the Chinese as such is being cultivated by the monks. At present there are several acres under cultivation, the value of which is $40,000. It sold in China for $15, $25 and $30 a pound while a rare species of the plant is sold for from $450 to $600 a pound.

The plant takes seven years for full maturity, though after four years portions of it like the seeds, which grow on the top, may be used for different purposes. There are only three places in Canada where the plant is cultivated, the Trappists having the largest supply. The Chinese keep the great medicinal value of this plant a profound secret.

Recently, during a severe storm, robbers entered the ginsing garden, situated in the woods some distance from the monastery, and stole $500 worth of roots, besides destroying the lattice work and doing other damage. At present a vicious dog guards the place both day and night while a few yards from the garden an old log cabin called "Solitude de Marie," stands where a monk sleeps with a loaded gun hanging on the wall.

When the reporter visited the place things looked as if the marauders were making a second attempt on the premises, as the brother must have heard some noise in the night for the gun was taken down and was resting on a stool near the window from which a good view of any persons entering the domain could be seen. Last year the monks sold nearly $2,000 worth of the plant to a New York firm, but Brother Stanislaus, who has charge of the place informed the reporter that this year there will be no sale, as next year a large portion of the batch will have reached its full maturity, and will find a ready market.

The poultry department under the direction of Brother Wilfred is probably the largest of the many progressive works seen around the farm. There are at present two thousand chickens, five hundred hens, six hundred ducks a large number of pigeons and prize roosters. Several prize birds are now on exhibition at the Quebec Fair. The Trappists have the distinction of making a great financial success of their poultry department and of raising some of the finest birds found in any poultry yard in Canada.

An up-to-date piggery is now in course of construction, and will accommodate about six hundred porkers.

The cold storage plant inaugurated last year by the monks was very successful.

The bee hive industry is another of the progressive works and last year the monks sold out their entire stock of honey.

Thirty years ago when four monks entered this place to start their work in Canada after coming from France it was a howling wilderness, to-day fifteen hundred acres of the two thousand which the monks possess are under cultivation, being fruitful in every respect. In that "valley of peace" where eighty monks now toil as strict vegetarians living on only one meal per day for eight months out of the twelve, proclaiming to the outside world the fruits of their patience, perseverance and industry, as the motto says, "Labor omnia vincit."

A Tale of Kitchener.

Always a lonely figure at society functions, Lord Kitchener was the guest of a prominent London hostess recently, looking a veritable wallflower. Although he is really the kindest of men, people seemed to "fight shy" of him, or perhaps were nervous at intruding on his habitual reserve — his stern countenance is not inviting. However, an unconventional Canadian approached him with:

"Look here, I'm a Canadian. I don't want a formal introduction, but I would feel proud to shake the hand of Kitchener, of whom we in Canada feel so proud." Kitchener's both hands seized him immediately. "That's just what I like, no formality," he said, and straightway he entered into a heart-to-heart talk about Canadian co-operation in naval matters, praising Mr Borden for his patriotic speeches [illegible]

He Won't Go Fishing.

Hon. William Harty, of Kingston, who has lived through a stormy political career and amassed a fortune in business, has a side to his nature which his closer friends may guess at but can never entirely fathom. This is manifested chiefly in a hatred of physical cruelty. He is a hard fighter in a political campaign, but the infliction of suffering in any form, whether it affects man or animal, is his most bitter abhorrence, and he will go far to prevent it. This humane tendency is carried even to the extent of refusing to go fishing, entailing as it would the sacrifice of living creatures for the sake of sport. Such a strange characteristic is not the result of any fad or some personal code, but is a natural outcome of a high sensitiveness to pain.

YOUTHS MUST GO TO WORK

One Has Been Under the Eye of the Police for Some Time

At a late hour last night a young man prominent through his frequent appearances in police court was arrested again, the charge being that he neglects or refuses to work, although capable of doing so. His excuse for being out so late last night was that he was looking for a bed. A reputation, however, for questionable conduct was not in his favor with Magistrate Dumble. His Worship, however, agreed to give the lad another opportunity to show if he did have any character or purpose left in his make-up and allowed him his liberty. The youth promised to start to work immediately as he had employment in Bowmanville.

He must report either verbally or in writing to Chief of Police Thompson once a month.

A companion was also given his freedom on suspended sentence, on promising to get busy. He will hire with Mr. Longo, picking apples. It was his first appearance in court.

Wonderful Praise Accorded Peruna the Household Remedy

Mrs. Maria Goertz, Orienta, Oklahoma, writes:

"My husband, children and myself have used your medicines, and we always keep them in the house in case of necessity. I was restored to health by this medicine, and Dr. Hartman's invaluable advice and books. People ask about me from different places, and are surprised that I can do all of my housework alone, and that I was cured by the doctor of chronic catarrh. My husband was cured of asthma, my daughter of earache and catarrh of the stomach, and my son of catarrh of the throat. When I was sick I weighed 100 pounds; now I weigh 140.

"I have regained my health again, and I cannot thank you enough for your advice. May God give you a long life and bless your work."

CHANGES AT BUCKHORN

Entrance Piers of Wood Replaced by Concrete Work

The place most changed in the County of Peterborough is the village of Hall's Bridge, or as most people call it, Buckhorn.

The old entrance piers to the Locks, which rotted away, have been replaced by concrete, and the Lock master's new residence finished and painted. The lock gates storehouse, ice house and swing bridge, as well as the fences and the railing on the concrete dam, have all been painted, and Buckhorn locks are now in first class condition. Eastwood's Hotel has also been repaired and painted also the Windsor Hotel. In fact Buckhorn has had a general house cleaning, and is now one of the best summer resorts of the Trent waterway. The fishing this last season has been unusually good. The duck season is now on, and there are a number of people with guns staying at Buckhorn.

Yesterday, witnessed the opening of the partridge season, and prospects in this line of shooting appear bright. The people up north also report that many deer are seen.

HOSPITAL AUTHORITIES COMPLETELY EXONERATED

From Any Culpability in Causing Death of the Late Mrs. Herron—Deceased Succumbed to a Complication of Diseases—Investigation is Concluded.

Every iota of suspicion that the late Mrs. Mitchell Herron 485 Aylmer street came to her death through suggested negligence by the Nicholls Hospital attendants was banished by the straightforward evidence of four physicians given at the inquest last night, which occupied over four hours It was conclusively shown beyond question that the deceased Mrs. Herron died a natural death from a complication of diseases cirrhosis of the liver being one of them. Not the slightest blame could be attributed to the hospital authorities who were completely exonerated from even the suggestion that certain minor and superficial scalds received by the deceased during the administration of an injection were in the slightest manner contributory to her death.

The inquest aroused much interest among the medical fraternity, who were largely represented.

The jury brought in the following verdict after a consideration of all the evidence. The latter was of such a nature that no other verdict could justifiably have been returned:

"We the jurors empannelled to ascertain how Mrs. Mitchell Herron came to her death do find,

"That death was caused by a complication of diseases and, while we regret the unfortunate accident whereby the deceased was burned and after hearing the evidence of the physicians and others who performed the post-mortem, we do not attach any blame to any person or persons."

An immense volume of evidence was submitted. The outstanding circumstances, however, of the case may be cited briefly.

Mrs Herron, the deceased, was admitted to Nicholls Hospital on the advice of Dr. Johnston, of Fenelon Falls, where she resided for some time. She was a woman of about fifty-five, and while comparatively healthy she was troubled with a liver ailment. Dr. Johnston had treated her for jaundice and hemorrhage of the stomach. In Nicholls Hospital. Dr. Frederick who was her attending physician, operated upon her for a tumor upon the abdomen. In the opinion of physicians Fredericks and Johnston the operation proved successful. Mrs. Herron was actually suffering from a complication of disorders, and she had a cirrhosis of the liver. She was in a condition that would ultimately terminate in death. The nurse who attended the patient along with the other patients in the ward, administered by her physicians' order what is known to the medical men as a "slow saline." It is an injection of hot water into the bowels administered through a rubber tube attached to a hot water bottle. The flow of the water is regulated by a little clamp on the tube. While this operation was in force some obstruction in the tube was encountered, which necessitated the nurse leaving the patient to reheat the water, which must be administered steaming hot. It is conjectured that while away from the bedside the patient may have separated the tube and allowed the hot water to inflict some purely superficial scalds like blisters. It was these little scalds that led to the suggestion that they might have been contributory to hastening her death. This remote suggestion was, as has been stated, wiped out by the evidence of the four physicians who were at the post-mortem examination.

Dr Connal, professor of Pathology at Queen's University, who was present at the post-mortem, stated that the patient unquestionably had suffered from a disease that had reached a stage that was incompatible with the continuance of life.

The complete exoneration of the hospital authorities from the slightest culpability was the only outcome that appeared possible, judging the circumstances on the evidence submitted. This fact should prove gratifying when the arduousness and extreme care which the nurses at the hospital invariably exercises is considered.

BARNARDO MUSICAL BOYS PROVIDED ENJOYABLE PROGRAM

They Will Remain in the City the Remainder of the Week a Series of Meetings Having Been Arranged for by Rev. Mr. Mayers.

It is safe to say that the audience at the Grand Opera House last night listened with keen enjoyment to the musical entertainment given by the Barnardo Boys and also that the audience was in direct sympathy with the short address given by Rev. W. J. Mayers, who has charge of the boys and is touring Canada in the interests of Dr. Barnardo's Homes.

Rev. Robt. Pogue acted as chairman

The boys proved themselves to be experts with the hand bells and other musical instruments and the generous applause commanding as it did encores from the musicians was a thoroughly deserved compliment to their skill.

A number of the ministers of the city were noticed in the audience and at the close of Mr. Mayers' address Rev Canon Davidson, in a few well chosen words on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough expressed their appreciation of having a part in the world-wide enterprise.

Rev. Mr. Mayers displayed pictures of Barnardo institutions, explaining their location and the work being done. At the present time 9,000 children are being cared for. An especially interesting picture was that of the Margaret Cox Home for Girls which Dr. Mayers, who has spent 26 years in the work has been showing in various parts of the world.

His mission to Canada is to raise $25,000 with which to erect an institution in England for boys and which would be given the name of Canada Hall.

The boys will remain in Peterborough for the remainder of the week while Dr. Mayers goes to Toronto to adjust the arrangements for the Canadian tour. Different citizens have answered to the call for accommodation for the boys.

Saturday afternoon an entertainment and address will be given in the Collegiate Hall and on Sunday Dr. Mayers will speak in St. Paul's church in the morning and in George street church in the evening After church services a meeting will be held in the Opera House when Rev Mr. Mayers will speak and the boys will give sacred selections on the various instruments.

INSTRUCTOR FOR NORWOOD HIGH SCHOOL CADETS

Norwood, Oct. 17.—A special meeting of the Norwood Board of Education was held last Friday evening to consider a proposition submitted by Lieut. Birdsall, who offered through the Militia Department to furnish a qualified instructor for the Norwood High School Cadet Corps twice a week during the months of November and December. After some consideration the following motion was moved by Mr. E. P. Cuffe and seconded by Mr. E. C. Squire: "In consideration of Col. R. E. Birdsall's suggestion that the Government would send at their expense a qualified instructor twice each week during November and December to drill the High School Cadets, I move that the Secretary communicate immediately with Col. Birdsall and request that such instructor be sent to us and that our High School Principal be asked to regulate his time table accordingly."—Carried.

BARBERS QUIT THEIR JOB BECAUSE PRICES WERE CUT

Their Employer Failed to Pay Wages in Full, But Magistrate Says He Must

An interesting case was aired in police court this morning, growing out of two actions for the recovery of wages instituted by Albert Lewis and John Smith, against their former employer, Mr. Monty Eggington, who recently started a tobacco and tonsorial shop on George street. The amounts were $4 and $8 respectively and judgment and costs was awarded the plaintiffs by Magistrate Dumble, after a rather lengthy hearing.

Lewis stated that he hired with Mr. Eggingston at $16.00 a week on the understanding that the former, who was just commencing business would conduct a union shop. He claimed that defendant violated this agreement by cutting prices, and feeling that he would not be conforming with the union regulations, plaintiff quit the job. He was obliged to either quit the union or leave Mr. Eggington's employ. When he pulled out, Mr. Eggington was his debtor to the extent of $8. When asked to come across with the wages, Mr. Eggington stated that he was going to see some legal men in Toronto, about fighting the union.

"He said he was through with me and I would have to secure it by law," said plaintiff.

SPOKE OF SPITE

Mr. Eggington questioned the plaintiff in court as to whether he had given him notice of leaving. Mr. Lewis replied that he, (Mr. Eggington) was aware that cutting prices was not countenanced by the union. The latter intimated that it was petty spite on the part of the other barbers in the city to take his barbers away.

Eggington based his case upon the ground that he knew there was no written rule in the union constitution, saying that barbers should not cut prices.

THE UNWRITTEN LAW

Mr. M. H. Gainey was sworn and stated that each union had its own set of rules governing conditions, and that an unwritten law was always recognized that no barber should cut prices.

Mr. Eggington also stated that plaintiff had left him because the union offered him four weeks wages to quit. The union always give a member who is on strike $5 a week. The plaintiff admitted that a number of the barbers had guaranteed him $10 a week if he would come out. Plaintiff however, affirmed that he would have left regardless of their offer.

Mr. Eggington strongly held that as there was no rule in the union law forbidding the cutting of prices that he was not entitled to forfeit the amount of the actions.

His Worship however, felt that he had violated a stipulated agreement to operate a union shop, by cutting the prices, and therefore gave judgment and costs in favor of the plaintiffs.

REPORT ON COW TESTING WORK FOR MONTH OF AUGUST

Central Smith Association to the Front, With Trewern Second.

The August report of the Dairy Record Centres of Canada shows that the average production per cow in the Peterborough Centre was 767 lbs. milk and 28.8 lbs. fat. The Central Smith Association took the lead with 929 lbs. milk and 29.7 lbs. fat, while the Trewern Association was second with 869 lbs. milk and 28.3 lbs. fat. Norwood was third with 835 lbs. milk and 27.5 lbs. fat.

The lowest average production was 50 lbs. milk and 20 lbs. fat, so it is plainly evident that there is vast room for improvement in many of the cows in the Peterborough Centre when there is a difference between the best Associations and the poorest of over 400 lbs. milk and of 9 3-4 lbs. of fat. Valuing the fat at 29 cents per lb. this is a difference of 2.82 per cow or more than enough to pay for the cost of its feed.

Last fall it was stated that in 1912 the Peterborough Centre would be the largest in Canada and this has come true. A movement is now on foot to make the Peterborough Association the largest in Canada in 1913 and judging by the interest shown and by the number of new members secured this fall this will be easily accomplished.

Following is a list of the officers of the Peterborough Association any of whom will be pleased to give any information wished for in regard to Cow Testing:

President—Sidney Matchett.
Vice-President—R. S. Jackson.
Directors—R. C. Banbridge, Fred Campbell, W. R. Shield.

HEAVY TOUCH FOR SLIGHT OFFENCE; IT WAS $25.75

Norwood, Oct. 16.—Two men who came to Norwood Fair, apparently did not know what the law is in local option municipalities or if they did they disregarded the mandate, and as a consequence each parted with $25.75 on a charge of being intoxicated. One of the victims remarked on being told by the magistrate what his little spree would cost him that it was a heavy touch for a slight offence.

Had Bad Sore Four Years

Zam-Buck Has Healed It!

Mrs. Wilson, 119 Wickson Ave., Troonto, says: "About four years ago a sore spot appeared on the right side of my face. This sport increased in size until it became about half an inch in diameter and very painful. I went to a doctor, but the ointment he gave me did not have any good effect. The sore continued to discharge freely, and was most painful. I had it cauterised, tried poultices, and all kinds of salves, but it was no good, and I continued to suffer from it for four years!

"A sample of Zam-Buk was one day was given to me and I used it. Although the quantity was so small, it seemed to do me some good, so I purchased a further supply.

"Each box did me more and more good, and to my delight, before I had been using Zam-Buk three weeks, I saw that it was going to heal the sore. In less than a month it was healed!

"I know a lady in the east of the city, whose husband suffered for years with an open sore on his leg. On my recommendation, Zam-Buk was tried in that case. The other day, when I saw her, she told me that it had healed the sore completely.

"My daughter, who lives in Lethbridge, Alta., has also used Zam-Buk with the same satisfactory result. I think it is, beyond all doubt, the finest healing balm known."

Such is the opinion of all persons who have really tried Zam-Buk. It is a sure cure for eczema, piles, abscesses, ulcers, scalp sores, ringworm, cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. In case of skin disease use also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

North Waterloo Liberals will not contest the coming bye-election. A Socialist and an Independent are now opposing the Conservative.

WEDDING BELLS

TAYLOR—McCOY

A quiet wedding took place at the Charlotte street church parsonage, 302 Reid street at 9.30 o'clock this morning, when Mr. George Chester Taylor was united in marriage to Miss Lottei K. McCoy, by the Rev. T. J. Mansell. The bride and groom were unattended.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will reside on Frederick Ave., where Mrs. Taylor will receive, the last week in November.

WEBBER—FLYNN

A very pretty wedding took place in St. Peter's Cathedral at 8 o'clock this morning, when Mr. Michael Webber, of Rochester was united in marriage to Miss Anna Flynn of this city by the Rev. Father McColl. The bride wore a blue serge travelling suit with a black picture hat.

After the cermony, the nuptial party drove to the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Flynn, [illegible] where a dainty wedding breakfast was served with Coleman Bros. as caterers.

Mr. and Mrs. Webber were the recipients of many wedding presents from friends and relatives.

The happy couple left this morning for Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo, after which they will return for a short stay in the city before leaving for Rochester, the home of Mr. Webber, where they will live in future.

DALTON — GUERIN

A quiet wedding was solemnized in St. Peter's Cathedral at 9 o'clock this morning, when Mr. Thomas Dalton was united in marriage to Miss Lenore Guerin by the Rev. Father McColl.

CADIGAN — FAGAN

At the church of the Sacred Heart at 7.30 o'clock this morning, Mr. Steven Cadigan was marreid to Miss Mary Fagan by the Rev. Dr. O'Brien.

Mr. Joseph Holland acted as groomsman, while Miss Gertrude McMartin acted as bridesmaid.

Mr. and Mrs. Cadigan will reside in the south end of the city.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

WHY IT SQUEALS.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The Examiner is trying to heap abuse on Mr. Burnham and to draw the attention of the people away from Macdonald. But it can't be done. It might as well stop kickin'. The boys aren't done laughin' yet. Hon. Frank Oliver, who arrived in Ottawa, two days before the election, for the marriage of his daughter, was interviewed by the Press, and he said to one and all in his kindly way: "I have been in the constituency for some time. I tell you Macdonald will be redeemed. Nothing surer and nothing can prevent it." When we remember that the only bad 'uns caught and found guilty (and they confessed) were Liberal workers, we see why Hon. Frank was so sure. Well Reciprocity is "kilt intoirely" now, so good-bye to it and let us go to work to build up a Canadian Canada and a British Canada in our own way.

Yours truly,
TAI TAI

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir—The letter of consistency, published in yesterday's issue of your paper, was in my opinion a most unfair attack upon the Reverend Canon Davidson.

The writer intimates that the Rev. gentleman's attitude is to assume a lofty position in lecturing the citizens upon their public duties and in so doing he departs from the sphere of his own duty and is lacking in sincerity.

I am confident that anyone who is acquainted with Mr. Davidson and who knows the interest he takes in public affairs and the manner in which he has devoted his time and attention to public questions, cannot agree with this criticism. That he is a sincere and a zealous pastor is known, not only to his own congregation but to the public generally. If from time to time he discusses matters of public concern, he does so upon broad grounds and with a view of developing a better citizenship and of creating high ideals in the minds of the people, and he has done, not a little, to establish harmony and good will amongst the different sects of this community.

Yours truly,
D. O'CONNELL.

ABOUT THOSE C.P.R. RATES

The average Western man takes it for granted that because the Canadian Pacific Railway is a highly prosperous undertaking, it has become such by charging exorbitant rates on Western produce. Hence he is now demanding that there shall be a general revision of rates by the Railway Board; in particular that those in the Canadian West shall be reduced to the level of those in the Western States, where population is very much greater, notwithstanding that the American railways are at this moment pressing the Inter-state Commerce Commission for leave to increase their rates in order to keep up with the enhanced cost of operation.

This want of logic in his position appears in a clearer light when he tells us in the next breath that new railways must be built forthwith to serve the constantly growing needs of the West; as if the foreign investor, from whom we get all our money, was a stupid person who liked to witness the forcing down of rates by popular clamor, indeed is encouraged thereby to open up more freely for Canadian enterprises.

Canadian roads, including of course the Canadian Pacific, are suffering just as acutely as the American ones from the increase in the cost of operation arising from higher wages to employes and the higher price of materials. The Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific are as yet only in course of construction, and will need all the capital they can procure from England or France for many a day to come. The Dominion government section of the Grand Trunk Pacific is costing four or five times more than the original estimate, while the 3 per cent. bonds which the government guaranteed for the section between Winnipeg and Prince Rupert are selling considerably below par. Meantime, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia have guaranteed bonds of the face value of about $80,000,000 for local lines, and the railway promoter is as busy as he can be throughout Eastern Canada.

On top of this the West is straining every nerve to attract additional foreign capital to its lands and townsites as well as to local manufactures; for the prevailing inflation has reached the stage when no one cares to buy, because he has not the money to buy with, and equities are being eaten up by interest and taxes. Assuming, therefore, that the West could make out a good case for rate reduction, the question is whether this is an opportune time to reduce. That is a matter of public policy, however, with which Judge Drayton has nothing to do, although obviously of vital importance to all who wish to see the national credit preserved at home and abroad.

The Canadian Pacific is strong enough to withstand any attack, but other companies are not in that happy situation; besides which any injury is received is bound to react in the London market upon Canadian securities in general. The Western man does not apparently know that the surest way to create railway monopoly, which he so much dreads, is to force the weaker lines into bankruptcy and thus leave them a prey to financial interests willing and able to consolidate them or turn them into alliances, under the control of a few men of large wealth. This has been the history of nearly all the vast railway aggregations in the United States and it may repeat itself in Canada if we allow the platform orator to play too big a role in the supervision of rates.

The notion that the Canadian Pacific has grown rich through being merciless to the settler is absurd on its face and will be exploded once for all at the present inquiry. Its progress has been due primarily to the rapid development of the country it traverses, the development in turn being due in great part to its own immense energy; while among the secondary causes may be mentioned a highly capable yet at the same time economical management and its foresight in keeping in its hands such sources of revenue as the telegraph, express and sleeping car services which nearly every other road in North America has turned over to outside companies.

To encourage the rapid settlement of the West, on which its own prosperity hinged it adopted from the first the policy of granting the lowest rates it could possibly afford to grain, cattle and other commodities originating there, that they might be sold to the best advantage. The rates on merchandise entering the West are not so important to the farmer, the value of what he ships out being many times greater than the cost of what he brings in; but even in that case the tolls have always been reasonable.

This is merely the application on a conspicuous scale of the principle of charging what the traffic will bear, a process which the agitator construes as meaning that the railway charges the settler all he can pay and live, when in reality it is but a form of the graduated taxation so popular in the West, and brought to perfection in England by Lloyd George, whereby taxes are levied in such a manner as to relieve the poor by laying extra burdens on the rich. Such freight as dry goods, or boots and shoes pays a higher rate than wheat, a lower-priced commodity may be carried to its distant market at a rate that leaves the grower a profit. Clearly if it were charged the same rate as merchandise, a car load would eat his head off, long before it reached Liverpool from the Canadian harvest field.

The Canadian Pacific pays 10 percent per annum to its shareholders but of this only 7 per cent. comes out of earnings, the remaining 3 per cent being interest derived from investments and from deferred payments for land sales. Who would wish to return to the gloomy period when Canada was represented in London by a bankrupt Grand Trunk. Where is the western farmer who is not netting more from his labor and capital, saying nothing of the increase in the value of his land, which the railway is the chief instrumentality in bringing about!

Since 1885 the Company has spent millions upon millions in improving its road, the benefits of which are shared to a considerable extent by the farmer, and in reducing rates, local and through, certainly for his benefit as much as for its own. Its outlays in promoting immigration have reached enormous proportions, and here again the settler has been a gainer.

There is no sense in comparing its rates with those in force between New York and Philadelphia, Montreal and Toronto, or Chicago and Buffalo, but they compare favorably with those in Minnesota and the Dakotas, and are very much lower than the rates that prevailed in older States when they were of the same age and in the same stage of development as the Canadian West.

The truth in the Western argument is largely based on the exaggerations and misconceptions of the stump. Here is even so staid a body as the Winnipeg Board of Trade declaring in an official circular that there has been no reduction in rates from Winnipeg since the time, nearly 30 years ago, when Mr. Van Horne said that rates would naturally fall as the volume of traffic increased.

As a matter of fact, reductions have been made over and over again and any of the older members of the Board could have learned this by looking at their books and comparing the rates of 1886 with those of to-day. The story cannot be told in full in a newspaper, but taking wheat, an important article, the rate from Fort William to Winnipeg has been reduced in that period from 28 to 10 cents per 100 pounds, that is, from 16.8 cents to 6 cents a bushel; or, to put it in another way the shipper can now send 2¼ bushels and more for the same money it formerly cost to send one.

There have been equally striking reductions in the wheat rates from Brandon and other points on the main line and branches, while the rates for cement, lumber, apples, coal oil, implements and other commodities imported by the farmer have also been greatly cut. One wonders what these Western orator would have said and done had he lived in Upper Canada in its pioneer days, when modern transportation was in its infancy and the forest had to be got rid of before the crop could be sown.

If there are any anomalies in the Canadian Pacific tariffs that unduly burden the settler, by all means let them be eliminated. But Judge Drayton and his colleagues will be more likely to discover that the West is, on the whole, faring exceedingly well at the hands of the railways; in other words, that those who are complaining have either not gone to the trouble to ascertain the truth or have added embellishments of their own that disfigure its fair face out of all recognition.

LIVELY NOTES FROM OMEMEE

Special Correspondence.

Omemee, Oct. 15.—The Rev. J. F. Chapman, B.A., of Omemee, preached anniversary sermons in Zion Methodist church on Sunday last at 3 and 7 p.m.

Mr. R. A. Barron returned home from Bracebridge on Friday evening.

The Misses Bannon, teachers, spent the week end at their home here.

Misses McConnell, Nichols, Bushnell, Fee and Balfour, teachers attended the convention at Lindsay.

Mr. R. Bradley, merchant, of Dunsford, spent Sunday at his home in Omemee.

Mr. Bert Bruce was home for over Sunday.

On Friday afternoon the annual Thankoffering meeting of the W. F. M. S. was held in the Presbyterian church. The ladies present were the recipients of a rare treat from Mrs. (Rev.) Jas Rodgers, of Peterborough, who delivered a very appropriate and much appreciated address. At the conclusion of the meeting the ladies served refreshments.

Mrs. O. M. Williamson has been in Belleville for some days owing to the illness of her sister, Mrs. Campbell, of that city.

Miss Elva Thompson, of Lindsay, was a recent visitor of her parents, Dr. J. N. and Mrs. Thompson, on Sturgeon St.

We regret to report that the illness of Mr. Bernie Rehill made it advisable to remove him to the Ross Hospital at Lindsay on Thursday last. His many friends hope for a rapid and complete convalescence.

The Presbyterians will hold their anniversary services on Sunday, 27th inst., to be followed by a fowl supper and a lecture by Dr. Nugent, the evening of the follo [illegible]

Now that Omemee is [illegible] with navigation—the Trent Valley Canal—and is attaining to more magnificence in public buildings, let us all pull together for a greater Omemee. The location of a factory that would employ a number of workers might engage profitably the attention of our city fathers and our Board of Trade.

The Misses Parsons have returned from Toronto where they had an extended and enjoyable visit with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Williamson are very happy—it is a bouncing son the stork presented them with.

Mr. Frank Fee was a business visitor to Lindsay on Friday.

The public schools were closed on Thursday and Friday, the entire staff being present at the Teachers' Convention at Lindsay.

Mr. Robert Courtney returned on Friday from the prairie provinces, where he spent the past four months. He looks hale and hearty and reports a splendid harvest in the part he was located—along the C.N.R. in Saskatchewan—wheat running as high as 35 and 40 bushels per acre. The weather was pretty cold and heavy ice had been formed before he left. Late oats would not mature but be cut for fodder only.

Miss Maud Handley, of Mount Pleasant, is staying with friends at Omemee.

The Ladies Aid of the Methodist church have advertised a tea and entertainment for 23rd inst.

Co-operative Shipping.

The Nova Scotia United Fruit Growers Association, which is a co-operative concern, is this year shipping at least half the apples grown in the Annapolis Valley. The first shipments were made about the middle of September. At least five steamers will be loaded at Annapolis before the end of the season. One fruit grower in the Valley, Mr. S. B. Chute, has an orchard of 220 acres. He says the crop prospects are splendid, though it will probably not equal the record crop of last year.

BIG CHEQUE FOR FARMER

He Received $1,890 for One Load of Alsike

Lindsay, Oct. 15.—The largest cheque ever given to any farmer for one load of alsike clover in this district was that presented by the firm of Spratt & Killen, grocers and grain dealers, to Mr. Walter Curtis of Ops township, during last week. The amount paid was $1,890.00. This was the sum received for the proceeds of 30 acres of seed, which averaged about six bushels to the acre.

It is many years now since so large a sum was paid for a single team load of grain, the most ever heard of being $900.00 paid to the late John Connolly, of Ops, by Mr. C. L. Baker over 25 years ago, for a load of red clover.

Mr. T. Simons, of Ops, was supposed to have received the largest sum ever paid a farmer at one payment for grain, he having received from Mr. Baker $2,250 for the proceeds of his spring wheat crop.

L'Iceberg Sauveur.

Under the above title a Paris contemporary quotes from a Canadian review, to which a member of the Government of Newfoundland contributes an article, in which he expresses surprise that no attempt was made at the time of the Titanic disaster to take refuge upon the icebergs. The safety of the passengers would have been almost assured, he suggests, if they had utilized the ice floating about as rafts. Had they done so they would have been in comparative safety until the Carpathia had arrived, or some other ship; but, as our contemporary observes, to seek refuge on that which had caused the wreck would have been somewhat hazardous, in view of their drifting towards the south.

It is almost incredible, Mr. Magrath proceeds— for he is the writer of the article referred to — that among so many men no one should have made the suggestion. Had anyone from Newfoundland been present he would have done so, for he would have recollected the escape, under similar conditions, among others, which is celebrated. In April, 1873, the Tigress was sailing towards Newfoundland and rescued the survivors of the Arctic ship Polaris. They had been carried 1,600 miles upon their ice raft, and were saved only by good fortune. Their vessel had been sunk by an iceberg in the month of September in the previous year, and they had been in this perilous position for 193 days.

An Employer's Liability Policy
MIGHT SAVE YOU HEAVY DAMAGES

While an accident may be due to an employee's own carelessness, still there's no certainty that the employer will not have to pay heavy damages. New legislation too is steadily increasing the responsibility of the employer. But an Employer's Liability Policy in the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would protect you against financial loss through injuries to an employee while on duty. The General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would deal justly with your employee too. It is noted for fairness and broadmindedness. It is one of the oldest and strongest Insurance Companies in the world. Do not delay to write for further particulars.

Injuries in the industrial world are frequent. In the building, metal and woodworking trades alone there were 294 people killed and 1,421 injured in Canada during 1910 and 1911. Our business is to relieve the employer of all financial responsibility resulting from accident.

Woman's World

Helen Keller Sings at Harvard Medical School.

MISS HELEN KELLER.

Miss Helen Keller, born deaf, dumb and blind, showed the assembled otologists at their congress in the Harvard Medical school recently that she had added still another to her phenomenal list of accomplishments when she sang to them.

During the formal addresses, which were mostly in foreign tongues, Miss Keller sat on the platform listening through the fingers of her teacher, Professor White of the New England Conservatory of Music, and now and then applauding when a speaker made a particularly pleasing reference to the new education of the blind.

When it came Professor White's turn he demonstrated the extent of control that Miss Keller had gained over her vocal chords, tongue and lips. His illustrations were conveyed from his lips to Miss Keller's finger tips, placed tightly over his mouth. All the vowels and consonant sounds uttered by Miss Keller came out clearly and precisely, and the audience spontaneously broke into the heartiest applause.

Then came the crowning achievement, the singing of an octave on sol and fa and re, some of the tones being very sweet. This performance not only amazed but delighted the savants.

Miss Keller, Professor White says, has the rare faculty of absolute pitch.

Previous to giving this exhibition Miss Keller made an address in English, in which she said:

"This is a new day in the education of the deaf, the day when the physician is no longer content to fight the hostile silences with medicine and surgical instruments alone, but helps the teacher to pour the blessed waters of speech into the desert of dumbness."

WORK GOOD FOR WOMEN.

Professor Scherger Says Toil Made Primitive Wife Man's Equal.

In primitive times when the male half of the household went out to his wars, his hunting and his pleasures and left the other half behind to do the dirty work man and woman were more on an equality than at the present time.

This is what George L. Scherger, professor of political economy and history in Armour institute, said recently.

It was the work the women did which put them on a par with men. When they commenced to take it easy they degenerated. He said they should receive at least equal recognition with men because—

They were the first farmers.

They were the first carpenters or builders of homes.

They were the first to tackle art by making pottery.

They were the first writers.

They were the tamers of all domestic animals, except the dog.

"It seemed to be the business of the primitive man to go out and get the food," said Professor Scherger. "The women were left at home to develop art and industry. Women degenerated as soon as they were deprived of the opportunity to work. As soon as they were shut up in the household they became parasites. So long as they were able to work they maintained an equality with men."

Professor Scherger cited Mrs. Ella Flagg Young and Miss Jane Addams as women who were at least equal with any men in the same line of work.

Sewing Room Closet.

Many women in a sewing room constantly jump up and down to get some piece of lace or material to finish a garment. If the hundred and one things a woman needs at her work were all in some convenient place all this trouble would be avoided.

If there is a large closet in the sewing room or in the room where most of the family sewing is done get three or four shelves and divide these at convenient heights inside of the closet.

On each shelf arrange four or five boxes and then place the various kinds of laces, velvets, silks, buttons, etc., in one box, marking clearly just what such box contains.

A closet arranged in this way will be found a great convenience and time saver to the home dressmaker.

To Remember Livingstone.

A call is being issued to all the Protestant churches in Canada to appoint committees of arrangements next winter for a celebration of the centennial of the birth of David Livingstone. This takes place March 19, 1913. The great missionary work of Dr. Livingstone is to be a theme at the missionary meetings of the conventions. The celebrations will be world-wide. In Canada it will be under the auspices of the Canadian Council of the Laymen's Movement.

The call for the Livingstone celebration also calls for an anniversary meeting of the laymen's movement this month.

Sunday, Nov. 10, has been appointed as a day of prayer for missions throughout the Dominion.

Holding the Sunshade.

The sunshade seems to be a rock upon which many a woman's good taste hopelessly founders. Not only does one often see uncomfortable color mixtures, but quite as often the sunshade is held so ungracefully that the whole effect is awkward and clumsy. There ought to be classes on "how to hold the sunshade," and nine women out of ten would benefit from the lessons, but as yet no enterprising individual has originated the idea. A little practice before a long mirror is recommended. Also take note of the following: See that you do not grasp the handle as if it were an implement of war. Do not hold it too near the center of the handle nor too near the tip. Both these faults are very common and give a most awkward appearance. Don't use it as a walking stick nor, if it has a crook handle, hang it on your arm. Hold it lightly and easily a little distance from the top of the handle and at a slightly slanting angle.

For the Sick Room.

A delightful deodorizing disinfectant for a sickroom is made by putting ground coffee in a saucer with a small piece of gum camphor in the middle. Light the camphor with a match, and as it burns the coffee will be consumed, at the same time throwing off an agreeable odor.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost is the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are thing and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same fur you. For the Children

Little Miss Mavis Yorke, Child Actress and Dancer.

© by American Press Association.

The charming little girl here pictured with a Cupid's bow in her hand is Miss Mavis Yorke, a talented English child actress and dancer, for whom a great future is predicted. Little Miss Yorke has attracted wide attention in London by her sweetness, grace and beauty. She dances like a veritable fairy—so lightly she trips that she seems to float in the air. Dancing, by the way, is an excellent exercise for young folks, as it promotes grace of movement and tends to eliminate awkwardness. It can easily be overdone, however, and in that case is a positive harm. Of course not every boy or girl either, for that matter, can become so proficient as Mavis Yorke, for in addition to great natural ability she has had the benefit of expert instruction. The photograph from which this picture was made was taken in the Botanical gardens, Regents park, London.

Hurdy Gurdy Man.

As a fun producer the game of the hurdy-gurdy man ranks high and is always a great success at afternoon parties. To play it seat the players in a circle and let one of them be chosen as hurdy gurdy man. Then ask each of the others what musical instrument he will be. After all have chosen the hurdy gurdy man begins to sing:

I'm a hurdy gurdy man.
I'm a hurdy gurdy man.
You must do the best you can
To please the hurdy gurdy man.

As he sings he accompanies himself on an imaginary piano, and the others sing with him and accompany themselves on the instruments they have chosen—for instance, the boy who has chosen to be the drum makes the motions of drumming, and the boy who has chosen to be a hand organ grinds an imaginary hand organ, and so on.

After a few moments the hurdy gurdy man stops playing the piano and begins playing some other instrument. If he plays the drum the drummer must instantly leave off playing the drum and begin playing the piano, the instrument the hurdy gurdy man has just stopped playing. In a moment the hurdy gurdy man changes to the fife and the fife player immediately takes up the drum, and so it goes on, the hurdy gurdy man changing ever faster and faster till finally he takes up the piano again, whereupon all the players go back to their original instruments, and the game begins all over again.

Call Ball.

This game is good fun and is best played out of doors with eight or ten players. One is chosen to toss the ball, and each player is given a number.

The players take positions not farther than the ball can easily be thrown. The tosser then throwing the ball calls one of the players by his number—8, 10, 2 or whatever he may choose. The player with that number must run and catch the ball, not letting it bound more than once.

A good tosser keeps the players on the alert, guessing who will be called next, and by sometimes calling one at a good distance from the ball lends excitement to the game.

Kitty Don't.

Such a mischief loving lassie,
It tries one's patience quite
To watch the child. She cannot do
A single thing that's right.

'Tis "Kitty, don't say that, dear!"
"Oh, Kitty, don't do so!"
These are the words that greet her
Wherever she may go.

When just at dusk one evening
She climbed upon my knee
In playful mood I asked her name,
"Why, Kitty, 'course!" said she.

"Yes, Kitty, but the rest, dear?"
She hung her curly head.
The rogue, for just a moment,
Then "Kitty Don't," she said.

Coal, But No Gold.

After great hardships in the frozen north, Captain J. Barlett of the steamer Neptune of St. John's, Newfoundland, who headed a gold hunting expedition to Baffin Land, has returned, reporting the loss of one of his ships and the discovery of extensive coal deposits, but no gold.

The sealing steamer Algerine of the expedition was lost in Pond's Inlet. After she was crushed in the ice, the ship's company walked forty miles over the floes to land and found a cache left by Captain Bernier. For two weeks they subsisted in four crackers each per day, while they worked their way to Button Point, 70 degrees north latitude, where they were picked up by the Neptune. The party was unable to penetrate far into the interior owing to ice and unfavorable weather conditions.

Wm. Madill guarantees it.

ROSY CHEEKS THIS YEAR.

Damp Weather Has Been a Boon to the Womenfolk.

Canadian ladies' faces have always been charming, and the Dominion has been noted for its beautiful women. In spite of the high standard, however, an improvement has lately been noticed. A gradual alluring change has been at work, a subtle, unthought-of influence, and so, our girls are more ravishing than ever. It isn't that their features have been altered; nor is it the result of a closer attention to the laws of beauty. The change has come in the complexion, and the good fairy is something which the beneficiaries have hated and execrated. Such is the peculiar method of that unfathomable goddess, Nature herself, says a writer in The Toronto Star.

That rain and dampness are the best "creams" for the complexion is easily capable of proof owing to universal example. The Canadian complexion always has been rather good, because this country has rarely been afflicted with long periods of drought. Except by the most prejudiced, however, it has been agreed that the English complexion is more ideal than the one typical of Canada. Occasionally, of course, the English face coloring is too pink and almost borders on the florid. But the average should be the basis of comparison, and this method awards the palm to Great Britain's daughters.

The reason? Undoubtedly, the humidity and dampness of the British Isles. The air of France is clearer and drier; it probably quickens the intellect, but it dulls the cheeks. For this summer, Canada has been England at its very dampest, and our women are now the possessors of the same delicately-hued, silk-like skin.

The effect of the climate on the complexion is nowhere more graphically illustrated than in Western Canada. The present flood conditions have prevailed on the prairies also this season, but usually the air in that region is remarkably dry. It is one of the chief advertisements of the West, and is extolled in all real estate advertisements, and praised by every man, who feels his blood tingle more vigorously and his mind act more briskly. The women, however, either keep silent or openly complain. They know that their complexion is suffering, and that only the wholesale use of lotions and a periodical visit to a damper climate will prevent their skin drying and cracking.

Travel a few hundred miles further, to the British Columbia coast, and see the difference. After living on the prairies for a year, it is almost startling to drop into Vancouver some afternoon, and to go down to the docks where crowds of gaily-dressed women are waiting for the coast steamers to take them for a trip to Victoria. The ladies' faces are like roses, the dainty pink roses blooming in the innumerable Vancouver gardens. The rain has done it all.

Perhaps our girls here will never have as good an opportunity again as they have had during this wet summer. They should realize, however, the real blessings of damp weather, and should determine to take every possible advantage from even infrequent rains in the future. The trouble is that Ontario women don't know how to act in wet weather. When they see the clouds roll up and the sky darken, they mumble and grumble about not being able to go out. They avoid the rain like a plague; they will run for a block to get away from it. Rather should they welcome it, and rush out to meet it.

Largest Bridge In Nova Scotia.

The Livingstone bridge, the longest bridge in Nova Scotia, and which spans Wallace Harbor, was formally opened for traffic recently. Nearly 3,000 people gathered to witness the interesting ceremony. The construction work was commenced in May, 1911, and was completed a few weeks ago. The bridge consists of seven spans in all, one 150 feet long, six 100 feet long, and a draw of 160 feet, making a total length of the steel work, with the abutments, of 771 feet. In addition to this the approaches are 2,200 feet long, making a grand total of 2,971 feet for the length of the bridge. The cost of the bridge, which was built by the local Government, was $65,000.

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

MATHEWSON RETIRES BOSTON SIDE ON THREE PITCHED BALLS

Big Six Performs This Feat After Hooper Robs Snodgrass of a Home Run With Grand Running Catch--Giants Scored One Run in the Third and Boston Evens Up in the Seventh.

Fenway Park, Boston, Oct. 16.—In clear nipping air with the sun shining brightly, but not creating enough warmth for comfort of baseball enthusiasts, the eighth game of the series between the Red Sox and Giants for the world's championship started this afternoon. There were only a few stragglers in line for the bleachers at daylight, but soon the crowd commenced to gather for what is expected to be the decisive game.

The batteries are:—

New York—Mathewson and Meyers.
Boston—Bedient and Cady.

FIRST INNINGS.

The first ball pitched was a ball. Devore was out Wagner to Stahl. Doyle went out Wagner to Stahl, but Snodgrass walked to first. The Giants were waiting Bedient to the last ball and strike, fifteen balls being thrown to the players before the first two men were retired. Snodgrass stole second, Wagner dropping Cady's perfect throw. Snodgrass over-slid the base, but scrambled back before Wagner could recover the ball. Murray out, Gardner to Stahl. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Hooper went out to Merkle unassisted, bunting first ball pitched almost into Merkle's hand. Yerkes struck out; Speaker singled to right and took second on Doyle dropping it. Lewis struck out. No runs, 1 hit, 1 error.

SECOND INNINGS.

Merkle struck out, Herzog flew out to Speaker. Meyers was safe when Gardner let the batter's slow roller go between his legs. Fletcher singled to centre, Meyers taking second. On the throw from Cady to Wagner to catch Meyers, the New York catcher turned and ran to third and was safe when Gardner dropped Wagner's throw. Fletcher took second on the play, but Mathewson flew out to Speaker, No runs, 1 hit, 2 errors.

Gardner walked. This was Mathewson's first base on balls in 21 innings. Gardner was forced at second when Doyle took Stahl's grounder and tossed it to Fletcher. Wagner singled to left, Stahl taking second. Cady sent up a high fly to Merkle. Bedient was out Doyle to Merkle, No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

THIRD INNINGS.

Devore walked. Doyle was out Gardner to Stahl, Devore going to second. Snodgrass went out to Stahl unassisted. Devore went to third and scored on Murray's two base hit to left. Merkle out Wagner to Stahl. One run, 1 hit, no errors.

Hooper out Doyle to Merkle. Yerkes was out Matty to Merkle. Speaker struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

FOURTH INNINGS.

Herzog got a long hit to left for two bases and Meyers sacrificed Gardener to Stahl, Herzog going to third. Fletcher flew out to Gardner; Matty flied to Hooper. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Lewis out Fletcher to Merkle. Snodgrass dropped Gardener's long fly, but Gardener was out at third on a relay from Snodgrass to Doyle to Herzog. The official scorer, however, has credited Gardener with a two base hit. Stahl struck out. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

FIFTH INNINGS.

Devore got an infield hit, but was out stealing, Cady to Wagner. Doyle flew out to Hooper. It was the most remarkable catch of the whole series, Hooper running with the ball caught it just as it was about to pass into the crowd in right field. The catch prevented a home run. Snodgrass singled to left. Murray fouled out to Cady. No runs 2 hits, no errors.

Wagner flew out to Murray. Cady flew out to Murray. Bedient flew out to Devore. No runs, no hits, no errors. Mathewson retired the Red Sox in this innings on three pitched balls.

SIXTH INNINGS.

Merkle sent a high fly to Hooper, while Herzog went out Wagner to Stahl, who picked the shortstop's low throw out of the dirt. Meyers walked and Fletcher struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Hooper popped out to Merkle. Yerkes got a single to right. Speaker walked, Yerkes going to second. Speaker was forced at second when Fletcher took Lewis' grounder and tossed to Doyle. Yerkes went to third on the play, but on an attempted double steal Yerkes was out at third. No runs, one hit, no errors.

SEVENTH INNINGS.

Matty sent up a high foul which Stahl dropped. Mathewson singled to centre, but was forced at second, when Bedient took Devore's bunt and threw to Wagner. Doyle flied out to Wagner and Devore stole second. Snodgrass went out Gardner to Stahl. No runs, one hit, one error.

Gardner flew out to Snodgrass; Stahl got a single to left. Wagner walked. Cady flew out to Fletcher, and Henrickson batted for Bedient, Stahl scoring on Henrickson's two base swat, Wagner taking third. Hooper flied to Snodgrass. One run, 2 hits, no errors.

Wood is now pitching for Boston.

P.C.I. FOURTEEN TO MEET T.C.S.

Return Game at Riverside Park, Saturday Afternoon

The P. C. I. rugby aggregation will make a valiant effort on Saturday afternoon to reverse the score which went against them in their game with Port Hope T. C. S. last Saturday. The Collegians will be in Peterborough on Saturday and they will stack up against the local students in what should prove an exciting struggle at Riverside Park.

The P. C. I. line-up will not be changed.

Y.M.C.A. SPORT

The second game in the Intermediate Class Basketball League was played last night. A. Darling and C. Stewart's team were the contenders. At half time the score stood 4-0 and at full time 11-0. Two periods and overtime being played, Darling's team scoring the much needed basket in the last minute of play. Final score, Darling 13 Stewart 11. Referee E. Hanwell. The next game in this series will bring together W. Hamilton's and C. Stewart's teams on Thursday night.

The Employed Boys' Class organized indoor baseball and basketball league last night with the following teams—

Captain G. Gray—Jack Jones, N. Green, G. Thorndyke, W. Miller, F. White.

Captain F. Montgomery— A. Spicer, L. Thompson, K. Sturgeon, G. Moore.

Captain N. Florence—M. Sherwood J. Scrivens, T. Webster, H. Kennedy W. Traxter.

Captain D. Feinberg—C. Kincaid, D. Hunter, C. Feinberg, J. Jones, T. Baxter.

Mrs. Ed. Seip, of Berlin, died suddenly while visiting her mother.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Wm. Fleischer died at his son's home in Hamilton in his 99th year.

The Toronto District Association of Congregational Churches met in Cobourg yesterday.

Ernest Ramson was killed at the Standard Ideal Co.'s factory at Port Hope by being whirled around a shaft.

Edward J. Breen, wanted in connection with a robbery on Monday night, was arrested at the Union Station, Toronto.

Colonel and Mrs. Mapp of the Salvation Army headquarters in Toronto will leave Canada to take up work in South America.

The St. Charles Country Club, Winnipeg, one of the finest clubhouses on the continent, was burned; loss placed at $100,000.

A young Scottish girl of eighteen, just landed at Montreal, disappeared the first day of her employment at a factory. White slavery is suspected.

C. H. Latremouille, arrested last week in Toronto on a charge of holding up three liquor stores, was remanded in the police court yesterday morning for another week.

Oscar Hovey, Altoona, captain on the International Paper Co.'s barge Harris, was rescued from going over Niagara Falls yesterday by W. J. Luce and two laborers employed in the Schlosser dock sand pits.

The Kingston police have rounded up six lads between 14 and 16 years of age on the charge of entering several stores around the city with skeleton keys. The plunder was not great but they entered many places.

The trial cattle shipment sent from Vancouver to Australia some time ago proved so successful that two Canadian bulls and eight cows are being sent from Montreal to the same destination by the New Zealand liner Kumara.

Winnipeg Leads the World.

Winnipeg, Oct. 16.—With 1,342 cars inspected Monday and on the market and 1,200 in sight for inspection, all records for receipts of grain in Winnipeg were broken.

Winnipeg is substantiating its claim as the greatest grain centre in America, and really the greatest in the world. Comparing yesterday's inspections with the leading American centres, receipts at Chicago were 266 cars; Minneapolis 468, and Duluth 702. That is, Winnipeg comes near handling as much as the three of them.

The quality of the grain is remarkable. Of the 1,101 cars of wheat inspected and on the market Monday, 805 cars were of contract grade, the famous hard wheat of the Canadian West.

The distinction of being the oldest peer of the British realm is enjoyed by the Earl of Wemyss, who is a nonagenarian. A short time ago he had the misfortune to break his leg, but prior to that accident he was remarkably active, and was one of the most frequent and eloquent speakers in the House of Lords.

The Earldom of Wemyss was created in the early part of the seventeenth century, and the present holder of the title is the tenth of his line. He is what is generally described as "a crusted Tory," and believes in letting well, or ill, alone. During the controversy on the House of Lords he would not tolerate the word reform, and along with Lord Halsbury, another sprightly veteran, offered an uncompromising resistance to the Parliament Bill.

ENNISMORE RUNNER WILL ENTER FOR BOTH THE ROAD RACES

The sanction for the Thanksgiving Day road races has arrived, and intending competitors in the senior race are reminded that they must have their registration cards.

Tom McAullife of Ennismore came in on Saturday and entered for both races. He is going to try the unprecedented feat of running in both races. McAuliffe finished second in last year's race and has improved considerably since last year.

Several local boys are expected to enter both events, but up to the present have not handed in their names.

ROOSEVELT'S CONDITION IS UNCHANGED, SAY DOCTORS

Mrs. Roosevelt Arrives at Chicago and Takes Charge, Rigidly Excluding Visitors Despite the Fact That the Colonel Says He Feels Fine and Wants to Be Busy—Blood-Poisoning Is Still a Possibility

Chicago, Oct. 17.—After a day of ceaseless vigil Col. Roosevelt's physicians last night could say no more than that his condition was virtually unchanged. Indications, they said, favored the speedy recovery of the ex-President from the effects of the bullet which struck him down in Milwaukee Monday night.

A rise in temperature and pulse late in the day, however, made his condition for the time being less favorable. The colonel's temperature went to 99, but soon receded to 98.8.

The fact that a rib was fractured, which was not disclosed until yesterday, and that the precise location of the bullet had not been discovered, added to the feeling of uncertainty.

Not before Friday, if all goes well, will the physicians be prepared to say that their patient is out of danger. The intervening period will be required to determine whether blood-poisoning or other complications are to be feared.

Theodore Roosevelt, jr., after a talk with his father and a consultation with the physicians, expressed the feelings of those about the ex-President yesterday.

"It will be four or five days," said he, "before we can breathe easily."

Col. Roosevelt spent a quiet and apparently care-free day, seemingly the least concerned of all. He was cheered by the appearance of Mrs. Roosevelt, who arrived early in the day from New York, and remained with him constantly. He felt no pain, he said, and moved about at will on his bed, reading or dictating telegrams, or talking with members of his family. In the afternoon he slept for a time.

Dr. J. B. Murphy, who is in charge of the case; Dr. A. D. Bevan and Dr. Scury Terrell, Col. Roosevelt's physician, held three consultations during the day. Aside from the official bulletins, which they issued, which gave little indication of any change, they would say little of the condition of the patient. Why it was that the fracture of Col. Roosevelt's rib was not disclosed until yesterday was not made known, although it was said there was no cause for alarm on this account.

As soon as Mrs. Roosevelt reached the hospital yesterday morning, she took charge of affairs. She was accompanied by Theodore Roosevelt, jr., Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and Miss Ethel Roosevelt. Later in the day Congressman Longworth arrived. Mrs. Roosevelt installed herself in a room adjoining that of her husband and during the day seldom left his bedside.

Mrs. Roosevelt's first move was to see that the colonel must not see any visitors except members of his family.

Once or twice during the day she made exceptions, but otherwise she adhered firmly to her resolution. The colonel was "feeling fine and ready to receive visitors," but Mrs. Roosevelt gave him no opportunity to pass on her ruling, for she made it on her own authority and saw to it that it was enforced. She received the cards and messages for her husband and sent back her replies, with the result that the colonel himself did not know who wished to see him.

The impression grew yesterday that Col. Roosevelt would be able to do little or nothing more in the campaign. Although he expressed the hope of leaving for Oyster Bay on Sunday, it is probable he will be compelled to remain in the hospital for at least a week longer, and that after his arrival at home he will not be permitted to plunge into the campaign again.

Associates of Col Roosevelt said that while he was deeply disappointed at being obliged to leave the fight during the closing weeks, when it was to be hardest, he was showing no concern as to the possible effect of his removal from the field of battle.

It is his desire to make at least one more speech before election day and that in his own State of New York. If he can do nothing else, he hopes to speak in Madison Square Gardens.

Bullet Not Poisoned.

Milwaukee, Oct. 17.—There was no poison in the bullet fired at Col Roosevelt from the gun held by John Schrank.

This was announced yesterday afternoon by Prof. B. F. W. Somer, analytical chemist, who made a test of bullets still remaining in the chamber of the revolver.

INSPECTOR DUNCAN SAVES PENSION

Toronto, Oct. 17.—Walter Duncan, at three o'clock yesterday afternoon ceased to be inspector of detectives, and George Kennedy, hitherto head of the Morality Department, now reigns in his stead.

If the former head of the detective department desires to contribute to the pension fund for five more years seven per cent. of the salary he would have had, he will on January 3, 1917, be granted a pension of $1,200 per annum for the remainder of his days.

The resolution to remove the suspension of Mr. Duncan, which has lasted for four months, was strenuously opposed by Col. Denison. He refused to endorse the resolution which was passed over his head by the other two members of the board, after a long debate the three commissioners, unable to reach complete unison, drew up a resolution, by which Mr. Duncan is deprived of office, but remains nominally connected with the police department.

Italians Out on Strike.

Brantford, Oct. 17.—Forty-five Italians, employed at Burford Cannington factory, went out on strike yesterday because of grievances arising from alleged better treatment given to Poles employed at factory. Trouble was threatened when wages were withheld until regular pay day. Italians have started proceedings to collect their wages at once, claiming that their families are in distress.

Chatham Planing Mill Burned.

Chatham, Oct. 17.—The large planing mill in North Chatham, owned by William Drader of this city, was completely destroyed by fire at 6.30 last evening. The fire is supposed to have started in the engine-room. The building and contents, including a large amount of machinery, are a complete loss. There was very little insurance.

Toronto Boys In Trouble.

Hamilton, Oct. 17.—A trio of juveniles, ranging in age from 9 to 16 years, were taken in charge yesterday afternoon, and the youngest was charged with complicity. They give their names as Charlie Judge, McGill street, Toronto, and Gordon McLeod and Bill McInerney, Church street. McLeod is only fifteen and McInerney sixteen. A search of the boys at the station revealed hunting knives and dime novels. They said they came to Hamilton Tuesday night in a coal car and slept under the steps of a building.

SAYS IT WAS AN ACT OF MERIT.

Public Would Pension Him For Murder, Said Becker.

New York, Oct. 17.—"When this sensation blows over the public will give me a pension for killing that — — crook Rosenthal."

These are the words attributed to Police Lieut. Charles Becker, by Jas. D. Hallen, his fellow-prisoner in the Tombs, at yesterday's session of Becker's trial on the charge of instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler who "squealed" against him.

Hallen was one of fifteen witnesses who testified yesterday for the state. Assistant District Attorney Moss announced when adjournment was taken that he had only one or two more witnesses to call to complete the case for the people.

Mrs. Herman Rosenthal, widow of the gambler, the first witness of the day, testified that Lieut. Becker, her husband's alleged partner in his gambling house, had said to her on the occasion of a raid he had made on the establishment: "It's either Herman or me." This is the so-called fake raid which the prosecution claims was forced on Becker by his superior officers. Mrs. Rosenthal testified also that when she came to bury her husband she had only $100 to her name, all that had been left by Rosenthal. This was a bit of testimony elicited by the state with intent to spike the guns of Becker's defence.

"We introduce this," said Assistant District Attorney Moss, "because it had been claimed by the defence that gamblers gave Rosenthal $25,000, or some such sum, to insure his silence."

Members of the household of Jack Rose, Becker's alleged graft collector, told of frequent visits of the accused police official to Rose's home. Rose's Swedish maid swore that Becker was accustomed to breakfast with her master "nearly every day since Christmas."

Two waiters from the Union Square Hotel told of frequent meetings between Rose and Becker in the hotel dining-room, when "they talked a long time."

CHANGES ARE IN PROSPECT

It is Predicted That a Reorganization of Anglican Church in Ontario Will Take Place.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—Big changes are said to be impending in connection with the the Anglican Church in Canada, and especially in the synod of Toronto. According to a progressive rector in this city, the agitation now in progress at Montreal for the division of the provincial synod of Eastern Canada into two, one for Ontario, and one for Quebec, and the Maritime Provinces, will be paralleled in the near future by a division of the Toronto Synod, and ultimately of a reorganization of its educational system.

"Wycliffe and [illegible] colleges will ultimately have to unite, said the clergyman, "or the educational standard of the Anglican clergy will not equal that of the Presbyterians and Methodists."

Body Found After Six Years.

Drummondville, Que., Oct. 17.—A six-year-old mystery has been solved by the finding of the body of Joseph Bergeron in the woods near here. Bergeron disappeared in 1906, and as he was known to have some $600 in his possession at the time it was thought that he had left the country.

Little else but bones and torn clothing were found, and it is evident that wolves had attacked the body, but in the skull was found a severe fracture, while the right jaw was broken. No money was found, and a coroner's jury finds he was murdered.

DIVING FIFTY FEET FROM THE TOP OF TORBAY SADDLE ROCK

•CALLINGS AND HILL DIVING OFF SADDLE ROCK•

Here is shown the wonderful diving of two English experts, F. G. Collings and F. J. Hill, who took the plunge from the top of Saddle Rock, Torbay. The apex of the rock is fifty feet from the surface of the water. Mr. Collings, who is the second man to leave the rock, is seen in the act of turning a double somersault, a very daring feat at this height and one which has never been attempted by any other English diver. He has represented the United Kingdom in international competitions. His companion, Mr. Hill, is taking the "swallow dive," and that doesn't mean that the diver will try to swallow all the water in the ocean, as one novice described his experience on his first attempt to "do things."

BULGARIA, SERVIA AND GREECE NOW IN CONFLICT WITH TURKS

Greek Gunboat Gets Through Turkish Blockade ---Formal Declaration of War Against Servia and Bulgaria Published by Ottoman Government ---King Ferdinand Leaves for Headquarters of His Army.

Special To The Review.

Constantinople, Oct. 17. — Hostilities opened at 2.30 this morning by Turkish troops at various points on the Bulgarian and Servian frontiers. Divisions of the Turkish army are ordered to make a simultaneous forward movmeent. A powerful army concentrated on the Greek frontier was not put into action.

Athens, Greece, Oct. 17. — The Greek gunboat A & D this morning at two o'clock made a dash to force the Turkish blockade at the narrow entrance of the Gulf of Arta, one side of which is Turkish and the other Greek. The boat fought its way through and at four o'clock reached the Greek town of Von Itza on the southern shore with little damage.

Athens, Oct. 17.—Fighting between Greek and Turk forces stationed along the frontier opened early this morning. The Turkish Minister left to-day without asking for passports.

Constantinople, Oct. 17.—The formal declaration of war against Bulgaria and Servia was published by the Turkish Government to-day.

Sofia, Oct. 17.—King Ferdinand left for the headquarters of the Bulgarian army to-day and will likely issue a proclamation of war from there.

London, Oct. 17.—The Balkan fighting remains limited to the Montenegrin border, and although relations of Turkey with the other allied states are virtually broken there is a curious indisposition on the part of Bulgaria and Servia to take a final place in the hostilities.

This hesitation is regarded in diplomatic quarters as a good omen, pointing to the possibility that the powers, although unable to prevent, may succeed in lessening the duration of the war. It is understood that most of the powers have accepted in principle the suggestion of the French Premier for a European conference, but nothing has been decided upon as to when the conference will meet or what its program will be.

The fact that Italy is now free to enter the conference will greatly strengthen the European concert and is calulated to make the Balkan states more amenable to European pressure. The future status of Crete, under the new conditions, which it is reported will be virtual annexation by Greece, is now engaging the attention of the powers.

The rumor that Bulgaria has actually declared war has not been confirmed. The Montenegrins, after hard fighting, have captured Berana, but it is reported there will be a pause in the operations around Tushi. Undoubtedly this is due to the Montenegrins realizing that they have paid too dearly for their successes in heavy loss of life.

King Nicholas accordingly has issued a proclamation urging his soldiers to restrain their impetuosity and adapt themselves to modern conditions of warfare, which demand artillery preparation before an attempt is made to storm fortified positions. The Montenegrin Princes Danilo and Peter have been active in the engagements, personally leading their forces. Prince Peter has been promoted to major for gallantry.

Gen. Martinovitch's division has worked its way closer to Scutari and it is stated that an Austrian vessel has been ordered up the Boyana River to bring the Austrian consul and colony from Scutari.

The conclusion of peace between Italy and Turkey has greatly relieved the shipping trade owing to the heavy insurance premiums imposed during the activity of the Italian fleet in Turkish waters. Lord Rothschild has appealed through the press for funds for the British Red Cross Society, which is preparing to send expeditions to the Balkans.

Considerable bodies of Servian troops have been sent across the Bulgarian border to join the Bulgarian army, says a despatch from Nisch.

Describing the terrible condition of the hospital at Tushi, a Podgoritza correspondent says that a hundred wounded Turks are lying about half-naked awaiting treatment. The floors are littered with putrid medical dressings. The Turkish doctors are apathetic, doing nothing.

It is thought probable that the fighting will cease for a few days, the southern army having suffered heavily. The official figures of 1,000 killed and wounded probably is an underestimate.

Seven Hundred Turks Captured.

Podgoritza, Montenegro, Oct. 17.—The Montenegriens have captured Berana after ten days' fighting. Seven hundred Turkish soldiers were made prisoners. Fourteen guns were taken and large quantities of ammunition and provisions. In the final attack the Montenegrins had ten men killed and 31 wounded.

The Servians, many of whom reside in the town of Berana, hailed Gen. Vukotitch and his victorious troops as their deliverers.

Gen. Martinovitch, after a short engagement yesterday, occupied the fortified section of Mount Mouritch, opposite Tarabosch.

Ultimatum to Turkey To-day.

Belgrade, Oct. 17.—The Servian and Bulgarian Cabinets are preparing a joint ultimatum, which it is understood will be sent to Turkey to-day.

Ottawa Orders Inquest.

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—It was decided yesterday to exhume the body of L. E. Hull, Ottawa, who died on Oct. 6 and was later buried here. This is to allow of a coroner's inquest. The board of control passed a strong resolution asking for the inquest.

Deceased was a patient at the emergency tents where typhoid patients were treated, and though he died at his home, members of the St. George's Society and Sons of England, allege negligence there as the cause contributory to death. They sent formal complaint to the City Hall.

HENRY CORBY AND GEORGE GORDON CALLED TO SENATE

Must Be Careful.

Brandon, Oct. 17.—Summing up his western tour, in reply to a civic address yesterday, the Duke of Connaught offered a note of warning against the results of overconfidence, saying "that development sometimes overruns what is good for health and strength is as true in the history of a prosperous young country as in the case of a growing child. The discomforts known as a child's 'growing pains' are apparent in the case of a young country in the form of overspeculation and consequent temporary and local distress. General health in both cases remains unimpaired, though the pain may be acute. That there is danger of such overspeculation in the Dominion is undeniable, but the wealth of the country and the energy of the Canadian people are sufficient to minimize what harm may be done."

PERSONATORS WERE FINED

Men Charged With Corruption in Macdonald Plead Guilty.

Winnipeg, Oct. 17.—Another aftermath in the Macdonald bye-election was aired yesterday morning in the provincial police court, when Robert Stout and Tom Morris, accused by the Opposition organizers with personation in Polls 2 and 4, respectively, pleaded guilty and were fined $50 each by Police Magistrate McMicken.

The case was all over before prosecuting counsel on behalf of the defeated candidate appeared in court to push the case, and the Liberal papers say that the case was brought on and disposed of in secret to prevent witnesses being heard, and, further, that under the Dominion Election Act, imprisonment is compulsory as part of the sentence.

The case was called for 11 o'clock, and promptly at that hour witnesses were on hand for the prosecution. There was, however, no sign of the accused men in court. There was some stir when it was learned from one of the men summoned as a witness in one of the cases that he had been informed by the magistrate that the case was over, as the men had appeared earlier in the day and pleaded guilty to the charge, and had been fined $50 each while another case was in progress. Mr. W. H. Trueman, counsel, and the two prosecutors were asking the clerk of the court for information as to the proceedings and demanding the production of the records when a hot brush occurred between the prosecuting counsel and the magistrate. Mr. Trueman asked Mr. McMicken for an explanation of the episode. Mr. McMicken called on the constables to eject the lawyer, but they failed to do so.

Both Morris and Stout were at least partially under the influence of liquor at the time of the attempted personation, and the magistrate, in his official record of the cases, says this was taken into consideration by him in inflicting a minimum fine.

TO FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

Sanitarium Association to Erect Big Dispensary.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—Announcement is made by the National Sanitarium Association that competitive designs have been called for, for the erection of a handsome building on College street, near University, in this city.

The building when completed is to be identified with the King Edward Memorial Fund for Consumptives, and will be used for the head offices of the Sanitarium Association. It will embrace a free dispensary for tuberculous patients, a diet kitchen, and a home for nurses. Provision will be made for post graduate study by medical men and for clinics for the instruction of students in the early diagnosis of pulmonary tuberculosis. Assistance is to be given to medical students by the trustees of the association who have at their disposal some eight or ten scholarships which have been offered by one interested in the work. It is expected that this feature of the institutional building will have a far-reaching effect in helping to stamp out the white plague, and that the dispensary department will become a great clearing-house for those who suffer from the disease.

BREAK IN RANKS OF SUFFRAGETTES

London, Oct. 17.—A cleavage in the suffrage ranks is revealed in the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, hitherto staunch supporters of the Women's Social and Political Union, with which Mrs. and the Misses Pankhurst are identified, that they have broken away from the organization. The exact cause is not revealed, but Mrs. Pankhurst, who makes the foregoing announcement, says the Lawrences' association with the control of the organization has ceased, owing to contrary views concerning its policy.

The suffragette organ, "Votes for Women," remains in the hands of the Lawrences, but the Women's Social and Political Union is bringing out another paper, entitled "The Suffragette," with Christobel Pankhurst as editor.

Ex-Members of Parliament From Belleville nd Nipissing Respectively Fill the Vacancies Caused by the Deaths of Senator Wilson and Sir Richard Cartwright — Both Life-Long Conservatives.

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—Henry Corby of Belleville and George Gordon of Sturgean Falls have been called to the Senate, and will take their seats in the upper chamber when Parliament meets in November.

Their appointments came as no surprise in political circles here. Mr. Corby has rendered able service to the Conservative party in Ontario for many years, while Mr. Gordon, the well-known lumberman, gave up his seat to Hon. Frank Cochrane last fall. It is felt that both will be worthy additions to the Senate.

The appointment of Messrs. Corby and Gordon fills the Senate vacancies in Ontario caused by the deaths of Senator Wilson and the late Sir Richard Cartwright. There will, however, be another shortly, and it is understood that Senator Sullivan of Kingston will retire when Parliament meets.

Henry Corby, ex-M.P., who is 61 years of age, was born at Belleville, Ont., and on the death of his father succeeded him in the control of a large mill and distillery. He was for many years assistant chief of the fire department. He is president of the Belleville branch of the St. John Ambulance Association, Belleville Natural Gas Co. and Bay of Quinte Bridge Co., and a director of the Agricultural Exhibition Association of his district. He was elected to the House of Commons for West Hastings in 1888, retiring in 1901. He was for many years president of the Conservative Association.

George Gordon, ex-M.P., was born at Pakenham, Ont., 47 years ago. He contested Nipissing unsuccessfully in 1904, but was elected in 1908, and again in 1911, resigning to make a seat for Hon. Frank Cochrane when the latter was called to the Cabinet. Mr. Gordon has extensive lumbering interests, being a director of the Timigami Lumber Co., Cache Bay Lumber Co., A. J. Young Co., Strong Lumber Co and George Gordon & Co. He is a Presbyterian.

MR. ROBERT HICKS

He was elected President of the Peterborough Curling Club, at the Annual meeting.

TARIFF REFORM

Fund Will Reach One Hundred Thousand Dollars

Special To The Review.

London, Oct. 17.—The Duke of Westminster's thousand pound per head banquet was given last evening at Grosvenor House, the Duke's London residence. The Duke invited two hundred guests, each of whom was expected to contribute one thousand pounds to the Tariff Reform Fund.

Sixty thousand dollars was subscribed, one anonymous contributor giving ten thousand. Birch, Crisp and Waldorf Astor gave one thousand each. It is expected the fund will reach one hundred thousand dollars by Monday.

New Ambassador to London.

Berlin, Oct. 17.—Prince Charles Max Lichnowsky has been nominated German ambassador in London in succession to the late Baron Marschall von Bieberstein.

Prince Lichnowsky is 52 years of age, and a soldier diplomat. After leaving the army he was attached to the diplomatic service in Stockholm, Constantinople, Dresden, Bucharest and Vienna, retiring from active duty in 1904. He is a member of the Prussian House of Lords.

Greeks Off to War.

Brantford, Oct. 17.—Six Greeks, all prosperous, have packed up here to join the Toronto contingent leaving on Monday for the war at home.

"IMPOSSIBLE TO HELP MY KIDNEYS"

Until I Used "Fruit-a-tives" Worlds Greatest Kidney Cure

Practically everybody in Toronto knows Professor J. F. Davis. For years, the elite of that city has taken lessons from Prof. Davis in the art of Dancing and Deportment.

His constant activity gradually weakened his Kidneys, which calamity threatened to make him an invalid.

But read Prof. Davis' letter—

563 CHURCH ST., TORONTO, ONT.
DECEMBER 29th. 1911

"I want to say that "Fruit-a-tives" is my only medicine, and has been for the past five years. Previous to that, I had been troubled with Rheumatism and Kidney Disease, and had taken many remedies without satisfactory results. Noticing the advertisements of "Fruit-a-tives" I adopted this treatment altogether, and as everyone knows, I am now—and have been since taking "Fruit-a-tives"—enjoying the best of health".

THE WAR SITUATION

The Turkish-Italian war has officially ended. There were some people who thought that Turkey would do well to be off with the old war before going on with the new, and this has evidently also been the opinion of the Porte. Turkey surrendered to the Italian terms because she thought it better to concentrate on fighting her Balkan enemies. The peace terms will not be known until a definite treaty is signed at Lausanne at the end of the week, but it will include the cession of Libya, and the payment of an indemnity by Italy to Turkey equivalent to Libya's contributions to the Ottoman treasury, no indemnity by either side toward the cost of the war and the re-establishment of former commercial and diplomatic relation. The war has lasted a year though there was little active fighting in the last six months, and it cost the Italians about $100,000,000. Whether the territory acquired is worth the candle is hard to say though the fact that Italy has established a strong position on the northern coast of Africa will tell in her favor in the Mediterranean pull for influence. The main interest, however, is not in what is the situation devolving upon Italy, but in the effect the freeing of Turkey from the Italian embroglio will have upon her conduct in the Balkan war. The Turkish ambassadors in the Greek, Servian, Bulgarian capitals have been recalled, so whether these states commence war upon the Ottoman Empire or not, Turkey will not be on the offensive.

"EDUCATING" THE PEOPLE

The deadly silence of the Liberal newspapers over the Macdonald bye-election is rather painful. The Toronto Globe thought that the majority given the Conservative candidate was so large that it represented an actually strong opinion by the riding against reciprocity. It said, moreover, that even though Macdonald was apparently quite against reciprocity, the battle of wider markets must go on. The people must be educated. They must, in effect, be brought to see the error of their ways in preferring present conditions.

In this pretence that the people must be educated, the Globe takes an amusing position. We had thought all along that reciprocity sprang of the people, not for them. We had labored under what is now a delusion, apparently, that Laurier consented to make the agreement signed at Washington because he was forced to it by the people. During the reciprocity campaign, the cry was not that the people must be educated to want reciprocity, but that they wanted it, and must have it. Out West some of the Laurier political healers have shouted that unless they had reciprocity there would be a movement for secession. So loud and widespread was the clamor that even those who thought that the pact was directly against the best interests of Canada began to believe that there was quite a large part of the population wanting it carried out. Those who opposed it were almost beginning to adopt the attitude that the minority must gracefully submit to the will of the majority. But after all, it seems that there was some delusion about this. The people still have to be "educated" on reciprocity. The battle to convert them must go ahead. If that is the situation, Canada is not so badly off as it thought it was. It has not reciprocity, indeed, but it also has not a people wishful for it. What it has is a party which would like to educate the people to want it. We have all sorts of educational propagandas in Canada, one of them, Mr. Rowell's "Abolish-the-bar" policy, so there can be no objection to adding reciprocity and wider markets to the list.

DAYS OF CHINIQUY.

Trouble Followed Addresses In Montreal and Broken Heads Common.

The suit of Madame Morin, wife of Professor Morin, for certain statements made in a religous weekly in connection with her being the daughter of the late Father Chiniquy brings back to memory some stirring chapters of Montreal history of about fifteen or twenty years ago.

Father Chiniquy's career as a fighter against the Roman Catholic Church began long before he reached Montreal, and settled here, and while he was at Kankakee, Illinois, but the bold manner in which he defied and attacked the Catholic Church in his lectures there created no end of excitement.

He was a stern-looking man with a grey bread, and his voice was clear and clarion-like, and the writer well remembers hearing him give a lecture one Sunday afternoon in the old Queen's Hall, where Goodwin's Limited is now, and where he stirred up his audience to a frenzy of excitement.

But the things best remembered are the riots that used to take place when Father Chiniquy took the bull by the horns and preached in that section of the town which was east of St. Lawrence Boulevard, then known as St. Lawrence Main.

These "Conferences" as the French Canadians called them, used to keep the police hustling.

Outside of the natural sympathizers of the two religions, they were two well-defined bodies of men who took strong ideas in these rows.

Both have pretty well disappeared partially because the city has become so much larger than it was, and partially because fortunately religious feelings do not run to such ridiculous excesses as they did then.

These two bodies were the "Pieds Noirs" and "The Skeleton Army."

The "Pied Noirs" was the name applied to the quarry workers of Cote St. Louis, which was looked upon twenty years ago as a wilderness, although it is now one of the most populous sections of Montreal.

These men used to march down in a solid phalanx when there was trouble of this sort in the air, and they used to make things hum.

Opposed to them, the "Skeleton Army," came mainly from Point St. Charles, and was mostly composed of old country Englishmen, the nucleus being a crowd of young men belonging to the 5th Fusiliers.

The "Skeleton Army," as it was called, was originally formed to protect the Salvation Army when it first made its appearance in Montreal, and after that took up the militant end of any religious trouble that might be forthcoming.

Sub-Chiefs McMahon and Legget were often in the thick of these riots, and these used to be particularly noisy when Father Chiniquy preached in the little Protestant Church on the corner of St. Catherine and Cadieux streets.

McGill and Laval students naturally always became mixed up in these brawls, and the writer well remembers seeing the late Col. Hughes, then Chief of Police, grabbing hold of the necks of two students on the order referred to and knocking their heads together so persistently that they had to be carried away by their comrades.

E. A. Lancaster, M.P., of St. Catharines, is using a crutch, the result of stepping on a nail.

Pansy's Centenary.

Amid matters of greater importance it will interest garden lovers to learn that the year 1912 is the centenary of the pansy as a cultivated flower. In 1812 the daughter of the Earl of Tankerville took up from the hedgerows of England a number of plants of the wild heartsease. These she carefully cultivated, and from year to year she selected the seeds of the finest specimens for reproduction. By this means she made the pansy a recognized garden flower.

The finest pansies to-day are three to four inches in diameter, whereas the wild heartsease is a small and inconspicuous flower. A true red pansy has been developed. Red pansies will be something of a novelty, and it remains to be seen whether the public will take kindly to them. The red pansy means much as an evidence of man's ability to mold nature to his fancies.

When some genius of the horticultural world shall develop the sweet-scented pansy—already there are some kinds with a faint perfume — that flower may rival the rose and the sweet pea in popular esteem.

Seditious Literature.

The 47th annual bluebook on the moral and material progress of India for 1910-11 points out that the Press Act of 1910 did not affect the literary output as a whole, but was distinctly useful in checking the production of seditious literature. Among the English works translated may be mentioned Shakespeare's "Measure for Measure" into Marathi. This was published in Bombay. In the Punjab Smiles' "Self-help" was translated into Hindu.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Oct. 16.—Cables on Manitoba spring wheat were weaker again today, and prices bid were 3d per quarter lower. The demand was limited, and sales of only a few odd loads were made. The local demand for oats for shipment from Fort William was good, and sales of round lots were made, which are offering here for delivery in two weeks' time at 3c to 4c per bushel under present spot prices. The local and country demand for flour continues good at steady prices, but the export trade was quieter. Demand for butter is fair, but the trade in cheese was rather quiet. Eggs active and firmer. Provisions steady.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 16.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts of live stock for the week were 1800 cattle, 2800 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs, and 900 calves, while the offerings on the market this morning for sale consisted of 1600 cattle, 1300 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs, and 300 calves.

The tone of the market for cattle today was firm owing to the smaller run and the fact that butchers generally wanted some stock to carry them over for the balance of the week, consequently the demand was fairly good, and all the offerings were cleaned up. Sales of choice steers were made at $6.25 to $6.50; good at $5.50 to $6, and the lower grades from that down to $4.50 per 100 pounds. Some choice cows brought as high as $5.60, but the bulk of trading was done in good stock at $4.75 to $5.25, and the common went at $3.75 per 100 pounds. The demand for bulls was rather slow at prices ranging from $3 to $3.75 per hundred.

An active trade was done in sheep and lambs, and the undertone to the market was stronger with sales of the former at $3.75 to $3.90, and the latter at $6 to $6.10 per hundred.

The trade in calves was good at prices ranging from $5 to $12 each as to size and quality. There was a brisk demand for hogs, and as the offerings were not as large as expected the market was stronger with sales of selected lots at $8.85 to $9 per hundred weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Oct. 16.—Cattle—Receipts 100 head; firm.

Hogs—Receipts 3200 head; slow and 10c to 20c higher; heavy, $9.25 to $9.35; mixed, $9.15 to $9.35; yorkers, $8 to $9.35; pigs; $7.50 to $7.60; roughs, $8.25 to $8.40; stags, $5 to $7.50; dairies and grassers, $8.75 to $9.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts 3000 head; active; sheep steady; lambs, 15c higher; lambs, $4.50 to $7.35; a few $7.50; yearlings, $5.25 to $5.50; wethers, $4.75 to $5; ewes, $3 to $4; sheep, mixed, $3 to $4.50.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Cattle—Receipts 20,000. Market steady to 10c lower. Beeves, $5.60 to $10.95; Texas steers, $4.50 to $5.85; western steers, $5.75 to $9; stockers and feeders, $4.25 to $7.45; cows and heifers, $2.90 to $7.90; calves, $7 to $9.75.

Hogs—Receipts 25,000. Market 10c lower. Light, $8.60 to $9.20; mixed, $8.60 to $9.30; heavy, $8.55 to $9.25; rough, $8.55 to $8.75; pigs, $4.75 to $7.75; bulk of sales, $8.80 to $9.10.

Sheep—Receipts 35,000. Market active and 10c to 25c up. Native, $3.60 to $4.25; western, $3.75 to $4.30; yearlings, $4.65 to $5; lambs, native, $5 to $7.50; western, $5.25 to $7.50.

Fresh Revolt In Mexico.

Mexico City, Oct. 17.—The army, the police and the marine corps stationed at Vera Cruz, on the Gulf of Mexico, enlisted yesterday under the rebellious banner raised by Gen. Felix Diaz, a nephew of ex-President Diaz.

Two gunboats lying in the harbor of Vera Cruz have been taken by Felix Diaz.

The plan, which he has been perfecting for many days, has been carried out smoothly.

CHAPTER XX

Continued

They turned aside from the runway at a place indicated by Binu Charley and came to an immense banyan tree half an acre in extent that made in the innermost heart of the jungle a denser jungle of its own. From out of its black depths came the voice of a man singing in a cracked eerie voice.

"My word, that big fella marster he no die!"

The singing stopped, and the voice, faint and weak, called out a hello. Joan answered, and then the voice explained:

"I'm not wandering. I was just singing to keep my spirits up. Have you got anything to eat?"

Tudor, having pulled through the fever and started to mend, was still frightfully weak and very much starved. So badly swollen was he from mosquito bites that his face was unrecognizable. Joan had her own ointments along and she prefaced their application by fomenting his swollen features with hot clothes. Sheldon, with an eye to the camp and the preparations for the night, looked on and felt the pangs of jealousy at every contact of her hands with Tudor's face and body. Somehow, engaged in their healing ministrations, they no longer seemed to him boy's hands.

The morning's action had been settled the night before. Tudor was to stay behind in his banyan refuge and gather strength while the expedition proceeded. On the far chance that they might rescue even one solitary survivor of Tudor's party, Joan was fixed in her determination to push on. With Tudor, Adamu Adam and Arahu were to stop as guards.

Binu Charley led the way, by proxy, however, for by means of the poisoned spear he drove the captive bushman ahead. They plodded on, panting and sweating in the humid, stagnant air. They were immersed in a sea of wanton, prodigal vegetation.

Caught by surprise fifteen feet in the air above the path in the forks of a many branched tree, a bushman dropped like a shadow, naked as on his natal morn. It was hard for them to realize that it was a man, for he seemed a weird jungle sprite, a goblin of the forest. Only Binu Charley was not perturbed. He flung his poisoned spear over the head of the captive at the flitting form. It was a mighty cast, well intended, but the shadow, leaping, received the spear harmlessly between the legs and, tripping upon it, was flung sprawling. Before he could get away Binu Charley was upon him, clutching him by his snow white hair. He was only a young man and a dandy at that, his face blackened with charcoal, his hair whitened with wood ashes, with the freshly severed tail of a wild pig thrust through his perforated nose and two more thrust through his ears. His only other ornament was a necklace of human finger bones. At sight of their other prisoner he chattered in a high querulous falsetto, with puckered brows and troubled, wild animal eyes. He was disposed of along the middle of the line, one of the Poonga-Poonga men leading him at the end of a length of bark rope.

"Close up he stop," Binu Charley warned them in a whisper.

Even as he spoke, from high overhead came the deep resonant boom of a village drum. But the beat was slow. There was no panic in the sound. The runway now became a deeply worn path, rising so steeply that several times the party paused for breath.

"One man with a rifle could hold it against a thousand," Sheldon whispered to Joan. "And twenty men could hold it with spears and arrows."

They came out on the village, situated on a small, upland plateau, grass covered and with only occasional trees. There was a wild chorus of warning cries from the women, and spears and arrows began to fall among the invaders. At Sheldon's command the Tahitians and Poonga-Poonga men got into action with their rifles. The spears and arrows ceased, the last bushmen disappeared, and the fight was over almost as soon as it had begun. On their own side no one had been hurt, while half a dozen bushmen had been killed.

"Poor brutes," Joan said. "They act only according to their natures. To eat their kind and take heads is good morality for them."

"But they should be taught not to take white men's heads," Sheldon argued.

She nodded approval and said: "If we find one head we'll burn the village. Hey, you, Charley! What fella place head he stop?"

"S'pose he stop along devil-devil house," was the answer. "That big fella house, he devil-devil."

It was the largest house in the village. Into it they went. Crouched before a slow smoking fire, in the littered ashes of a thousand fires, was an old man who blinked apathetically at the invaders. His task, it seemed, was to tend the fire, and, hung in the smoke, they found the object of their search. Joan turned and stumbled out hastily, deathly sick, reeling into the sunshine and clutching at the air for support.

"See if all are there," she called back faintly and tottered aimlessly on for a few steps, breathing the air in great drafts and trying to forget the sight she had seen.

Upon Sheldon fell the unpleasant task of tallying the heads. They were all there, nine of them, white men's heads, the faces of which he had been familiar with when their owners had camped in Berande compound and set up the poling boats. Binu Charley, hugely interested, lent a hand, turning the heads around for identification, noting the hatchet strokes and remarking the distorted expressions.

Other heads, thoroughly sun dried and smoke cured, were found in abundance, but, with two exceptions, they were the heads of blacks.

"Me savvee black Mary, me savvee white Mary," quoth Binu Charley. "Me no savvee that fella Mary. What name belong him?"

Sheldon looked. Ancient and withered, blackened by many years of the smoke of the devil-devil house, nevertheless the shrunken, mummylike face was unmistakably Chinese. How it had come there was the mystery. It was a woman's head, and he had never heard of a Chinese woman in the history of the Solomons. From the ears hung two inch long earrings, and at Sheldon's direction the Binu man rubbed away the accretions of smoke and dirt and from under his fingers appeared the polished green of jade, the sheen of pearl and the warm red of oriental gold. The other head, equally ancient, was a white man's, and Sheldon wondered what forgotten beche-der-mer fisherman or sandalwood trader had gone to furnish that ghastly trophy.

Telling Binu Charley to remove the earrings and directing the Poonga-Poonga men to carry out the old fire tender, Sheldon cleared the devil-devil house and set fire to it. Soon every house was blazing merrily, while the ancient fire tender sat upright in the sunshine, blinking at the destruction of his village. Every member of Tudor's expedition was accounted for, and it was a long, dark way out of the head hunters' country. Releasing their two prisoners, who leaped away like startled deer, they plunged down the steep path into the steaming jungle.

That night found them back in camp with Tudor, and at high noon of the third day, traveling with the current and shooting the rapids, the expedition arrived at Berande. Joan, with a sigh, unbuckled her revolver belt and hung it on the nail in the living room, while Sheldon, who had been lurking about for the sheer joy of seeing her perform that particular homecoming act, sighed, too, with satisfaction. But the homecoming was not all joy to him, for Joan set about nursing Tudor and spent much time on the veranda when he lay in the hammock under the mosquito netting.

The ten days of Tudor's convalescence that followed were peaceful days on Berande. The work of the plantation went on like clockwork. With the crushing of the premature outbreak of Gogoomy and his following all insubordination seemed to have vanished. Twenty more of the old time boys, their term of service up, were carried away by the Martha, and the fresh stock of labor, treated fairly, was proving of excellent quality. As Sheldon rode about the plantation acknowledging to himself the comfort and convenience of a horse and wondering why he had not thought of getting one himself, he pondered the various improvements for which Joan was responsible.

There were times when he was dizzy with thought of her and love of her, when he would stop his horse and with closed eyes picture her as he had seen her that first day in the stern sheets of the whaleboat, dashing madly in to shore and marching belligerently along his veranda to remark that it was pretty hospitality, this letting strangers sink or swim in his front yard.

It was patent to Sheldon that Tudor had become interested in Joan. Often after his morning ride over the plantation or coming in from the store or from inspection of the copra drying, Sheldon found the pair of them together on the veranda, Joan listening intent and excited and Tudor deep in some recital of personal adventure at the ends of the earth.

Sheldon noticed, too, the way Tudor looked at her and followed her about with his eyes, and in those eyes he noted a certain hungry look and on the face a certain wistful expression, and he wondered if on his own face he carried a similar involuntary advertisement. He was sure of several things—first, that Tudor was not the right man for Joan and could not possibly make her permanently happy; next, that Joan was too sensible a girl really to fall in love with a man of such superficial stamp, and, finally, that Tudor would blunder his love making somehow. And at the same time, with true lover's anxiety, Sheldon feared that the other might somehow fail to blunder and win the girl with purely fortuitous and successful meretricious show.

The situation was very unsatisfactory and perplexing. Sheldon played the difficult part of waiting and looking on, while his rival devoted himself energetically to reaching out and grasping at the fluttering prize. He did not belong to Berande, and, now that he was well and strong again, it was time for him to go. Instead of which Tudor had settled himself down comfortably, resumed swimming, went dynamiting fish with Joan, spent hours with her hunting pigeons, trapping crocodiles and at target practice with rifle and revolver.

But there were certain traditions of hospitality that prevented Sheldon from breathing a hint that it was time for his guest to take himself off. And in similar fashion, feeling that it was not playing the game, he fought down the temptation to warn Joan. Had he known anything, not too serious, to Tudor's detriment, he would have been unable to utter it, but the worst of it was that he knew nothing at all against the man.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY
How Mrs. Bethune was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
Sikeston, Mo. — "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I had cramps, backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband's told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do all my own housework, work in the garden and entertain company and enjoy them, and can walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the week. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl, and tell them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. Dema Bethune, Sikeston, Mo.
Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?

A Castle Built For a Groat.

The castle of Monkstown, near Cork, Ireland, is reported by popular tradition to have been built in 1636, at the cost of only a groat. To explain this the following story is told. Anastasia Goold, who had become the wife of John Archdeken, determined while her husband was abroad serving in the army of Philip of Spain, to give him evidence of her thrift. Her plan was to supply the workmen with provisions and other articles they required, for which she charged the ordinary price; but, as she had made her purchases wholesale, upon balancing accounts, it appeared that the retail profit had paid all the expenses of the structure except fourpence. The Archdekens were an Anglo-Irish family who became more Irish than the Irish themselves, and assumed the name of Mac Odo, or Cody.

Self-respect is what wins respect from others.

Woman's World

Busy Days, These, Among Fair Politicians.

Photos by American Press Association.

MRS. J. BORDEN HARRIMAN, MISS BOSWELL, MISS CARPENTER.

An indisputable proof of the general interest women of every class are showing in public affairs is demonstrated in the recent organization of three distinct political campaigns directed by women to aid the causes of three presidential nominees.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, a noted New York society and club woman, is president of the Woman's Wilson and Marshall league. Mrs. Harriman when interviewed recently concerning the work of her party said: "I am firmly of the belief that women should interest themselves as much as possible in political affairs. We women of the national Democratic party are out frankly to use our indirect influence to gain votes for Woodrow Wilson. Every woman has a certain amount of influence over one or more voting members of her community. If she can't exert it directly let her make the best of the situation and be as much of a power as possible indirectly.

"We are," Mrs. Harriman continued, "at the beginning of a new era of general co-operation, the friendly working together of all classes for the public good. In matters of sanitation, pure food, child labor and kindred topics there is an almost universal response from the women to any appeal that they trust."

The interests of the Woman's Republican National party are in the very efficient hands of Miss Helen Varick Boswell, who is using every means within her power to interest women in the re-election of Mr. Taft. Miss Boswell is not a newcomer in the political field, for as far back as 1888 she was connected with the Republican woman's organization of the state of New York. Besides this political activity Miss Boswell's welfare work is a matter of current history.

To be the first woman who has ever been a member of a committee in a national convention is the experience of Miss Alice Carpenter, who was a delegate from Massachusetts to the recent Progressive party convention in Chicago. Miss Carpenter is now the leading spirit and "whipper in" of votes for Colonel Roosevelt.

Miss Carpenter looks typically Bostonese. She is tall and brown haired and speaks in a measured, impressive way and looks as if she would be most at home conducting a class of girls in a settlement, but would head a torchlight procession in a minute if she saw it to be her duty.

Take Every Precaution

Eyestrain sometimes comes on so gradually that the individual does not realize his trouble until it has reached a serious stage.

In fact there are many effects of eyestrain that only a physician would trace to their true source.

The man who does a great deal of work with his eyes, should be on the watch for the first indications of strain, and do everything possible to prevent it from occurring.

Sometimes the eyes are in such an irritable condition that the wearing of the ordinary "flat" lenses produces great discomfort. Light is reflected from the rear surfaces of the lenses and the eyes are wearied by unconsciously trying to focus on these reflections.

Then when looking to either side the edges of such lenses annoy the eyes.

These irritations are avoided when you wear Toric Lenses. You are not taking every possible precaution against eyestrain if you do not get a pair of Torics.

All lenses ground on the premises

$2 FINES FOR VIOLATION OF THE TRAFFIC BY-LAW

Disorderly Youths Also Assessed — Youthful Drunk and His Father in Court.

Police Magistrate Dumble commenced in dead earnest this morning to support the city traffic by-law from the Magisterial chair. He meted out $2.00 fines in each case.

All sorts of excuses were volunteered. One driver claimed he did not understand the by-law right. Another never thought about the by-law. Yet another said, "Let me off easy and it won't occur again." A couple of Mr. John White's drivers were each fined, their employer paying. Mr. White did not think the fine in one case was justified and he intends to appeal against the Magistrate's judgment.

His Worship stated when imposing the fines that it was necessary to commence some time, in order that the by-law shall not be broken with impunity.

OBSTRUCTED TRAFFIC.

Pleas of guilty were entered by two young men who obstructed pedestrian traffic last night on George street in front of Yeotes billiard and tobacco quarters. They were not present in court, being unable to leave their employment.

G. N. Gordon who defended two others similarly charged, asked how it was that they were allowed to plead guilty without putting in an appearance.

His Worship stated that there was no objection to that procedure as long as it was not a serious offence.

More evidence will be submitted in the case of the two youths who were summoned, and the case was therefore enlarged until Friday morning.

A gray-haired visitor from the country, walking with the aid of a cane, limped forward and pleaded guilty to being drunk in a public place — at least, he thought he was guilty.

It was not whiskey or beer that mastered him, but wine, so he claimed. He bade au revoir to $2.00 with much good humor.

THE SON, TOO.

His youngest son, a mere lad of sixteen, was found drunk yesterday also in company with his father. The lad said he met Robert L. Anderson at a hotel, who offered him liquor. The boy drank and was soon hopelessly drunk.

Magistrate Dumble ordered Anderson summoned for a hearing for Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

Father and son were seen together on Simcoe street last evening. The spectacle was witnessed by a number of the rank and file, and the comments were as might be imagined.

P. C. Brown was off duty at time, but followed up the pair and took them to the police station.

INJURIES SUSTAINED BY WM. DANN PROVED FATAL

Wm. Dann, 23 years of age, and some years ago a resident of Peterborough, with his father, Mr. William Dann, was so seriously injured while at work at the C.N.R. operations, near Belleville, that he passed away in the Belleville Hospital yesterday.

He was struck by a beam while engaged in erecting a watering tank. The beam struck him across the stomach, injuring him internally.

His family resides at Port Hope, and the funeral takes place Saturday afternoon.

Besides his father, two sisters, Misses Sarah and Emily, and two brothers, Joseph of Port Hope and Thomas, of Edmonton, survive.

MR. E. F. B. JOHNSTON K. C., TO ADDRESS CANADIAN CLUB

First Meeting on Thursday, Oct. 24, at Y.M.C.A.—His Address to be on "Ontario"

The Canadian Club has re-organized for the coming season and it has arranged to hold the meetings at the Y.M.C.A. As usual they will take the form of a dinner with an address following from a speaker of National reputation. So far as possible it is the intention to hold the meetings on Thursday evenings, and from two to three weeks apart and when it will suit the convenience of the speaker, to arrive in time to have the dinner at 6.30 o'clock instead of 8.

The Club has been fortunate in arranging with Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, K. C., of Toronto, to deliver the opening address on October 24th on "Ontario." Mr. Johnston is one of the best known speakers in the Province, and a large turnout is expected to hear him.

Membership in the Canadian Club for the season is only $1.00, with a charge of 50 cents for each dinner attended, and is open to all British subjects. A largely increased membership is looked for and particularly among the younger men of the city. Membership tickets may be obtained from any of the following: W. R. Morris, President; G. C. Wainwright, 1st Vice President; Duncan Walker, 2nd Vice-President; W. H. Munro, Secretary-Treasurer; and A. H. Stratton, W. H. Dunsford, Rev. F. J. Sawers, A. Mowat, C. H. Rogers, Keith Leigh, Alex. Grant, B. D. Hall, members of the Committee.

MR. YEATS HONORED BY HIS BRITHERS OF THE STANE

Presentation of Anglers Outfit—Mr. Yeats Will go to Stirling.

The local curlers did honor to Mr. R. E. Butler Yeats, at the annual meeting last night, when that gentleman was called to the front, and as Mr. Jas. Connal read an address Mr. Thos. Brightman made the presentation of a fisherman's outfit.

Mr. Yeats is leaving the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, to take up new duties at Stirling, where he will be Manager of that branch.

The gift included a combination rod, a fly case, leader box and lines. Mr. Yeats has been with the Curling Club for seven years.

In acknowledgment, he said his chief regret was that he had to leave the Peterborough Curling Club, with which he had always felt at home. The members were good sportsmen and thorough gentlemen. He had spent many pleasant hours on the ice, and also had enjoyed watching the games from the side and he hoped to have the opportunity of meeting the Peterborough Curlers on the ice again.

Someone started "For he's a jolly good fellow" and everybody joined in the chorus, emphasizing the fact of the words being supremely applicable to the occasion.

CIVIC GOVERNMENT AT THE Y.M.C.A.

To-morrow night will be an interesting time for the boys of the "Y". The Boys Department is going to take the form of a "Model City," and nominations for Mayor and Aldermen will be received at 7.30 Friday p.m. Lawyer G. N. Gordon will be present to help launch the new plan and he will also give a short address on "Good Citizenship."

Mr. Gordon is well qualified for this particular line of work and no member of the Boys' Department can afford to miss hearing him. Non-members are also cordially invited to come.

SHAREHOLDERS OF THE FARMER'S BANK PROTEST

Tell How They Were Induced to Buy Stock

Special To The Review.

Toronto, Oct. 17—Shareholders of the Farmers' Bank, from all parts of Ontario, gathered at the office of G. T. Clarkson, the liquidator, this morning to protest against the imposition of the double liability clause and demand for the return of dividends. Many who protested were unable to meet demands and described how they had been induced to buy stock, prominent men in various counties being used as bait, and one man claimed whiskey had been employed. The argument that the bank was secured by the Government was also employed.

Ike Pilsin is authority for the statement that if the fellows who bragged that their words were as good as their bonds paid him what they owed he'd be able to keep his word oftener.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

The property owners in Division No. 17, Ward 4, are requested to meet at G. Walter Green's office, Thursday night Oct. 17th, at 7.30 p.m., to organize to get out the entire vote to support the De Laval Dairy Supply Company By-law.

D. W. DUMBLE,
Chairman of Local Committee.

Shortly after ten o'clock this morning an intoxicated Scotchman was arrested for creating a disturbance at the corner of Aylmer St. He was lodged in the cells and will be arraigned in the morning on a charge of being drunk.

The ratepayers of East City will meet in the old Town Hall at 8 o'clock to-night.

The St. George's Society will hold a social to-morrow night at eight o'clock in the S.O.E. hall.

R. T. Kelley, manager of the Hamilton Fire Insurance Co., and president of the Hamilton Ad. Club, is in the city on business.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., will speak this evening in All Saints Parish Hall on "Our New Territory in Manitoba and Ontario."

A noticeable and effective display of Dr. Norvall's remedies may be seen in the George street window of W. J. Kent's drug store. The design representing three arches, with a pretty picture in the back-ground of each and with the remedies plentiously displayed form a very striking arrangement. The display was planned by Mr. George Ross.

The men of All Saints' Church are holding a banquet at the Parish Hall to-night, commencing at 7.30 o'clock.

HEAVY LOSS FOR FARMER

His Barns and Season's Crops Lost By Fire

A disastrous fire occurred at the farm of Mr. Benjamin Raper, in the Township of Cavan. Some sparks from the threshing engine fell on the barn and started the conflagration. The barns, with the entire season's crop, and the stable, were totally destroyed. The loss is estimated at $4000, with insurance of only $900.

DOBBIN-POPE NUPTIALS

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs Frank H. Dobbin, 122 George street last evening, a wedding of exceeding charm was quietly observed, when their daughter, Constance Winnifred became the bride of Mr. Harry F. Pope. of Westmount, Que., son of the late Robert Pope of Peterboro and Mrs. Pope of Westmount.

The ceremony was witnessed by only immediate family—friends and the nuptial parties were unattended. Rev. Isaac Couch, B.A., P.D. officiated.

The popular bride was given away by her father. She was most becomingly gowned in beautiful white duchesse satin with imported tunic of net, embroidered with crystals and pearls. She wore the customary bridal veil with pearl bands, and carried a lovely bouquet of yellow and white chrysanthemums. The house was also tastefully decorated with the same. The wedding march was played by Miss Dorothy Dobbin, the bride's youngest sister.

After a dainty wedding supper, Mr. and Mrs. Pope left on the C.P.R. midnight for a trip to be spent in Ottawa, Quebec and the Eastern townships.

The bride enjoyed widespread popularity, not only in Peterborough, but wherever she was acquainted, and was paticularly welcome in the various social circles of the city. Her husband is one of the engineering staff of the Montreal Light Heat and Power Company, being in complete charge of the power department. His father once held the office of Street Commissioner in this city.

Many handsome presents were received, including a beautiful silver salver from the office and editorial staffs of the Review, a fumed oak davenport from the Review Printing Company, and several pieces of cut glass from departments of the Review.

Mr. Pope was presented with a handsome silver tea service with tray for Mrs. Pope, by his associates in the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Pope will take up residence in Westmount, Que.

HOLT—SMITH

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith 575 Gilchrist street, when their youngest daughter, Miss Lizzie, was united in marriage to Mr. George R. Holt, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Holt, of Egbert, Ont. Rev. Isaac Couch performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives only.

The bride looked very beautiful as she entered the room leaning on the arm of her father. She was attired in cream silk eolienne, daintily trimmed with embroidered chiffon and crystal fringe with true lovers' knots of satin. Her veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a sheaf of white chrysanthemums.

A dainty buffet luncheon was served by four girl friends of the bride.

A great many beautiful and costly gifts testified to the high esteem in which the young couple are held Among the presents were a handsome mahogany music cabinet from George Street Methodist Sunday school; a burnished brass kettle and spirit lamp from the George street Sunday school orchestra; two beautiful pictures from the Epworth League of George street church; a silver mounted salad bowl and servers from the John Reyner Piano Co., and a silver trimmed oak biscuit jar and mother of pearl server from the R. T. of T. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold watch and fob.

Mr. and Mrs. Holt enter upon their married life with the best wishes of a very large circle of friends. They will reside at 588 Sherbrooke street.

PETTINGER—TILLY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Tilly, Sussex street, Lindsay, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday afternoon, the 16th inst. when their only daughter, Emily Frances, was married to Mr. William E. G. Pettinger, of Toronto. Rev. James Wallace, M.A., B.D., pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was the officiating clergyman. The house was prettily decorated for the occasion with ferns, palms, dahlias, and chrysanthemums, and guests were present from Toronto, Hamilton, Peterborough and other outside places.

MUST COMPENSATE.

Industry Must Pay Its Debt to Worker, Says Rowell.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—"The legislation of Ontario in regard to workmen's compensation is totally inadequate," said N. W. Rowell, K.C., addressing the members of the Insurance Institute, at their meeting and dinner last evening. The subject of workmen's compensation concerns everyone, but especially the employer of labor, the employe, the insurance companies and the lawyers, he said.

"There are always a certain number of accidents in the daily routine of industrial works. If, then," said Mr. Rowell, "modern industry exacts this toll of life and limb, modern industry should compensate the injured, or, in case of fatal accidents, their families."

"When we consider the fact that the average wage for industrial workmen is $530 per annum, and in consideration with this the high cost of living, we can readily see that an accident that takes away the bread-winner from a family, leaves that family practically penniless."

Mr. Rowell showed the difference between what was known as the common law, and the present legislation, as regards compensation to the workmen for injuries received. Under the common law, the liability of the employer was confined to those accidents only which were due to negligence on the part of the employer. The present legislation changes the common law in as far as a workman may sometimes receive indemnity for accidents due to the negligence of the superintendent, or to the works or plant

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To The Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir—As a Protestant, I desire to express my thanks and appreciation to Mr. D. O'Connell, for the outspoken and common sense way in which he has dealt with the unjust attack made on Rev. Canon Davidson. The citizens generally, appreciate the public spirited attitude of the Reverend gentleman, even if they are not always able to agree with his contention, and knowing him to be one who has earnestly and successfully helped the city at large we should stand by those who are able and willing to tackle the job,

CITIZEN.

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir—Mr. D. O'Connell descants upon the beauty of being a peace-maker. I beg leave to call his attention to the following excellent example of the same. It is from to-day's Catholic Register, the official organ of the Church.

"The Literary Digest devotes several columns to the discussion of the reasons "why Ulster will fight." But the principal reason is "because she won't." Ulster is not Montenegro by a long shot, and an Orangeman's chief desire is longanimity and a long drink."—The Catholic Register.

Yours, etc.
"PAX VOBISCUM."

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir—

What has Sir Wilfrid Laurier said about the rout in Manitoba? What did the other ministers say? Oliver alone spoke up, but in a dazed way like a man in a dream. Another Grit bogey has gone to the junk heap. What will be the next fad? Ten to one it will be independence or fight-the-navy. Anything to keep the Empire from hanging together. Well it won't work. They're busted. There are too many patriotic Liberals to fear the rest.

Yours, etc.
"BRITISHER."

To The Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir,—Why is it that the Gannon's Narrow Bridge isn't built? Mr. Bob Shaw, our Reeve, made great promises about what he was going to do about building the bridge, but it was a botch just as the Buckhorn bridge was. The County Council has now to pay for the work. When Reeve Shaw has to do some of the paying he will think differently about it. The Township of Harvey wont be stuck for the amount of it.

Mr. Burnham ought to see about the Gannon's Narrows Bridge. It isn't his fault. Mr. Shaw has said as of Nogie's Creek, that Mr. Burnham and the road inspector, had promised to help him in building the Gannon's Narrows Bridge. This is not true. I have seen a letter from Burnham in which he denied it and I say that Mr. Shaw never told the truth about what Mr. Burnham wrote, or what Mr. Shaw said he wrote, about building the bridge at Gannon's Narrows.

Reeve Shaw is a joke and the sooner the people of the township get on to it, the better.

Yours truly,
A HARVEY RATEPAYER.

COAL CARS OFF THE TRACK AT BETHANY

Four cars of coal left the track at Bethany on the Grand Trunk, at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The Lindsay Auxiliary was sent for and arrived on the scene at 2 o'clock and had the cars on the track that afternoon. The coal, of course, was upset and had to be shovelled into other cars. The Lindsay Auxiliary had the track clear about 6 o'clock last evening. The cause of the accident was a broken flange of one of the wheels.

GETTING BETTER ACQUAINTED

Mr. man, you may yet be a stranger to us for the reason that we have not yet had time to get acquainted with you or you with us.

And it is pretty hard for to introduce each other through this medium, especialy so on account of you seeing so much advertising, some of which possibly has fooled you in the past, and you are a little scarry of it now; well we can't blame you for that, it was not your fault, and of course the honest advertiser must suffer as a consequence.

Now the only way for you to be sure of getting the full value for your money is to deal where every purchase you make is guaranteed to you; that is the way we do business.

Now did you see the way our Suits and Overcoats are made? and have you noticed the low prices we are asking for such high-grade quality and workmanship?

And you should also come in and see how they fit; yes they are made for standard figures and it will be no trouble to fit you.

But if you prefer to have a suit made to your measure, we can show you about 500 different samples of cloth and make it up in any style you wish. Our prices run from $12.00 up. Come in and see the New Fall Fashion Plates; we will be glad to meet you.

CURLERS ELECT OFFICERS AND DISCUSS MATTERS OF INTEREST TO THE PLAYERS

About thirty curlers attended the annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club in the Bank of Montreal Chambers last evening, and besides electing new officers and committees, discussed several questions of interest to the playing members of the club.

It was an enthusiastic meeting over which President Connal presided.

Mr. J. H. Ferguson read the financial statement, which showed a balance on hand of $7.74.

Officers elected for 1912-13:
Hon Pres.—Mr. Jas. Connal.
President—Mr. Robert Hicks.
Vice-President—Mr. H. Fcote.
Sec.-Treas.—Mr. J. H. Ferguson.
Asst. Secretary—Mr. Geo. Giroux.
Rep. to O.C.A.—Messrs. W. G. Morrow and J. H. Ferguson.
Auditor—Dr. J. M. McCulloch.
Executive—Messrs. Dr. Wightman J. W. McDermid, W. D. Campbell, R. Neill and W. M. Lang.
Membership Com.—Messrs. T. Brighman Dr. Wightman, W. D. Campbell A. Moore R. P. Best, G. F. Colling T. Hooper and J. H. Metheral.

"If there is any club that ought to be proud of its secretary-treasurer the Peterborough Curling Club should be doubly proud," said Mr. J. H. Cameron. "I move that there be no opposition to his nomination," he continued amidst applause. And there was no opposition.

It was unanimously decided that the privileges for curling accorded to ladies last year, be continued this coming season.

Discussions relating to the "Cup Competitions and annual schedule also took place.

The chairman suggested that the Cup competitions receive more attention. He felt that the Peterborough curlers did not enter the games to win the trophies. This was hardly fair to the donors, he held.

Other curlers took up this question and the opinions were varied as to what could be done along this direction. Mr. Maddell suggested that the strong skips play the cup games and the younger skips be retained for the friendly games.

Another point discussed was the time for the playing of the cup games. Could not the dates be set for earlier in the season? This might be a part solution of the whole question of interest and play in the big events.

Below is the address read by Mr. Yeats:

From the Peterborough Curling Club
To T. E. Butler Yeats:—

Sir,—Your friends and comrades of the Peterborough Curling Club view with regret your departure from the city and severance of relations with the Curling Club. They recognize that the call of business and promotion must be acceded to and they know that in your new field of work you will have the respect and esteem of the business public, as you have had here.

As a curler you will be missed. You have assisted in winning many trophies which have brought honor and renown to the Club, and you have done it thoroughly and well. On the ice you have been a true sport, playing in good relation to your fellow players and in harmony with both opponents and friends.

While you shine as a curler you fairly illuminate as a fisherman. You are successful. There are members of the Club who affirm, such is your skill, that you could fill a tub with water, place it in your yard, and pull fish out of it. Such skill is always the attribute of good angling, and is to be admired wherever found.

That you may prosecute the sport and avocation in proper form and with credit the Club ask your acceptance of this rod and set of fishing implements. As you handle it you will remember the friends you have left behind, for the memory of a good time with good fellows is the joy that always remains. In the neighborhood of your new home it is to be hoped are many fishes, awaiting capture, and we know that your skill will always be rewarded, for you have often returned with trophies of the sport where others went lacking.

May you long live to fish. May you ever live to curl. May you always enjoy both, playing the last with skill and courtesy and doing the first to the King's taste.

Signed, on behalf of the Club.
J. H. CONNAL,
President.
J. H. FERGUSON,
Sec.-Treas.

Historic Building Sold.

The old frame building on Queen street, Kingston, in which the first Council of Upper Canada assembled in 1792, has changed hands, being purchased by J. M. Caines of that city. The building was held for months for the Kingston Historical Society to purchase, but that organization failed to raise the money, about $800. Another effort will be made to secure the old structure as a museum.

MYSTERY OF GLAMIS.

What Is the True Story of the Castle's Secret Room?

Grim old Glamis Castle stands in Forfardshire, Scotland, and is, and has been, for centuries, the principal seat of the Earls of Strathmore.

It is one of the most perfect specimens extant of a typical fortress-residence of the Middle Ages, with walls fifteen feet thick.

But its chief claim to interest lies in the fact that it holds, somewhere within its gloomy precincts, a secret of so terrible a nature that it is never permitted to be divulged to more than three people at one time. These are the Earl of Strathmore for the time being, his eldest son, and the factor, or steward, of the estate.

The heir is initiated into the mystery on the night of his twenty-first birthday, never before. Accompanied by his father, the earl, and preceded by the factor carrying a crowbar and keys, the young man is taken through a succession of corridors to a concealed recess. A portion of masonry is removed, and the secret revealed to him.

The wall is then built up again, after which the factor invariably leaves the castle and rides for home, no matter how stormy the night or late the hour.

Of course there have not been wanting scoffers who have made light of the Glamis mystery, have even asserted that none such exists; but the fact remains that the people most nearly concerned in it do not by any means regard it with indifference.

Indeed, it is on record that the late earl, who died only so recently as 1905, and who was one of the most level-headed men, once said sadly and solemnly to a pressing inquirer: "Sir, if you could guess the nature of the secret, you would go down on your knees and thank God it were not yours."

Innumerable attempts have been made by unauthorized persons to fathom the mystery, but they have never succeeded. Once a former Countess of Strathmore, during the temporary absence of her husband, assembled a party of guests as curious as herself, and together they searched every nook, corner and cranny of the ancient castle for a whole week, trying to discover the locality of the secret room.

Their efforts proved unavailing, so they invented another plan. Starting on the assumption that the hidden chamber must have a window, they hung towels out of every casement, concluding that any window which displayed no towel must belong to the apartment they were in search of. But when they had finished, it was found that not one window only was minus the tell-tale towel, but that seven were thus undecorated, thereby proving that at least that number of secret rooms existed at various places in the thickness of the massive walls.

In the midst of the excitement caused by this discovery, Lord Strathmore returned unexpectedly, and, furious with anger, bundled the entire house party neck and crop. He then summarily dismissed about twenty of the servants whom he found guilty of assisting in the plot, after which earl and countess parted, never to meet again.

Of course there are stories innumerable professing to account for this most fascinating of family mysteries. Thus, it is asserted that there exists in the secret chamber a hideous, half-human monster of fabulous age. Another variant is that a being of the vampire type is born every generation into the family.

But the favorite story, and one which may contain a germ of the real truth, concerns a border feud, in the course of which the then Lord of Glamis made a number of prisoners, whom he callously flung into one of his dungeons and left to starve.

The tale goes on to tell how the bones of these wretched captives strew the floor of that dismal hold to this day, the position of some of the skeletons showing that the unhappy men died in the act of gnawing the flesh from their arms.

Dorothy Drew's Wedding.

Lord Rosebery and Mr. A. J. Balfour, political ally and political enemy of her immortal grandfather, were among those who signed the register when Miss Dorothy Drew was married to Mr. Francis Woodbine Parish, her uncle, Lord Gladstone's aide-de-camp.

A mass of idlers gathered about St. Margaret's, Westminster, London, to see the notable guests come and go, but, as is the case at most of the weddings that take place soon after Easter, the number of invited guests was not particularly large. Lord Kelburn, Lord Dalmeny, the Dowager Lady Leconfield (Lord Rosebery's sister), Lady Rayleigh (Mr. Balfour's sister), Lady Helen Boyle, Miss Alice Balfour, Sir John Gladstone, and a goodly muster of relatives of both young people were to be seen.

The bride, a graceful girl with fine eyes and a most expressive countenance, looked well in her gown of white satin charmeuse and old lace and the veil which was Mrs. Gladstone's, and her twelve maids were pretty in white crepe de chine made after a Grecian mode, while their heads were encircled by silver blanket leaves gathered by the bride on Table Mountain, South Africa. Lady Grosvenor and Mr. George Wyndham lent Saighton Grange, Chester, for the honeymoon.

No Sleep for 30 Years.

Trenton (West Australia) has a resident, Mr. Albert Herpin, who is said to have been unable to sleep for 30 years. Mr. Herpin, who is now 60 years old, says he passes his nights in a chair, not even momentarily experiencing drowsiness. He was attacked by this strange malady shortly after the death of his wife, more than 30 years ago. Mr. Herpin states that he suffers no inconvenience from this prolonged insomnia, and often dreams while he is awake. He has come to the conclusion that sleep is not necessary to a man, and is delighted at the idea that he has not lost a great part of his life in unconsciousness.

Canada, Maple Land.

Regarding the authorship of the patriotic verses beginning "Canada, Maple Land," Miss Janet Carnochan of Niagara-on-the-Lake writes to The Toronto News:

I first saw the lines in a Methodist S.S. paper edited by Rev. W. H. Withrow; he always picked up anything good (Canadian). I admired it so that I cut it out and used it in my "Niagara 100 years ago," written I think in 1890 and published by the Lundy's Lane Historical Society in 1893. I heard Col. Denison recite it very effectively at a Lundy's Lane celebration afterwards. As it appeared in the S. S. papers the letters A. C. were signed. I often wondered who was the writer. Mrs Curzon's initials were S. A. C. so I do not believe the lines were hers. I think I quoted them again in "Visitors to Niagara." I hope we may yet know who was the author of the fine stirring patriotic lines. It is to be hoped no one will claim them dishonestly.

G. S. Smith, of Buffalo, was fined $200 at Niagara Falls for charging an illegal rate of interest at Fort Erie.

Ernest Ramson was killed at the Standard Ideal Company's factory at Port Hope by being whirled around a shaft.

An Employer's Liability Policy
MIGHT SAVE YOU HEAVY DAMAGES
While an accident may be due to an employee's own carelessness, still there's no certainty that the employer will not have to pay heavy damages. New legislation too is steadily increasing the responsibility of the employer. But an Employer's Liability Policy in the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would protect you against financial loss through injuries to an employee while on duty. The General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would deal justly with your employee too. It is noted for fairness and broadmindedness. It is one of the oldest and strongest Insurance Companies in the world. Do not delay to write for further particulars.
Injuries in the industrial world are frequent. In the building, metal and woodworking trades alone there were 294 people killed and 1,421 injured in Canada during 1910 and 1911. Our business is to relieve the employer of all financial responsibility resulting from accident.

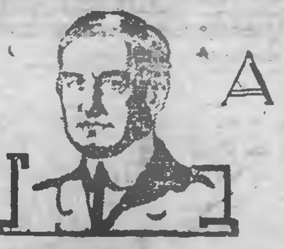
CRAVATH WINS



A SERIES OF TEN STORIES BY JOHN T McINTYRE

COPYRIGHT 1912 BY THE NORTH AMERICAN CO.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING STORIES

CRAVATH is an athletic young fellow in search of $1000. His quest for the coin leads him to a gilded cafe, where he can most readily get rid of his sole remaining cash. Luck favors, however, and he meets his Boswell, the narrator of his subsequent adventures, in the person of a good-natured promoter of athletic sports named Scanlon. It so happens that the latter is in the dumps. His "white hope," a mammoth specimen of stonemason that he had matched to fight the "Gravedigger" at the Pelican Athletic Club, has decided not to risk having his beauty spoiled in the ring. The purse is $1000, and as that is just the amount Cravath needs, he agrees to be a "ringer." It seems that the thousand is the price of a certain dueling pistol belonging to a Miss Betterton, then in Europe, with whom Cravath is in love. When he recovers it, he gets the girl. She wants the pistol because it is her sole and only claim to aristocratic lineage. One of her ancestors used it when he seconded a gentleman in a duel, so it is proof positive that the ancestor was a gentleman.

When Cravath enters the ring, he goes after the thousand as rapidly as possible—in the first place, because he needs the money, and in the second, because he is not in trim to stand a long fight. The "Gravedigger" goes down, and the "white hope's" substitute walks away with the coin.

Next day the papers are full of the sensation—an aristocratic amateur has entered the professional ranks and pounded the other fellow for what there is in it. Most scandalized of all are "Old Blaylow" and his son, who are intent upon taking Miss Betterton and her money into their family. Blaylow calls upon Cravath at his suburban home, to induce him to give up his claims to the young woman, but without avail. In the afternoon, however, Cravath is obliged to call up Scanlon and impart the information that the thousand has been stolen. Suspicion, of course, attaches to Blaylow. In the night the two repair to Blaylow's house, where the money is supposed to be hidden in a Flemish cabinet. Unfortunately, another has taken up the quest before them, and he gets away with the money. Not to be outdone, they pursue the thief and rob him, regaining the missing money.

Still determined, "Old Blaylow" induces a racing man, who is the worse for wear, to borrow Cravath's thousand to bet on one of his superannuated thoroughbreds. But Scanlon gets on to the game in time, and substitutes a live horse, so that the money is not lost.

Next the two buy the pistol. But Cravath is visited at his home by a beautiful women, a sister of young Blaylow, who palms a bogus weapon off on him. The men suspect, however, that the dealer has "done" both parties, so they visit him and bluff him into disgorging the genuine firearm.

V.—The Adventure of the Swedish Butler

I CALLED at Cravath's that night and was admitted by a stolid, solid blue-eyed young man.

"A butler," explained Cravath as he handed me a cigar in the library.

"Looks like a Swede," criticised I.

"A Swede he is," confessed my host, "and rather slow even for a Scandinavian."

We lighted our cigars, and while I was enjoying that first delicate bouquet so cherished by true smokers, Cravath told me of the reason for the new member of the household.

"When I left for Europe some weeks ago, the cook and the maid complained of lack of masculine protection. So my mother notified an agency to send along a butler. I had returned, and she had gone away on a visit before the man arrived. As he had excellent references, I took him on; mother will be home in a few days, and she can then decide about keeping him."

"A butler," said I, nursing one knee, and drawing slowly at the cigar. "What a train of memories the thought of him brings! I can see him as he used to be in the fat English novels, faithful, bald and round-faced, decanting the port or counting the silver. A fine, true-hearted old fellow he was with his cutaway waistcoat and his snowy shirt frill and his great concern for the honor of the family."

"I remember him well," reflected Cravath. "At first I could not quite reconcile his perfections with his station. 'His lack of class is assumed for some deep reason,' thought I, with youthful wisdom; 'in his veins flows blood as noble as that of the best of them all. Only wait until the last chapter, then you will see a throwing off of disguise, a spirited declaration of identity and a clasping of his darling child to his breast.' But as this never came to pass, I soon saw the impossibility of a butler as anything but a butler."

"Ah," sighed I, "you were very, very young, I suppose, and not long before your reading had been thronged with beasts who turned out to be princes of stately mien and ancient lineage. Your mind had not yet been properly conditioned to the facts of life. However, I have never objected to the butler's being restricted to fat, baldness and faithful service. Pocketed thus, one can love him for himself alone."

We smoked awhile and dwelt upon the creations of the old three-decker novelists; memories of forgotten butlers thronged upon us, butlers without names, but possessing virtues which made one forget such smallnesses, and caused one to nod and smile and feel very comfortable.

"I also liked the butler in the old plays," said I. "To be sure, he lacked the smoothness of the one in the novel, but then he was saddled, most likely, with the interpretation of an actor who had never seen a first-class job of buttling in his life. In some ways the dramatic butler opportunities were greater. It was he who, having become a greengrocer, always met his one-time master on the bridge, during a snowstorm, slipped him a couple of pounds, for old-time rocks, and told him that a better day was in store. Also it was he who always had the last slap at the wrongly accused, about to be driven from the home of his fathers. That was an actor-proof situation; even the rottenest of them could make good in it. 'Your father casts you off, your friends turn their backs upon you, the world believes you guilty; but,' he was accustomed to say, 'let them do as they will, let them think as they will, you have one friend left, a humble one enough, sir, but one who will stick to you to the end.'"

"An uproar," said Cravath. "An uproar always followed it, even in my time."

Then he got up; crossing the room softly, he threw open a door. The Swedish butler was picking the dead leaves from a potted plant at a window a few feet away. He looked up unemotionally.

"Yes, Mr. Cravath," said he.

"I was just speculating as to what it was," said Cravath, quietly.

"I thought I'd look around, sir, and see that everything was right."

"Very well," said Cravath, and closed the door.

He sat down and began drawing at his cigar, thoughtfully. A corrugation between his brows spoke of something not quite clear.

"You have what I would call fair hearing," said I.

"Eh?" and he looked at me after the fashion of a man who had been intent upon other things.

"I say your hearing is excellent," repeated I. "Or, perhaps, you heard that fellow because you were projecting your attention, to some extent, beyond the room."

Cravath nodded.

"Somehow," said he, "I've got rather in the habit of listening and watching of late. Probably my experiences of the last few days have put my nerves on edge. I hear sounds, now, the like of which I never heard before; and I fancy I see sights which my mind assures me can have no place in nature."

"As you suggest—nerves," I informed him. "They perform outrageously at times, and have a knack of seeming most plausible when at their worst. I have known men—and women—to give up their real lives, so completely were they deceived, and live those of fancy, filled with whisperings, rappings and shadowy flitting to and fro. They said they were psychic; but the facts were that they were merely victims of nerve-distorted imaginings."

"'Shadowy flitting to and fro,'" repeated Cravath, soberly. "It comes to that sometimes, does it?"

"In some cases I have known the shadows to take unto themselves voices," I informed him. "Also to impart information as to thimbles lost thirty years before, and such like breathless intelligence."

"My case," said Cravath, "has not progressed quite so far. At the present stage I see the shadows; the voices are still vague and subdued and uncertain."

I gazed at him in astonishment.

"Put that across again," I requested of him. He repeated this saying, and my astonishment grew greater. "Is it possible!" I exclaimed.

He nodded his head.

"Only this evening I stood by the side window," said he. "The elms seemed to thicken the darkness and I was watching the differing qualities of the night merge into one, when I saw a movement."

"An indefinite, vague sort of thing, I suppose," said I. "They are usually like that at first, I understand."

"On the contrary," said Cravath, "this movement was singularly direct; if it possessed any characteristics that could be called such, it was those which told of a well-digested purpose."

"In this you are different," I told him, "and being different, you interest me. Go on."

"In a very few moments," he proceeded, "the thing became less a matter of feeling with me; I no longer sensed it animal-like; it grew tangible; it took the definite shape of a short man in a long coat, followed by a long man in a short one."

"When was this?" I inquired, with interest.

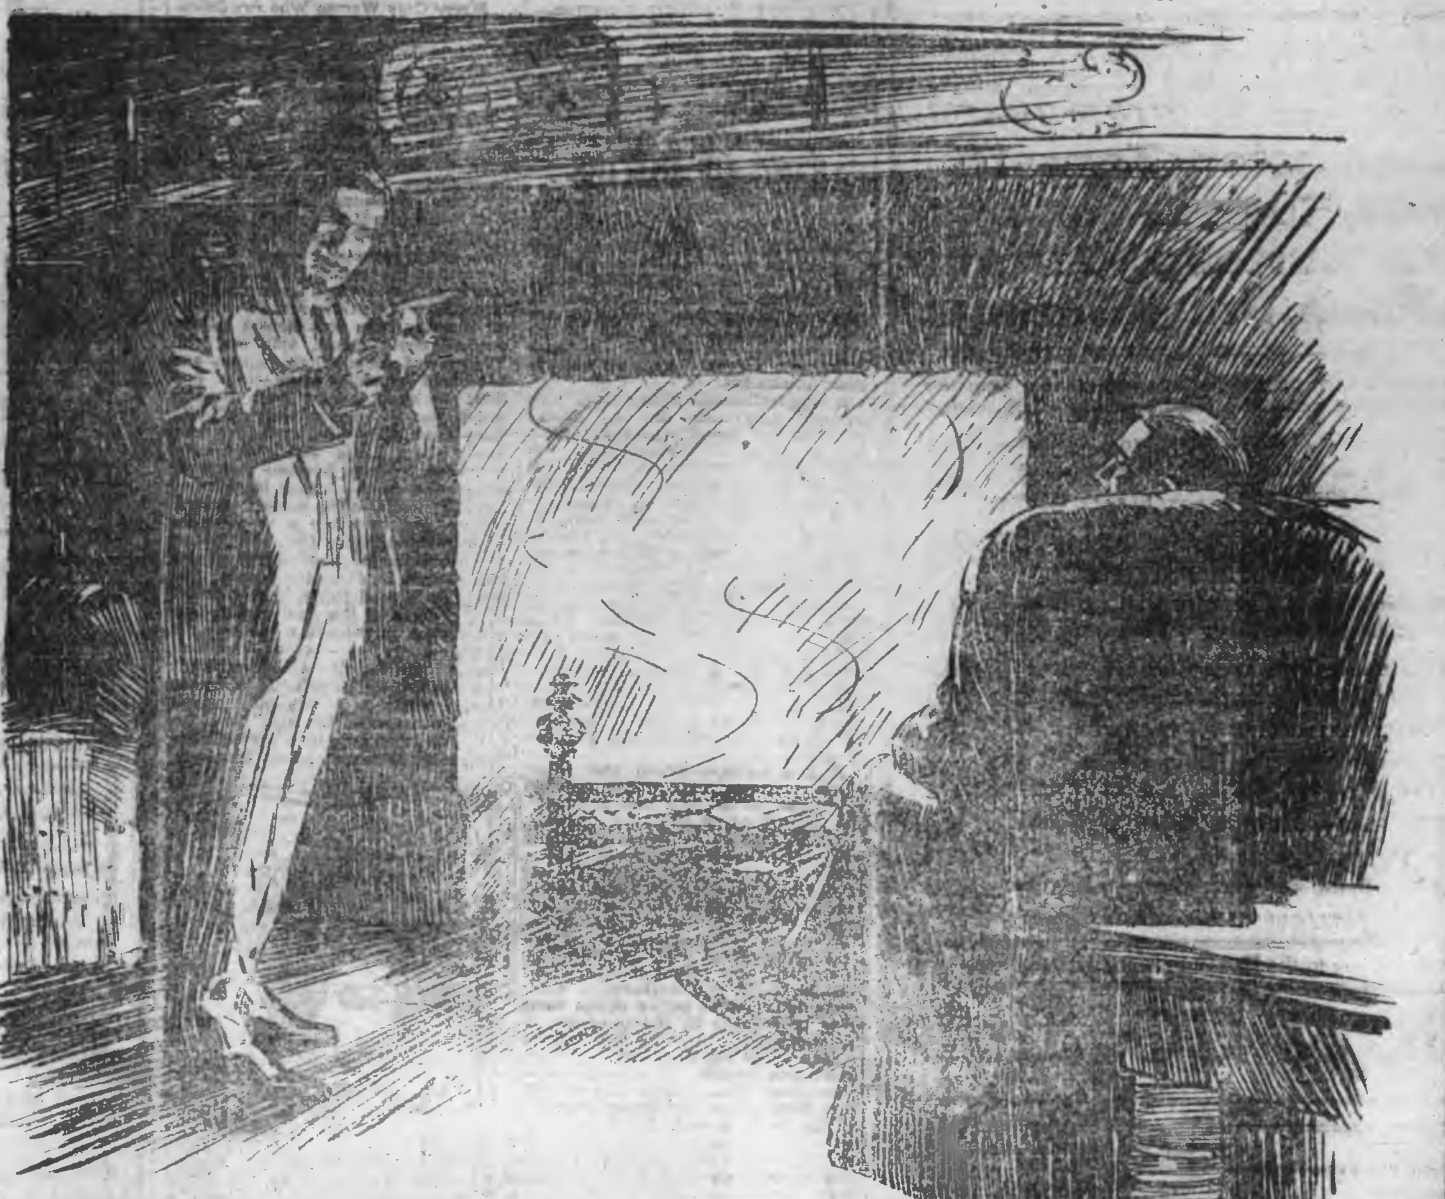
"Just before you came. In fact, I was still at the window when you rang."

"Then," said I, "it was no vision. For as I came up the walk I, also, saw a short man in a long coat and a long man in a short coat."

Cravath smoked and smiled and said nothing, and I continued:

"I fancied that you had had visitors. They came down the walk as coolly as you please, and turned into the street without once looking back."

"It would seem," said Cravath, "that my vision is not solely mine. And being shared by another, I feel that I must renounce it."



"Glancing up from the fire, I saw Cravath examining an automatic pistol"

"You show your good sense," said I, putting the remnant of my cigar in an ashtray. "Subdued voices, mysterious flittings, strangers in short coats, other strangers in long ones, only mean one thing to me."

"And that is—?"

"Gumshoe work!" I declared, smacking the table with my palm. "The Blaylows are not yet willing to acknowledge defeat; they have still another little job on the fire stewing away for dear life. Where is the Betterton flintlock?"

"It's in a—" Here Cravath paused, suddenly leaped to a window, threw it up and vaulted through. I stuck out my head and saw my friend and the Swedish butler standing face to face.

"A peculiar series of noises, sir," the man was explaining. "I could make nothing of them, and being a stranger, I thought it best to look around."

"Ah, yes," said Cravath; "peculiar noises. I see! Yes, look around, by all means. It seems to me that I have noticed a number of unusual things myself last night and tonight."

"One can never be too careful, sir," spoke the man.

Cravath regained the room and closed the window.

"We are not alone, then," said he. "Others are also seeing and hearing things."

I took to nursing my knee once more, and watching the fire. At length I said:

"This Swede, now; you say he came with good references?"

"The very best."

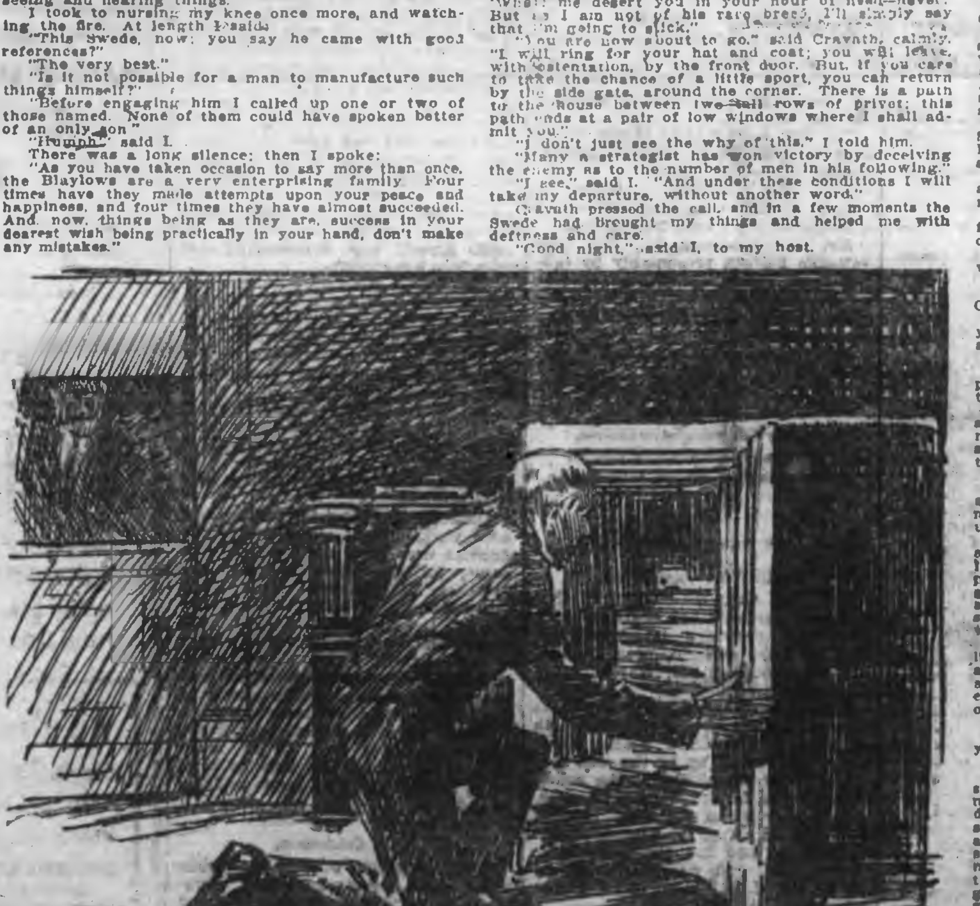
"Is it not possible for a man to manufacture such things himself?"

"Before engaging him I called up one or two of those named. None of them could have spoken better of an only son."

"Humph," said I.

There was a long silence; then I spoke:

"As you have taken occasion to say more than once, the Blaylows are a very enterprising family. Four times have they made attempts upon your peace and happiness, and four times they have almost succeeded. And now, things being as they are, success in your dearest wish being practically in your hand, don't make any mistakes."



"We came to the lighted window just in time to see the Swede swing open the safe door"

Cravath shook his head.

"I shall try not to," he said.

"Right now," proceeded I, "there is a little tautness in your personal affairs which I do not particularly favor. The stage seems to be in the way of being set for a fifth act of the drama; we have seen, I think, some of the persons concerned, but whether they be actors or merely 'grips,' I don't know. However, let us prepare to go through our allotment in the performance. Personally, I would prefer to play a man with false whiskers who casts them off in the crucial moment and declares himself on the side of the virtuous and oppressed, but I'm willing to do anything."

Then I heard a metallic sound, and glancing up from the fire, I saw Cravath examining an automatic pistol.

"A flintlock," said he, "may be just the sort of thing to prove the valor of an ancestor, but a Colt forty-five has more 'kick' and will be more likely to bring the drama to a sharper point."

"I am armed with nothing save good intentions," said I. "However, I've seen many a promising little game spoiled by a great deal less."

Then, gradually we drifted to other topics; the missing portions of the stage settings were perhaps being added, but we never gave them a word. Finally a tall, solemn-sounding old clock spoke of midnight, and Cravath arose.

"Now," said he, "you are going."

I, too, arose.

"This," said I, "is perhaps a jest. If it is, pray allow me to tell you that your taste in such things is going back. The butler in the play, of whom we just now spoke, would say under these circumstances: 'What! me desert you in your hour of need—never!' But as I am not of his rare breed, I'll simply say that I'm going to stick."

"You are now about to go," said Cravath, calmly. "I will ring for your hat and coat; you will leave, with ostentation, by the front door. But, if you care to take the chance of a little sport, you can return by the side gate, around the corner. There is a path to the house between two tall rows of privet; this path ends at a pair of low windows where I shall admit you."

"I don't just see the why of this," I told him.

"Many a strategist has won victory by deceiving the enemy as to the number of men in his following."

"I see," said I. "And under these conditions I will take my departure, without another word."

Cravath pressed the call, and in a few moments the Swede had brought my things and helped me with [illegible]

"Good night," said I, to my host.

"Good night," he returned. "I will, no doubt, see you some time during tomorrow."

The Swede let me out; as I walked down the level path toward the street, I heard him close the door softly. With clicking heels and much tapping of my stick I proceeded along the sidewalk to the next corner, where I crossed the intersecting street and was lost to a view of any one who might be watching from the vicinity of Cravath's. Then I paused in a doorway, and waited for, perhaps, ten minutes.

Then, with stick buttoned under my overcoat, my hands in my pockets, my hat at a decided angle and my gait altered as much as possible, I turned into the intersecting street and made my way toward the mentioned side gate. I found it readily enough; also I found it locked. But I managed to scale it; dropping into the path, I made my way softly along between the rows of privet. There was a small horned moon swinging low in the sky; the suburban street lights had been, for the most part, switched off at midnight; the lights of the house were all out save that in the library. Every half dozen steps or so I would pause and listen. The noises peculiar to the night would sound here and there, sometimes so startlingly loud that I gathered myself to resist the rush of an unseen some one. But no such thing happened; I gained the window, and tapping lowly, was admitted.

"Here you are on the ground," whispered Cravath, in my ear, "and none of the possible lurking conspirators knows of your presence. There is an advantage in this. If you go with me into the library, or any other lighted apartment, this advantage is lost."

"Then," said I, "I will cling to the dark places."

"It will be more or less uncomfortable," said Cravath, "but, I think, will be best."

He was about to say something else, but paused suddenly, and I felt his hand upon my shoulder in warning. Then the hand pressed downward; instantly I knew that he meant me to conceal myself. As I came in I had touched some large article of furniture; my hand now felt for this, and, when found, I sank down behind it.

Then the light went suddenly up, and I saw the Swedish butler standing in a doorway. Not a whit did he seem startled at sight of Cravath; his stolid face and light-colored eyes were almost without expression.

"Oh, was it you, Mr. Cravath?" he said. "I heard a sound as I was passing through the hall, and seeing no light, thought I would look in."

"Your recommendations made no mention of the fact," said Cravath, "but you are, along with your other qualities, a singularly alert person."

"Thank you, sir," said the Swede, and at once withdrew.

At once the lights were turned off, and I arose.

"The butler seems very wide awake," whispered Cravath.

"Very," returned I, dryly. "And I think, if I were you, I would take steps to put him thoroughly to sleep, and then send in a call for the police."

I could hear him chuckle, softly.

"That would at least be energetic; but it might not, perhaps, cover the case," he told me, in the same low tone.

"I think," maintained I, "if he were deprived of his ability to prowl around in the dark, the curtain would never be rung up on this last act. As it stands, the signal will be given before a great while, I think, and there may be doings that you never dreamed of."

Again Cravath chuckled.

"The butler seems willing to investigate each sound as it falls," said he, "so why should I deprive myself of a useful helper or him of an innocent pleasure?"

"All right," said I, in a huff. "Let's take the thing as it lies. Tell me what you'd like to have me do; but learn beforehand, if I come upon your Swede in the performance of my set of stunts, let him hold up his guard. I never did like an unemotional man like his, anyway. A fellow with one of them would wear the same expression in committing a homicide that he would in eating a plate of soup."

"Listen," said Cravath. "I am going back to the library, and in order to seem quite contented, I'll spend a half hour in drinking a little Scotch and smoking another cigar. In the meantime, you do a trifle of cautious prowling on your own account. Don't be seen or heard, but see and hear everything."

"Right," said I. "But when the half hour's done?"

"Contrive to be here, and I'll compare notes with you."

And with that he left me.

I waited for quite a few moments, then I softly stepped to the window. The lawn was dark, the small moon and pale stars being rather futile. There was a dim waving of the elms in the slight wind; to the south a glow overhung the city. I stood looking out at this for a few moments; then the tall man and the short man came to my mind and a sort of anger seized me. I am not quite sure that this was not because of the incongruous coats which they wore; at any rate, I grasped my heavy stick firmly, and sallied out into the grounds surrounding the house, hoping to come upon either of the twain engaged in something nefarious.

"Or," thought I, "if the thing cannot be otherwise arranged, I would not object to coming alongside them both at the same time. Having been started, nothing but action of the most energetic sort will please me."

But the grounds about the house held no one; save for trees and graveled walks there was nothing but short cropped grass. I therefore abandoned the scout, went back to the house and entered at the window. In closing the latter, I made a slight sound; almost instantly a voice hissed in my ear.

"Hush-h-h!"

"Right," said I, "it slipped."

"You act like a longshoreman," hissed the voice. "Where the devil have you been?"

"Friend Cravath," I told myself, "is somewhat peevish." Aloud I replied. "Outside."

"Now, look here," whispered the voice, "this is no time to open any of your jokes. I know you were outside; and if it wasn't for me, you'd stayed there."

I was pondering this saying, but before I could come to anything with regard to it, he spoke again.

"See anything of the Swede?"

"No," said I.

"I saw him and the other one, awhile ago, with their heads together. I don't know what they talked about, though."

"The other one?" whispered I, inquiringly.

"Cravath, I mean."

I was shocked into silence at this. I had been conversing with one of the prowlers, and because of the suppression of the voice never noted the difference. Though I felt that the whispered mode of speech would also protect me from recognition, still I made no sound. For a time he said nothing more, and as I waited I fell to speculating as to which of the two he was. First I pictured the tall man, or at least I recreated the impression he had made upon me, for I had had but a glimpse of him and the picture was faint. But the impression was buttoned into a coat grotesquely scant as to length; and this so racked my feelings that I just caught myself in the act of reaching forward to deprive him of the offensive garment, when he said:

"Stay here and watch. If you hear anything that indicates danger, give the signal. You remember it, don't you?"

"Yes," whispered I.

I was afraid for a moment that he'd ask me to give him an illustration of my memory; but he didn't. Indeed, he said nothing more, and in a moment the creak of a door showed that he had left the room.

Instantly I pit-patted in the direction of the sound; as noiselessly as possible I felt about for the doorway, sliding my fingertips along the wall; but suddenly they came in contact with a small but insecure something which fell to the floor with a crash. And while I stood, breathless at this catastrophe, a hand lightly touched me.

"Hard luck, old chap," said Cravath's low voice.

"How do you get out of this confounded room?" said I. "I knocked that thing down groping for the doorway."

"You are now in the hall," spoke he. "You must have passed through the doorway without knowing it."

I began to whisper what I knew, but he stopped me.

"I know," said he. "I was within six feet of you both while you talked."

Again a door creaked; this time it was far up the hall, and there was a dim light burning in the room into which it opened, for the beams faintly illuminated that portion of the passage. At the same instant we got a glimpse of a short man in a long coat entering the room.

"Huh!" I recall saying to myself. "It wasn't the other fellow after all."

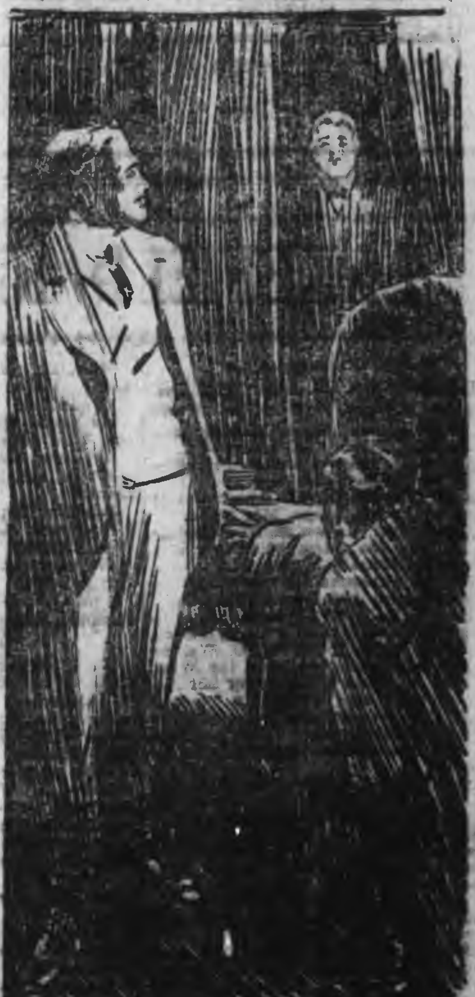
Cravath said nothing, but began to advance; ahead, the hall was still dimly illumined. With my eyes upon the lighted spot I caught a glimpse of a second figure. And then I halted Cravath with a pluck at his coat.

"Look there," warned I.

One glance at the figure, and he whispered:

"The butler!"

It was the Swede sure enough, advancing toward the partly opened door from the opposite direction; he



"The light went suddenly up, and I saw the Swedish butler standing in the doorway" carried a shining revolver of small caliber; his step was cautious, his face was set and intent. Peering into the room, we saw him crouch as though for a rush; then he disappeared into the room like a flash; instantly there came the sound of a struggle.

Both Cravath and myself cast off all caution and raced for the scene of struggle. Before we reached it there came a faint cry, and as we burst into the room we saw the Swede upon the floor in front of the small safe, his hand pressed to his head.

"Quick!" he cried as his eyes rested upon us. "After him; he went that way," pointing to an open window. "Quick, or you'll lose him."

Without an instant's pause we went bouncing out upon the lawn. The sound of feet upon a walk nearby attracted me.

"There he is," I cried.

Away we raced after the fleeing man; but we had not gone fifty yards when Cravath caught me by the arm.

"That will do," said he, quietly. "Let us go back."

"But he will escape," protested I.

"If we don't get back he'll escape," said Cravath; and dragging me after him over the soundless turf, he headed for the house.

We came to the lighted window just in time to see the Swede swing open the safe door. Cravath dashed through the window, but the man dodged him neatly and came at me as I was floundering in the opening, impeded by my overcoat and stick. I was upon my back under the window when Cravath appeared, the Betterton pistol safe in his hand.

"Another moment," smiled he, "and we would have been too late. That fellow was an experienced workman."

"So it would seem," said I. "But," rather bewilderedly, "I don't think I quite grasp these last developments."

"I didn't myself until a moment before we stopped our pursuit," said Cravath, as he helped me in.

"Were there two parties of conspirators, or only one?" I asked.

"I think there was but one," he answered. "And, as I figure it, it was their plan to have the Swede admit the others by leaving something unfastened. Then they were to proceed to work. What became of the third man I don't pretend to know, but the other two were in the hall there when you upset that something or other. They were quick thinkers, for instantly their plans changed. They arranged a little scene of desperate housebreaker and faithful servant. Faithful servant, sorely stricken by said desperate housebreaker, cries out to his excited master and friend to pursue the villain. And while master and friend are vigorously doing so, the faithful servant quickly gets up and goes through the safe."

"That sounds like it," agree I. "But, get me a drink of something. That Swede's face was heavy, to be sure; but he has a hand that's heavier."

NORWOOD NEWS

Special Correspondence

Norwood, Oct. 15.—This is the first day of legal partridge hunting and as many of our Norwood sportsmen have been waiting patiently for it to arrive, we expect to hear soon of some big bags. Birds are said to be fairly plentiful this fall and should furnish some good sport to the sportsmen.

The Norwood Lodge of Independent Foresters are giving a complimentary entertainment in the Town Hall to-morrow evening. A good program will be given, and one high up in the order will deliver an address on the advantages of a Fraternal Society.

The Fair night concert, under the auspices of the Councillors of the village was much appreciated by a large audience. The net proceeds, after paying all expenses, amounted to ninety-three dollars, which was deposited in the bank to apply on the new piano purchased for the hall this year. On account of the heavy downpour of rain, which prevailed all afternoon and evening, the crowd was not as dense as last year, but the hall was comfortably filled, every reserved seats being taken.

Constable Puffer [illegible] next few days make a friendly call on each family in the village, and as a souvenir, will leave a very nice card, printed specially at the office of the Norwood Register for the occasion. At the top of the card will be noticed printed in beautiful type "Statement of Assessment on the Roll of the Collector for 1912"

Oh! It's only the tax bill.

Mr. K. G. Thompson expects to move his drug store to his newly leased premises in the Whyte Block on the corner of Peterboro and Colborne streets in a few days. The Bell Telephone men are busy installing the wires for the new office, which will be fitted out with the latest equipment.

Mr. John Baskin has opened his hotel on Colborne street, which has been furnished throughout in first class shape.

TAKING UP DUTIES AT HAMILTON

Mr. W. McIlroy is in the city today, closing up affairs of his agenship for the C.P.R. in Peterborough. For the last few days he has been at Hamilton taking over details of the agency. Throughout the day he has been the recipient of many congratulations on his well deserved and distinct promotion.

It is questionable if any local man has gone away from this city during the last few years whose departure was more generally regretted. It would seem impossible to find a man who seemed to combine the qualities so essential in a railway representative. Affable, courteous, obliging, with a fund of humor that avoided petty troubles, and with a keen eye to engage and hold business for his road the company has been well represented. Men would go out of their way to travel on the C.P.R. when they could buy the tickets from McIlroy. People in perplexity as to ways and routes and costs had these things smoothed away by McIlroy. He did business as a friend, as an agent, and never forgot the one or the other. In his new field he will be equally successful.

It is a business truth that in all large companies and organizations promotion comes as a matter of merit. Favoritism is of little account, and pull is equally futile. To gain the confidence and approval of the heads there must be real work and ability to deserve it. Mr. McIlroy was chief clerk at Galt, Ont., then promoted to city passenger agent at St Thomas for a couple of years, and again transferred to Galt with the same duties and responsibilities. From Galt he came to Peterborough eight years ago, and no better choice could have been made in the interests of the company.

Then again Mr. McIlroy will leave regretting friends. A capital and always acceptable vocalist, his services have been given unstintingly to assist in the program and entertain audiences when anything was gotten up in aid of local objects. No farewell occasion was complete without McIlroy. In fraternal circles his going is a grief, and the city is the better of his eight years of life here, and he the better of it himself.

Death Was Accidental.

Colborne, Oct. 17.—"We find that deceased came to her death through accidental drowning on March 24, 1911, in Lake Ontario, near Toronto, and we exonerate Mr. Harold A. E. Clarke from all blame."

Such was the verdict returned at Coroner Latta's inquest into the death of Miss Lillian Olive Blain, whose body was washed up by the lake here after nearly 17 months in the water.

Clarke, a former Trinity student, was closely examined, and testified that he had struggled hard to rescue Miss Blain and her girl companion, Miss Hicks, and was pulled out by his friend, C. J. Wolfe, in an unconscious condition.

Not Participating.

London, Oct. 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Postmaster Samuel, replying to a question as to whether Canada was to establish wireless stations in connection with the Imperial wireless scheme subject to a 10 per cent. royalty, said the question of participation in the scheme was not discussed with the Canadian Government.

It was decided, he said, to erect six or seven stations and extend the scheme later.

A DUCHESS' SOLUTION

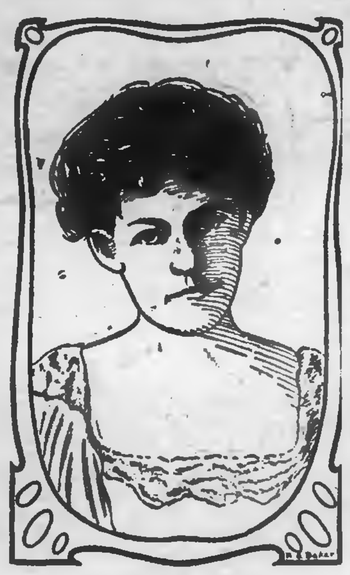
LADY SUTHERLAND PLACES HER HOPE IN DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

British Noblewoman Says Men Should Marry Only Women Who Are Scientific Housekeepers and Many Ills Would Be Removed—She Is a Hard Worker In Behalf of Betterment of the Lower Classes.

"If I were a man, I would marry only a woman who had been taught domestic science. This means in all its branches, including cooking, making beds, sweeping, marketing, etc. Woe betide him if he doesn't, especially if he is an old-fashioned type of man. And perhaps I ought to add, woe betide the woman. The men and women of bygone days understood the importance of these words. Women in all classes, from the richest to the poorest, could weave, spin and embroider and cook. Their potions and household remedies gave them and their children health and beauty, which women acquire with difficulty these days. They did not bother their heads about Latin and Greek, and never felt ignorant because they were unschooled in the higher learning so much appreciated by women to-day."

These are the words of the Duchess of Sutherland, one of the great leaders of English society, spoken recently before a class in domestic science. "It would be a good thing," she concluded, "if some of the subjects at present taught in schools made way for longer hours at cooking, hygiene, laundry and needlework. Practically developed, domestic science, taken seriously, might be a valuable cure for the restlessness of the age."

Few titled women in England to-day have more attraction for all kinds and classes of people than that exerted by the Duchess of Sutherland. She was the eldest daughter of the Duke of Roslyn and was born in 1869. Married when very young, from the time when she first assumed her position as mistress of several famous ancestral homes, she has shown a serious trend of mind and has been interested in all sorts of social questions. When she was yet a bride, she noticed in going over her husband's estate that some of the women were neglecting their homes and their families because they were employed away from home. The duchess determined to get them work which could be done at home so that they could earn a living and at the same time look after their families. She worked hard, and very successfully, to encourage the revival of the hand loom weaving of homespuns, serges, and tweeds. The sale of these goods she fostered by wearing the stuffs herself and encouraging her friends to wear them.



THE DUCHESS OF SUTHERLAND.

The duchess gives up a certain portion of her time every week working as a nurse for the sick and the poor. She wears the regular nurse's uniform and does all the hard work required of the professional nurse. The institution in which she nurses is a small hospital founded by herself for the purpose of giving the sea water treatment introduced by Dr. Quinton, of Paris. The treatment is especially designed to cure diseases arising from overcrowding.

Although interested in charities and good works of all descriptions, the duchess does not neglect her own home, for she practices what she preaches. Her husband owns half a dozen magnificent estates in different parts of the kingdom and the duchess superintends all the household affairs of each of them. She is a distinguished-looking woman and while she does not possess the remakable beauty of her half-sister, Lady Warwick, she has a charm which is no less compelling. Her husband is said to be much prouder of the duchess than he is of being head of the great house of Sutherland.

Aged Cricketers.

A cricket match between two cricketers aged seventy-three and sixty-three caused considerable amusement at Thaxted (Essex, Eng.) Recreation Ground. The feature of the match was that each man had to be his own bowler and fieldsman, and no byes were counted. The elder man won the game by eleven runs.

Money In Diamonds.

The profits in diamond mining can be imagined from the fact that the Premier Diamond Co. of the Transvaal paid last year a 250 per cent. dividend on its preferred stock and 500 per cent. on its diamond shares.

Justified.

Prof Dalziel of Edinburgh, always pronounced his name Dalzell and in later years dropped "the "i" when signing his name. When challenged about it he replied: "Why not? If an "i" offend thee pluck it out."

RETIREMENT OF MR. MONK; TO KEEP PLEDGE TO ELECTORS

Rumors of the Past Few Weeks to the Effect That the Minister of Public Works Would Insist on a Plebiscite on Navy Question or Step Out Are Verified—L. T. Marechal May Be His Successor.

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—There is no longer any doubt about Mr. Monk's resignation from the Cabinet. While his resignation is not yet in the hands of Premier Borden, it will be in a day or two, and that it will be accepted can be definitely and authoritatively stated.

Mr. L. T. Marechal was here yesterday, accompanied by Mr. Coderre, M.P. for Hochelaga, and there is little doubt but that Mr. Marechal is to enter Parliament and the Government at an early date.

It is understood that the reason for Mr. Monk's restirement is because of his stand on the navy question. He is convinced that the situation which confronts the Empire is grave, and even critical. But he is earnest and insistent in his opinion that no assistance should be given by Canada, even as an emergency contribution, without referring the question to the people. There is reason for the belief that this latter view is now held by his colleagues.

HON. F. D. MONK.

Although Mr. Monk is retiring because of differences of opinion upon the naval issue, there is reason to believe that the public works portfolio has never been congenial to him. It is said that some of his recommendations were ignored by the Cabinet and that some of his colleagues protested that the political end of the big department of public works was not being well handled. Mr. Monk is an able and conscientious man, of sensitive temperament and he would have retired from office some time ago had he consulted his personal inclinations.

It is thought that Mr. Monk will retain his seat in the House and give the Government independent support.

Strong pressure is being brought to bear upon Mr. Monk by influential friends in Montreal to continue his connection in the Cabinet.

MARCONI LOSES HIS RIGHT EYE

Rome, Oct. 18.—Signor Marconi's right eye was removed yesterday by Dr. Bayardi, a noted Turin surgeon. Mr. Marooni was seriously injured on Sept. 26 in an automobile accident near Borghetto. He was removed to the hospital of the naval department at Spezia, where he was treated for several days. The severe contusions and swellings around the injured eye prevented a thorough examination until recently, when it was found that the optic nerve had been affected.

A consultation of physicians was held on Tuesday last when it was decided to operate, the removal of the right eye being deemed necessary to preserve the sight of the other. Since Oct. 10, Mr. Marconi's condition has not been satisfactory. He had suffered from neuralgic pains and the visual power of the injured eye showed rapid diminution.

Men Monopolize Talk!

Galt, Oct. 18.—Complaint is made that in the Waterloo County Teachers' Association, a few men monopolize the talking and a plan is on foot to organize a separate association for the ladies.

A strong feeling has been arouse against the practical exclusion of the gentler sex from discussions and from active office in the conduct of the affairs of the association.

Is New Governor.

London, Oct. 18.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Edward Davidson, C.M.G., governor of the Seychelles since 1904, has been appointed governor and commander-in-chief of Newfoundland in succession to Ralph Williams, who is to retire on Feb. 3.

Walter Edward Davidson, before becoming governor of Seychelles, a group of small islands, possessions of Great Britain in the Indian Ocean east of Zanzibar was assistant Colonial Secretary of Transvaal and was mayor of Colombo (Ceylon) in 1898. He is 53 years of age and received knighthood in 1902.

Local Option Meeting a Failure.

St. Catharines, Oct. 18.—At a meeting held at Jordan station, to consider the question of starting a local option campaign in Louth Township, but 13 people were in attendance. Those present divided seven to six on the question of asking the council to submit a bylaw in January, a bare majority of one. It is doubtful if the agitation will proceed any further.

Farmer Killed by Train.

Leamington, Ont., Oct. 18.—George Jeffrey, a well-to-do farmer of Mersea Township, was struck by a southbound Michigan Central Railway train at the 5th concession crossing yesterday and instantly killed.

People who saw the accident say that Mr. Jeffrey's horse became frightened and he was unable to move him.

Officials Appointed.

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—At yesterday's Cabinet meeting, Alfred Gravelle, William Price, ex-M.P., and J. B. Letellier were appointed harbor commissioners for the Port of Quebec.

The Government has appointed Hon. Justice Drysdale of Nova Scotia as local judge of the Exchequer and Admiralty Court of Neva Scotia.

ROOSEVELT IS RESTING EASILY

Blood Poisoning or Lockjaw May Yet Develop

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Throughout a day of unbroken calm, Col. Roosevelt lay in his bed in Mercy Hospital with virtually no variation of his condition. It was a day of waiting, with the ever present possibility of complications, but with lessened fears on the part of those who are watching over the wounded man. He seemed in his almost normal condition, but there was no relaxation in the strict regime, and his physicians said that he was by no means out of danger.

Col. Roosevelt's physicians were discussing last night the length of time it will be necessary for the colonel to remain in the hospital. It was thought it might be safe for him to leave for Oyster Bay on Monday or Tuesday if all goes well, but not even a tentative decision was reached.

The clinical records were the most encouraging of any day since Col. Roosevelt entered the hospital. During the morning the variation in temperature was limited to two-tenths of a degree, and throughout the afternoon it was reported as normal. There was virtually no variation in the pulse.

Possibility of tetanus or "lockjaw" always to be reckoned with in the case of bullet wounds, has still to be considered and as the period in which this might develop, the physicians said, is six or seven days, Col. Roosevelt will not be regarded as entirely out of danger even should the next day pass with no signs of blood poisoning. Dr. Scurry Terrell said that the colonel could not leave the hospital safely until the expiration of this period, and for that reason it was regarded as out of the question to consider the colonel's departure for Oyster Bay before early next week.

ADVOCATES HOME WORK

Brantford, Oct. 18.—Principal W. N. Bell of Paris, president of Brant Teachers' Association, at the annual convention here yesterday declared that the average age 13 1-2 years, of successful entrance candidates, was too high, and that the fault was with the parents and not with the teachers. He advocated home work and a stricter supervision by parents over all the pupils, which would result in great economy in the present public school educational system.

Over 125 teachers were present at the annual meeting.

WHOLE TURKISH GARRISON OUTWITTED MONTENEGRINS

Special To The Review.

London, Oct. 18.—The whole Turkish garrison of Berana, consisting of four thousand regulars and three thousand Bashi Bazouks took flight in the night before the capture of the town by Montenegrins, according to an official despatch from Cettinje. Montenegrins took a number of prisoners and three field guns and pursued the fugitives in the direc- of Bozai.

Bucharest, Roumania, Oct. 18. — The Roumanian Government has decided to prepare for the mobilization of three of its army corps, fearing that any eventual successes of the Bulgarian armies would be a menace to herself. Roumania will therefore abandon the waiting attitude and mobilize the first, third and fifth army corps immediately on Bulgaria gaining a victory.

Sofia, Oct. 18.—After reciting the wrongs to Macedonian Christians in a proclamation issued this morning to the Bulgarian nation, King Ferdinand, says he has called his people to arms only after the patience of the Balkan nations has been exhausted by Turkey.

LAST STEP HAS BEEN TAKEN WAR FORMALLY DECLARED

First Named Leads Off With a Proclamation Amid General Rejoicing, and Bulgaria and Greece Follow—First Naval Victory Occurs—Powers Expect That Winter and Lack of Money Will Shorten War.

London, Oct. 18.—Declarations of war against Turkey have been issued by Servia, Bulgaria and Greece. The Servian proclamation was made formally in Belgrade last night. The declaration was transmitted to the Servian Minister at Constantinople yesterday afternoon with instructions to present it to the Porte to-day. The Minister will then leave immediately for Belgrade.

The great powers will also receive notification to-day of Servia's declaration, says a Belgrade despatch.

Immense crowds paraded the streets, singing and cheering, after the announcement of Servia's determination to fight. The crowds are increasing hourly and an enthusiastic war spirit prevails.

King Ferdinand of Bulgaria is on his way to the headquarters of the Bulgarian army near the Turkish frontier. The king's manifesto to the people, proclaiming war, will be published to-day. A special service will be held in the cathedral when the archbishop will invoke a blessing on the holy war on which the country is embarking. Similar services will be held throughout the country.

Greece, not wishing to detach herself from her allies, sent instructions early this morning to the Minister at Constantinople to communicate a declaration of war to the Porte. Greece at the same time sent a fraternal greeting to the allied states.

While Turkey and the Balkan states have been carrying out the last formalities connected with the declaration of war, interest has been transferred to the prospects of the campaign. Two influences are expected to make the war short and sharp. The first is the approach of winter; the second is financial pressure. None of the belligerent states is in a position to stand the strain of prolonged military operations.

Bulgaria was disappointed recently in her efforts to raise even a small loan in Paris, while Turkey has been endeavoring both in New York and Paris to borrow money, but up to the present without success. The financial resources of the other states concerned are very limited. Little is likely to be heard of the European conference until some decisive action has been fought, when doubtless the European concert will renew its efforts to bring about peace on broad lines.

The war is expected to develop into a land campaign between Bulgaria and Turkey and a naval struggle between Turkey and Greece. It is believed that Turkey will concentrate her strength and attack the Bulgarians separately before the Servians can come to their aid. Much will depend upon whether Turkey gains command of the sea which will facilitate the transport of her Asiatic troops to the theatre of war.

Little is known as to how far the allied Balkan states have concerted their strategic-plans. The independent action of Mintenegrin seems to indicate that a settled course is being followed.

Greek Gunboats' Clever Feat.

Athens, Oct. 18.—There is a great jubilation over what is described as the miraculous feat of the two gunboats in entering the Gulf of Arta early yesterday morning and reaching Vonitza in safety. Unnoticed by the Turkish gunners, they passed within 240 yards of the Turkish fortress Pantokrator, and then through a narrow channel between the new fortress at Prevest and the coast batteries. They say the Turkish troops busily engaged in completing defensive works in full blaze of electric lights. A Turkish gunboat and destroyer are shut up in Prevesa where they sought refuge at the beginning of the Italian war.

ACCUSED OF WOMAN'S DEATH

Salem, Mass., Oct. 18.—Testimony that Joseph J. Ettor, leader of the Lawrence textile strike, had advised the strikers to "keep the gunshops busy," and that he had urged them not to fear the police or the "tin soldiers with their sharp bayonets," was given yesterday in the trial of Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti and Joseph Caruso, charged with the killing of Anna Lopizzo, a mill operative, during the strike.

The Lawrence police officers gave testimony that Giovannitti had expressed to them defiance of the police and soldiers, and James P. Donahue, a Boston newspaperman, recounted speeches alleged to have been made by Ettor at Lawrence which the commonwealth is endeavoring to show were of an inflammatory character and led to rioting, resulting in the death of the Lopizzo woman.

INSPECTORS ARE NEEDED

Cheese Weights Supervisors Required Says J. P. Wilson

Brockville, Oct. 18.—The Dominion Government Commission which is enquiring into the marketing of cheese, met here yesterday and heard the evidence of a number of dairymen and others. The principal feature was the endorsation of the proposal that the Government should appoint an official inspector.

After the meeting had been addressed by Mr. Pringle, the chairman, and Arthur Hodgson, Dr. Edwards, M.P., was questioned by Mr. Hodgson on the speech on the matter he made in the House of Commons, Mr. Hodgson asserting that the figures used by Dr. Edwards in that speech were incorrect, and, accordingly the conclusions drawn therefrom were also incorrect.

J. B. Wilson, secretary of the Brockville board, thought there was a great deal of careless weighing. Some factories were nearly always right, and others invariably wrong. He would like to see an inspector of cheese weights appointed who could go into any wareroom at any time and weigh all cheese. Punishment should be meted out for all infractions of the law. Mr. Wilson thought that after the commission had reported, the Government should appoint a member from each cheese board for further consultation before deciding on a line of policy.

Cause of Labor Unrest.

Chatham, Oct. 18.—Hon. Thomas Crothers, Minister of Labor, addressed the Canadian Club in this city last night on the problems that labor confront the people of Canada.

"The cause of the labor unrest in this country to-day," said he, "is largely due to the failure of the employers to realize that man is not an adjunct of a machine. There is too much class distinction between employer and employe," he said.

THE DYNAMITE CONSPIRACY TRIAL

Indianapolis, Oct. 18.—Lines which the defence will follow in the "dynamite conspiracy" trial were developed yesterday in the examination of Miss Mary C. Dye, Pittsburg, Pa., and Miss Nora E. Haley, Chicago, former stenographers for the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers.

Their testimony was devoted entirely to the identification of letters which John J. McNamara, secretary of the union, kept on files, and which the Government charges implicates the forty-five men on trial in a conspiracy for the illegal transportation of explosives on passenger trains.

"In cross-examination, Senator J. W. Kern, counsel for the defence, followed the defence's opening contention that the McNamaras and Ortie E. McManigal alone were responsible for the explosives. The witnesses stated that McNamara kept a special place for private correspondence which no one in the office was allowed to see. Miss Haley testified that Frank M. Ryan, president of the union, visited the Indianapolis headquarters about once a month.

TRAINS COLLIDE; FIREMAN KILLED

London, Oct. 18.—Fireman H. R. Scott of Stratford was killed and several persons injured when two G.T.R. trains collided at Parkhill last night. Mixed train No. 72, eastbound, had partly backed into the switch to allow a through log train to pass, when the latter ran into her. Engineers Farr and Whittung were on the two engines hauling the mixed train, and escaped injury by jumping. The compound locomotive hauling the freight, was derailed and otherwise damaged.

Mrs. D. M. McLeod of Parkhill was slightly injured when thrown against a seat. The car of apples in the mixed train was smashed against the engine tender, and one animal in a car of cattle was killed.

Toronto trains Nos. 5 and 7, were sent around by way of London while the line was blocked.

W. M. Reade Now a Judge.

Berlin, Oct. 18.—W. M. Reade, K.C., yesterday received official notice from the Minister of Justice of his appointment as junior judge of Waterloo County, and local judge of the High Court of Justice.

His Honor Judge Reade was born in Orillia in 1854, and was graduated from Trinity University in 1875, and began to practice in 1878 in Amherstburg and Windsor.

In 1898 he came to Waterloo County, where he has since conducted a law practice in Berlin and Waterloo, and in 1908, he was appointed a K.C. In legal circle his appointment is a popular one.

GRAPE GROWERS LACKING HELP

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 18.—Because of the inability of fruit-growers to obtain sufficient help, a great quantity of the grape crop in the Niagara district will be lost.

Fruit growers were busily engaged on both sides of the river yesterday in an almost frantic effort to obtain men and women to harvest the bumper crop hereabouts.

Election Worker Exonerated.

Morden, Man., Oct. 18.—The case against R. J. A. Prince of Winnipeg, who was arrested at Cardinal a week ago in connection with the Macdonald election, was dismissed here yesterday by Magistrate Morden.

CAR HITS HOSE WAGON, TWO FIREMEN SERIOUSLY HURT

Eastbound College Street Car Fails to Stop at Sound of Fire Gong, But Crashes With Terrific Force Into a Firewagon Cutting It in Two and Hurling Firemen to Pavement—One May Die.

Toronto, Oct. 18.—Colliding with terrific force, an eastbound College car running at 20 miles an hour, crashed into a northbound hose wagon at Dufferin and College street last night. Lieut. Harry Hamilton and Driver George Irwin of Brockton fire hall were seriously injured, and Hamilton is not expected to live many hours. Thrown several yards and landing on the pavement, he sustained a fracture at the base of the skull, a broken nose and deep gash above the left eye. Irwin has a compound fracture of the elbow and was badly bruised. Both were taken to the Parkdale Hospital, 71 Helbourne avenue.

Motorman No. 1,628, who operated the car, cannot be located by the police of No. 7 division, in which the accident occurred. Following the collision his number was taken, but not his name. At midnight the police informed the press that the motorman had disappeared.

The hose wagon was struck in the middle and hurled about 20 feet clear of the north or westbound track. The motorman was unable to stop his car, which had a trailer attached, under more than its length east of the corner. Hamilton was flung from his seat to the north pavement, alighting on his back and head. Irwin was thrown among the feet of the horses who escaped injury and separated from the wagon by the impact breaking the traces. Fireman Swan, riding on the rear board jumped to safety.

The front vestibule of the street car was smashed in and many windows shattered. Passengers were shaken up a little, but none were injured. Motormen 1,628 had a miraculous escape from flying glass and splinters. The hose wagon was broken in two.

Firewater for Indians.

Chatham, Oct. 18.—Several complaints have been received from residents of Merlin and the vicinity that the Indians who are engaged at bush-clearing on different farms, about three miles southwest of Merlin, are being supplied with liquor in some mysterious manner. For about three months the redmen have been holding midnight revels in the bush land back of Glenwood, and the persons who laid the complaint are certain that the firewater is secured from Tilbury.

An Indian chief from this district called to Chatham yesterday and succeeded in stirring up some trouble while under the influence of liquor. The residents of Merlin are becoming alarmed.

Rev. John McNeil's Career.

London, Oct. 18.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Rev. John McNeil, who has received an offer from Cooke's Presbyterian Church, Toronto, is one of the best known evangelists in the United Kingdom. He started life as a railway porter, and since entering the ministry has conducted crowded missions in many English-speaking countries. The Canadian offer will be dealt with by the Liverpool Presbyterians in November.

Found Body on Cow-Catcher.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 18.—The body of an unidentified man was found on the cow-catcher of a New York Central passenger train when it pulled into the depot on the American side shortly after eight last night. The man was struck between Tonawanda and the Falls, but none of the train crew saw the accident.

PROSECUTION RESTS CASE

Defence of Lieut Becker Begins To-day in New York

New York, Oct. 18.—The state rested its case yesterday in the trial of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker on the charge of instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler.

The case for the defence will begin to-day when John W. Hart of Becker's counsel will make his opening address to the jury. If Becker has his way, Hart said, he will go on the stand in his own defence. John W. McIntyre, his chief attorney, said "Becker is anxious to take the stand. We may allow him to, but this has not been determined yet."

The defence has indicated that it will endeavor to prove that a clique of gamblers inspired the murder of Rosenthal and that Becker is the victim of a conspiracy.

Former District Attorney Jerome will be one of a dozen or more witnesses the defence plans to call. Mr. Jerome is expected by Becker's counsel to break down a portion of the testimony of Jack Rose in connection with an alleged telephone conversation with Becker, introduced by the state to show that Becker had guilty knowledge of the crime. Sam Paul, whose gambling place was frequently raided by Becker, and other members of the gambling fraternity are also included in the list of Becker's witnesses.

The accused police lieutenant expressed himself last night as confident of acquittal.

Becker was in a happy mood for his counsel had just won a victory over the prosecution. This was when Justice Goff granted a motion by Mr. McIntyre that there be excluded all testimony tending to show that Becker had amassed a fortune obtained from gamblers.

Coe's Body Found.

Belleville, Oct. 18.—The mystery of the disappearance of a young man, James Coe of McGarry's Flat, North Hastings, was cleared when his body was found in the York River, near Bancroft Village. Coe, on Oct. 4, visited the fair at Bancroft and was not seen afterwards. A watch and a considerable sum of money were found upon the clothing.

It is not known whether the drowning was accidental or the result of foul play.

MacLennan Quits Queen's.

Kingston, Oct. 18.—Owing to ill-health Hon. Justice James MacLennan, Toronto, has resigned as chairman of the board of trustees of Queen's University. He has held the position for many years. Principal Gordon was appointed to act temporarily.

The endowment fund and the question of how to increase it was discussed. Andrew Carnegie promised $100,000 when the sum reached $400,000. In six years the sum of $301,000 has been subscribed. Mr. Carnegie offered to give $80,000 when the fund reached $80,000, or wait till a larger amount is realized. What to do is bothering the trustees, but they will probably wait for a larger amount.

Burk's Falls Bridge Opened.

Burk's Falls, Oct. 18.—In the presence of a large gathering, the new steel bridge, built by the Ontario Government across the Maganetawan river, was formally opened yesterday.

Speeches were made by Hon. Dr. Reaume, Minister of Public Works; James Arthurs, M.P., and J. Galna, M.P.P. Reeve Wilson presided, and the village council and Board of Trade were fully represented. The structure, which is to be known as the "Galna Bridge," was beautifully decorated.

Temperance Leaders Will Not Endorse Mr. Sutherland

London, Ont., Oct. 18.—The temperance electors of Middlesex yesterday afternoon declined to endorse William Sutherland, the Independent candidate in the bye-election, despite his acceptance of the "abolish the bar" platform. Neither candidate will be endorsed.

Frank Whitehall spoke of an interview with Mr. Sutherland regarding his attitude, and the candidate admitted he was not a teetotaler and refused to commit himself on the abolition of the bar.

"What do you make out of a promise that Mr. Sutherland has signed to accept Mr. Rowell's policy?" asked A. C. Johnston.

"Neither in the principle or practice is he a temperance man," replied D. A. Macdermid. "We know that in the Dorchester option fight he was one of the strongest opponents. Coming out as he does at this late hour does not change his character."

"They talk about hypocrisy in the church, but if that isn't hypocrisy outside the church," said Charles Finch, "I won't support him. Neither will I support Mr. Neely."

It was finally decided not to support any candidate, and a resolution to that effect was passed.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS IN BRIEF

Twenty-two miners are still missing at the North Mount Lyell mine, near Hobart, Tasmania, where a disastrous fire broke out Saturday.

AN AMPLE APOLOGY

Newspapers are interested in the outcome of the libel suit recently brought by E. P. Davis of Vancouver against the Calgary Eye Opener The facts of the case need not be detailed here for the apology, a copy of which follows gives about all the information needed. As an example of a double-breasted copper-bottomed, silver-plated and ample apology it may serve as a model:

E. P. Davis Esq., K.C., Calgary Sir:—I beg to offer you my sincerest apology for a vile attack on you which appeared in the Calgary Eye Opener (of which I am the publisher) under date of August 3, 1912, for the publication of which I was yesterday committed for trial on a charge of criminal libel.

There was not a particle of foundation in fact for that attack, and I never believed there was neither has there been any foundation in fact for the various other attacks on you which have appeared in the same paper during the last four years.

I have never known you personally and have never had any dealings with you and my sole motive for these attacks was that I thought you had criticised my paper too severely in an address you made to a Calgary jury some four years ago.

I promise not to mention your name again or to refer to you in any way directly or indirectly, in any future number of the Calgary Eye Opener or any other paper that may be published by me.

I authorise you to publish this apology in any way you may think fit.

Yours truly
(Signed) R. C. EDWARDS.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A record price for city property was realised at Calgary last week. The lot was located at corner of 12th avenue and First street, with a 50 ft. frontage. The price was fixed at $2,000 per ft. or $100,000 for the lot. This lot, as a matter of comparison, is about the size, and in the relative position of the vacant Taylor lot at corner of George and Charlotte streets, Peterborough.

Two years ago an Industrial Bureau was established at Calgary, to assist in attracting industries. No success followed. The Daily Herald, of that city, says:—"Whatever may be the reason advanced for the want of succes of Calgary's efforts to attract industries, the real underlying reason of that want of success lies undoubtedly in the fact that the Liberal press is always howling for free trade in the prairie provinces. No manufacturer is going to establish a plant in this part of Canada for no other purpose than it should become a target for the discharge of manufactured articles similar to its own output from, say, Chicago."

The Ontario Agricultural College, at Guelph, is fast developing the features of Toronto University, which as a side issue turns out a group of students who engage in tearing the clothes off each other's backs. Two students have been suspended for participating in a prank which resulted in Dr. Reed escaping from a class room by a window, the door being barred. Others recently wrote, with a paint brush, opinions about first year students, on the pavement in front of Macdonald Hall, and there was a suspension of all sports until the culprits confessed. The farmer's boy has been supposed to be staid and not given to frivolous caperings, but we must revise our beliefs.

If the proposed suffragette movement, sought to be stirred up in Canada, could be diverted to an agitation for a parcels postage rate that would be reasonable, all men and women would encourage the movement. The only thing to bring down the exhorbitant express rates will be postal competition, and it cannot come too soon. A person living in Canada can send a parcel to England or to any part of Mexico for twelve cents a pound, but if a Canadian living in Canada wants to post a parcel to another Canadian living in Canada, even in his own county or town, he must pay the exhorbitant price of sixteen cents a pound, more than twice the rate that it costs to send a parcel from Great Britain to the farthest confines of Russia, by rail across Germany, and over the broad plains down to the Caspian Sea.

Special Correspondence

Keene, Oct. 16.—Rev. W. Johnston returned home last Saturday from Brantford Ont., where he attended the meeting of the Foreign and Home Missionary Board.

Dr. W. T. Harrison of the village occupied the pulpit at the Methodist church last Sunday evening and made a very pleasing address in memory of the historic battle of Queenston Heights one hundred years ago. the doctor being capable for the occasion made it so interesting that it will long be remembered by the whole congregation.

Mr. J. Secord has purchased the home now occupied by Mr. Mr. John Drummond.

Next Sunday evening Bethel Methodist church will hold its anniversary.

Mr and Mrs. Norman Gainer visited friends in Norwood last week.

Ducks are reported very plentiful on Rice Lake.

Mr Peter Hewie occupies the Elmhurst Cottage.

Michael O'Keefe reports the Norwood Fair a grand success.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Neil of Hastings spent Sunday at the Victoria House.

Mr Archie Kempt attended Norwood Fair last week.

William Nelson nearly lost his right hand last Friday while trying to block the wheel of a heavy loaded wagon.

Dinsdale Bros., of Lang, are doing the brickwork on the new residence under construction for William Nelson.

Mr. Nicholas Doris and men have moved to the west part of the township where they will do some grading.

Messrs. Wedlock and Anderson have let the contract to Norman Gainer for the building of a boathouse.

The Keene Curling Club has a notice up calling a meeting for Thursday evening at the Victoria House.

Grading has been started by Messrs. Wrenwick and Weir for a new sidewalk on Mill street.

Mr. Thomas Wedlock and wife came down from Toronto last Saturday and spent Sunday at the home of Wm. Kempt.

Peter McFarlane, of Otonabee, had the misfortune to fall from an apple tree breaking his hip.

The Lerot and the Snake.

Every one has heard of the remarkable combats of the Indian mongoose with venomous snakes, in which little rikki-tikki-tavi comes off victor. The fact that the mongoose invariably survived has led to the suggestion that it is immune to snake poison. Other animals said to be immune are the pig and the hedgehog. The experiments of British naturalists show that an animal of the dormouse family must be added to the list of the immune This animal is known as the lerot and is said to fight fiercely with vipers Large doses of viper's poison were injected into one lerot, from which injection no ill effects followed. On one occasion a lerot was bitten badly in the eye by a viper, and no signs of poisoning occurred. There can, it is thought, be no doubt that the lerot is immune to snake poison.

A Castle Built For a Groat.

The castle of Monkstown, near Cork, Ireland, is reported by popular tradition to have been built in 1636, at the cost of only a groat. To explain this the following story is told. Anastasia Goold, who had become the wife of John Archdeken, determined while her husband was abroad serving in the army of Philip of Spain, to give him evidence of her thrift. Her plan was to supply the workmen with provisions and other articles they required, for which she charged the ordinary price; but, as she had made her purchases wholesale, upon balancing accounts, it appeared that the retail profit had paid all the expenses of the structure except fourpence. The Archdekens were an Anglo-Irish family who became more Irish than the Irish themselves, and assumed the name of Mac Odo, or Cody.

Couldn't Hit Himself.

The Rt. Hon. John Burns recently paid a visit to the political cockshy at Earl's Court, London. This sideshow is simply "Aunt Sally" brought up to date, for the figures with clay pipes in their mouths are named after certain political personages. Seven shots are given for sixpence; and, of course, the usual prize of a packet of cigarettes or something similar is awarded for every pipe broken. Mr. Burns was entitled to throw at Lloyd-George, Mrs. Pankhurst, Keir Hardie, Will Thorne, or even mother-in-law, but he chose the effigy that was supposed to represent himself. Twenty-eight times he fired at his own image, and did not break a solitary pipe. Such marksmanship is simply disgraceful, and Mr. Burns will be well advised to indulge in a little practice in Battersea Park before he puts any more money down. He is still proud of his prowess as a cricketer, but if this is a sample of his "throwing in" then he must be numbered amongst the "rabbits."

However, the stall gained two shillings, and hopes to make more out of the incident, for the young lady in charge recognised the individual who was firing off the "boss" shots, and now there is a large placard: "Patronized by the Right Hon. John Burns, M.P."

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

CHAPTER XXI.

BURNING DAYLIGHT.

AND then it happened. Tudor made his blunder. Never divining Joan's fluttering wildness, mistaking the warmth and enthusiasm in her eyes aroused by his latest tale, for something tender and acquiescent, he drew her to him, laid a forcible detaining arm about her waist and misapprehended her frantic revolt for an exhibition of maidenly reluctance. It occurred on the veranda after breakfast, and Sheldon, within, heard the sharp exclamation of Joan, followed by the equally sharp impact of an open hand against a cheek. Jerking free from the arm that was all distasteful compulsion, Joan had slapped Tudor's face resoundingly and with far more vim and weight than when she had cuffed Gogoomy.

Sheldon had half started up, then controlled himself and sunk back in his chair, so that by the time Joan entered the door his composure was recovered. Her right forearm was clutched tightly in her left hand, while the white cheeks, centered with the spots of flaming red, reminded him of the time he had first seen her angry.

"He hurt my arm," she blurted out in reply to his look of inquiry.

He smiled involuntarily. It was so like her, so like the boy she was, to come running to complain of the physical hurt which had been done her. She was certainly not a woman versed in the ways of man and in the ways of handling man. The resounding slap she had given Tudor seemed still echoing in Sheldon's ears, and as he looked at the girl before him crying out that her arm was hurt his smile grew broader.

It was the smile that did it, convicting Joan in her own eyes of the silliness of her cry and sending over her face the most amazing blush he had ever seen. Throat, cheeks and forehead flamed with the rush of the shamed blood.

"He—he"— she attempted to vindicate her deeper indignation, then whirled abruptly away and passed out the rear door and down the steps.

Sheldon sat and mused. He was a trifle angry, and the more he dwelt upon the happening the angrier he grew. Joan was the last woman in the world to attempt to kiss forcibly. The thing smacked of the backstairs anyway—a sordid little comedy perhaps, but to have tried it on Joan was nothing less than sacrilege. The man should have had better sense.

It was while in this mood that the screen door banged loudly behind the heels of Tudor, who strode into the room and paused before him.

"Well?" Tudor demanded defiantly.

And on the instant speech rushed to Sheldon's lips.

"I hope you won't attempt anything like it again, that's all—except that I shall be only too happy any time to extend to you the courtesy of my whaleboat. It will land you in Tulagi in a few hours."

"As if that would settle it," was the retort. "Now, let me tell you that the Solomon islands are not big enough for the pair of us. This thing's got to be settled between us, and it may as well be settled right here and now."

"I can understand your fire eating manners as being natural to you," Sheldon went on wearily, "but why you should try them on me is what I can't comprehend. You surely don't want to quarrel with me."

"I certainly do."

"But what in heaven's name for?"

Tudor surveyed him with withering disgust.

"You haven't the soul of a louse. I suppose any man could make love to your wife"—

"But I have no wife," Sheldon interrupted.

"Then you ought to have. The situation is outrageous. You might at least marry her, as I am honorably willing to do."

For the first time Sheldon's rising anger boiled over.

"You"— he began violently, then abruptly caught control of himself and went on soothingly. "I'll call the boat's crew and launch a boat. You'll be in Tulagi by 8 this evening."

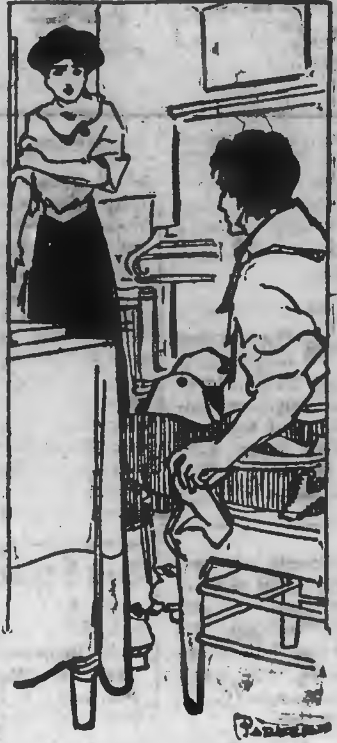
He turned toward the door as if to put his words into execution, but the other caught him by the shoulder and twirled him around.

"Look here, Sheldon, I told you the Solomons were too small for the pair of us, and I meant it."

"Is that an offer to buy Berande, lock, stock and barrel?" Sheldon queried.

"No, it isn't. It's an invitation to fight."

"But what the devil do you want to fight with me for?" Sheldon's irritation was growing at the other's persistence. "I've no quarrel with you. And what quarrel can you have with me? I have never interfered with you. You were my guest. Miss Lackland is my partner. If you saw fit to make love to her and somehow failed to succeed, why should you want to fight with me? This is the twentieth century, my dear fellow, and dueling went out of fashion before you and I were born."



"HE HURT MY ARM," SHE BLURTED OUT.

"You began the row," Tudor doggedly asserted. "You fired me out of your house. It won't do, I tell you. You started it, and I am going to see it through."

Sheldon smiled tolerantly and proceeded to light a cigarette.

"There isn't any row. It takes two to make a row, and I, for one, refuse to have anything to do with such tomfoolery."

"She's not your wife," Tudor continued, as though the other had not spoken. "A fellow has the right to make love to her unless she's your—well, perhaps it was an error after all, due to ignorance, perfectly excusable, on my part. I might have seen it with half an eye if I'd listened to the gossip on the beach. All Guvutu and Tulagi were laughing about it. The pair of you trapped me into making a fool of myself. How was I to know that everything was not all right? You and she acted as if everything were on the square. But my eyes are open now. Why, she played the outraged wife to perfection, slapped the transgressor and fled to you. Pretty good proof of what all the beach has been saying. Partners, eh? A business partnership? Gammon my eye, that's what it is."

Defies Old Age.

Prof. Metchnikoff, the noted scientist, who maintains that old age is a disease, has explained why his studies were directed into a particular channel.

"A prophet without honor. . . . Though I am a Russian, I have been more than twenty-five years in France, and, therefore, am accounted French. When I was thirty-five I was neurasthenic. I had pains in my head that prevented me from working properly. My friends told me I had cerebral anaemia, and doctors gave me beefsteaks, which made me worse. I had something wrong with my heart, too.

"At the age of fifty-three I consulted a specialist in Germany. He diagnosed arterio sclerosis and chronic nephritis. That was when I began to take myself in hand."

New Coal Vessel.

An improved type of coal-carrying vessel has just been launched at Blyth, near Newcastle, England, which, in opinion of experts, will begin a new era in the building of cargo ships. The vessel is constructed on what is known as the "arch" principle, which, it is claimed, offers important advantages over boats of the ordinary type, with a dead weight of 3,100 tons and a draft of 18 feet 4 inches. It is asserted to be the fastest collier built and it will be used for coaling purposes in connection with the British fleet. Smaller capital outlay, cheaper maintenance, and increased rate of speed are among the favorable features claimed for the vessel.

Pains of Rheumatism

Are Ended By Zam-Buk

When you have any deep-seated pain in the joints, the back, the wrists or elsewhere, place a liberal supply of Zam-Buk on the fingers or on the palm of the hand and rub it in. The penetrating power of this "embrocation-balm" is very great. It kills pain and removes stiffness.

Mrs. Frances Wyatt, of 25 Guy Avenue, Montreal, says: "I have found Zam-Buk most soothing and valuable in a very bad case of rheumatism, and also for stiffness of joints and muscles. I suffered long and acutely from rheumatism and tried one liniment after another in vain. I also took medicines internally, but it remained for Zam-Buk to affect a cure. I began applying this balm when I felt the aches and pains of rheumatism coming on, or felt any of the stiffness. The result was truly wonderful. Zam-Buk seemed to penetrate to the very seat of the seat, driving them completely out, and I am now quite cured."

If rubbed on to the chest and between the shoulders in cases of cold, Zam-Buk will give speedy relief.

Apart from its use as an embrocation Zam-Buk is a cure for eczema, rashes, ringworm, cold sores, ulcers, abscesses, chapped hands, piles, varicose veins, cuts, burns, bruises, etc. All druggists and stores at 50c., or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful imitations.

Amazing Fruit.

A notable feature at the periodical exhibition at the Royal Horticultural Hall in London recently was the remarkable display of home-grown fruit. For the first time in the history of the society the Hogg memorial gold medal has been awarded to a British firm, this distinction having fallen to the Royal Exotic Nursery, of Chelsea, for a collection of fruit trees in pots. Small pear, apple and plum trees in great variety and number, crowded with fruit of extraordinary size, were shown. Most remarkable of all, perhaps, was a new variety of apple, the "Rev. W. Wilks," named after the secretary of the Royal Horticultural Society. The tree, not yet two years old, carried one apple weighing one and a half pounds, being heavier than the tree itself. Other trees of the same variety, two years and three years old, carried five apples averaging three-quarters of a pound each, and nine [illegible]. Huge pears, in such varieties as "Marguerite Marillat," "Triomphe de Vienne," and "Col. Vaughan," hung from slender boughs which, but for supports, would have been borne down by the weight on them. A similar display of fruit trees in pots won for Messrs. Geo. Bunyard and Co. the gold medal of the Royal Horticultural Society.

Coal prices in Germany are higher than ever before.

Cook's Cotton Root Compound.

The great Uterine Tonic, and only safe effectual Monthly Regulator on which women can depend. Sold in three degrees of strength—No. 1, $1; No. 2, 10 degrees stronger, $3; No. 3 for special cases, $5 per box. Sold by all druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Free pamphlet. Good Form

Well Trained Servants.

If it be your fortune to hire servants, it would be well to remember that you are entering into a business contract, each side of which should be observed to the letter. The servant problem is not only a result of industrial conditions, but of the home conditions, and if a mistress remembers that a servant is a human being, and treats the worker considerately, perhaps the call of the mill, with its regular hours, will not be so alluring.

It frequently falls to a woman's lot to train a willing servant into the ways of her home and sometimes into the ways of serving. The important thing is not to attempt too much at once. Take one setting of the table and the serving, and by repetition and frequent lessons have the maid master this. Impress on her mind the importance of the mechanics of serving. The most inexperienced will soon acquire efficiency in placing the silver, glasses, etc., correctly.

Generally speaking, the knives and spoons are placed at the right of the plate, the forks at the left. That on the right, which is to be used first, such as the oyster fork, should be the outer one, the next would be the bouillon spoon, and so on. The dessert and the coffee spoons are last. Forks are easily disposed of, for the salad fork, the smaller one, is last to be used and therefore nearest the plate. The method is to work from the outside in toward the center.

Butter plates are placed at the left, in front of the plate; glasses for water at the right.

A good servant keeps glasses always filled and places fresh butter on the plates. Serving should be done from the left, except coffee, which should be placed at the right of the diner.

The proper form of addressing a mistress is, "Yes, madam," or "Yes, Mrs. Brown." If there are any doubts about a mistress' inclination to see guests a polite "I will inquire" after receiving the card of callers should be given. A polite, quiet demeanor is a requisite of a good servant. Neatness is another factor, and it were well to suggest that these two factors are demanded.

As the relations between the mistress and the servants are business relations, there should not be undue familiarity between them. It often breeds contempt. This must not be construed, however, to mean that a mistress should forget her politeness when addressing servants.

When asking one to pass a dish, etc., the little word "please" need not be dispensed with, and an amiable "thank you" should be given.

Women servants are addressed by their first names. Men servants are usually addressed by their surnames.

A considerate mistress never reprimands her servants before strangers and should ask that any questions in the mind of the servant be solved by presenting them to her. The equipoise of a mistress is reflected in the manner of her servant, and fairness in treatment is usually reciprocated. A clear understanding of the duties to be performed, regular remuneration and a kind business relationship will make the household wheels go smoothly on their way.

Don't overwork your servant. If she be a quick, good worker the time saved belongs to her. In this way you will get the best service and the most willing attitude toward you and your home.

Postcard Invitations.

Although it is not the best taste in the world to use picture postals for invitations, they may pass between friends at the time of some impromptu social happening or other, the sender of the invite apologizing, however, for her use of one. Thus she would write in this case: "Excuse postal, but we are getting up a dance and long for you. Tomorrow night. Write you will make us happy by coming.

"Indeed, yes," with her signature below, would be quite enough for the card of the invited girl if she herself is pressed for time, but it would be pretty to add a word more—"How good of you to remember me!"

A verbal response to invitations requires, as I have said, some good feeling behind it, and if it comes from quite an old lady or gentleman here is truly the time for a gush of enthusiastic pleasure. Old people love to feel that they are still of importance, as indeed they are when they are interested in the welfare of young folks, and they can never be too tenderly [illegible]

The Week End Desk Case.

Dear week end girl, don't rely upon your busy hostess for writing materials. There may not be even a desk in your bedroom, and some other guest may be writing in the library at the very moment when you wish to send out a note. So be sure to pack into your suit case one of the conveniences of flexible leather of book shape which has several pages of blotting paper and compartments for stationery as well as for a bottle of ink so firmly encased that there is no danger to the wardrobe belongings with which it may be packed. The cases come in black or colored morocco, in pigskin and in sealskin.

There are rumors of a merger of the Bank of Nova Scotia and the Bank of New Brunswick.

HAPPY THOUGHT

How You Can Roast Well and Save Fuel

A range may be a good baker, and still not be a good roaster.

Roasting is one of the most expensive processes of cooking—more fuel is used in proportion to the result than in almost any other cooking operation. So fuel economy is worth careful watching.

"Happy Thought" Ranges are constructed to give concentrated heat efficiency in the oven.

You know how necessary this is to proper roasting.

But the "Happy Thought" has this further advantage—oven heat is controlled entirely by the size and strength of your fire. So that a small, lazy fire gives a slow cooking heat, and a hot blazing fire gives a quick intense heat.

The sane firebox construction of the "Happy Thought" enables you to perfectly control your fire and, therefore, your oven heat.

The point is, you get a direct value in oven heat from every ounce of fuel.

Over a Quarter Million Canadian women, who know this from experience, use the "Happy Thought" every day.

Saturday the Big Day of the October Shoe Sale

PREPARE SATURDAY FOR THANKSGIVING

ATTRACTIVE SPECIALS IN EVERY DEPARTMENT

Only one more week in which to prepare for Thanksgiving—the formal show day of Fall and Winter Fashions.

Every woman who prides herself on her neat personal appearance, must be prepared with a new suit or coat—a new hat and new shoes.

For Saturday we are offering particularly attractive values in these three lines to make for early buying.

Especially in Suits and Coats do we urge early buying — Stocks are more complete now than we can offer later on, thereby making present selection advantageous. For Saturday we are very specially featuring Women's Suits at $12.75 and $15.00. The styles are faultlessly correct, the materials are those most favored by fashion and the finish is what one expects in this higher priced garments.

Our Millinery Salon should be the scene of busy activities on Saturday. Each season women are finding out that it pays to choose early Varieties are more exclusive, thereby ensuring more satisfactory selection—the workrooms are not rushed and orders can be executed promptly—then, too, the value of the hat is increased by having it to wear at the commencement of the season

New Shoes are altogether indispensible to the completeness of the Thanksgiving costume. And our October Shoe Sale offers economies in smart, snappy Fall and Winter Shoes that are truly remarkable Described elsewhere in this ad one will find Women's Button Boots at $2 49 and $1.95.

Do your Thanksgiving buying at the Cressman Store Saturday, Women's Ready-to wear Garments, Millinery and Shoes, all on the second floor.

POLICE COURT

The two young men, Jas. Shaughnessy and Jas. Dion, were discharged this morning on the charge of being in the crowd who obstructed the passage of pedestrians on George street on October 16th. Two other young men, who pleaded guilty without appearing in court yesterday were summoned as witnesses this morning and their evidence sufficed to clear Shaughnessy and Dion of being parties to the obstruction

The locality where the obstruction occurred is one that the police have difficulty in keeping clear, owing to the number of young men that congregate there. The pool room and the tobacco store are much patronized and the crowds gather outside. Chief Thompson states that ladies have entered complaints about the difficulty they encounter in passing through

BOOT MON.

A young Scotchman who had a fancy for ear ornaments, was fined $2 for being drunk in a public place He was creating a big noise at the corner of Aylmer and Hunter streets.

Herbert Withers, another character a stranger in the city, forfeited $2 on the same charge.

FOUND A FLASK.

A man who is on the prohibited list saw a party whom he did not know hide something in the leaves in McDonnel street yesterday. He investigated later on and—oh joy—he found a flask of choice whiskey. What was more natural than that he should drink. It cost him $10 however, this morning.

Magistrate Dumble and Chief Thompson both plainly disbelieved his yarn, but there was no alternative but to accept it.

ALL SAINTS' MEN'S CLUB HOLD SUCCESSFUL BANQUET

125 Men of the Parish Display Great Interest in First Gathering of the Club

The Men's Club of All Saints' church, made a good start last night when one hundred and twenty-five men of the parish gathered around the festive board in the parish hall where, after partaking of a bounteous meal for the material side of life, they were treated to another feast, for the spiritual side.

REV. B. B. GROBB, M.A.

The men of All Saints made a splendid response to his call for the organisation of the Men's Club.

The affair was in every detail a splendid success One was led to wonder where all the young men came from and what was the strange influence that brought so many together. It certainly was not the opportunity of having a free meal as each paid twenty-five cents

That they did come and enjoyed the fellowship of the occasion, and also signified their intention of joining the club, was a matter of much satisfaction to the Rector and the officers of the organisation.

Dr. Sutton is president, Mr. C. E. Sisson, vice-president; Mr. Harry Greenwood is secretary and Mr. T. W. Dawson is treasurer. The meetings will be held fortnightly and made as interesting as possible for the men, by the introduction of social evenings, debates and other forms of entertainment and helpfulness.

The enjoyment of the evening did not centre about the good things on the table. Equally as palatable were the many excellent points brought out as the toast list proceeded.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., in responding to the toast of Canada, and Rev. Canon Davidson, in responding to the toast of the Church, received a most attentive hearing and their remarks were repeatedly punctuated by hearty applause from the audience.

Tucker's Orchestra supplied very acceptable music, and Messrs. Spence and Mendel contributed piano and violin selections.

Mr. C. E. Sisson was the chairman of the evening and the first toast honored was The King. Then followed the toast of Canada and Mr Burnham's address. With the aid of a large map of Canada the speaker showed and explained the extensions recently made to the provinces and also brought before his audience the great possibilities of Ontario and the West.

He referred to the fact of the five mile strip of land given to Ontario, as providing a harbor which would give Ontario direct water transportation to England and to the Nelson River which had twice the water power of Niagara. It was difficult for us to appreciate all these things. He made reference to Dry Farming which he said was possibly a greater discovery than that of electricity.

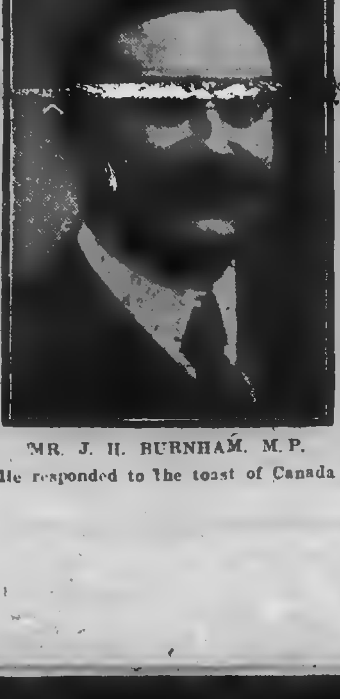
Mr. Burnham also paid a glowing tribute to the Boy Scout movement for its worth on behalf of humanity, an dconcluded a most excellent adand concluded a most excellent address with an appeal for a high type of manhood.

THE CHURCH.

Mr Spence in proposing the toast of "The Church" spoke of its history and passage through crisis after crisis till it attained its present position. The part each one should take was that of providing kindness and sympathy.

The toast was honored with the singing of The Church's One Foundation and before responding Canon Davidson made a neat reference to the address of Mr Burnham.

The toast, he said, was one that should thrill every churchman. It was a splendid sight to see the young manhood standing shoulder to shoulder to carry forward the banner, and see to it that it suffer no disgrace The men were wanted, and, said the speaker, "from the bottom of my heart I congratulate you We do like to see the manhood of the church brought right out and supporting the banner."



MR. J. H. BURNHAM, M.P.

He responded to the toast of Canada

He asked for their support of their rector, and for the promotion of fellowship and friendship, not only in the parish, but also outside, so that the church would go forward not as a unit, but as one magnificent body.

"We want the church to be worth while to do the work, no one day, but every day. Look away from the imperfect things and look to the church as it is in its very essence, its breadth, and we will be bigger and more broad-minded men than otherwise."

THE MEN'S CLUB

"We are looking for great things from the Men's Club," said Rev. R. B Grobb, in proposing the toast of the Men's Club. He felt that the church should resemble a lodge. It lacked perhaps the fraternal element The speaker explained that the lodge with merely the ritual would not last long. The strength was in the promotion of brotherhood and friendship. This was what the church needed.

REV. CANON DAVIDSON, M.A.

The responder to the toast of the Church

What we want is a fraternal organisation in the church, he urged. He was sure the Men's Club was going to be a success; it was going to do something.

Dr Sutton and Mr. H. P. Morgan responded, each speaker asking for co-operation by the men of All Saints'.

The toast of "The Guests" was proposed by Mr. Frank Dawson and responded to by Mr. Arthur Kingdon and Rev. James Price.

Mr. John Edgar proposed the toast of "The Ladies," and Mr. Charles Lacheur responded, after which Rev. James Price pronounced the benediction.

ONE AT THE HORSEMEN

The Millbrook Reporter says:—A writer in the Peterborough Review, who gives no name pretends to refute the statement of the President and Secretary of the Agricultural Society re the "Speeding in the Ring" at Millbrook Fair. He makes a sorry spectacle of himself, as anybody would, in attempting to set their "hold up" actions right. Horse racing must be a square deal in future to reassure a very critical public and re-establish a colored reputation.

The English Steel Co., which underbid United States firms for supplying shells to the United States navy will get part of the contract.

WEDDING BELLS AT VANCOUVER

The News-Advertiser of Vancouver, gives the following account of the wedding of Miss Myrtle E. Reid, formerly of Peterborough, to Mr. D. Oscar Wing, of Berlin:

A very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the Mount Pleasant Methodist church, when Myrtle E., youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Reid, was united in marriage to Mr. D. Oscar Wing, son of Rev. M. L. Wing, of Berlin, Ont. The church had been prettily decorated for the occasion with palms, ivy and white dahlias. The bridal party entered to the Lohengrin wedding march, played by Mr. T. Bonne Millar. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin, with heavy macrame lace frock, caught with orange blossoms and small white rosebuds, as was also the draped skirt. The skirt was fashioned with a square train, trimmed with pearl ornaments. She wore a long bridal veil, edged with pointe lace and Juliet cap caught with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Florence Reid, who wore a lovely gown of buttercup satin, veiled with ninon and trimmed with ninon and pearls, with buttercup picture hat. She carried a bouquet of buttercup chrysanthemums. The groom was supported by Mr. Ormonde Higman. Rev. Lashley Hall performed the ceremony, after which a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The rooms were beautifully decorated with ivy, autumn leaves, white dahlias and chrysanthemums. Mrs. Reid, mother of the bride, received, wearing a becoming gown of mauve satin with silver embroidered drapery and a black velvet hat trimmed with plumes. Mrs. Charles T. Hamilton, a sister of the bride, was also present and was wearing her wedding gown of cream satin, trimmed with macrame lace surplice and panel, and a velvet hat with pale blue marabout and roses. A buffet luncheon was served in the dining room. The table was prettily arranged with a chiffon centre and a silver basket of white chrysanthemums and smilax. White ribbons were carried from the electrolier to the corners of the table, where they were finished with large bows, twined with smilax. Mr. and Mrs. Wing left on the four o'clock train, the bride travelling in a blue serge suit and large blue plush hat, trimmed with ostrich band and aigrette. After a honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Wing will return to the city and reside.

BUT ONE RELIGION FOR WORLD IS NEAR SAYS DR. SYMONDS

Believes It Will Follow Course of the Science of War—China's Day of Power Coming—East Already Exercising Its Influence on the West and Not Without Benefits

Montreal, Oct. 17.—"The time is drawing on when the world will know only one religion," said Rev. Dr. Herbert Symonds to the Nomads' Club last evening.

"I will not say what religion I think that will be, nor will I go into my reasons for thinking that there will be only one, but I think that religion will follow the course of the science of warfare, of medicine and of education. All the world now fights and cures and educates upon the same principles.

"What are we going to do about China?" asked Dr. Symonds.

"Are we going to exploit her for all she is worth now that we have the upper hand, or will we treat the Chinese as brothers in order that they may so treat us in their day of power? The next century, or even this, may be China's century."

Great as was the influence of the West upon the East, the East was still exercising a distinct influence on the West, he declared.

One who had not seen the collection of translated Eastern religious works in the McGill library would be astonished at its extent. This showed that those who had become acquainted with Eastern ideas had considered them highly developed and worthy of Western acquaintance.

Religious teachers from the East were continually proselytizing in the intellectual centres of the West, and the speaker did not wonder at, or blame, those who were converted in whole or in part to such beliefs as that of esoteric Buddhism.

Such religions had a great deal to offer. Orientals were really much more religious than Westerners. They were more meditative. They were astonished at the materialism of the West.

Conditions in Eastern Canada showed that this scorn of material things was not altogether a blessing. Recurring famine, for instance, was not the very best thing for the soul.

Still, the West and Christianity would do well to learn from the philosophies of the East something as to the things that are worth while. The West would do well to modify its ideas by contact with ideas of the East. This did not have to be done at the expense of the extinction of Christianity.

The idea of the unity of man in one race was an old one, but it had never been practicable until the past fifty years. In that half-century the peoples of the world had made more progress toward world federation than in all the centuries since the idea had been evolved.

"It seems to me that we are a little too patriotic for our own good. The toast 'My Country—right or wrong,' is a senseless thing.

"If we realise now that other people have a claim upon us which is that of brotherhood, we will accomplish far better in the end that self-protection and self-improvement which patriotism shouts of now. To strive to advance the brotherhood of man is the real expedient and true patriotism.

CITY SCHOOL TEACHERS HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION

Life of Robert Louis Stevenson, the Subject of Dr. Stevenson's Lecture

The Teachers' Association commenced a series of meetings last night with every seat in the spacious Collegiate Institute Auditorium filled. Mr. Richard Lees, county school inspector, presided. During the evening two beautiful solos were contributed by Miss Allan, soprano, and Mr. William Wilson furnished two excellent violin selections. Both artists received enthusiastic plaudits, and were forced to respond to encores.

The address of the evening was delivered by Dr. O. J. Stevenson on the famous Robert Louis Stevenson, of literary note.

He sketched the life of the novelist and his position among novelists who dealt in out-door subjects. Not only as a novelist but as a poet was he appreciated, but it is doubtless as an essayist that his memory will be perpetuated.

Throughout the evening the speaker referred to many incidents in Stevenson's career and showed how much of the brightness of his work was evidently due to reaction against constitutional weakness.

Dr. Stevenson read many extracts from the author's works and illustrated them by views.

MORNING SESSION.

This morning the hall was again filled almost to capacity. Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate and president of the Teachers' Association, gave an address on the "Significance of the Battle of the Plains of Abraham," which ended the last of a succession of national duels in Europe. He dealt briefly with the causes of the seven years' war, a contrast of French and English statesmanship at that time and a comparison of the two generals Wolfe and Montcalm. The former slight and delicate; but indominitable, the latter physically fit for a strenuous military career.

The speaker outlined the campaign of 1759 and emphasized the impregnable situation of Quebec, flanked on one hand by Montmorency Falls and on the other by the precipitous banks of the river. In closing he called attention to the effects of the battle upon not only England and France, but upon United States and Canada.

Mr. Kenner was followed by Mr. Harold McFarlane, of Norwood, who spoke on History, in which he emphasized the necessity for adapting material to pupils.

Then Dr. Stevenson spoke on "Mistakes in Literature." The teacher of literature must have in the background of his consciousness the knowledge that literature deals with something worth while; with truth embodied in emotional form. Since the poet gets rid of trivial details and presents only the ideal, so may it be necessary for the teacher to pass over many details and present only the large truth. He should begin with an introduction varying in length and nature according to the poem under discussion. He should follow this explanatory introduction by reading aloud. In the question of detailed study he must be guided by the nature of the subject and his class. As a test of the success of his presentation he should then have his pupils read selections aloud.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

This afternoon the Teachers' Association session was again liberally attended when Miss A. Clayton, B.A. read a paper of most absorbing interest on the city of Cairo in Egypt. Miss Clayton is temporarily on the teaching staff of the Collegiate during the absence of Miss A. Weir. Her flowing description of Egypt and particularly of Cairo, the leading city, was listened to with the closest attention. Miss Clayton's paper consisted of her own impressions of Egypt during a recent visit. Its inhabitants though for years oppressed by foreign invaders, still remained fascinating and light-hearted. The wondrous grandeur of the pyramids and the Sphinx was strikingly described by Miss Clayton.

Dr. Stevenson gave a talk on Grammar in the Public Schools.

There will be no session to-night the Association meeting closing tomorrow morning, when Mr. A. J. Grant Superintending Engineer of the Trent Canal, will describe the Panama Canal.

AN ELECTRIC STAMPER AT THE POST OFFICE

An electric stamping machine has been placed in the post office. The rapidity with which the letters are stamped by this machine means much to the post office staff, particularly in rush hours. Its operation closely resembles that of the old machine but the increase in the number of letters stamped is brought about by the use of electricity.

DISTRICT NURSE HAS ARRIVED

Miss Mabel Sparkhall, the district nurse, whose services have been secured by the Peterborough Health Association for visitation work, reached the city last evening. She will commence her duties along that line immediately. A meeting of the Peterborough Health Association was announced to be held this afternoon at five o'clock.

TAG DAY

A meeting of the Children's Aid Society will be held in the City Council Chambers Thursday, October 24th, at 4 o'clock, p.m., for the purpose of making preparations for the annual Tag Day campaign.

All persons interested are cordially invited to attend.

E. J. GOODWILL,
Secretary.

GETTING BETTER ACQUAINTED

Mr. man, you may yet be a stranger to us for the reason that we have not yet had time to get acquainted with you or you with us.

And it is pretty hard for to introduce each other through this medium, especialy so on account of you seeing so much advertising, some of which possibly has fooled you in the past, and you are a little scarry of it now; well we can't blame you for that, it was not your fault, and of course the honest advertiser must suffer as a consequence.

Now the only way for you to be sure of getting the full value for your money is to deal where every purchase you make is guaranteed to you; that is the way we do business.

Now did you see the way our Suits and Overcoats are made? and have you noticed the low prices we are asking for such high-grade quality and workmanship?

And you should also come in and see how they fit; yes they are made for standard figures and it will be no trouble to fit you.

But if you prefer to have a suit made to your measure, we can show you about 500 different samples of cloth and make it up in any style you wish. Our prices run from $12.00 up. Come in and see the New Fall Fashion Plates; we will be glad to meet you.

RAIN PREVENTED OBSERVATION OF SUN'S ECLIPSE

Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville, has received the following telegram which will be of interest to the members of the local centre Royal Astronomical Society of Canada.

Harvard College Observatory, bulletin No. 503.

A cable has been received from Professor Perrine, director of the Cordova Observatory, Christiania, Mira Geraes, Brazil, "Rain."

This appears to indicate that observations of the eclipse of the sun in October 9, 10, were prevented by bad weather. Numerous observations of Gales' comet and inspections, have been obtained here and elsewhere,

BOSTONS STAR PITCHER GOT HIS NAME FROM CIRCUS CLOWN

Port Jervis, N.Y., Oct. 18— The name of Joe Wood is on more lips in the country to-day than that of President Taft, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson combined. In a few days Joe will have retired to his 200 acre farm in the heart of Pike County mountains, near beautiful Twin Lakes, Pa., about eighteen miles from this city.

How many fans know that Joe's real name is not Joe but Harold, and that Joe got his adopted name from a circus clown? A few may, but they're folks who have known Joe or his people intimately and have heard the story. As a youngster, Joe lived in Kansas, to which fair state he is credited as a native. When a small boy, his father, John Wood, took Joe and his brother to a circus. The boys were then called Harold (Joe now) and Harvey (Pete now). There were two clowns in the circus. They were funny clowns. They impressed Wood. The youngsters found their antics in line with their own ambitions. Joe and Pete went home from that circus. Harold and Harvey they were no more.

The elder Wood saw the error of the christening and at once dropped the boys' original names. Joe and Pete—there were names for you. From that day to this it has been Joe Wood instead of Harold Wood.

When the baseball season is over each year, Joe retires to his farm. They josh about Joe's new cottage up Twin Lakes way. It is a spacious and substantial dwelling, the frame of which is now completed. It is located on a side Hill near Parker's Glen Brook, and folks are speculating as to whether it will be a bachelor's domain or a real home. The fact that plans are said to include a den in the front of the basement level with the ground, where billiard and pool tables, etc., will relieve the farm monotony, seems in favor of the bachelor idea.

An interesting thing about this house, is that the timber for it was cut near Joe's own farm last winter, Joe helping in the work. A stationary saw-mill was installed near by and the logs made into building material. The farm of the pitcher's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood, adjoins his own.

LESTER PATRICK AFTER WALTER MILLER FOR COAST LEAGUE

Montreal, Oct. 18—Lester Patrick the representative of the Pacific Coast Hockey League left here last night, having failed to make his threatened clean-up of players. The only signatures that he secured on this trip were from Kendall, Jimmy Gardner and Ernie Johnson. He left last night for Toronto to see Miller, who showed great form last season. He will also interview some of the O.H.A. amateur players.

While in Montreal, Patrick, at the request of Emmett Quinn, president of the National Hockey League, had a conference with him regarding the hockey commission. They exchanged ideas, and Quinn will submit them to the officers of the N.H.A., and on their approval they will be sent to the coast league to be signed. The innovation of the commission will be the arrangement of a salary limit, not for the clubs, but for the players. These will likely do away with the reserve list of clubs as the new form will expire at the end of the playing season.

SPORT TALK

Mordecai Brown, the three fingered pitcher, who in the past has been one of the strongest assets of the Chicago National League baseball team, has been sold to the Louisville team of the American Association. C. W. Murphy, president of the Chicago Nationals, asked for waivers on Brown some time ago. Brown's arm is as good as ever, it is said, but he has been sold by Murphy, because Brown twisted his knee in a game everly this season and the lameness persisted.

The promoters of the recent Olympic games in Stockholm, lost $243,000. The income from the stadium, including season tickets was about $270,000. On the day of the Marathon $22,788 was taken in at the gate, and, adding to this the season tickets for that day, the total receipts were $34,128 which is the largest sum ever taken in in Sweden for a public affair. The Swedish Government will make up the deficit.

THEY RIDE TO SCHOOL.

"Consolidated" System a Boon to Manitoba Children.

As a consequence of the scattered population of Manitoba, what is known as "Consolidation of Schools" has been brought forward. Consolidation simply means the merging of two or more small, inefficient school districts into one larger and more efficient one, large enough in numbers to produce a school, graded, if possible, with energy and spirit so strong that with added life, good work can be done and large enough in territory that the burden of taxation may not be too heavy and at the same time may produce sufficient funds to carry on the work in an up-to-date and progressive manner, says M. Hall-Jones in the Canadian Courier.

A necessary accompaniment of consolidation is the conveyance to and from the school each day at the public expense, all children of school age who live over a certain distance from the school house, thus eliminating the element of unfairness that now exists in the rural schools owing to the different distances at which the children live from the school, and at the same time placing the cost of conveyance on the whole district. In Manitoba consolidated districts, all pupils are conveyed who live over one mile from the school house. It has become customary to use covered vans for conveyance. These are not always heated, but in some cases, carbon foot warmers or soapstone are used.

Just when and where consolidation on a small scale began, cannot be told, but the first law of which we read was passed in Massachusetts in the year 1869, and to-day it forms a part of the rural school system of 32 states. Eight hundred completely consolidattd, and not less than two thousand partially consolidated, schools attest to the remarkable adaptability of the system to the peculiar needs of agricultural communities.

In Eastern Canada, consolidation was introduced as part of the "Macdonald Scheme" in Nova Scotia in 1903; in New Brunswick and Ontario in 1904; in Prince Edward Island in 1905. For a time it bore good fruit, but has not apparently taken hold of the people with any great force. Some districts continued the consolidation, but others thought it too expensive and dropped out.

Manitoba may properly be termed the "Mecca" of consolidation in Canada. Here, the people have taken hold of the plan from the first voluntarily, and aided only by grants from the Department of Education. This class of school, judging from appearances, has come to stay, in the West.

The Department of Education, in 1905, realizing that it is better, both on economical and on pedagogical grounds, to unite the many small and weak schools, dispersed over a large extent of territory, in a few strong, well-equipped and well conducted graded schools located at convenient points, had an amendment to the School Act passed, to permit of this being done, and Virden was the first consolidated school formed, followed in 1906 by Holland. More consolidated schools have been formed in the past year than in the three years previously, the total number now formed being 36, while there are probably over a dozen in course of formation.

One of the strong points in the consolidation system is the successful conveyance of the school children. It has been conclusively proven that where the children are conveyed to and from school they attend more regularly. Of the 50 vans employed in the year 1911 by 20 schools in operation in the various parts of the province representing all kinds of geographical conditions, only 30 trips were missed during the whole year; but little more than one trip for every two vans, and these vans traveled over route varying in length from 2 to 9 miles. One route traveled was 11 miles in length.

Our Marconi Stations.

The great towers at the Marconi wireless station near Glace Bay, Cape Breton, which have been of so much interest to visitors to Nova Scotia for the past ten years, are being removed and replaced with a number of smaller steel masts which will answer the same purpose as the 250 foot towers.

A new sending and receiving station is being established at Louisburg. Manager Woodward of the Marconi Company says, "It will hardly be completed within three or four months, as it is a great undertaking, and when finished will be one of the largest and most important stations in the world. There will be at least twenty operators employed at Louisburg continuously and the greater bulk of private and commercial business will pass through Louisburg."

The erection of the new station at Louisburg is under the personal supervision of Manager Woodward, the buildings being erected under contract by Rhodes, Curry & Co.

KNIGHTS OF WINDSOR.

Famous English Military Order May Be Reduced In Number.

There is a proposal on foot to reduce the number of the Military Knights of Windsor and to do away with the lower foundation. At present the body consists of a governor and twelve knights on the upper, or royal, foundation and five on the lower. It is an ancient institution, having been founded by Edward III. as an adjunct to his famous Order of the Garter. The Military Knights, or Poor Knights as they were known in those days, were first selected by the original Knights of the Garter from amongst the number of impoverished soldiers, who, after fighting their country's battles abroad, found themselves in the autumn of life fallen into necessity and decay. The number was fixed at twenty-four, but was shortly afterwards raised to twenty-six.

Provision for their maintenance was included in the rich lands granted to the newly-established College of St. George, where they were incorporated under the control of the Custos, or Dean. At their foundation houses were built for them to reside in, and they were allowed one shilling a day for their sustenance, the precise sum granted to the canons of St. George's Chapel, and derived from the same source. King James I., commiserating their poverty, gave them an additional shilling per day. By command of King William IV. they wear a handsome uniform, similar to that of unattached officers of the army, and they used formerly to be compelled, under a penalty, to attend Divine service daily in the chapel. In fact, they formed part of the ecclesiastical and military foundation.

The history of this partnership between priest and soldier has not proved wholly uneventful. Shortly after the death of Edward III. arose the first of a long series of disputes that have only subsided in quite recent years. The Knights accused the dean of sequestrating the fines — 1s. per diem—for nonattendance in chapel, instead of dividing the money among the remainder of the Knights, as directed by the statute. The dean retaliated with a not unfounded charge of immorality against certain of the veterans, while one was declared guilty of continually appearing late, sleeping during the progress of Divine service, and retiring before its conclusion. The Chancellor of England instituted a thorough investigation, with the result that the dean and canons were ordered in future to share their revenues with the knights in such manner as had been directed by the founder.

Some half a century later further trouble cropped up between the parties, owing to nonpayment on the part of the clergy, and again the latter were compelled to disgorge. Matters came to a crisis in the reign of Edward IV., when, the differences seeming irreparable, the dean and canons contrived to obtain a new statute permitting them to absolve themselves for ever from all responsibilities of the Knights. There does not appear to have been any division of revenue, and it is not certain what means were forthcoming for the support of the old soldiers, but that the foundation preserved its existence is clear from the fact that continual petitions were made to the crown for repeal of the statute of Edward IV.

During the reign of Henry VII. the Knights entered a charge against the canons of withholding a share of a last of herrings, an annual presentation to the College by the Corporation of Yarmouth, a custom dating back to the time of Edward III. The Knights persevered in their appeals without success, until King Henry VIII. pitying their forlorn conditions, gave orders for the erection of the present buildings, which were afterwards completed by Queen Mary.

Owns a Lonely Island.

Sir George Bullough is the proprietor of one of the loneliest islands in Europe. This is the island of Rhum, in the Inner Hebrides, which Sir Walter Scott made famous under the name of Rona. Excellent deer-stalking is to be obtained, and Kinloch Castle, Sir George's residence on the island, is a most imposing landmark.

Sir George Bullough is immensely wealthy, for his father was one of the founders of the famous engineering firm on which the prosperity of Accrington mainly depends. When released from business cares Sir George spends a deal of his time yachting. During the South African war he took his yacht Rhouma to the Cape, and fitted it out at his own expense as a hospital ship.

Sir George Bullough married the eldest daughter of the fourth Marquis de la Pasture, and Miss Lily Elsie is his sister-in-law. In addition to his residence on the island of Rhum he maintains establishments in Herefordshire, and Gloucester, and also a house in London.

Kissing Ladies Only.

When a female member of the British royal family holds a levee it is customary for her to kiss the ladies of the nobility and no others. It happened that the lady of the Lord Justice Clerk was, on one occasion, among the number of those presented to the Princess Amelia, who was very deaf.

"Stand by for my Lady Justice Clerk," said the man in waiting.

Meanwhile some meddling person whispered to him that his announcement was incorrect, the lady being a commoner. By this time the kiss preliminary was about to be performed, when out bawled the man of office through a speaking trumpet:

"Don't kiss her, madam—she's not a lady."

Grouse In London.

Grouse are not allowed to be on sale in London before Aug. 12, the opening of the shooting season, yet on that very day, even before the birds can be shot on the wild moors, they are on sale. And when these birds are sold it is found that they are two years old. When the magic words "cold storage" are uttered the mystery is solved. They have been for many months hanging in long neat rows in cold storage awaiting the "new birth."

TO KEEP OLD CONTRACT.

Hudson Bay Co. Will Give Connaught Four Skins.

It has been decided that when the Duke of Connaught visits Northern Canada, which he is expected to do shortly, he is to be presented with the furs of two elks and two black beavers by the Hudson Bay Co., says The Toronto Star Weekly in a recent article. Such presentation, however, will not be in the nature of a gift, but will be made in accordance with a very curious provision contained in the charter of incorporation of the 2nd May, 1670, which the merchant adventurers of London prayed for from King Charles II., and which that monarch granted to his cousin, Prince Rupert, and seventeen other gentlemen, securing to them the "sole trade and commerce of all those seas, straits, bays, rivers, lakes, and creeks, lying within the entrance of the straits called Hudson Straits." The clause in the charter making obligatory on the Hudson Bay Co. the presentation to the heirs and successors of the "Merry Monarch" of two elks and to black beavers reads as follows:

"We do, by these presents, for us, our heirs and successors, make, create, and constitute the said Governor and Company for the time being, and their successors, the true and absolute lords and proprietors of the same territory, limits, and places, and of all other premises, saving always the faith, allegiance, and sovereign dominion due to us, our heirs and successors, for the same to have, hold, possess, and enjoy the said territory, limits and places. . . . to the said Governor and Company, and their successors for ever to be holden of us, our heirs and successors, as of our manor at East Greenwich, in our County of Kent, in free and common soccage, and not in capite or by knight's service, yielding nd paying yearly to us, our heirs and successors, for the same two elks and two black beavers, whensoever and as often as we, our heirs and successors, shall happen to enter into the said countries, territories, and regions hereby granted.";

It may, perhaps, be open to doubt whether, in strict law, his royal highness, the present Governor-General, can be said to be comprised in the words "heirs and successors" before mentioned, as it is, at least, arguable that that expression means the reigning monarch for the time being. However, the Hudson Bay Co. have decided that the words are capable of including the members of the royal family generally, and have decided so to construe them on the occasion of the duke's visit—which will probably be the first time that the interesting ceremony has been performed, although the charter was granted nearly two hundred and fifty years ago. The connection of the Hudson Bay Co. with the royal family is a notable one. The King's cousin Prince Rupert, was, we have seen, first governor of the company, while his brother, the Duke of York, afterwards James II., succeeded him in that office. But the King's interest in the company did not stop there. He was graciously pleased not merely to insert in the charter the provision as to the two elks and two black beavers, but also to accept stock in the company (of the kind which would nowadays be called "Promoters' stock") to the amount of three hundred pounds, which represented something like nine or ten thousand dollars of our present money. King Charles II. dearly loved money. He was ready to sell either his soul, or his country, or both, for that commodity. And one is rather surprised that he did not insist on more than three hundred pounds' worth of stock being issued to him as the price of his consent to the company's incorporation.

An Employer's Liability Policy

MIGHT SAVE YOU HEAVY DAMAGES

While an accident may be due to an employee's own carelessness, still there's no certainty that the employer will not have to pay heavy damages. New legislation too is steadily increasing the responsibility of the employer. But an Employer's Liability Policy in the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would protect you against financial loss through injuries to an employee while on duty. The General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would deal justly with your employee too. It is noted for fairness and broadmindedness. It is one of the oldest and strongest Insurance Companies in the world. Do not delay to, write for further particulars.

Injuries in the industrial world are frequent. In the building, metal and woodworking trades alone there were 294 people killed and 1,421 injured in Canada during 1910 and 1911. Our business is to relieve the employer of all financial responsibility resulting from accident.

Marooned

A Man Lived For Years Alone on an Island

MILLARD MALTBIE

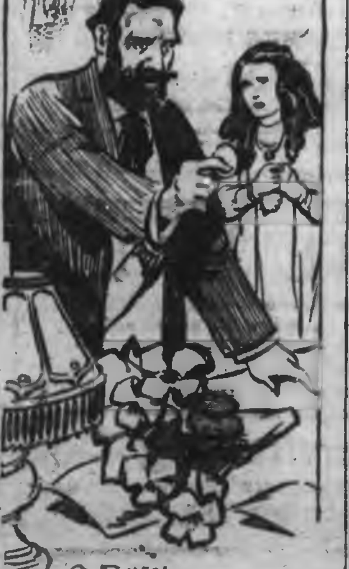
In Casco bay, on the coast of Maine, there are several hundred islands. The principal business of the natives of the islands is fishing.

[illegible] some thirty years ago a [illegible] fishermen setting their nets for [illegible]kerel saw a ship bearing a flag they did not recognize cast anchor near one [illegible] the smaller islands. Presently a boat was lowered over the side and pulled to the shore. There were three men in the boat, two pulling the oars and one sitting in the stern. Landing, all three went into a wood growing near the shore, where they remained only a few minutes. Then two of them returned, got into the boat and rowed back to the ship. The anchor was pulled up, and she sailed away.

Curious to know something more of the matter, the fishermen when they had finished setting their net stopped at the island and looked about till they came upon a man sitting on the ground, leaning up against a tree. Beside him were a bottle of water and some ship's biscuit. He seemed to be about fifty years of age, his hair being partly gray. It was evident that he had been marooned on the island.

The fisherman asked him what he was doing there, but he evidently did not understand the English language, for he shook his head and replied in another tongue. They pointed to the mainland and asked him if he did not wish to go with them, but to this he also shook his head. It was some time before they could make up their minds to leave him there, and before they did gave him some matches and a fish, also some old blankets they had stored in their boat.

This incident occurred, as I have said, about thirty years ago. The marooned man built himself a hut on the island, in which he lived from that time to this. But he never told how he came to be left there or where he hailed from. He did not even give his name. Indeed, his lips were sealed as to everything concerning his previous history. He was known as the marooned man of Ragged island. He made a boat for himself out of pieces of scantling and planks that drifted on to the island and earned a living by catching lobsters and selling them.



HE TOOK FROM WITHIN THE BOUQUET A GLASS GLOBE.

Finally he died, and some persons went over from the mainland to bury him. They found his secret, or the main events pertaining to it, he having written it down during the last few weeks of his life when he felt that his days were numbered. From this record the story that made him a marooned man has been constructed.

One day a lady stepped into a little shop where flowers were sold in St Petersburg and asked for some roses. A young girl stood behind the counter and brought out the flowers. The lady was one of the friendly kind and talked kindly with the little flower girl, asking her her name and if she had any father or mother, and so on. The girl told her name, which was Lisa—that her mother was dead and that her father owned the shop, but she attended to the business, since her father was seldom there. The lady asked some questions about the father—Paul Merovich was his name—if he had any other business and what took him so much away from home. Lisa could not answer this last question, nor did she know whether her father engaged in any other business.

The lady appeared so friendly that Lisa told her all about herself and the flower business. No such kindly person had ever before come to the shop, and Lisa was anxious to know who she was. The customer hesitated for a moment, then gave her name as Mme. Burovich and volunteered the information that she was on intimate terms with many of the noble families of the capital, especially of General Scholoff, a prominent official of the government.

Mme. Burovich insisted upon paying more for the flowers than Lisa asked, giving as a reason that the poor girl needed the money. Since no one had ever done this before Lisa was delighted. When her father came home she told him a great deal about her liberal customer and the interest she took in the business and the family, only omitting to repeat the questions the lady has asked about Merovich himself, for Lisa knew that her father was very reticent about himself and had often cautioned her not to talk about him or what he did or how he spent his time, to others. She would not have given any one else the information she had imparted. Her customer was so kindly, so sympathetic, that she could not refrain from doing so.

When Lisa told her father that Mme. Burovich was intimate with the family of General Scholoff she noticed a changed expression came over his face. But he said nothing and she went on talking about her lovely visitor. Her father appeared desirous to learn all about what had passed between the two women, but being himself a close mouthed man, he spoke no more than was necessary. So long as she was willing to talk he was ready to listen.

After that Mme. Burovich came often to the shop, always buying flowers and always paying more than the price asked for them. One day when she came Lisa had gone out for something and on her return found the lady in the living rooms back of the shop. She told Lisa that she preferred to make herself comfortable while she waited. When Lisa mentioned this to her father he was displeased and told Lisa not to go out any more without locking the shop door.

Mme. Burovich spoke often of the family of General Scholoff, to whom she seemed much attached. Indeed, she sometimes told Lisa when she bought flowers that they were intended for Mme. Scholoff or some other member of the family. Lisa told all these things to her father, who seemed much interested in the matter, though he never commented on it. But one day he surprised Lisa by proposing that she take a handsome bunch of flowers to Mme. Scholoff. Lisa was delighted at the idea since it would enable her to show indirectly her appreciation of Mme. Burovich's kindness. She would say nothing to her friend about the matter, fearing that she would not permit her to give away her flowers. In this her father heartily agreed with her.

Lisa wished to put this scheme in operation at once, but her father told her to wait and he would secure some choice flowers that were very rare at that season. So Lisa waited, and one day her father brought her an enormous bouquet, which he suggested be placed in the center of the floral offering. Lisa clapped her hands in delight. Her father placed the flowers in position just before Lisa started to go to the house of the general and told her that if Mme. Scholoff was not at home she had better leave it for her in her husband's care.

While Lisa carried the flowers on the street she detected a singular odor, as of something burning, but it did not occur to her that it came from the bouquet. When she reached the general's house she asked for Mme. Scholoff, but was told she was not at home. Then she asked if she might leave a gift for her with the general. The servant went in to report the matter and returned to tell Lisa to go into the general's office.

General Scholoff looked at Lisa suspiciously. She was telling him what she had to say when he began to sniff the air, then snatched the bouquet and held it under his nose. Tearing the bouquet apart, he seized a string, on the end of which was a spark. Squeezing the spark between his thumb and fingers till he had extinguished it, he took from within the bouquet a glass globe about the size of a walnut. This he put in a glass of water, then called an attendant, telling him to seize Lisa.

Among those who answered a hasty summons was Mme. Burovich. She said no word to Lisa, but was immediately closeted with the general. A police force was dispatched to the flower shop, with orders to arrest Paul Merovich, but he was not there.

Lisa was held a prisoner, though Mme. Burovich was sure she had had nothing to do with the attempted assassination except as her father's tool. Merovich was under suspicion of being a revolutionist, and Lisa's friendly customer was a police spy who had been deputed to discover the truth of this matter and trap him if possible. The trap was sprung, on the other side, by Merovich, but was nipped in the bud by his intended victim.

The government gave out that Lisa was to be sent to Siberia. This brought the voluntary surrender of Merovich. Lisa, though innocent, begged to be allowed to suffer in his stead. This was, of course, not granted, but great sympathy was felt by Mme. Scholoff, and especially by Lisa's supposed customer, and the government at the time had political reasons for not sending Paul Merovich to Siberia or executing him. Merovich proposed that if they would leave his daughter unpunished they could do what they liked with him. He would agree, if they banished him, never to return to Russia.

It was finally stipulated that he was to be sent to a desert island. So long as he never appeared anywhere else his daughter should go unpunished. If he left his island she would be sent to Siberia, which her father knew was a worse fate than death.

A ship bound for North America sailed soon after this, and the would be assassin was placed upon her with orders to the captain to maroon him on an island on the Atlantic coast. He was left on Ragged island, and there he lived, dead to the world, that the daughter he had implicated and whom he nevertheless dearly loved might escape the horrors of the Siberian mines.

NO GOOD TO BURGLAR

SO DR. FISHER GOT HIS OLD COINS BACK AGAIN.

Head of Toronto Conservatory Used to Be a Numismatist and When a Robber Entered the Institution All He Got Was Out-of-Date Money Which He Failed to Pass and Promptly Returned to Victim.

Not long ago the Toronto Conservatory of Music was visited by a burglar. He did not secure much booty, but he made away with a collection of old coins belonging to the musical director, Dr. Edward Fisher. That gentleman says he was rather relieved, because for some time he had scarcely known what to do with these relics of a hobby of earlier years. Although they helped to litter up his studio he still could not make up his mind to give them away.

DR. EDWARD FISHER.

But an amusing denouement followed. Dr. Fisher received an anonymous note from the burglar saying that he (the burglar) had no use for the coins, as they were foreign and of no current value, and that if the doctor would send to a certain number on Queen street he might have them back again. So Dr. Fisher did send and actually got them back.

Now the head of the Conservatory tells this story to give point to the fact that, from time to time, persons go to that institution looking for what they will not find there or at any similar place. "We aim to train pupils," says Dr. Fisher, "in the various branches of music. But those who come expecting to be supplied with genius, or with musical skill without talent or application, will be disappointed—like our burglar."

Still Going Down.

The decline of two points in the Department of Labor's index number of wholesale prices for the month of July, after a continuous rise for twelve months, was followed in August by another drop, the index number standing at 133.4 as compared with 134.8 the previous month. Last year, however, at this date, it stood at only 127.2.

The decline during August was due chiefly to decreases in prices of grains and fodder, fruits and vegetables, with slight increases in dairy products, fish, metals and coal. These index numbers are percentages of the average prices of some 250 articles during the decade of 1890-1899.

Marooned

A Man Lived For Years Alone on an Island

By MILLARD MALTBIE

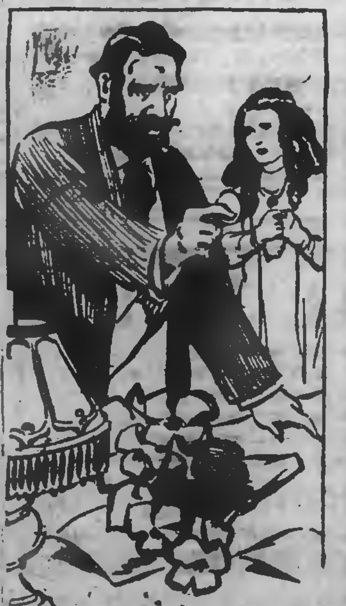
In Casco bay, on the coast of Maine, there are several hundred islands. The principal business of the natives of the islands is fishing.

One day some thirty years ago a couple of fishermen setting their nets for mackerel saw a ship bearing a flag they did not recognize cast anchor near one of the smaller islands. Presently a boat was lowered over the side and pulled to the shore. There were three men in the boat, two pulling the oars and one sitting in the stern. Landing, all three went into a wood growing near the shore, where they remained only a few minutes. Then two of them returned, got into the boat and rowed back to the ship. The anchor was pulled up, and she sailed away.

Curious to know something more of the matter, the fishermen when they had finished setting their net stopped at the island and looked about till they came upon a man sitting on the ground, leaning up against a tree. Beside him were a bottle of water and some ship's biscuit. He seemed to be about fifty years of age, his hair being partly gray. It was evident that he had been marooned on the island.

The fisherman asked him what he was doing there, but he evidently did not understand the English language, for he shook his head and replied in another tongue. They pointed to the mainland and asked him if he did not wish to go with them, but to this he also shook his head. It was some time before they could make up their minds to leave him there, and before they did gave him some matches and a fish, also some old blankets they had stored in their boat.

This incident occurred, as I have said, about thirty years ago. The marooned man built himself a hut on the island, in which he lived from that time to this. But he never told how he came to be left there or where he hailed from. He did not even give his name. Indeed, his lips were sealed as to everything concerning his previous history. He was known as the marooned man of Ragged island. He made a boat for himself out of pieces of scantling and planks that drifted on to the island and earned a living by catching lobsters and selling them.



HE TOOK FROM WITHIN THE BOUQUET A GLASS GLOBE.

Finally he died, and some persons went over from the mainland to bury him. They found his secret, or the main events pertaining to it, he having written it down during the last few weeks of his life when he felt that his days were numbered. From this record the story that made him a marooned man has been constructed.

One day a lady stepped into a little shop where flowers were sold in St Petersburg and asked for some roses A young girl stood behind the counter and brought out the flowers. The lady was one of the friendly kind and talked kindly with the little flower girl, asking her her name and if she had any father or mother, and so on. The girl told her name, which was Lisa—that her mother was dead and that her father owned the shop, but she attended to the business, since her father was seldom there. The lady asked some questions about the father—Paul Merovich was his name—if he had any other business and what took him so much away from home. Lisa could not answer this last question, nor did she know whether her father engaged in any other business.

The lady appeared so friendly that Lisa told her all about herself and the flower business. No such kindly person had ever before come to the shop, and Lisa was anxious to know who she was. The customer hesitated for a moment, then gave her name as Mme. Burovich and volunteered the information that she was on intimate terms with many of the noble families of the capital, especially of General Scholoff, a prominent official of the government.

Mme. Burovich insisted upon paying more for the flowers than Lisa asked, giving as a reason that the poor girl needed the money. Since no one had ever done this before Lisa was delighted. When her father came home she told him a great deal about her liberal customer and the interest she took in the business and the family, only omitting to repeat the questions the lady has asked about Merovich himself, for Lisa knew that her father was very reticent about himself and had often cautioned her not to talk about him or what he did or how he spent his time, to others. She would not have given any one else the information she had imparted. Her customer was so kindly, so sympathetic, that she could not refrain from doing so.

When Lisa told her father that Mme. Burovich was intimate with the family of General Scholoff she noticed a changed expression came over his face. But he said nothing and she went on talking about her lovely visitor. Her father appeared desirous to learn all about what had passed between the two women, but being himself a close mouthed man, he spoke no more than was necessary. So long as she was willing to talk he was ready to listen.

After that Mme. Burovich came often to the shop, always buying flowers and always paying more than the price asked for them. One day when she came Lisa had gone out for something and on her return found the lady in the living rooms back of the shop. She told Lisa that she preferred to make herself comfortable while she waited. When Lisa mentioned this to her father he was displeased and told Lisa not to go out any more without locking the shop door.

Mme. Burovich spoke often of the family of General Scholoff, to whom she seemed much attached. Indeed, she sometimes told Lisa when she bought flowers that they were intended for Mme. Scholoff or some other member of the family. Lisa told all these things to her father, who seemed much interested in the matter, though he never commented on it. But one day he surprised Lisa by proposing that she take a handsome bunch of flowers to Mme. Scholoff. Lisa was delighted at the idea since it would enable her to show indirectly her appreciation of Mme. Burovich's kindness. She would say nothing to her friend about the matter, fearing that she would not permit her to give away her flowers. In this her father heartily agreed with her.

Lisa wished to put this scheme in operation at once, but her father told her to wait and he would secure some choice flowers that were very rare at that season. So Lisa waited, and one day her father brought her an enormous bouquet, which he suggested be placed in the center of the floral offering. Lisa clapped her hands in delight. Her father placed the flowers in position just before Lisa started to go to the house of the general and told her that if Mme. Scholoff was not at home she had better leave it for her in her husband's care.

While Lisa carried the flowers on the street she detected a singular odor, as of something burning, but it did not occur to her that it came from the bouquet. When she reached the general's house she asked for Mme. Scholoff, but was told she was not at home. Then she asked if she might leave a gift for her with the general. The servant went in to report the matter and returned to tell Lisa to go into the general's office.

General Scholoff looked at Lisa suspiciously. She was telling him what she had to say when he began to sniff the air, then snatched the bouquet and held it under his nose. Tearing the bouquet apart, he seized a string, on the end of which was a spark. Squeezing the spark between his thumb and fingers till he had extinguished it, he took from within the bouquet a glass globe about the size of a walnut. This he put in a glass of water, then called an attendant, telling him to seize Lisa.

Among those who answered a hasty summons was Mme. Burovich. She said no word to Lisa, but was immediately closeted with the general. A police force was dispatched to the flower shop, with orders to arrest Paul Merovich, but he was not there.

Lisa was held a prisoner, though Mme. Burovich was sure she had had nothing to do with the attempted assassination except as her father's tool. Merovich was under suspicion of being a revolutionist, and Lisa's friendly customer was a police spy who had been deputed to discover the truth of this matter and trap him if possible. The trap was sprung, on the other side, by Merovich, but was nipped in the bud by his intended victim.

The government gave out that Lisa was to be sent to Siberia. This brought the voluntary surrender of Merovich Lisa, though innocent, begged to be allowed to suffer in his stead. This was, of course, not granted, but great sympathy was felt by Mme. Scholoff, and especially by Lisa's supposed customer, and the government at the time had political reasons for not sending Paul Merovich to Siberia or executing him. Merovich proposed that if they would leave his daughter unpunished they could do what they liked with him. He would agree, if they banished him, never to return to Russia.

TORONTO AND THE HYDRO

The recent report on the operations of the civic light and power plant in Toronto, as submitted by the auditor, Mr. Stirling, has aroused a good deal of comment. It is evident that there is a defect on the operations, but what portion of this should be changed to capital account is not rightly determined.

The Globe, which is friendly to the Hydro and to the civic enterprise makes some editorial reference, and sums up the situation from its point of view, and we reprint the larger part of the article. A few paragraphs are taken up with a defense of Mr. Stirling, the auditor, and a rejoinder that he has not been influenced to report adversely.

There is evidence in Mr. Sterling's report as to the need for frank discussion of the entire situation It must be rememberd that not one citizen in four is a consumer of electric light for household lighting. The man who burns gas or coal oil cannot be expected to dip his hand into his pocket and pay taxes so that electric may be furnished to the well-to-do at less than cost. The business, therefore, must be made to pay its own way. Now let us see what the outstanding facts are. What must Toronto pay to keep the system going? It was reported the other day that the city was consuming 13,000 horsepower. At $16.50 per horsepower, this would give the sum of $214,500 for current. The operating cost for wages and material for the half year ending June 1912, was $213,000 in round figures. Here, then, we have an operating outgo at the rate of $426,000 a year. Mr. Sterling estimates that by the end of this year, the Commission will have spent practically all of the $4,960,000 authorized by the people for the construction of the system, and that the fixed charges thereafter, required to be met out of earnings will be $198,000 per year for interest and $70,000 for sinking fund. In the rough, the three principal items of expenditure for next year's business are—

Current	$214,500
Wages and material	426,000
Interest	198,000
Sinking fund	70,000
Total outgo	$908,500

The income for the half year ending June, 1912, was $297,162, of which $93,000 was from private light and power consumers. Mayor Geary indicates that there has been a material gain in this department since the month of June, but he gives no figures as to the total volume of business There can be no marked expansion in the revenue from street lighting or the pumping of the water supply The yearly revenue from street lighting will be about $250,000, and from power for pumping and other civic purposes $120,000, so that to the expansion of the private lighting and power demanded the Commission must look for the $300,000 required to balance the account during 1913. On the figures presented by Mr Sterling there is evident need for strict economy, for a vigorous campaign to secure a larger share of the private lighting and power business and, if the civic car lines are to be directly operated, for the application to them of the city's electric power.

There is nothing seriously wrong with Hydro finances to date The cheapening of the cost of electric energy has justified all the efforts made by the citizens. But it is quite evident from Mr Sterlnig's figures that that a very material expansion of business must be secured before the system will be in a position to meet the necessarily heavy fixed charges incurred in building a modern competing plant. The battle of competition with the Mackenzie interests is not won. It is only beginning."

PUT ON THE KNICKERBOCKERS

And Leave Eye Glasses at Home Says Father Vaughan

How Englishmen Can Make Good in the West

Moosejaw, Sask., Oct. 18— Father Bernard Vaughan, who arrived here and interviewed regarding his impressions of the West, said:

"To my way of thinking there never was a land so ready to give a living wage to anyone ready to give in exchange for it and honest day's work.

"My advice to old country men coming out to this country is 'leave your eyeglass at home, and your knickerbockers and your hyper-criticisms and your superiority. Put on a pair of overalls, pull off your coat pull up your sleeves, and put your back into your work while you are at it. Then, instead of being all in, down and out you'll come out on top and become a useful member of an enterprising community and not at all a bad advertisement for the old country."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To The Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir,—Why is it that the Gannon's Narrow Bridge isn't built? Mr. Bob Shaw, our Reeve, made great promises about what he was going to do about building the bridge, but it was a botch just as the Buckhorn bridge was. The County Council has now to pay for the work at Buckhorn. When Reeve Shaw has to do some of the paying he will think differently about it. The Township of Harvey won't be stuck for the amount of it, that's sure.

Mr. Bennet ought to see about the Gannon's Narrows Bridge. It isn't his fault. Mr. Shaw has said as of Nogie's Creek, that Mr. Bennet, the road inspector, had promised to help him in building the Gannon's Narrows Bridge. This is not true. I have seen a letter from Bennet in which he denied it and I say that Mr. Shaw never told the truth about what Mr. Bennet wrote, or what Mr. Shaw said he wrote, about building the bridge at Gannon's Narrows.

Reeve Shaw is a joke and the sooner the people of the township get on to it, the better.

Yours truly,
A HARVEY RATEPAYER.

LADY EVANGELIST WORKS AGAINST LOCAL OPTION

A suspicion that almost amounted to conviction is said to have been aroused in the minds of those who heard Mrs. Marguerite Rice advertised as the Broadway, New York evangelist, on the streets of Oshawa that she is in some way affiliated with the liquor interests, says the Oshawa Reformer. Her somewhat humorous characterization of the conditions she depicted as existing in dry towns, and her striking appeal not to fill our town with blind tigers, blind pigs, boot leggers, etc., won her a ready hearing. Her style of address caught the crowd and she did telling work against local option A number in the crowds she addressed were doubtful if the woman was what she represented herself to be. The fact that she took up no collection such as travelling evangelists invariably do and spoke as she did against "dry towns" especially at this time when there is a local option campaign on here, seemed to be proof enough to a good many who heard her that it was a subtle ruse.

Knitting is something that a girl hopes she'll never grow old enough to learn.

MR. MONK'S RESIGNATION CAUSES COMMENT AT OTTAWA

General Feeling is That Minister Has Been Sincere, But Has Shown Bad Judgment in Acting Hastily—He Himself Shows no Worry.

Montreal, Oct. 19.—Hon. F. D. Monk phoned friends here yesterday that his resignation has been accepted by the leader of the party and he will be a private member when the House opens next month.

There is a good deal of comment in the newspapers over the affair, but there is absolutely no excitement in political circles over the resignation of the Minister of Public Works.

Mr. Monk is getting bouquets for standing to principle but some persons hint that he was tired of the increasing details of office work and was only too glad to get out. Most people give him credit for sincerity and many people also say he has displayed bad judgment, as some other good man will step into his shoes and the incident will be forgotten in a few days. Le Devoir, Mr. Bourassa's paper, says he could not have acted differently and adds that Nantel and Pelletier will have to follow suit.

As for the Liberals, they seem to be abiding their time, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux saying yesterday that it was a family quarrel in which he had little interest.

Yesterday afternoon Hon. Mr. Monk wired E. A. D. Morgan, Conservative candidate, that he would be heart and soul at his disposal in Richelieu. The ex-Minister's attitude on the stump will be at least interesting.

Mr. Monk is not worrying about his disagreement with the Prime Minister and his colleagues over the naval situation.

"I am at the mercy of rumors just at present and what can I do?" was his laughing rejoinder last night regarding his reported resignation. "When I resign I will tell you," he promised, after he had shown a readiness to discuss any other question but the one in which he is now the centre of attention. Mr. Monk attended the Cabinet yesterday.

There is apparently no foundation for the report that Hon. A. B. Nantel will follow in Mr. Monk's wake when he leaves the Cabinet. Neither Mr. Nantel, Minister of Inland Revenue, nor the Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, has the slightest intention of resigning.

L. T. Marechal of Montreal is prominently mentioned as Mr. Monk's successor in the event of his retirement from the Cabinet.

The date for the opening of Parliament has not yet been officially announced, but it is now generally understood that this will take place on Nov. 21.

That Mr. Borden will immediately ask for an emergency contribution of $30,000,000 there is now every reason to believe.

ROOSEVELT'S CONDITION

No Danger From Blood Poisoning or Lockjaw

Special To The Review.

Chicago, Oct. 17 — Col. Roosevelt passed a peaceful night, sleeping practically without interruption after eleven o'clock. Blood poisoning is no longer regarded as a possibility, although there is still a remote danger from lockjaw. The crisis is now believed to be passed and a rapid recovery is looked for.

BECKER IS SCRAPEGOAT

Sullivan Says He is Victim of Webber and Others.

New York, Oct. 19.—Jacob Reich, known as "Jack Sullivan, King of the Newsboys," indicted with the four gunmen for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, tried to unfold on the witness stand at yesterday's session of Police Lieut. Becker's trial, his version of an alleged conspiracy by gamblers to kill Rosenthal and "frame up" Becker for the murder. Through him the defence planned to go far in proving their contention that Becker had nothing to do with the murder, but was himself the victim of a conspiracy.

But much of Sullivan's story was untold. That part which Justice Goff permitted him to relate was based upon testimony already given by the state's witnesses, Rose, Webber, Vallon and Schepps. Sullivan not only denied portions of their testimony relating to Becker's participation in the alleged conspiracy to murder Rosenthal, but declared that after the murder Webber and Schepps told him they were going to "frame Becker and turn him over to the district attorney."

These two men told Sullivan, according to his testimony, that they "would frame Becker, Waldo or the mayor," if necessary to save their own lives. They told him, he swore, that the electric chair was staring them in the face and that their only chance to escape it lay in convicting Becker.

Sullivan became as petulant as a child when Justice Goff narrowed his testimony to contradictions of that of the previous witnesses. Again and again he begged the court to "give me ten minutes to explain this thing." Once he asked for a chance, "not only for my sake, but for God's sake [illegible]

Gunmen Avenge Zelig.

New York, Oct. 19.—The story of a free-for-all fight on the Bridge of Sighs yesterday in which "Red Phil" Davidson, slayer of Jack Zelig, the gang leader, was set upon, kicked and beaten by the four gunmen indicted of shooting Herman Rosenthal to death, was made public last night.

The gunmen—"Leftie Louie," "Gyp the Blood," "Dago Frank" and "Whitey Lewis"—handcuffed to deputies, were on their way back to the Tombs from the court-room, where Police Lieut. Becker is on trial. "Red Phil," similarly manacled, was on his way to the building to plead to the indictment charge him with Zelig's murder. They met in the centre of the narrow bridge.

Immediately the gunmen, dragging their keepers with them by concerted action, made for Zelig's slayer. Before the astonished deputies could collect themselves, the gun men had kicked and mauled Davidson until he was shouting for mercy.

The gunmen were hauled away from their victim in a few seconds and continued, on a run, to their cells. Davidson was badly bruised and was bleeding from one or two cuts on the face.

COL. ROOSEVELT.

"Terrible Teddy," is making a rapid recovery. He is anxious to get into the fight again.

REVOLUTION WAS COSTLY

Methodist Mission Board Lost $50,000 in Chinese Trouble.

Toronto, Oct. 19.—Methodists here are stirred up over a remarkable crisis in relation to foreign missions. A general conference officer went into the matter yesterday wieh a reporter. He stated that the revolution in China had cost the Canadian foreign mission fund $50,000. This was chiefly for traveling expenses in transporting the missionaries from the interior to the ports and bringing some of them home. The result is that the board is faced by increased demands for men in China, also for enlarged work in Japan, and is without funds to send even one additional missionary either to China or Japan.

The fund of about seven hundred thousand dollars has by the custom of the board, to be equally divided between the foreign and the home mission fields.

The mission board has sole control over the foreign work, but while it administers the home mission finances it has no jurisdiction over the establishment of new mission stations. They are under the absolute control of the annual conferences. The consequence is that the home mission work has been so rapidly developed in the Canadian west, that the home mission demands dominate the situation, and hold up an increase of the foreign mission staff.

Lavergne Not Going.

Quebec, Oct. 19.—Armand Lavergne, captain of the 61st Regiment, is not going to the Balkan war as an observation officer. He has withdrawn his application to the Minister of Militia for that position, preferring to remain in Canada to take part in the political issues of the day.

TURKISH TOWN IS OCCUPIED BY TWO BULGARIAN BATTALIONS

German Officers Must Resign Commissions in Order to Take Part in the War.

Special To The Review.

Berlin, Oct. 19—German officers in the Turkish Army have been refused permission to participate in the war, unless they resign their comission in the German army.

Sofia, Oct. 19—The occupation of the Turkish town of Mustapha Pasha, by two batallions of the Bulgarian infantry, last night, is reported. The Turkish troops are said to have abandoned the town before the arrival of the Bulgarians.

[illegible]

Constantinople, Oct. 19.—Heavy fighting is reported to have been in progress throughout the day in the region about Kirk-Kilesseh, northeastward of Adrianople. Large forces were engaged on both sides.

Holds Strategic Point.

Sofia, Oct. 19.—The Bulgarian army yesterday occupied Kourtkala, an important strategic point near Mustafa Pacha, which is in European Turkey, twenty miles northwest of Adrianople.

Is Pristina Taken?

Belgrade, Oct. 19.—There were great rejoicings here yesterday over an unconfirmed report that the Servians had captured Pristina, a town of 15,000 inhabitants in the Vilayet of Kossovo, Turkey. But the only authentic information concerning the movements of the army received here was to the effect that the Servians had entered Old Servia, and were advancing in the direction of Uskup. It is doubtful, therefore, that they have yet reached Pristina.

Greece Holds to Allies.

London, Oct. 19.—Turkey's endeavors to detach Greece from the confederation of Balkan states have failed. Greece declared war against the Ottoman empire yesterday, all the allied ministers left Constantinople and the allied states notified the powers in a note detailing their complaints that a state of war with Turkey exists.

Reports of fighting, such as the capture of Pristina by the Servians, and of a heavy battle at Mustafa Pacha, probably are in advance of the real facts. There has been for some time an active censorship of military news in all the near eastern capitals, and little is known of the dispositions of the various forces. All such reports of fighting, therefore, must be received with a measure of caution, as it is not impossible they are spread and allowed to be telegraphed abroad from interested motives.

The greatest struggle will be for the possession of Adrianople, the capture of which by the Bulgarians would leave the road open to Constantinople. All that is known positively is that fighting, probably between advance guards, is proceeding on all the frontiers. No further news has been received as yet from the Scutari region, where the Montenegrins have been operating against the Turks.

According to a Berlin report, three Bulgarian armies have concentrated against Mustafa Pacha, from which the Turks retreated to Adrianople, with entrenchments stretching to Kirk-Kilesseh, some thirty miles to the northeast of Adrianople.

A despatch received in London, and vouched for by the Greek Minister here, makes the extraordinary statement that Turkish army doctors had gone to Janina, in the southern part of Albania, near the Grecian frontier, carrying with them typhus and cholera microbes.

Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, referring in a speech at Bristol, to the war in the Balkans, said he was sure the time would come when intervention by the powers would become possible and advisable.

Departing Ministers Not Molested.

Constantinople, Oct. 19.—The departure from Constantinople of the Balkan Ministers was not attended by any hostile demonstration. M. Sarafoff, the Bulgarian Minister, and M. Gryparis, the Greek Minister, embarked on Austrian Lloyd steamers bound respectively for Varna and Piraeus, while Dr. J. Nenadovitch, the Servian representative, sailed on a Roumanian steamer for Kustenje.

The other members of the diplomatic corps here saw the departing Ministers off, and a crowd of Greeks swarmed upon the quay. The behavior of the Turkish populace was commendable.

Tried to Bribe Greece.

Athens, Oct. 19.—The Foreign Minister at the sitting of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday afternoon announced that Greece had declared war against Turkey. He added that up to the last moment Turkey had made all kinds of efforts and held out all sorts of promise to have Greece break away from the Balkan confederation.

A message from King George was read to the deputies. The Premier also read a telegram from Crown Prince Constantine reporting that the Greek army had entered Turkish territory.

When the Premier had concluded the Minister of War rose and announced the departure of the Greek fleet. He said it was the one great wish of the Greek sailors to see the Turkish fleet leave its moorings.

Amid cheering the President of the Chamber asked the permission of the deputies to send greetings to the legislative chambers of the allies now that "Cannon was roaring in the name of civilization and Christianity is at war against barbarism."

Bulgarians Off to War.

Bowmanville, Oct. 19.—A score of Bulgarians left here yesterday to join their compatriots in fighting Turkey. They were accompanied to the station by the band of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., whose employment they were leaving, and were heartily cheered.

CROPS RUINED

Special To The Review.

Manila, Oct. 19 — Two thousand houses were destroyed and the hemp sugar and cocoanut crops ruined, on the island of Leyte, October 16th. The damage is placed at ten million dollars.

Boys Released on Parole.

Galt, Oct. 19.—Six small boys, petty burglars, were before the police magistrate yesterday. On recommendation of Rev. C. R. Miller, represeting the Children's Aid Society, five were let go on parole. The sixth, a 15-year-old cigarette fiend, was remanded, to learn who supplied him.

SANCTUARY LAMP

The above is a reproduction of a photograph of the Sanctuary lamp which now hangs in St. John's church. It does not do justice to the excellent photograph taken by Mr. G. A. Smith, but will give an idea as to the appearance of the lamp

It might be added that St. John's church is open every day and the lamp may be inspected.

GREEK RESERVISTS AND VOLUNTEERS, ANXIOUS FOR BATTLE WITH TURKS, LEAVE FOR HOME

CAPTAIN C J POLITES CAPTAIN C. COKAS
GREEK RESERVISTS LEAVING ON BOARD THE IVERNIA

Over six hundred Greeks from New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Springfield and Lowell, Mass., are on their way home to fight Turkey in case of war. They are reservists and volunteers, and many of them have been connected with athletic associations in the American cities in which they have lived. Part of the work of these associations has been military drill and exercises. Although many were dissatisfied with the conditions on the steamship Ivernia, cheered by the large number of Greeks who had assembled on the pier to see them off, the vessel finally, after a long delay, left New York.

COL. ROOSEVELT ABLE TO SIT UP

He Wants to Speak Again Before Polling Day.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—The first vivid recollections of Col. Roosevelt on the night on which he was shot in Milwaukee were related last night from the colonel's own lips.

The colonel said that on Monday he expected to leave for Oyster Bay and hoped to be back in the campaign making speeches again week after next.

"I feel as lively as a bulldog," said the colonel by way of preface. He was sitting in a huge leather chair at an open window in Mrs. Roosevelt's room, adjoining his own.

Col. Roosevelt said he had no means of knowing, as he delivered the speech, whether he was wounded fatally, but accepted as a matter of course that he should go on until he had finished, if his strength held out.

Dr. Alexander Lambert had spoken of returning to New York yesterday, but his associates asked him to remain because they felt that all danger was not past.

The colonel said that he felt no pain at present.

The colonel still had trouble with his broken rib, he said. His only apparent worry was that the rib should not knit quickly enough to permit him to make a few speeches in the closing days of the campaign.

Rowell Enters Campaign.

London, Oct. 19.—Announcement is made that N. W. Rowell will speak on behalf of Wm. Sutherland, the Independent candidate in East Middlesex, at Ilderton on Tuesday night.

The temperance league officers are indignant to-day at the Liberal leader persisting in entering the riding after their denunciation of Sutherland on Thursday, when the opinion was expressed that Mr. Rowell, when the facts were laid before him, would keep out of the campaign.

ADVOCATES OF HYDRO POWER ARE BUSY IN BRANTFORD

Rally of Supporters Proves to be an Enthusiastic Gathering and Speakers Call on Citizens to Cut Their Electric Light Bills in Two.

Brantford, Oct. 19.—An enthusiastic Hydro-electric meeting was held here last night, presided over by Mayor Hartman. Gordon Wilson, M.P., Dundas; Allan Studholme, M.P.P., Hamilton, and Harry Cockshutt, delivered strong addresses, urging the ratepayers to support the Hydro-electric bylaw to be voted on on Oct. 25 to raise $115,000.

"Cut your electric light bills in two," declared Mr. Wilson amid applause, "and get the benefit of the greatest municipal ownership scheme in the world." He produced comparative bills of Brantford and Dundas, showing that this city was paying a greater toll, in spite of the contract held with the Cataract Company guaranteeing rates ten per cent. less.

"The only way to make the company live up to its agreement is to turn Hydro-electric on," said Mr. W. S. Brewster, M.P.P., and the audience of workingmen present heartily applauded.

Charles B. Held and Lloyd Harris, the latter a Cataract shareholder, delivered addresses opposing the bylaw. Both declared that Hydro-electric was expensive in the long run on account of tax increases for debentures.

Hon. Adam Beck will participate in the fight here on Tuesday night next. It is now being waged in earnest with the Cataract fighting hard to hold Brantford to itself.

THE NAVAL SITUATION

If the resignation of Hon. F. D. Monk, Minister of Public Works, is not in, it is about to be handed in. That seems to be the situation at Ottawa, being the complication over the naval proposals of the government. Undoubtedly the Quebec wing of the Conservatives headed by Mr. Monk, is not able to give unqualified approval of the proposal that Canada shall render prompt assistance to Britain by an emergency gift, without the preliminary of a plebiscite. Even Mr. Bourassa is hardly prepared to take the position that there shall be no aid to Britain from Canada. What is wanted by the Nationalists is a plebiscite in order that there shall be no doubt that the people of Canada as a whole approve of the new venture. Those men, who, like Mr. Monk, are conscientious enough to stand by their views, deserve every consideration and respect. But there is not the slightest doubt that their views cannot stand in the way of the fulfilment of one of the greatest duties Canada owes to the Motherland and the Empire. The Borden Government may regret to lose the services of Mr. Monk in the Cabinet, but even this loss cannot interfere with obedience to the will of Canada, as made clear from one end of the country to the other with, perhaps, some small exception in Quebec. The duty of the hour is quite plain, and it is a matter for gratification that Premier Borden is not to be deterred from the perfomance of this duty.

Such questions as the naval question have many sides and there may be many views honestly held, as to what is the duty of Canada. But in the British speaking portion of the country, at least, there is no gainsaying that opinion is predominantly in favor of generous and immediate aid to the British navy. As for the formation of a permanent naval policy, that is not of such immediate importance. Canada can afford to take time in this, having done her duty in the immediate necessity. Premier Borden's stand that if the Canadian people are to co-operate permanently with the British Admiralty, either by the loan of battleships to the British navy, or by the maintenance of a small home fleet, supplemented by large contributions to the central navy, the Canadian people ought to have some voice in the issues that make war or peace, is one that all Canadians can get behind. It is the self-respecting attitude. It means that Canada is prepared, now that she is beginning to become a power in herself, to become a partner in the affairs of the British Empire, and not a dependent upon the protection of the Motherland. The whole question of how Canada can safely and effectively participate in the solution of imperial problems as regards international relations is beclouded and befogged. To make Canada an imperial partner, having a voice along with Australia, New Zealand, and the other Dominions, would require a sort of imperial advisory council, and the establishment of this means a great departure in itself. But, however, the naval problem is handled in its large aspect, there is not the slightest doubt that Premier Borden will have behind him almost a solid support in refusing to budge from his determination to make an immediate and effective contribution. In any event, the wind will be taken out of Laurier's sails, and the old "tin-pot" policy superseded by something much bigger and broader than either Mr. Monk or Mr. Bourassa would care to accept.

FIFTEEN MONTHS FIFTEEN LASHES

The Sentence Meted Out to Boys For Criminal Assault.

Hamilton, Oct. 19.—Justice Kelly yesterday passed sentence on eight boys under eighteen years of age who pleaded guilty to criminally assaulting Leah Holmes, a young girl. The gang held up Miss Holmes and her escort at the point of a revolver on the mountain, and one after another attacked the girl. The judge, after severely lecturing the defendants for their crime, sentenced each one to fifteen months and fifteen lashes. Some of the parents of the boys created a scene when they heard the sentence.

LABOR MEN AGAINST NAVY

Montreal, Oct. 19—Following a characteristic speech by Keir Hardie on "Labor Problems and Society" at the Assistance Publique Hall last night, two resolutions were passed by those assembled to the effect that the working class of Montread puts itself on record against any attempt to fasten military or naval burdens, either direct or indirect, upon Canada, and that the international labor unions, the Independent labor unions, the labor Socialist party, and the social democratic party should get together in committee to organize another party in which all the workers could express themselves politically.

Mustn't Shoot Quail.

St. Catharines, Oct. 19.—Following the close season imposed upon hunters of pheasants and Hungarian partridges for two years comes notice of an order-in-council just passed prohibiting the shooting of quail. The heavy winter of last year is given as a reason for the prohibitory order.

CANADIANS MONEY MAD

Alfred E. Hutton Says the Desire to Get Rich Quick Pervades Canada.

London, Oct. 19.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A remarkable indictment against Canada was made by Mr. Alfred E. Hutton, Liberal M.P. for Morley Division, Yorkshire, at the autumnal assembly of the Congregational Union now being held in Manchester. Twenty years ago, he said, he found Toronto a remarkably good staid Scottish town such as Aberdeen. He did not think anybody would then have dared to whistle on the Sabbath. He wished he could say that that was the worst thing to-day in Toronto. There was now a feverish state of affairs and as much excitement and pleasure-seeking, and general disregard of conservative Scottish instinct as in any American city. This change was noticeable throughout Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The desire to get rich quick seemed to pervade Canada. It was ten times more difficult for religious work to progress in Canada than here.

It may be noted incidentally, that Mr. Hutton himself is not a poor man. He has town apartments in fashionable Arlington street, two houses in Yorkshire, and is a member of the exclusive Brooks and Devonshire Clubs.

Theology Not Popular.

Brantford, Oct. 19.—The annual report of McMaster University was presented by Chancellor McCrimmon at the meeting of the Ontario and Quebec Baptist Convention here yesterday. The chief feature of the report was the reference to the enrolment in theology, which since 1900 has totaled 697, the average being sustained yearly, but showing no increase.

The following were appointed to fill vacancies on the senate board: Cristopher Cook, Brantford; Gordon C. Edward, Ottawa; J. N. Shenstone, Toronto; Elwood Matthews, S. J. Phillips, Rev. Dr. Hooper, F. C. Elliott, J. K. Turner.

OVER-WORKED KIDNEYS

Cause, Rush of Blood, Fullness, Dizziness.

J. T. Chetland, the well-known railway engineer of Hamilton, found the strain always resting upon men of his occupation vastly intensified by a tendency of the blood to rush to his head, and often at times when clearness of vision and great steadiness were demanded. Finding some difficulty in bending—a stiffness with pain having settled in his back, it occurred to him that his kidneys might be at fault. "This was a happy idea, for by it I not only got rid of the pain but many other troubles as well. I took a full dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and was glad to note that some obstruction of the kidneys, which I had lately noticed, was at once relieved. The flushed appearance of my face gave way to a more rational color and there was a perceptible improvement in my appetite. Dr. Hamilton's Pills certainly act splendidly upon the blood, removing heat and fulness and that sort of dizziness that makes a man at the throttle wish when it sieses him that he were elsewhere."

No medicine gives such unquestionably good results for stomach, liver, and blood troubles as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild, certain, and always curative. Refuse any substitute. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

TURKEY DECLARES WAR

The expected Balkan war has broken out, and Greece, Servia, Bulgaria and Montenegro are lined up for a fight against Turkey. What the outcome will be no one can say, but it would not be surprising if further complications were to set in. Turkey gives as her reason for the declaration of war that she was unable to swallow the notes of the lesser states, which constituted an interference with her internal affairs. The mobilization undertaken by Bulgaria and Servia also afforded sufficient provocation. So far, the situation promises to keep well in hand, as during recent diplomatic exchanges, there has been a note of international feeling that the powers cannot afford to become embroiled. The financial interests also have been taking a hand, and intimations are rather general that there will be no huge war loans even if the powers do want to go to war. However this may be, it would seem rather odd that money, seeking employment in the most profitable channels, should refuse the high prices that would be paid by nations engaged in war, or about to undertake one. The use of money in prosecuting war withdraws it from the fields of peaceful industry, and creates an atmosphere of insecurity that is very bad for trade. As far as Canada is concerned, however, there need be no apprehension felt, for the effect of even a general war would not be materially noticed on this continent.

TARIFF REFORM BANQUET

The Duke of Westminster gave a banquet in London, as a sort of charity bazaar for the Tariff Reform cause. About 200 guests were invited, with the idea that each one was to contribute £1000 for the Tariff Reform fund. The subscriptions actually amounted to about £60,000, or $300,000. That was a very fine banquet, to be sure, and probably the food placed on the table was thoroughly digested and enjoyed. The Tariff Reform cause in England, however, has never taken hold of the industrial population because the central idea has been the placing of a tax on food, in order to give the colonies a preference. Though many newspapers are fond of calling Britain a free trade country, it is now far from that. It is much more properly described as a "tariff for revenue country," with imposts on tea, sugar, coffee, and other incidentals to living, that raise a very large part of the $800,000,000 required yearly for the purpose of government. So to extend a tax to include the more staple foods would not be such a long jump from the present conditions. The Chamberlain program has for some years been lacking a great apostle however, and has fallen into innocuous desuetude. More interest has been displayed in it of late, because of the increasing difficulties of the Asquith ministry, in trying to get its Irish and Labor allies, who distrust each other, to work harmoniously. If Home Rule were passed there would be an almost immediate end to the coalition of forces, and then it is quite probable that a Conservative Government would again assume office. If the imperialism that has newly taken root with the progress of Canada into a very powerful young Dominion, and the concurrent development of Australia and New Zealand, is to receive another great impetus, it will be by the imperial band of preference that President Taft referred to when he urged that the United States should accept reciprocity, and kill the movement in the bud. It is not to be doubted that the closer federation of the component parts of the Empire will become a problem of increasingly great concern. Tariff Reform, in extending protection to British industry, will be a means of giving it quite a boost.

GERMANY'S OIL TRUST

In one of the German semi-official newspapers there recently appeared an intimation that the Imperial Government had under contemplation the creation of a national oil trust to oust the Standard Oil Company from Germany. It was proposed to have the leading German banks and financiers contribute most of the funds, and to give the national company the power to expropriate all other oil stores and wholesale depots. It would thus, by having a valuation placed upon the business of any competitor, be able to buy it, and keep competition out. The government proposed to be a partner in the trust as it is a partner in many other similar undertakings that practically amount to a State control of the industry. But the amusing part of this is the attitude taken by some Washington officials over the proposition that their favorite trust, the Standard Oil, shall be ousted from Germany.

The Washington official circle is rather indignant at the very idea of government expropriation of the Standard Oil business in Germany. The United States has been engaged in prosecuting the Standard Oil as a most iniquitous concern, has tried to batter it from pillar to post through the courts. A year ago an order for the dissolution of the parent company, the Standard Oil of New Jersey was obtained, and the order obeyed. But the price of oil advanced, the stockholders of the component companies were made much richer by the distribution in the hidden assets, and as far as the public was concerned, the state of affairs was worse than ever. The real object in seeking the dissolution, because the trust was in restraint of trade, was an utter failure.

The details of the German bill are not yet public, but there will be no doubt quite a howl if the German Government proceeds to carry it out. The proposition would scarcely be advanced anywhere except in Germany, which has gone extensively in for state control of the leading industries. But it remains to be seen whether the Germans are not clever enough to arrange their business so that the Standard Oil will have no option but to submit like their present German competitors.

TIMELY WORDS FOR THE BOYS

THE BOY AND THE NATION —

A nation that neglects to instill into her growing boys the principles of good citizenship will sooner or later reap the harvest of her folly. It is a great honor to be a citizen of our fair Dominion, but it is a far greater honor to be a good citizen. We are honored by being privileged to live in the "Land of the Maple" and we in turn should honor Canada first of all by being good citizens ourselves and then also by teaching the rising generation the principles of good citizenship.

A nation, moreover, that does not rear her boys so as to make of them conscientious voters will soon lose her strength. It is the voter who carries the key that will lock and unlock the fortunes of his country. And if his vote is controlled by any influence but his own conscience and good judgment, the state will be handicapped. But if Canada will tell her sons of the power of the ballot and teach them to exercise that power purely from altruistic motives, she will blossom as the rose and become as a beacon light among the nations.

A nation, however, cannot long retain her place among nations without boys who are so trained as to develop into honest statesmen. A country that is controlled by politicians merely and by men who sacrifice principle for personal gain, cannot endure the stress and strain of time. Each succeeding generation should be better than the preceding one, and in a land whose officials are chosen from among the rank and file, every citizen should be composed of the material out of which honest statesmen are made. This can be realized only through a process of education, and the boy is the one above all others who should receive such training.

This is a task worthy of our best efforts, and with the boys of our land growing up into good citizens, conscientious voters, and honest statesmen, we need have no fears for the future of Canada. Are we shouldering the responsibility or are we shirking it?

FEARED HE HAD CONSUMPTION

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him

HUGH McKENNA, ESQ.

ST. STEPHEN, N.B. Jan. 17th. 1911.

"I wish to tell you of the great good "Fruit-a-tives" have done for me. For years, I was a martyr to Chronic Constipation and Stomach Trouble. I was greatly run down and my friends feared I had Consumption. I tried numerous doctors and all kinds of medicines, but received no relief until advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" by Mr. McCready of St. Stephen, and am pleased to say that I now enjoy excellent health. "Fruit-a-tives" are the best medicine made, and I strongly advise my friends to use them".

HUGH McKENNA.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine that will positively and completely cure Constipation. This wonderful compound of fruit juices acts directly on the liver, causing this organ to extract more bile from the blood, and to give up more bile to move the bowels regularly and naturally.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Oct. 18.—Business in all lines of grain and flour over the cable today was dull, the demand from foreign buyers being very limited. The local trade in coarse grains was also quiet with no change in prices to note. The local demand for flour continues fairly good and an active trade is doing in all lines of millfeed. A strong feeling prevails in the butter market and prices have an upward tendency with a good business doing. Cheese is quiet and easy. Eggs active. Demand for provisions fair.

Adventure

A Romance of The South Seas

BY JACK LONDON

Copyright, 1910, by Street & Smith

Then it was that Sheldon struck out, coolly and deliberately, with all the strength of his arm, and Tudor, caught on the jaw, fell sideways, crumpling as he did so and crushing a chair to kindling wood beneath the weight of his falling body. He pulled himself slowly to his feet, but did not offer to rush.

"Now, will you fight?" Tudor asked grimly.

Sheldon made as if to repeat the blow, but Tudor, white of face, with arms hanging resistlessly at his sides, offered no defense.

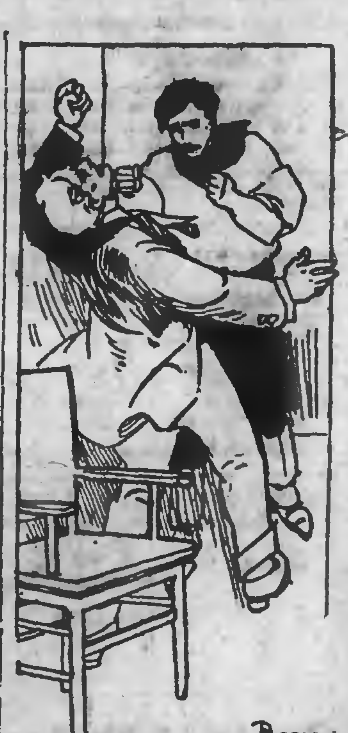
"I don't mean a fight with fists," he said slowly. "I mean to a finish, to the death. You're a good shot with revolver and rifle. So am I. That's the way we'll settle it."

"But men don't act this way in real life," Sheldon remarked.

"You'll find I'm pretty real before you're done with me. I'm going to kill you today. Speaking of Joan"—

"Please keep her name out of it," Sheldon warned him.

"Oh, go ahead, knock me down. But that won't close my mouth. You can knock me down all day, but as fast as I get to my feet I'll speak of Joan again. Now, will you fight? I'll give you a fair chance to kill me, but I'll kill you before the day's out. This isn't civilization. It's the Solomon islands, and a pretty primitive proposition for all that. And two men and one woman is an equally primitive proposition. We'll settle it in the good old primitive way. I can't insult you directly, I know. You are too easy going or cowardly, or both, for that. But I can narrate for you the talk of the beach—ah, that grinds you, doesn't it? I can tell you what the beach has to say about you and this young girl running a plantation under a business partnership."



THEN IT WAS THAT SHELDON STRUCK OUT.

"Stop!" Sheldon cried, for the other was beginning again to vibrate and oscillate before his eyes. "You want a duel. I'll give it to you. But it is absurd. What kind of a duel shall it be? There are no seconds. What weapons shall we use?"

"I've often thought that the ideal duel should be somewhat different from the modern conventional one. No seconds, of course, and no onlookers. The two principals alone are necessary. They may use any weapons they please, from revolvers and rifles to machine guns and pompoms. They start a mile apart and advance on each other, taking advantage of cover, retreating, circling, feinting—anything and everything permissible. In short, the principals shall hunt each other"—

"Like a couple of wild Indians?"

"Precisely!" cried Tudor, delighted. "You've got the idea. And Berande is just the place, and this is just the right time. Miss Lackland will be taking her siesta, and she'll think we are. We've got two hours for it before she wakes. So hurry up and come on. You start out from the Balesuna, and I start from the Berande. Those two rivers are the boundaries of the plantation, aren't they? Very well. The field of the duel will be the plantation. Neither principal must go outside its boundaries. Are you satisfied?"

"Quite."

Sheldon clapped his hands, and the running house boy hurried away to bring back Adamu Adam and Noa Noah.

"Listen," Sheldon said to them, "this man and me we have one big fight today. Maybe he die. Maybe I die. If he die, all right. If I die you two look after Missie Lackalanna. You take rifles and you look after her day time and night time. If she want to talk with Mr. Tudor, all right. If she not want to talk, you make him keep away. Savvee?"

They grunted and nodded, and each picked a rifle. Tudor, cartridge belts for rifle and pistol strapped around him, rifle in hand, stood impatiently waiting.

"Come on, hurry up, we're burning daylight," he urged, as Sheldon searched after extra clips for his automatic pistol.

Together they passed down the steps and out of the compound to the beach, where they turned their backs to each other, and each proceeded toward his destination, their rifles in the hollows of their arms, Tudor walking toward the Berande and Sheldon toward the Balesuna.

CHAPTER XXII.
MODERN DUELING.

Barely had Sheldon reached the Balesuna, when he heard the faint report of a distant rifle and knew it was the signal of Tudor, giving notice that he had reached the Berande, turned about, and was coming back. Sheldon fired his rifle into the air in answer, and in turn proceeded to advance. He moved as in a dream, absent mindedly keeping to the open beach. The thing was so preposterous that he had to struggle to realize it, and he reviewed in his mind the conversation with Tudor, trying to find some clew to the common sense of what he was doing. He did not want to kill Tudor. Because that man had blundered in his love making was no reason that he, Sheldon, should take his life. Then what was it all about? True, the fellow had insulted Joan by his subsequent remarks and been knocked down for it, but because he had knocked him down was no reason that he should now try to kill him.

In this fashion he covered a quarter of the distance between the two rivers, when it dawned upon him that Tudor was not on the beach at all. Of course not. He was advancing, according to the terms of the agreement, in the shelter of the cocoanut trees. Sheldon promptly swerved to the left to seek similar shelter, when the faint crack of a rifle came to his ears, and almost immediately the bullet, striking the hard sand a hundred feet beyond him, ricochetted and whined onward in a second flight, convincing him that preposterous and unreal as it was, it was, nevertheless, a sober fact. It had been intended for him. Yet even then it was hard to believe.

MOTHERS NEED CONSTANT STRENGTH

To Care For the Growing Family and Her Household Cares

When there is a growing family to care for and the mother falls ill, it is a serious matter. Many mothers who are on the go from morning to night, whose work apparently is never done, heroically try to disguise their sufferings, and keep an appearance of cheerfulness before their family. Only themselves know how they are distressed by headaches and backaches, dragging down pains, and weakness; how their nights are often sleepless, and they arise to a new day's work tired, depressed and unrefreshed. Such mothers should know that these sufferings are usually due to a lack of good nourishing blood. They should know that the thing above all others they need to give them new health and strength, is rich red blood, and that among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their blood-making, health restoring qualities. Every suffering woman, every woman with a home and family to care for should give these pills a fair trial for they will keep her in health and strength, and make her work easy. Here is strong proof that these Pills do what is claimed for them. Mrs. Henry Thomas, Drydens, Ont., says: "When my second child was born I was so weak and run down that I could scarcely walk across a room. My baby was small and weak also, and cried and worried day and night, until I discovered that the child was starving, as my nurse had turned almost to water. My husband got me a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I began taking them. The first beneficial effects were noticed in that my child began to thrive, as my nurse began to improve, and baby slept better and naturally. It was not long until I began to feel the improvement myself, and I daily gained new strength, and baby was growing very rosy and fat. I continued using the Pills while I was nursing him and found myself with all the vigor of good health, and able to easily do my housework, which had been so great a drag on me before. I am now never without Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house, and take an occasional dose when I feel tired. I can strongly recommend these Pills to all nursing women, especially if weak or run down."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE

From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.

So. Wellington, B.C.—"For a year during the Change of Life I was all run down. I was really too weak to walk and was very despondent and thought I was going to die, but after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier my health and strength returned. I am very thankful to you and praise your medicine. I have advised several women who suffered as I did to try your remedies. You may publish this if you wish."—Mrs. David R. Morris, South Wellington, Vancouver Island, B. C.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and we believe it is unequalled for women during the period of change of life.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

FOR THE LITTLE MAID.

Paris Sends Over This Very Dainty Bonnet.

BONNET OF BLUE UNCUT VELVET.

This charming bonnet for a little girl has just arrived from Paris. It is made of blue uncut velvet, and against the blue material are poised little roses made of white silk.

The bows at the side and streamer passing beneath the chin are effective and graceful.

JUST A SUGGESTION.

The Working Girl's Home Life Should Be Pleasant.

The kindest, best intentioned of parents are often unconsciously neither kind nor fair to the daughter who is a wage earner.

It is quite possible that her hours are longer, her work more trying than that of either father or brother, yet whereas nothing in the way of help is expected from them in their leisure hours the business girl is as often as not supposed to do a share of household duties.

If no more active tasks are assigned her she must do her own mending and probably a share of her father's and brother's, and whereas they will be petted and pampered and generally sympathized with on their return from their more or less arduous labors it seldom occurs to any one that the working girl is probably infinitely more nerve racked and worn out than any man is likely to be.

And all this happens because woman's work outside the home is seldom taken seriously by her own folk.

They are ready enough to profit by its results—for, indeed, the working girl's income is rarely her own, as her brother's is his—but that its earning entitles her to the same ease and leisure it entitles the masculine breadwinner seldom dawns on home folks. This is obviously unfair.

Caps For Milk Bottles.

How to keep milk bottles in the cleanest and most satisfactory way concerns all housewives. To aid in obtaining this cleanliness milk bottle "caps" are now for sale. One kind made of celluloid, fits into the bottle and opens with a small aluminum shutter, so that the milk may be poured out and the bottle closed afterward. These cost 15 cents each or two for 25 cents. Another kind is of celluloid and must be taken out of the bottle each time it is used. These latter are also made for condensed milk. They cost 10 cents each.

The Widener Memorial.

Mrs. George D. Widener, who was a passenger on the ill fated Titanic, her husband and son losing their lives on it, will give $2,000,000 to Harvard for a library in memory of her son, Henry E. Widener. He was graduated from Harvard in 1907, and his collection of books will be housed within it. It will be erected next to the present Harvard library and will be a work of art, as much pains has been taken in selecting plans for the building.

CHANGE OF CLIMATE DID NOT HELP

But GIN PILLS Conquered His Rheumatism

THE fact that men of standing and responsibility do not hesitate to come out and state frankly how much good GIN PILLS have done them, speaks volumes for this good old remedy.

Mr. W. G. Reid, of Hamilton, whose statement we publish below, with his permission, is one of the best known commercial men in Canada. His many friends throughout the country will be delighted to learn that he is quite himself again. He says:

"I have been for the last two years a cripple with Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I have tried almost everything known to medical science to relieve me of the intense pain and inflammation. I sought change of climate in Kentucky and other Southern points without relief. Your manager in this city recommended GIN PILLS and I have since taken eight boxes and am now cured. I consider GIN PILLS the conqueror of Rheumatism and Kidney Disease".

(Signed) W. G. REID.

Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica and all other troubles arising from weak, inactive or diseased kidneys, have little chance against GIN PILLS.

Catherine Titt, aged three years, whose parents live at 107 Brunswick avenue, Toronto, received fractures of the skull and right arm yesterday afternoon about 4.45 when she was knocked down by a delivery wagon.

Steve Brophy and Stanley Layton saw a fine moose in the lake at Blackville, N.B., and Layton raised his rifle to shoot. Brophy raised his hand at the instant and the bullet went through it, sped on its way 350 yards and killed the moose.

Then it was that Sheldon struck out, coolly and deliberately, with all the strength of his arm, and Tudor, caught on the jaw, fell sideways, crumpling as he did so and crushing a chair to kindling wood beneath the weight of his falling body. He pulled himself slowly to his feet, but did not offer to rush.

"Now, will you fight?" Tudor asked grimly.

Sheldon made as if to repeat the blow, but Tudor, white of face, with arms hanging resistlessly at his sides, offered no defense.

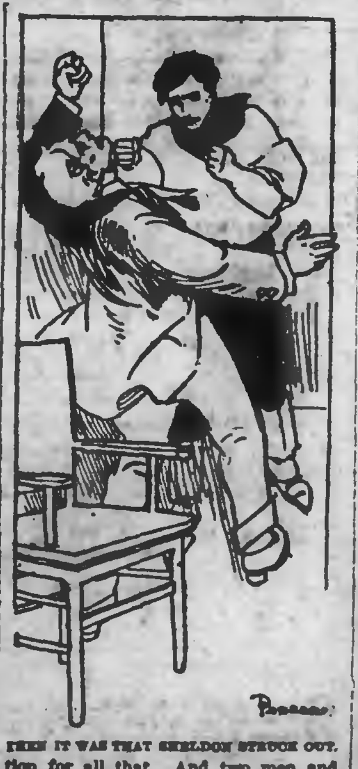
"I don't mean a fight with fists," he said slowly. "I mean to a finish, to the death. You're a good shot with revolver and rifle. So am I. That's the way we'll settle it."

"But men don't act this way in real life," Sheldon remarked.

"You'll find I'm pretty real before you're done with me. I'm going to kill you today. Speaking of Joan"—

"Please keep her name out of it," Sheldon warned him.

"Oh, go ahead, knock me down. But that won't close my mouth. You can knock me down all day, but as fast as I get to my feet I'll speak of Joan again. Now, will you fight? I'll give you a fair chance to kill me, but I'll kill you before the day's out. This isn't civilization. It's the Solomon islands, and a pretty primitive proposition for all that. And two men and one woman is an equally primitive proposition. We'll settle it in the good old primitive way. I can't insult you directly, I know. You are too easy going or cowardly, or both, for that. But I can narrate for you the talk of the beach—ah, that grinds you, doesn't it? I can tell you what the beach has to say about you and this young girl running a plantation under a business partnership."



THEN IT WAS THAT SHELDON STRUCK OUT.

"Stop!" Sheldon cried, for the other was beginning again to vibrate and oscillate before his eyes. "You want a duel. I'll give it to you. But it is absurd. What kind of a duel shall it be? There are no seconds. What weapons shall we use?"

"I've often thought that the ideal duel should be somewhat different from the modern conventional one. No seconds, of course, and no onlookers. The two principals alone are necessary. They may use any weapons they please, from revolvers and rifles to machine guns and pompoms. They start a mile apart and advance on each other, taking advantage of cover, retreating, circling, feinting—anything and everything permissible. In short, the principals shall hunt each other"—

"Like a couple of wild Indians?"

"Precisely!" cried Tudor, delighted. "You've got the idea. And Berande is just the place, and this is just the right time. Miss Lackland will be taking her siesta, and she'll think we are. We've got two hours for it before she wakes. So hurry up and come on. You start out from the Balesuna, and I start from the Berande. Those two rivers are the boundaries of the plantation, aren't they? Very well. The field of the duel will be the plantation. Neither principal must go outside its boundaries. Are you satisfied?"

"Quite."

Sheldon clapped his hands, and the running house boy hurried away to bring back Adamu Adam and Noa Noah.

"Listen," Sheldon said to them, "this man and me we have one big fight today. Maybe he die. Maybe I die. If he die, all right. If I die you two look after Missie Lackalanna. You take rifles and you look after her day time and night time. If she want to talk with Mr. Tudor, all right. If she not want to talk, you make him keep away. Savvee?"

They grunted and nodded, and each picked a rifle. Tudor, cartridge belts for rifle and pistol strapped around him, rifle in hand, stood impatiently waiting.

"Come on, hurry up, we're burning daylight," he urged, as Sheldon searched after extra clips for his automatic pistol.

Together they passed down the steps and out of the compound to the beach, where they turned their backs to each other, and each proceeded toward his destination, their rifles in the hollows of their arms, Tudor walking toward the Berande and Sheldon toward the Balesuna.

CHAPTER XXII.
MODERN DUELING.

BARELY had Sheldon reached the Balesuna, when he heard the faint report of a distant rifle and knew it was the signal of Tudor, giving notice that he had reached the Berande, turned about, and was coming back. Sheldon fired his rifle into the air in answer, and in turn proceeded to advance. He moved as in a dream, absent mindedly keeping to the open beach. The thing was so preposterous that he had to struggle to realize it, and he reviewed in his mind the conversation with Tudor, trying to find some clew to the common sense of what he was doing. He did not want to kill Tudor. Because that man had blundered in his love making was no reason that he, Sheldon, should take his life. Then what was it all about? True, the fellow had insulted Joan by his subsequent remarks and been knocked down for it, but because he had knocked him down was no reason that he should now try to kill him.

In this fashion he covered a quarter of the distance between the two rivers, when it dawned upon him that Tudor was not on the beach at all. Of course not. He was advancing, according to the terms of the agreement, in the shelter of the cocoanut trees. Sheldon promptly swerved to the left to seek similar shelter, when the faint crack of a rifle came to his ears, and almost immediately the bullet, striking the hard sand a hundred feet beyond him, ricochetted and whined onward in a second flight, convincing him that preposterous and unreal as it was, it was, nevertheless, a sober fact. It had been intended for him. Yet even then it was hard to believe.

MOTHERS NEED CONSTANT STRENGTH

To Care For the Growing Family and Her Household Cares

When there is a growing family to care for and the mother falls ill, it is a serious matter. Many mothers who are on the go from morning to night, whose work apparently is never done, heroically try to disguise their sufferings, and keep an appearance of cheerfulness before their family. Only themselves know how they are distressed by headaches and backaches, dragging down pains, and weakness; how their nights are often sleepless, and they arise to a new day's work tired, depressed and unrefreshed. Such mothers should know that these sufferings are usually due to a lack of good nourishing blood. They should know that the thing above all others they need to give them new health and strength, is rich red blood, and that among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their blood-making, health restoring qualities. Every suffering woman, every women with a home and family to care for should give these pills a fair trial for they will keep her in health and strength, and make her work easy. Here is strong proof that these Pills do what is claimed for them. Mrs. Henry Thomas, Dryden, Ont., says: "When my second child was born I was so weak and run down that I could scarcely walk across a room. My baby was small and weak also, and cried and worried day and night until I discovered that the child was starving, as my nurse had turned almost to water. My husband got me a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I began taking them. The first beneficial effects were noticed in that my child began to thrive, as my nurse began to improve, and baby slept better and naturally. It was not long until I began to feel the improvement myself, and I daily gained new strength, and baby was growing very rosy and fat. I continued using the Pills while I was nursing him and found myself with all the vigor of good health, and able to easily do my housework, which had been so great a drag on me before. I am now never without Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house, and take an occasional dose when I feel tired. I can strongly recommend these Pills to all nursing women, especially if weak or run down."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE

From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.

So. Wellington, B.C.—"For a year during the Change of Life I was all run down. I was really too weak to walk and was very despondent and thought I was going to die, but after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier my health and strength returned. I am very thankful to you and praise your medicine. I have advised several women who suffered as I did to try your remedies. You may publish this if you wish."—Mrs. DAVID R. MORRIS, South Wellington, Vancouver Island, B. C.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and we believe it is unequalled for women during the period of change of life.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Paris Sends Over This Very Dainty Bonnet.

BONNET OF BLUE UNCUT VELVET.

This charming bonnet for a little girl has just arrived from Paris. It is made of blue uncut velvet, and against the blue material are poised little roses made of white silk.

The bows at the side and streamer passing beneath the chin are effective and graceful.

JUST A SUGGESTION.

The Working Girl's Home Life Should Be Pleasant.

The kindest, best intentioned of parents are often unconsciously neither kind nor fair to the daughter who is a wage earner.

It is quite possible that her hours are longer, her work more trying than that of either father or brother, yet whereas nothing in the way of help is expected from them in their leisure hours the business girl is as often as not supposed to do a share of household duties.

If no more active tasks are assigned her she must do her own mending and probably a share of her father's and brother's, and whereas they will be petted and pampered and generally sympathized with on their return from their more or less arduous labors it seldom occurs to any one that the working girl is probably infinitely more nerve racked and worn out than any man is likely to be.

And all this happens because woman's work outside her home is seldom taken seriously by her own folk.

They are ready enough to profit by its results—for, indeed, the working girl's income is rarely her own, as her brother's is his—but that its earning entitles her to the same ease and leisure it entitles the masculine breadwinner seldom dawns on home folks. This is obviously unfair.

Caps For Milk Bottles.

How to keep milk bottles in the cleanest and most satisfactory way concerns all housewives. To aid in obtaining this cleanliness milk bottle "caps" are now for sale. One kind made of celluloid, fits into the bottle and opens with a small aluminum shutter, so that the milk may be poured out and the bottle closed afterward. These cost 15 cents each or two for 25 cents. Another kind is of celluloid and must be taken out of the bottle each time it is used. These latter are also made for condensed milk. They cost 10 cents each.

The Widener Memorial.

Mrs. George D. Widener, who was a passenger on the ill fated Titanic, her husband and son losing their lives on it, will give $2,000,000 to Harvard for a library in memory of her son, Henry E. Widener. He was graduated from Harvard in 1907, and his collection of books will be housed within it. It will be erected next to the present Harvard library and will be a work of art, as much pains has been taken in selecting plans for the building.

CHANGE OF CLIMATE DID NOT HELP

But GIN PILLS Conquered His Rheumatism

THE fact that men of standing and responsibility do not hesitate to come out and state frankly how much good GIN PILLS have done them, speaks volumes for this good old remedy.

Mr. W. G. Reid, of Hamilton, whose statement we publish below, with his permission, is one of the best known commercial men in Canada. His many friends throughout the country will be delighted to learn that he is quite himself again. He says:

"I have been for the last two years a cripple with Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I have tried almost everything known to medical science to relieve me of the intense pain and inflammation. I sought change of climate in Kentucky and other Southern points without relief. Your manager in this city recommended GIN PILLS and I have since taken eight boxes and am now cured. I consider GIN PILLS the conqueror of Rheumatism and Kidney Disease".

(Signed) W. G. REID.

Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica and all other troubles arising from weak, inactive or diseased kidneys, have little chance against GIN PILLS.

The curative properties in these pills go straight to the root of the trouble—the failure of the kidneys to keep the blood free from the irritating Uric Acid which is continually being formed in the body. Take Every Precaution

Eyestrain sometimes comes on so gradually that the individual does not realize his trouble until it has reached a serious stage.

In fact there are many effects of eyestrain that only a physician would trace to their true source.

The man who does a great deal of work with his eyes, should be on the watch for the first indications of strain, and do everything possible to prevent it from occurring.

Sometimes the eyes are in such an irritable condition that the wearing of the ordinary "flat" lenses produces great discomfort. Light is reflected from the rear surfaces of the lenses and the eyes are wearied by unconsciously trying to focus on these reflections.

Then when looking to either side the edges of such lenses annoy the eyes

These irritations are avoided when you wear Toric Lenses. You are not taking every possible precaution against eyestrain if you do not get a pair of Torics.

All lenses ground on the premises
